UGLY CONDITIONS ARE CHARGED AT THE ALABAMA SOLDIERS HOME

Various Reports Have Been Made to the Legislative Investigators.

Numbers of reports and various charges have been made recently to the legislative investigating committee regarding the management and condition of affairs at the Alabama Soldier Home at Mountain Creek.

Following are reports of some of the testimony, being extracts from press communications:

"R. H. Long, of Mountain Creek appeared before the Merrit investigating committee of the legislature and asked it to make an investigation of affairs at the home for Confederate soldiers. He said the management seems to be poor, that soldiers are expelled sometimes 20 or 30 days as punishment for infraction of rules, and that medical attention is lacking because the physician for the home is old.

"Mr. Long declared there has been much complaint at the home and that nearly all the inmates had asked him to come to Mentgomery and present the facts to the committee."

Mr. Long said that the institution needed younger men at the head of it, according to one of the newspaper reports.

According to another communication, Captain Simpson, Commandant of the Home, denies that the old soldiers are dissatisfied. In answer to Mr. Long he appeared before the committee with a detailed account of the management of the affairs of the home. He stated that Mr. Long had been instigated by a few irratible "sore-heads" who were always finding fault. "In my opinion seven-eights of the inmates would deny the charges of Mr. Long," he concluded.

The following paper was circulated among the old vets and numerously signed:

"We, inmates of the Confederate Soldiers Home, having read or had read to us, the statements made by R. H. Loug before the legislative committee at Montgomery, pronounce such statements untrue."

We learn that the legislative committee is to meet at the home and probably make a thorough investigation..

EVERGREEN DISTRICT

There is not any sickness in our community. Everybody is well and making preparations for the spring crops. There is not so much guano being hauled into this community for cotton this year.

The school improvement association has been doing some work on our school building.

We are expecting a nice time next Sunday at this place.

Mr. Jacks and wife from near Clanton made a visit to Mr. Well's last Sunday.

Mr. Morris, one of our neighbors, went to Birmingham last Friday. On his way to the depot he was knocked down and robbed by some negroes. They secured about nine dollars from him, and placed him in an out house and left him unconscious. He knew nothing from three o'clock in the afternoon till eight that night.

Our Sunday school is good. Singing last Sunday night at Mr. Will Morris's was all right. The singings have completely broken up all parties, we are glad to say.

What Road Warrants Have Done for Sha

From "The Peoples Advocate," of Columbiana.

Montevallo, March 22. At a mass meeting held in the court house in December last, a committee was appointed to investigate the road contracts and warrants issued therefor by the County Board of Revenue. I had the honor to be made chairman of that committee. After repeated efforts to get at the true situation from the Board and having failed by reason of their refusal to give the desired information, we appealed to the Governor to send an examiner of public accounts to investigate the same, Mr. J. T. Gorman was assigned the task and his report dated March 19, 1915, is now in the hands of Judge E. S. Lyman of the County Court, and we presume will be in this weeks' issue of our county papers. It will be seen from that report that six per cent warrants have been issued by the Board of Revenue to the amount of $438,000, all of which is for road building except $75,000, which are old county court house warrants issued by a previous Board.

The examiner clearly points out that on the taxable values of property in the county not over $309,000 of warrants bearing 5 per cent interest could be issued, and the law automatically stamps void all in excess of that amount. From this it will be seen that $129,000 of these warrants are illegal and worthless. It is presumed that the first $309,000 warrants are valid and the excess issued void. The county treasurer has no option in the matter and will be forced to refuse payment. Now ihis will fall heavily on many of our citizens who have taken warrants since the limit was reached. What is to be done is the question? I am no lawyer, but it seems to me that the taxpayers should at once file a bill of injunction, enjoining the treasurer from paying interest or principal of these road warrants, on the grounds of fraud, illegal interest, and want of consideration. It will be remembered that the contract with Newell & Co., was made without a single competitive [illegible] prices agreed to be paid contract as shown [illegible] fraud on its face [illegible] interest illegal, and [illegible] the Bibb county line [illegible] in many places unfit [illegible] impassible.

The prices paid New[ell] the contract made privately are as follows:

Moving loose dirt 31 1-4 cents cubic yard, against 17 cents competitive bid later.

Moving loose rock 67 1-2 cents cubic yard against 32 cents competitive bid later.

Moving solid rock $1.35 per cubic yard, against 64 cents competitive bid later.

Moving chert 1 mile 88 1-[illegible] cents, for which our citizens as sub-contractors got 40 cents.

Moving chert each additional mile or fractional part thereof 68 3-4 cents for which our people as sub-contractors got 25 cents.

Lumber in bridges $43.75 per thousand feet. Grubbing and clearing right of way $68.75 per acre, against competitive bid of $25.00.

It will therefore be seen at a glance that for the $363,000 worth of interest bearing warrants the county has received less than half the value in material and work. If this is not fraud on the people, what is it?

The Examiner in his report suggested that we get an engineer of the State Highway department to pass on the quality of work done, material furnished, prices paid, etc. This we propose to do.

In the meantime we learn that more warrants are being issued, and it is believed our indebtedness will now reach a halt million dollars. A day of reckoning is sure to come and the property of the people of Shelby county will be bound for these big debts if allowed to heap up. It is a reflection on the intelligence of the people of the county to allow this ruinous policy to continue. The conmittee would like to hear from others.

What the Chilton County High School is Doing

To the People of Chilton County, the Patrons and Friends of the Chilton County High School,-- Greetings:

Your County High School comes before you in this issue of your home papers with feelings of profound gratitude, and conscious pride. It has been a matter of expediency that we have delayed making this announcement of your school with its various features and activities. Your loyal support and co operation, your ready compliance with all the requirements of the High School Regulations, the noble sacrifice you have made to enter your children and to secure the splendid opening we have had are equalled only by the public spirited efforts you have made to provide a county high school for the boys and girls of Chilton county. You are entitled to the very best results that industry, experience, wisdom and forethought can supply. These results the State and county boards of education and the faculty of the school are endeavoring to secure to you. Your high school opened at a time of year to materially test your interest and moral support. You have stood the test grandly, and we are grateful.

Your splendid and well appointed building, the superior of which is not found in all the State, your spacious and beautiful grounds, now stand as a monment to your progress and public spirit.

The large enrollment of pupils, the splendid personnel of the student body, their willing and ready responsiveness to the requests of the teachers, and to the tactics of the school, the high plane of friendship and good will between teachers and pupils, and above all, the splendid school spirit developing and made manifest day by day, present cogent pleas for the continuance of your attention, moral support and good will.

The Opening.

On the fourth day of January, the day on which, by appointment, the school was to begin, the circumstances were such as to preclude a formal opening so desirable when the scope and dignity of a county high school are considered.

All preliminaries for beginning the work were made while the building was being rushed to completion. Providing temporary connections for heating the building; procuring with limited means such supplies and material as could not be dispensed with; securing an adequate and competent corps of teachers necessary to meet the requirements of the high school regulations, were some of the problems then coufronting the Principal.

The Teachers.

Happily for the school, the teachers hastily secured, have demonstrated qualities of both mind and heart commending them to safe instruction, and industrious care in the departmental work of the high school.

They have met nobly the difficulties incident to lack of equipment and conveniences, and have exhibited praiseworthy sympathy and co-operation with the policy of the Principal, and with the general management of the school.

The Faculty.

In addition to the Principal, who is in charge of the departments of Latin and Mathematics and Industrial Drawing, these members compose the splendid and able faculty.

H. L. Foshee of Thorsby, Science and Mathematics.

Miss Corita Wilson, of Clarksville, Tenn., English and History.

Miss Mary Alice Brown, of Gadsden, Ala., Teacher of Expression.

Miss Dora Haynes, of Hayneville, Ala., Domestic Science and Arts.

Miss Emmette Matthews Clanton, Ala., Music, (Piano and Violine).

Miss Evelyn Waller, of Montgomery Teacher of Seventh Grade.

The Departments

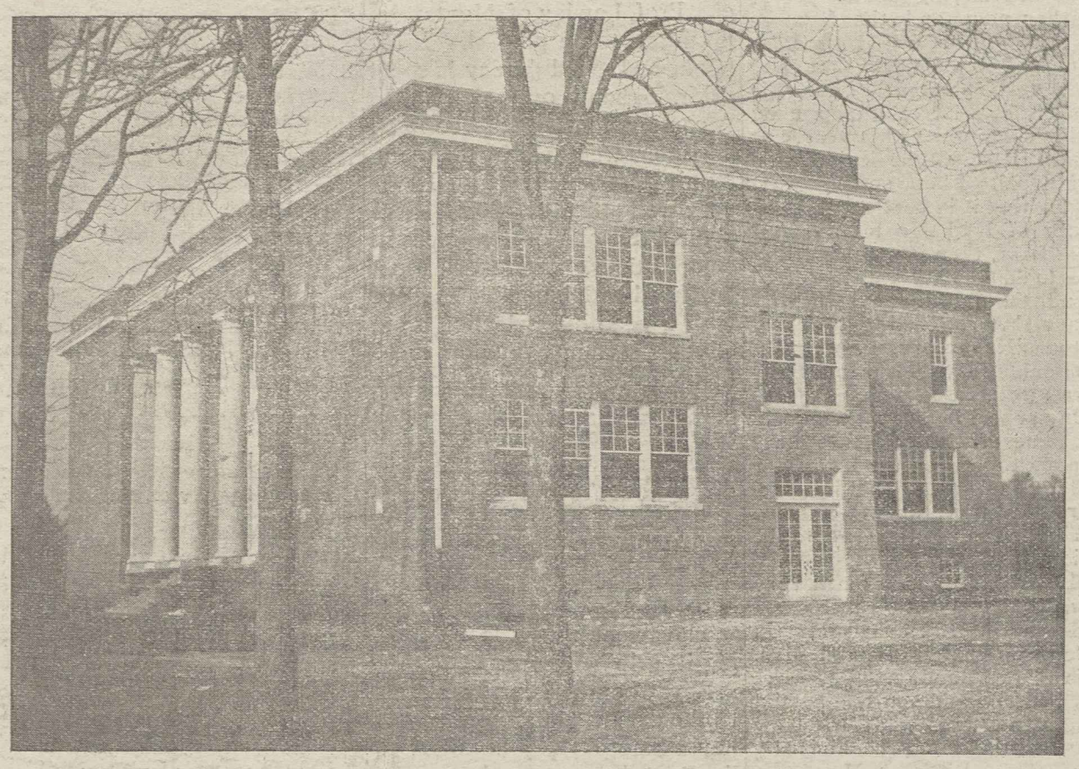
We desire to commend in the highest terms the work of the teachers in their several departments.

The departments of Music and Expression are supported by monthly tuition. These departments are not mere appendages to the school, but constitute essential and necessary parts of High School work.

I desire to make especial mention of the efficient work of Miss Matthews in developing her pupils in the matter of Piano Technique, Finger Movement and Wrist Developement. Tone and cast are added to the High School through her pupils on both piano and violin.

Miss Brown deserves credit not only for the equipoise developing in her pupils in the matter of Readings and Expressions, but also in their increasing desire for classical literature and good books. These two Departments commend themselves to your careful consideration.

Miss Wilson proves herself both capable and competent in the Department of History and English, while Mr. Foshee has an established record as an able instructor in the branches of his Department.



The Department of Domestic Science and Arts is well organized under the superior direction of Miss Haynes, and the interest manifested by her pupils in Sewing and Cooking commends her tactful and efficient management.

Mechanical and industrial Drawing are well under way, and steps are being taken to equip the basement rooms with benches for wood work.

The Drawing Class is now being equipped with excellent Mechanical Drawing Instruments, and other supplies, and show their appreciation for the educative value of this Department which the High School provides.

Miss Waller, as teacher of the Seventh Grade, has been a most helpful assistant every way by ably correlating the seventh Grade work to that of the High School.

The Seventh Grade

Under Rule 8 of the High School Regulations, the Seventh Grade pupils are admitted to the High School. This has proven more than an experiment; it has been a success both for the High School in general and these pupils in particular. It will always be the policy of the present management to open the doors of the High School to the Seventh Grade.

Other Activities

In addition to the major work of the school, we are gratified at the material and helpful results through well organized Activities of the High School. I refer to the unselfish and constant efforts of the splendid mothers composing the High School Improvement Association, under the Presidency of Mrs. Tom Curry; also to the Athletics of the High School, for both boys and girls; two well organized Literary Socities,; The Dramatic Club and a Library Commission composed of High School pupils. Seperate paragraphs by the Directors of these outline, much to your interest, the progress made and the good results obtained.

I shall mention in this connction, however, that the School Improvement Association, in addition to a neat bank account, has equipped the High School Auditorium with an artistic, and beautiful Stage Curtain at a cost of $144; also, our Library Commission will soon install for the High School, near two hundred volumes of well selected books.

Enrollment

Our enrollment now numbers one hundred and twenty seven, with ninety-four of these in High School. Remote parts of the county are well represented.

Equipment

The High School stands badly in need of equipments and fixtures necessary to the high type of work deservedly demanded for your children.

The school needs to be equipped with a small Laboratory, and an ample outfit of physical apparatus for teaching Chemistry and Physics.

Our seating capacity has been overreached already. We need more desks. We must look to an interested and public spirited patronage for these needed supplies. A little help from everybody will soon place this youngest High School in the State to where its advantages will be equalled by few, and where our boys and girls can indeed be educated at home, and at small cost.

Money

Our supply of funds is limited, especially this session. We command barely a sufficiency to meet the salaries. The State appropriation must necessarily be supplemented if this growing school meets your demands.

Our sources of supplement depend upon the matriculation fees paid by the pupils, and such other supplements as may be secured through the County Educational Board, and other county authorities, and by private donations.

We hope to make, and we must make this school an influence to justify every effort and every sacrifice to secure the supplement to enable the school to meet the purposes for which it was designed and established.

This is now the economic side of the High School, to see that definite and permanent plans are organized for such local support as the school must have from year to year. We feel that the progressive citizens of Chilton, and the intesested patrons of the school will see that this High School, the "Child of the County" is nourished, fostered and supported with care and zeal.

Senior Class

Aithough the youngest High School in the State, Our High School will have the proud distinction of graduating a class of five at the close of this its first Session, May the 12th.

Commencement

The High School will come to a close, May the 12th. We are arranging for a successful program of exercises commensurate with the High School. We cordially invite you to be with us throughout the entire exercises. Programs with further notice will be sent you in due time.

Summer School

The High School immediately at its close, will resolve itsself into a Summer special school for advanced pupils and teachers desiring to take the State examinatian. For this a nominal fee will be charged. Folders outlining this Summer special term will be mailed you soon.

Conclusion

Friends, the County High School is before you. It is yours. You have reasons to be proud of it. You have a just claim to all the advantages it can be made to afford. It is your high priviiege to work for it, encourage it, talk for it, prepare your boys and girls for it, send them to it, help it and defend it.

The Principal appreciates the honor of being placed in charge of its broad field of work.

We thank you in the name of our student body for the moral support you have given the school, and for words of encouragement, and deeds of kindness.

Yours sincerely,
C. C. SLATON,
Principal.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE

Domestic Science, to be of the greatest value, must give the pupils a practical knowledge of foods and the principles which underlie their preparation for the table, and at the same time train the pupils to apply the principles intelligently.

The course begins with a preliminary lesson in organization, for acquainting the pupils with the kitchen utensils, and the general instructions for working, and care of utensils. Pupils are most interested in the parforming of an experiment or a cooking process, and when the practice precedes the recitation, they learn to think and do for themselves, and therefore get a better understanding of the theory.

The food principles form the basis for the lessons, which are arranged to deal first with the simple food materials, and then progression to the more complex food combinations is gradual and practical.

The aim is to train pupils to think for themselves, and to do for themselves. Better spoil a dish in the making than deprive the pupils of the experience of doing the actual work themselves.

Marked emphasis is placed on the cleanliness and attractiveness of the kitchen dress. Standards are set, which the children can reach only by constant practice. We find that good kitchen habits can be secured only by the teachers persistent demand for the ideal.

The duties of the average housekeeper who does her own work are so many and varied that it is often hard for her to know just where to begin. A woman in this position often wastes much nervous energy by fretting over unaccomplished work. Now, the end for which Domestic Science and Art aims, is the minimizing of the labor and the systematizing of the daily routine of work. Every step saved is added to the store of energy.

In this department the girls are being taught to look to the future welfare of their personal habits, the welfare of their homes and the welfare of the human race. The girls of today are the housekeepers and homemakers of tomorrow, and to them we leave the responsibility of the rearing of a nation of strong men and women; strong—mentally and physically. This strength of mind and body depends upon the proper nourishment prepared in the first ten years of life. Then, why are the girls being taught to learn a "Balanced Ration?"

I desire to express thanks, personally and in behalf of the Chilton County High School, to the friends who have in many ways given encouragement and assistance in the organization of this department of Household Science and Art.

Chilton County High School Improvement Association

The Chilton County High School Improvement Association was organized for the purpose of doing all in our power for the betterment of the High School conditions. We have one of the best high school buildings in the State and it is our desire to see it one of the best equipped.

The organization is composed of a number of progressive ladies of Clanton and Chilton county, with the following officers:

President, Mrs. Thos. A. Curry.
Vice-Pres., Mrs. W. M. Adams.
Secretary, Miss Evelyn Waller.
Treasurer, Mrs. W. I. Mullins.

While still a young and rather feeble organization, it has done some very good work. The things that called for the improvement association were urgent needs, and it required no close search to find them. The duties were at hand, and seemed to say, "Here I am, begin."

First of all, there was the beautiful auditorium without a curtain for the stage, and no lights. If properly fitted up this auditorium will not be excelled by any of the high schools of the state; so the President of the Association appointed a curtain committee at once to begin operations for securing a fitting arrangement for the stage. A very attractive curtain was secured, the cost of which was covered by advertisements placed upon it, and this with the folding doors dividing the stage, gives us a splendid house for presenting light dramatic performances, and various kinds of entertainments.

But there was a need more urgent than the curtain for the stage—shades for the class room windows. Did you ever try to read with the sun shining on your book? Don't you remember how it caused your eyes and head to ache? The greatest need of the school was truly felt to be these shades, and funds were soon raised for placing them.

There are yet many things to be done, and the enterprising ladies who compose this live improvement association will no doubt devise some means to prove themselves equal to the occasion. They implore the cooperation of every woman, and especially every mother, who is interested in the promotion of educational conditions. The High School is the property of Chilton county. The more shoulders there are put to the wheel, the more readily will the wagon run. Won't all you good ladies join in the promotion of this noble work of improving the high school?

Athletics in the County High School

We believe that education would not be complete unless we make provision for the proper development of the students physically as well as morally and mentally; for education is indeed threefold moral, mental and physical.

We have grounds and equipment for basket ball and base ball and have already had several match games with the schools of this and adjoining counties.

The boys basket ball team composed of Mitchell Foshee, Watson Jones, Horace Popwell, Clyde Williams, Johnnie Burnett and Roy Foshee played three ames with the Baptist High School of Thorsby in which our boys were successful in one.

The girls basket ball team has had better success than the boys as they played the girls of the Baptist school winning 21 to 15. They also played the Autauga County High School at Prattville winning by the score of 23 to 20, and the Marbury Institute team was defeated by the narrow margin of one point, the score being 23 to 22. Those who compose the team are Misses Izora Callen, Annie Gragg, Bessie Davis, Rilla Smith, Effie Burnett, Libbie McKee, Willie B. Jones, and Ola Durbin.

Oh I just can't tell where everyone goes. It is too much like tatling, and I haven't any patience with a tattler. Doesn't it make one feel miserable to hear ones friends dissected and part of them analized and things made just so black that you can not tell them from a negro, or an imp just from the warmest place we have ever heard of?

Let brotherly love continue, says the scripture; but first get brotherly love in the heart by looking for the good in all, for there is some good in all. You know that love hides a multitude of faults, and it is so much better to love than to hate. One feels better and others love you in return. Who can possibly love a cross and crabbed persou; Of course family ties bind but look around you and note the difference in one that is kind and obedient to parents and always glad to accomodate brother or sister and kind to neighbors, and another that is always sulky; nothing ever goes to their liking, always cross and grumbling. No one cares for them. Is it any wonder? Can they blame anybody but themselves? Oh for eyes to see ourselves as others see us. Wouldn't we be careful then in all our ways?

Lets take a close inspection of our own and not some one else's heart and life. Lets train our thoughts on our daily manners and words. Lets weed out every unkind word and thought and strive to keep the "Golden Rule" by doing to others as we would have others do unto us. Love is the fulling of the law; as God loves us let us love our fellow beings.

The renewed "Thorsby" sign in the park along the railroad attracts the attention of all passing by. The sign is the work of Mr. G. Berlin. Several who have visited who have visited Thorsby recently have commented on the fact that the town is one of the prettiest along the railroad. Let the good work go on. There fs still room for improvement.

UNION SPRINGS

On next Sunday April 4, there will be an all-day singing in the old books at Union Springs chapel. Prof. Lawley of Montevallo promises to be present. Bring books and spend the day in song.

Mr. Mahan is quite sick again. A communion service free to all christians was held in this community last Sunday night. It was very well attended. Service was opened by one of Dr. Mason's compositions, "There is a fountain filled with blood" and closed with a beautiful selection from Gospel Hymns, "Savior more than life to me." The service being held on the night of its institution added to the interest; it was observed at the same hour throughout the civilized world.

Mr. Zack Abney of Randolph visited here Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson of Jemison visited here last week.

The grippe seems to be loosing its grip here.

Rev. Cook of Thorsby attended the debate at the new school house Saturday night. Miss Sallie Russ has returned from an extended trip to Florida.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required tn Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many produdts that are extensilely advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particular to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's S amp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it sho s excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to s orn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils almost every ish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects uniary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid hich causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcles Post. Address Dr, Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Clanton Union-Banner.

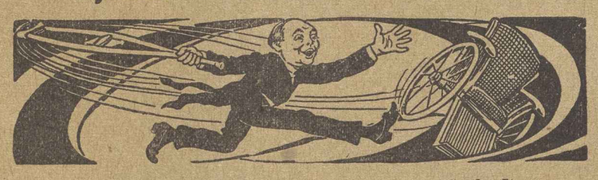
...lets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.



In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism that Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to disolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and ask for S. S. S.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

EVERGREEN DISTRICT

After a hard fight with General green, we have him subdued, and crops are looking fine. Our corn is mighty good; oats were a little short this time; wheat fair.

Our Sunday school is a little off on account of all day singings. It is good to sing praises to the Lord.

The arge crop of watermelons planted in this section shows a promising outlook.

What is wrong with the Mineral Springs writer? Wish all the writers would send in their news each week.

If all the business men would advertise in the Union-Banner, the readers could keep up with the times better.

Many of our people went to the singing at New Prospect Sunday.

Best wishes to The Union-Banner and its readers.

DELEGATIONS OPPOSE CLEMENCY FOR FRANK

Atlanta, June 7.—It became known today that Solicitor General Hugh Dorsey, has written Governor Slaton asking that he be allowed to appear before the governor to protest against clemency for Leo. M. Frank, when appeal for clemency reaches the governor for consideration. The governor has granted the solicitor this privilege.

Neither the solicitor nor the governor would talk concerning the letter to the Governor, but it is understood from an authoritative source that Dorsey is in possession of a large amount of data and evidence which he intends to submit to the Governor, including affidavits of a nature not [illegible] divulged. A large number [illegible]itions opposing Frank's [illegible]on are also in the [illegible]itor. It is re[illegible]ions

The Ford Automobile Company has a way of doing unusual things in an unusual way. Because nobody has ever done the thing before does not deter them; in fact, it invites their effort. When they voluntarily agreed to practically double the wages of their employes and distribute $20,000,000 a year among them, the business world wasped and said, "Can they do it?" The answer is written in the history of the company.

In August of last year this company announced that it would return to each purchaser of a Ford car bought between August 1st, 1914, and August 1, 1915, between forty and fifty dollars if they sold 300,000 cars between the dates mentioned. "Just a bluff," said the knockers. "They know they can't sell so many cars. They are after advertising." Henry Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company announces that 300,000 cars have been sold and each purchaser will be returned the amount agreed upon, aggregating $15,000,000.

Carrying out the Ford policy of doing unusual things in an unusual way, the Brownell Company, agents for the Ford in Alabama, in conjunction with their sub agents, inserted in The Birmingham Ledger's issue of June 5th, THE LARGEST ADVERTISEMENT FOR AN AUTOMOBILE EVER INSERTED IN ANY NEWSPAPER IN ANY CITY IN THE WORLD. There were twelve full pages describing the Ford car and giving the name of each of its agents.

Mr. I. J. Duncan, the Ford agent for Chilton county, is to be congratulated upon exhibiting the same spirit of enterprise as the home company at Detroit and the state agency in Birmingham. In the last sixty days he has sold almost as many cars as were sold last year in Chilton county.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of Kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root,

Are You Going to the World's Greatest Exposition?

Marvels of Landscape, Sculpture and Architecture, Wonderful Exhibits at Huge Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco

LOW ROUND TRIP RATES AFFORD GREATEST OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME TO TAKE WONDERFUL JOURNEY AND SEE FINEST DISPLAYS OF WORLD'S NATIONS

These pictures at best can indicate but feebly the indescribable marvels presented by the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco to which the people of all nations are thronging.

Forty-two foreign nations, and more than 80,000 individual exhibitors, representing every country on the globe have sent to this wonderful $50,000,000 show the best of their present-day achievements which are now displayed in the eleven colossal exhibit palaces and also in the buildings of the state and foreign group, the latter structures being built in most cases in a style of architecture characteristic of the state or nation represented. More than $10,000,000 has been invested in the "Zone," the 3,000-foot amusement street of this great fair, where the world's premier showmen are conducting the most wonderful and most original sight-seeing and pure-fun attractions ever assembled for any celebration on earth.

In order to put the opportunity of seeing this most marvelous of all expositions within reach of the greatest number of people the railroads have cut rates in half to and from San Francisco, and the hotel and restaurant associations of the city have agree to keep their schedule of prices down to normal figures.

Complete information regarding this wonderful world's fair may be had free for the asking by addressing Manager of the Bureau of Publications, Press Building, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, California, who will forward to any address a beautiful sixty-page booklet, illustrated in colors, containing detailed information regarding the glories of this great celebration and a complete description of the Panama Canal.

Surmounting these pillars are beautiful figures of women gazing into an urn, expressive of Art and Beauty. Eric Ellerhause is the designer of these groups. Over the foliage and forestation of the Fine Arts lagoon can be seen the Half Dome of Philosophy and the grand central dome of the Palace of Education.

AN OPEN SECRET

The success of the L. & N. is an open secret to the observer of railroad operations. It consists of:

Systematic Organization
Conscientious Service
Efficient Effort

Systematic Organization means that the L. & N. has placed modern equipment at the disposal of carefully trained, competent officials and employes.

Conscientious Service means that those officials and employes will utilize that equipment to the best of their ability in the interest of the L. & N. and the general public.

Efficient Effort means that careful study is given by officials and employes to the best and most effective means of giving maximum comfort at a minimum expense to the public in time and money.

This policy obtains in both the freight and passenger departments.

In addition to which the L. & N. maintains a special department for the co-operative development of the rich natural resources of the territory served by its lines.

This principle applied to any organization of such magnitude as the L. & N., may sound expensive. On the contrary, we have clearly demonstrated that the practice is sound economics.

Each official and employe is inspired with the spirit of the L. & N. pride in his company and the service rendered. Thinking that the L. & N. is the best railroad system anywhere in the country inspires a determination to maintain the standard of superiority.

The L. & N. places a high value on ability. But there is a human trait more valuable—Loyalty. Ability can be deveolped in the loyal man. But the disloyal man of ability finds no place in the L. & N. organization.

The man who is loyal to the L. & N. must be loyal to himself, loyal to the territory served by the L. & N. and imbued with the determination to give the best that is in him of constructive service.

These human elements are under close scrutiny by trained observers. The plan accounts in large measure for the pre-eminence enjoyed by the L. & N. and the excellence of the service rendered the general public.

The L. & N. solicits the freight and passenger business of the traveling and shipping public, with the assurance that entirely satisfactory service will be rendered.

MT. CREEK

Referring to the announcement made in this paper a few weeks ago relative to a flour mill, beg to advise my friends throughout the county that all arrangements for the erection of the mill has been made, and it will be built at Marbury.

We thought for awhile that it would be possible to build it in Clanton, but, the town of Marbury offererd better inducements for the mill, and on account of the cotton seed oil mill being there it was decided to build the flour mill there.

This mill will be built entirely of new and up-to-date machinery, guaranteed to make pretty white flour.

I wish to thank all of the people who have written me stating that they were interested in the mill. I am very sorry that I have been unable to answer all the letters and hope that you will accept this letter as though it were an individual one.

Yours truly,
Chas. Cooper.

EXISTING CONDITIONS AT ALA. SOLDIERS' HOME

To the People of the State of Alabama, Greeting:

At the request of some of the inmates of the Soldiers home the writer has been induced to write a few words concerning the existing conditions of the home as viewed by a resident of Mountain Creek.

For some time there has been quite a lot said concerning the management of the home. Some of the inmates have been praying that the investigation committee would render them some assistance, but so far, nothing has been done.

The writer does not wish to assail the management of the present commandant because the evil that strikes the writer most forcibly may be beyond his reach.

The expulsion of the inmates of the home seems to be the worst evil with which they have to contend. It seems that inmates are turned out for the least violation of rules. This in it self does away with the pleasure and contentment that the home ought to afford, as it keeps the inmates in dread.

Captain Jeff Falkner, that grand and notable character who was the father of the home, said to the writer one day before he died that he hoped to make the home a heaven on earth. If it were possible now for him to see his comrades turned out of the home for trival offenses, no doubt that he would turn over in his grave and say that things radically wrong.

The writer believes that there should be rules and regulations, but it seems very cruel indeed to turn those old men out of the home. It seems that a milder form of punishment should or could be introduced. They would not have been turned out of the army during the "Sixties" for simular offenses.

Mr. Morris and wife was expelled from the home almost two years ago and have been living here ever since, supported by the people of this community. From the best information we have at hand it seems that this expulsion was brought about as the result of an argument Mr. Morris had with some one in the home. We understand that others have been expelled for similar offenses.

We understand that it is being rumored in the home now that those who participated in asking for an investigation will be ousted just as soon as the mist has cleared away, if this be true, surely something ought to be done for those who stood amid shot and shell during the "sixties."

In studying the sacred text we have learned that we are once a man, twice a child. This being true we trust that the people of Alabama will bring it to bear upon the minds of their representatives and senators, and ask that they pass a law prohibiting the expulsion of the inmates of the home for trival offenses.

Very truly yours,
Chas. Cooper.

DIVERSIFICATION

Southern farmers and business men are entering the most important period of the present year, namely, the planting season. For years the Federal Department of Agriculture, in common with others who know the weaknesses of Southern Agriculture, has urged a sufficient diversification to make the South self-supporting. It has worked to influence the South to change from all cotton to 'food for its people, fhed for its livestock, and cotton."

In every county in the South the farmers ought, under this plan, to grow their own gardens and can the fruits and vegetables for home use, to grow their own beans, peas, potatoes, corn, oats, cane or sorghum for syrup, and their weat supply from poultry, hogs and cattle. The livestock is to consume the waste products of the farm ann to bring profit out of its waste lands. Beyond the needs of every farm there are the home markets of the South which should be supplied from these farms. In almost every community there may be found farmers who are following this programe and prospering as the result. Under this system cotton becomes the great cash crop, strengthened through a self-supporting system of agriculture.

The increased fall seeding of wheat and oats has been encouraging, but the criticai season is here if we are to produce our own food and feed for the livestock. During the planting season the following items should be emphasized:

1. The home garden must be put in and kept going to produce fresh vegetables for the family use and some to can for the winter. Send for the Farmers' Bulletin No. 647. Be sure to raise potatoes, either Irish or sweet, for home use.

2. Carn must be planted on a larger acerage or the South will have to continue to import it in large quantites. A conservative estimate shows that the South imports 105,649,000 bushels of corn annually. We need more of it to supply our farms and the town and city consumption.

3. Plant peas or beans in the corn or seperately. Harvest the viner for hay and gather the peas or beans for food, In some sections pumpkins or squarh may also be raised in the corn.

4. Do not fail to look after the farm poultry. Fifty hens to the family will not cost much to keep and will greatly assist in making the family self-supporting. Good fresh eggs are always in demand.

5. Prepare pastures for the hogs where possible. If every family would raise the pigs from not lessthan two sows, on the average, it would help to supply the South with meat.

6. The uncertainty of the market and the probability that a large amount of cotton will be carried over out of this year's crop should influence caution in cotton planting. With this uncertainty the living is the important thing. The Departmen has for years advocated a readjustment of the cotton acreage per farm in order that a better system, founded on self support, might be introduced in place of the presenc system, This means the eeduction of the proportion of each farm devoted to cotton.

Not less than a twenty-five percent reduction on the cotton acreage, on the average, per farm will leave room for the production of the gardene, oats, corn, hay, syrup and livestock necessary in order to make the South selt-sustaining as to food for its people and feed for its livestock

This program is not advocated merely as a temporary makeshift, nor merely for the purpose of cutting down the cotton acreage, but as a permanent and lasting system which orght to be adopted in order to avoid financial and agricultural uncertainty in the South.

County agents are urged to call these matters to the attention of farmers and business men during the planting season. You will remember that bulletins touching on each of the matters suggested above may be obtained on application to the Department or to your agricultural college.

I will be in the market for cotton seed until April 10th. Those having seed to sell will please bring them on by that time.

SPRAYING FRUIT TREES TO KILL SAN JOSE SCALE

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.
Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Our most deadly fruit tree enemy is the San Jose scale. The full-grown scale is only about one twenty-fifth inch in diameter, so it is usually overlooked even when abundant. It may kill trees in three years or less.

The best known treatment is to spray during January or February, while the trees are dormant, using what is known as lime-sulphur wash. This material may be purchased in concentrated form of reliable insecticide manufacturers or dealers and needs only to be diluted at the rate of 1 gallon in about 8 gallons of water to make the winter spray. The wash may also be made at home at somewhat lower cost by boiling together for an hour about 15 to 18 lbs. of rock lime and 15 lbs. of sulphur flour or flowers, then diluting this mixture to make 50 gallons of spray.

The good effects of this spraying are so marked that all fruit trees should be treated even if the scale is not present. It improves the health of the trees, controls several other insects than scale and some fungous troubles as well. For further details get Alabama Experiment Station Bulletin No. 144.

EVER SALIVATED BY CALOMEL? HORRIBLE!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a days work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't grige.

Blue Monday.

In Bavaria and some other parts of Europe the Monday before Lent was at one time known as Blue Monday The churches were decorated with blue, and the day was kept as a holiday by classes whose ordinary avocation required them to labor on Sunday. As this led to violent disturbances the custom was legally abolished.

Simple Cement.

For mending ornaments and delicate china there is nothing better than rice-flour cement. It is very easily made, it being only necessary to mix rice flour or ground rice thoroughly with cold water, simmering gently over a slow fire until it thickens, thereby forming a most durable adhesive substance which can be used hot or cold, in the usual way.

Of Interest and Importance to all Women

Timely Knowledge on a Subject Which Most Women Happily Anticipate

Among the helpful influences for the expectant mother is a splendid external application known as "Mother's Friend." It enables her to go through the ordeal in comparative comfort. She applies it herself. Her own hand guided by her own mind is her only attendant. She uses it just where required. It is deeply penetrating in its influence, gently lubricates the cords, ligaments and muscles to assist in a perfectly natural and gradual expansion.

It gives no sensation beyond a feeling of relief, a sense of security and a conscious knowledge of physical rest and comfort.

In the best homes throughout the country and in the best drug stores everywhere, "Mother's Friend" for half a century has been the standard.

Many a grandmother today is recommending this splendid help to her daughter just as did her mother before her. Phone or send to the nearest druggist for a bottle of "Mother's Friend." It is perfectly safe, absolutely harmless and wonderfully effective. And then write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 535 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book particularly timely and interesting to all mothers or expectant mothers. It is mailed free. Write today. Don't fail to send for this book.

Gets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.

In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism that Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to disolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and ask for S. S. S.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

MRS. SARA BAKER

Mrs. Sara Baker was born March 5, 1868, died March 14, 1915. She joined the Missionary Baptist Church in 1891, and lived a christian life. She leaves a husband and six children; four girls and two boys, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her departure. She had been in ill health for 15 years. Pneumonia seized her on the 10th of March and she only lived four days. She was laid to rest at Highland cemetery on the 15th of March, Rev. M. J Parrish conducting the funeral services.

NOW HER FRIENDS HARDLY KNOW HER

But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

Houston, Texas.—In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks, I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui to-day. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

And again, "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me; and he that doth not take his cross and follow after me, is not worthy of me," Mt. 10.37-38.

Did you ever see these as headlines in some of our big daily papers? What did it mean? In the following columns you read urgent appeals to the citizens of the cities where these papers are published to support their own institutions and industries. Is it right? Is it right for the Baptist of Clanton to support the Clanton Baptist Church? Every fair minded man knows that they should. We prayerfully urge all of our Clanton Baptist Brethren to do their Christian duty in this regard. We hereby set apart next Sunday, April 25th, as "Joining Day for Baptists." We not only desire Baptists not identified with us to connect themselves with our church, but also all those that have been saved and are of Baptist persuasion.

NEW SALEM BOYS WIN

The debate that was set to take place at Union Grove Saturday night, April 17, on the subject, Resolved:

That we should add an amendment to the constitution of the U. S. A, for nation wide woman suffrage, came off most brilliantly. Those who represented the affirmative side were Ephriam E. Smith of Clanton and Orville M. Martin of the Chilton County High School, and those who represented the negative side were J. D. Gentry and Burnie F. Martin of New Salem. One of the affirmative speakers, Mr. E. V. Marcus, was not present and Orville M. Martin acted as substitute. The following judges rendered the decision in favor of the negative side, Messrs. Arnold A. Conway of Jemison, Walter Aldridge of Stumps Hill and Nathaniel Smith of Union Grove.

We wish to congratulate Prof. R. A. Smith, Chairman, for his debate for woman suffrage. He denied the bible points of the New Testament, and said they were the Mosecial laws and they did not pertain to now-a-days. How do you make that out Mr. Smith? But in spite of the fact that Mr. Smith argued for the affirmative side the negative side were victorous.

We appreciate the large audience and their courtesy toward the boys.

W. C. HEADLEY

On the 10th of April, about midnight, the death angel visited the home of W. C. Headley and wafted his sainted spirit home to the realms of eternal bliss and happiness, to occupy one of those mansions in our Fathers house of which our Savior said there were many, and that he had gone to prepare a place for all of his faithful followers, and that he would come again and receive them to himself.

Brother Headley was a noble citizen, a kind and generous neighbor always ready to lend a helping hand to those in want or distress who came under his observation. He made an honest and good living for himself and family by the toil of his hands.

Brother Headley had lived to the ripe old age of eighty-five years. In conversation with the writer at different times during the last two years he calmly expressed himself as having his business all properly arranged and at perfect peace with his God and only waiting calmly waiting the call of the master to come up higher, he said he was fully ready and prepared. He was laid to rest in Walnut Creek cemetery at eleven o'clock on the 12th, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. James Dubose, attended by a large concourse of friends and sorrowing relatives.

May his honest and upright life be an inspiration to his children and grand children is the prayer of the writer who loved him as a brother.

FRANK NOW HAS BUT LITTLE HOPE

Only Executive Clemency Now Stands Between Frank and Execution

Atlanta, April 19.—Leo M. Frank's attorneys, when informed of the decision today of the United States supreme court, said that they believed that every means in Frank's behalf before the courts now had been exhausted. They added that they now probably would prepare a petition for presentation before the Georgia prison commission, asking for commutation of Frank's sentence.

"I am very much disappointed over the supreme court's decision, but I will keep up the fight," said Leo M. Erank when informed that his habeas corpus case had gone against him.

He refused to add to this statement.

The mandate of the supreme court as received here is expected to be received verbatim by the federal district court authorities in a few days. On its arrival Solicitor General Dorsey probably will request that Frank be arrainged before the Fulton county supreme court for resentence,

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

EFFECT OF GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY SOON REALIZED

I feel it my duty to let you know what Swamp-Root did for me. I was bothered with my back for over twenty years and at times I could hardly get out of bed. I read your advertisement and decided to try Swamp-Root. Used five bottles, and have never been bothered a day since I took the last bottle of it. I am thoroughly convinced that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root cured me and would recommend it to others suffering as I did.

My husband was troubled with kidney and bladder troubles and he took your Swamp-Root and it cured him. This was about five years ago.

You may publish this letter if you choose.

Very truly yours,

WALL CRASHES INTO TWO STORES IN BIRMINGHAM

Hann's Shoe Store and A. & P. Tea Store Wrecked. 12 Thought Dead.

More than a dozen people are thought to have been killed and a score are known to have been injured when the five-story wall of the old Steele-Smith building on Second Avenue burned several months ago, crashed down on the Hann Shoe Store and the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. store in Birmingham Wednesday afternoon. Both stores were crowded with shoppers.

The wall fell during a heavy rain storm. Eye witnesses state lightning struck the wall, while others claim the high wind caused the crash

SUGGESTIVE CROPPING PLAN FOR TWO-HORSE FARM

By J. F. Duggar, Director of Alabama Experiment Station and Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

There is no one best plan. The following is offered with a hope that it may contain suggestions that farmers can incorporate into the plans for their individual farms. This is based on 50 acres of cultivated land to the two-horse team—in addition to a permanent pasture:

Acres.
- 20 corn with cowpeas or velvet beans between rows;
- 15 cotton;
- 8 oats;
- 2 sweet potatoes;
- 2 Spanish peanuts—successive plantings;
- 1 early sorghum for hay;
- 1 early cowpeas for producing seed for the late crop;
- ½ for garden and truck crops;
- ½ sugar cane or sorghum for syrup.

If four acres of the oat land be inclosed it may be used for a winter pasture. If so, at least five pounds of rape may be harrowed in among the growing oats. Crabgrass, etc., in the same inclosure may constitute an excellent summer pasture, or peanuts or soy beans may be planted here for hogs. At least four acres of the oat land should produce two crops; the second one may be cowpeas. In the central and southern parts of the cotton belt a very early variety of cowpeas (such as New Era) planted early will mature seed in July, or just in time for planting a late crop for hay.

If eight acres have not been planted in fall oats most of that area may be planted in cowpeas for seed or hay, or a part in additional peanuts.

UGH! CALOMEL MASES YOU DEATHLY SICK

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you! It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and starighten you right up better than calomel without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

Kind and Generous.

"Are you kind and generous toward your neighbors?" asked the uplifter.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

It gives no sensation beyond a feeling of relief, a sense of security and a conscious knowledge of physical rest and comfort.

In the best homes throughout the country and in the best drug stores everywhere, "Mother's Friend" for half a century has been the standard.

Many a grandmother today is recommending this splendid help to her daughter just as did her mother before her. Phone or send to the nearest druggist for a bottle of "Mother's Friend." All Blood Disorders Quickly Driven Away

Astonishing Results With the Greatest Blood Purifier Ever Discovered.

Strength, Power, Accomplishment are all Typified in S. S. S.

Some blood disorders become deeply rooted in the glands and tissues, and the mistake is made of resorting to drastic drugs. These only aggravate by causing other and worse troubles. A host of people know this to be true. They know from painful experience.

To get right down into where the blood is vitiated requires S. S. S. the greatest blood purifier ever discovered.

This remarkable remedy contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced-health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation on these local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.

In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are obseved. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence. Not one drop of drugs or minerals is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to The Swift Specific Co., 205 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "Just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.

Haydn and Church Music.

Carpani, the poet, once asked his friend, Haydn, "how it happened that his church music was almost always of an animating cheerful and even gay description." To this Haydyn's answer was: "I cannot make it otherwise. I write according to the thoughts which I feel. When I think upon God my heart is so full of joy that the notes dance and leap, as it were, from my pen, and since God has given me a cheerful heart, it will be easily forgiven me that I serve him with a cheerful spirit."

Those to Be Envied.

Those are most to be envied who soonest learn to expect nothing for which they have not worked hard, and who never acquire the habit of pitying themselves overmuch, even if in after life they happen to work in vain.—Lord Macaulay.

NOW HER FRIENDS HARDLY KNOW HER

But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

Houston, Texas.—In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks, I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui to-day. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

LARGE QUANTITY OF BEER CONFISCATED

Six Hundred Gallons of Beer and Copper Distillery Captured

Six hundred gallons of beer and a complete copper distillery of twenty gallons capacity were captured and confiscated by Revenue officers, near Quincey, in the northern part of Coosa County, Saturday night. The officers lay in the woods for nearly ten hours hoping to catch the operators but were unsuccessful. Deeming that the moonshiners had been notified of the intended raid and would not appear they proceeded with the raid and confiscated the entire outfit and supply of beer.

The raid was one of the largest made in the State in many years, and the beer was found in unusual large quantity.

VIDA

Please allow me space in your paper to say that our community is quite on the dead list.

Everybody seems to be enjoying this sunshiny weather. The farmers are needing rain very bad. Most of them have a good stand of corn. I believe they are planting so much cotton this year.

We are glad to announce that we have a live progressive Sunday school under the management of Mrs. W. P. Splawn. Everybody seems to be taking a great interest in it, and we hope to make it better in the future.

The Vida Lumber Company are running the mill right on regardless of the hard times.

Mr. Mulkey Cruise, who is attending school at Prattville, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cruise, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. W. M. Chilcoat and family of this place, recently moved to Chelsea, Ala.

Miss Althea Pratt, of Centerville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Joe Willis.

Misses Bie and Mary Cherry, of this place, were in Prattville on Monday and Tuesday.

The many friends of Miss Vernon DeLoach are glad to see her home again from Chelsea, where she has been teaching school the past winter. It seems that Mr. Robert Wright is unusually glad.

It was understood that Mr. Harvey Smith, of this place, left for Tennessee, but it seems that some attraction drew him to Chelsea. We learn that Mr. Odee Wright is there also.

Miss Zelma Gaines, Autauga County Demonstrator of the Tomato Club, is very busy with her work just now.

Mr. Henry Carter and Miss Flossie Henry spent the other Sunday evening with Misses Lila and Essie Hester, and reported a nice time.

Misses Cattie McCord and Glennie Hester went with a large crowd to gather flowers Sunday afternoon and report a good time.

Misses Nettie McArrell and Essie Hester spent the day Saturday with Mr. W. A. McArrell.

Come on boys and girls and help fill the paper with news from all over the county. So I will ring off this time and I will come again if this escapes the waste basket.

MT. CREEK MENTION

Judge Graf Sims, after several month's illness, is able to come down again.

Charley Brown has been appointed magistrate, and, hereafter he will hand out justice in this vicinity.

Two "bad boys,"--just for fun--cut a freight train into two parts between Mountain Creek and Marbury. Fortunately, the engineer looked back, and seeing the trailing section, stopped his section, went back, and after coupled up his train at Marbury, and, probably prevented an ugly wreck. An L. & N. detective is working on the occurence.

The speakers are, on the affirmative, Herbert Klinner and Alonzo Hayes. The speakers on the negative are Willie Milford and Stanley Deason. Everybody is cordially invited.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Although the regular routine of the High School work has been slightly affected by the practicing for the commencement. The school as a whole is moving on nicely. The final examinations are now being had which also creates some disturbance.

The Sesemean Society met Tuesday evening in the auditorium and delivered their last program for this session of school. A large crowd composed of almost all the high school pupils together with several outside visitors were present.

A very attractive commencement is anticipated. Almost an entire week is going to be devoted to that part of the work.

REPLY TO NEW SALEM BOYS

I notice in last week's paper that the New Salem boys were very jubilant over their victory at Union Grove on the subject of Woman Suffrage, and in their jubilation got things mixed up.

They seemed to intimate that I argued in favor of the Affirmative side during the debate which is a mistake, as they know.

The talk I made was after the judges retired and only to entertain the congregation while waiting for the judges who, as the boys know, were out of the house.

They also got wrong further in their write up of the debate in stating that I denied anything of the New Testament. I did state that what they read as points from the New Testament referred to the old Moseical Laws which I still say.

I do not wish to enter into any discussion of this subject through the paper but hereby challenge them, Messrs J. D. Gentry and Burney Martin, to meet me in debate any time and at any place which they may select, and I will then answer their question to their entire satisfaction. The other boys who were to meet them also wish me to extend the challenge for them.

Respectfully,
R. A. Smith.

NEW SALEM NEWS

Health of this community is very good at present.

Miss Lizzie Oden is on the sick list, but we hope she will be alright soon.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

The following are the subjects at the Baptist Church for discussion by Rev. H. W. Fancher:

Sunday a. m., "Our Name."

Sunday p. m., "In School with Christ."

Everybody invited to come out to these services.

PACE MAKERS

Safe and rapid transportation is a fundamental business necessity.

While the rates paid the transportation companies are fixed by laws enacted by the people, thus preventing competition in price, there is nevertheless keen competition in the excellence of service rendered.

For instance, a shipper is required to pay a railroad of slow schedule and inferior equipment just as much as he pays to the L. & N. for a fast schedule, superior equipment and prompt service.

Consequently the L. & N. gets the bulk of business going out of its territory, and the bulk of the foreign shipments coming into its territory.

This result has stimulated other railroads that compete with the L. & N. They have of necessity had to maintain equipment and render good service, or else lose the business.

What the public demands of a railroad is Service.

Therefore the efforts of the L. & N. to retain its position of pre-eminence in the railroad world, and the efforts of its competitors to keep the pace, has been of direct benefit to the general public.

Larger and more powerful engines; better box cars of greater capacity; straight tracks with low grades; more comfortable coaches for passengers; faster schedules and perfect safety—these are the many transportation facilities afforded the general public by the L. & N.

All at the same price the public is required to pay to a railroad not offering similar facilities.

It is not in a spirit of disparagement that this statement of facts is made. The L. & N. wishes simply to keep the people informed concerning the facilities it offers, the service rendered, and the policy of progressiveness.

We believe these matters will commend the L. & N. to the favorable consideration of the shipping and traveling public and merit the good will of the people throughout the territory.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Everything in this community is moving along nicely, notwithstanding the slight drouth which is now prevailing.

Our Sunday School, which was organized a short time ago, is prospering wonderfully. The enrollment on last Sunday was 65, excluding officers and teachers. It is announced that school will commence next Sunday morning at 8 o'clock in order that those who attend may be able to go to the Odd Fellows Meeting at Chestnut Creek after the Sunday School is over.

Mr. Oscar Mims, of Birmingham, spent several days last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mims.

Mr. John Oakes, who was hurt by falling from a train some time ago, is improving slowly.

EVERGREEN

Everybody in this community is getting along all right as far as I know.

Everybody is just about thro' planting, but we are afraid that the dry weather well injure our crops.

We had a large crowd out at our Sunday School last Sunday. We have enrolled at present 86.

There was an enjoyable singing on Saturday night at E. B Prickett's. Cake was served to all present.

The people of this community met on last Friday afternoon and cleaned up the school house.

We are expecting some good recitations the second Sunday in May, and some good singing too.

Several from here went to the singing at Mr. Letts' on last Sunday night and they report a good singing.

DECORATION DAY AT THE SOLDIERS' HOME

On last Sunday the people of Chilton County certainly acquitted themselves splendidly at the Old Alabama Soldiers' Home, near Mountain Creek.

It would be unfair to attempt to mention the names of those that were present, in fact the crowd was so large that it looked as if all sections of Chilton County had sent its citizens to strew flowers on the graves of the old men, who, when they were young, stood up for Alabama and the Southland during the "dark days" of 1861-5.

Capt. J. M. Simpson, Veteran Samuel Andress, Mrs. Bessie Hestle, of Nashville, Tenn., Miss Lucy Simpson, of Birmingham, Adjutant J. A. Crowley, Mrs. Carrie McMasters, Mr. Cleveland Kicker, and the genial Dr. J. P. Elsberry, are severally entitled to the credit for the splendid success of the day.

Then, to Mrs. Bashinsky, of Troy, Mrs. Mitchell, of Montgomery, and Mr. Andrews, who entertained the veterans and visitors in the Auditorium Hall, it is needless to say more than that efforts were appreciated and highly esteemed.

The Sunday School children, assisted by visitors and veterans, placed the flowers on the graves of the dead Confederates, and at 5 o'clock the good people had left for their homes knowing that they had participated in a sad duty. W. P. T.

CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

As before announced the Chilton County Singing Convention met with Mt. Moriah the 4th Sunday in April and spent a real successful day singing praises to God.

The body was called to order at 10:15 by the President with song. Prayer by Chaplain.

R. A. Smith, L. T. Grant, A. H. Glasscock, S. M. Yates and T. Cofer directed fifteen minuets each. We were then dismissed for dinner which was served in abundance. We were called to order again at 1:30, song by President, and then R. A. Smith, L. T. Grant, A. H. Glasscock, M. C. Crumpton and J. L. Harris directed twenty minutes each. We had one duet by the President and his daughter, Miss Eva Franklin, which was fine indeed.

This meeting was a grand success as we had a full class of singers and a house full of interested listeners.

The Organists for the day were Misses Eva Franklin and Gennie Collins and Mr. Lee Grant. At the close of the services the congregation sang "Abide with me," led by President, and prayer by A. H. Glasscock.

F. Iven Popwell,
Secretary.

ENDORSED HENDERSON

A number of Chilton County citizens and old veterans met at the Alabama Soldiers' Home and passed resolutions endorsing the administration of Governor Henderson. They stressed Mr. Henderson's success in borrowing a million dollars with which he intends to keep the financial condition of the State afloat. W.P.T.

THE MERCHANT AND THE COMMUNITY.

The small town merchant is a necessity, and that which is necessary should be protected. The community needs his wares as much as he needs the community cash.

But not every small town merchant is alive to his opportunities and his obligations.

Many of them fall by the wayside because of their ignorance of or indifference to the rights of the public.

Fifty years ago the town merchant sat in his store and waited for business to come to him.

Today the successful merchant is a hunter—he must go out gunning for customers—and his ammunition is his stock in trade and his gun is the local newspaper.

Country people of today are as intelligent and up to date as the r city cousins, and they gauge the merchant by his own actions.

If he is a hustler—if he keeps his store clean, his goods neatly displayed, his advertisement running regularly in the local paper—he attracts the public eye, and the public follows its eye.

But a clean store, neatly displayed goods and newspaper advertising are not the only requisites to a successful mercantile career.

The country merchant should not bank too much on the fact that he is a necessity.

He should be progressive—constantly bidding for trade—devising means of bettering the condition of the consumers, and acquainting them of the fact. He should consider their welfare. as well as his own.

The merchant should have one iron creed, and that creed should never be broken. He should treat all custome's alike, never misrepresent his goods, and keep his shelves well stocked with truth

He should be considerate of other business men in the community, for their rights are as great as his own. They do not own the town, and neither does he.

He should join wholeheartedly in movements for building up and expanding the business interests of the community, for success is only found on the topmost rounds of the ladder.

The merchant who has built up a reputation as a public spirited man, as one who labors for the well being of the whole community, never lacks for customers at his store.

They migrate toward his door as naturally as the birds fly south in winter.

Such merchants gain the confidence of the people, for the people know that the same intelligence and fair mindeness which he exerts in behalf of the community will be extended to his customers in commercial life

Most country towns have a few such merchants in their midst, and the community is the better off for their presence.

You invariably find their advertisements in the local papers, telling of the merits of the wares they have to sell, and giving the people that information to which they are clearly entitled,

Such business men are successful, because their methods of business and their very attitudes breathe success.

They have many customers, because the people admire a hustler.

This town is located in a good community, and it should have a bright future ahead of it.

But it depends upon us alone.

We have some good business men in this town.

They are well supplied with brains, and those brains are capable of accomplishing great results.

Indviidually they can do much, but collectively they can revolutionize trading conditions of this community.

The money that is being daily sent away for goods might just as well be spent at our local stores—and would be, if the merchants arose to the opportunities before them.

It it the easiest thing in the world to keep the money at home, for consumers are not fools.

Just keep the goods the people want, and of the quality they want.

Sell those goods at a fair margin of profit, thereby competing in quality and price with the outsider.

Then advertise persistently—keep the home goods constantly in the mind of the consumer—awaken him to the fact that it is as much to his interest as to yours to keep his money in circulation at home.

When you convince the consumer that you have the goods that he wants, and that they can be purchased here just as cheaply as elsewhere, he will keep his money at home by trading at home.

The people want a live community, and are willing to support live business men.

Who is in the live class? Speak up, gentlemen—speak up!

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WILT RESISTANT COTTON VARIETIES

SOME VARIETIES ALMOST ENTIRELY IMMUNE TO WILT OR NEMATODE INJURY.

COOK NO. 307-6—NEW WILT RESISTANT STRAIN ORIGINATED AT AUBURN

Yields Well, and Turns Out About 35 Per Cent. Lint—Is Not an Early Variety.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist, Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The number of wilt resistant varieties of cotton has increased during the past few years. The farmer who has wilt or blackroot in his cotton land can select from them a variety that conforms to his ideas of a good cotton.

None of the varieties are entirely immune to wilt or nematode injury, but any of those mentioned below will increase the yield from almost nothing on badly infested lands to almost one hundred per cent. of a crop.

DILLON. Of the different wilt resistant varieties Dillon is the oldest, and withstands the disease to a greater extent than any other variety. However, it is not well liked by many farmers because it grows very tall on fertile land and because the bolls form in clusters, are small, and difficult to pick. It yields well, and turns out about 35 per cent. lint. It is not an early variety.

WOOD. A variety grown extensively on southeast Alabama, known under the name of Wood, Sam Wood, Bass, or Anti-blight, is somewhat like the Dillon in that it has small bolls, is late, and makes a very large growth on fertile land. It is unlike Dillon in that it has several wood-limbs, longer fruit limbs and is much easier picked.

COVINGTON-TOOLE WILT RESISTANT. This variety makes a small plant, is early, has small bolls and picks easily. It yields well and turns out about 36 per cent. of lint.

The wilt resisting variety of Covington-Toole should be distinguished from ordinary Covington-Toole, which does not resist wilt disease or nematodes.

DIXIE. Dixie is a small-boll, long-limb, variety that has proven very satisfactory on badly infested lands. It is medium early, not hard to pick, and yields a good per cent. of lint.

COOK 307-6. This is a new strain of Cook, originated by the Alabama Experiment Station. It has medium size bolls, picks very easy, is early, yields well and turns out a good per cent. of lint. There are very few seed of this strain, as it has not yet been grown extensively. The supply of seed has been exhausted.

TRI-COOK. This is a new variety that is promising. It combines some of the good qualities of both Cook and Triumph.

There are some other good wilt resistant varieties, but for lack of space they are not described here.

PREVENTING WORMY PEACHES

Two or Three Sprayings With Arsenate of Lead Will Do the Work.

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist, Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The worms occurring in peaches, plums, etc., are the grubs of a weevil known as the plum curculio. These weevils pass the winter as adult beetles, emerging in the spring by the time peach trees begin to bloom. They occur also abundantly on the wild plums which are commonly permitted to grow in thickets on our farms. By the time the peaches have passed full bloom, the curculios occur on them in large numbers and if nothing is done to control them there is little chance of producing profitable crops of attractive fruit.

It is easily possible, however, so to control the curculio as to produce from 95 to 98 per cent. of perfectly sound fruit instead of losing from 50 to 90 per cent. as is commonly the case where no treatment is applied. The treatment consists in applying two or three sprayings to the young fruit. The first sraying should be made in from 10 to 15 days after the trees are in full bloom or at the time that the blooms are beginning to slip away from the young fruits. In this spraying use at the rate of 1 1-2 or 2 lbs. of neutral arsenate of lead with about 3 lbs. of freshly slaked lime per barrel of 50 gals. of water. After about two weeks give a second spraying using about 2 lbs. neutral arsenate of lead with each barrel; but in this case instead of using simply the lime solution, put the arsenate of lead into what is known as self-boiled lime-sulfur solution. Directions for making the self-boiled lime-sulfur are given in Alabama Bulletin No. 152. The use of these two materials together saves one spraying as it controls both the curculio and the brown rot at the same time. To secure very best results, a third spraying may be needed about two weeks after the second, using the same combination of materials as for the second treatment. Alabama Press Bulletin No. 44 describes this work more fully.

WETUMPKA TEAM PLAYS THE CLANTON BOYS

A very exciting game was played on the County High School ball ground last Friday afternoon between the base ball teams of the Chilton County High School and the Fifth District Agricultural School of Wetumpka. The first inning scored three to nothing in favor of the home boys, but at the close of the fourth the score had reached six to seven, the visitors leading by one. The remainder of the game went wholly in favor of the Wetumpka boys, the ninth inning bringing about a score of six to thirteen in favor of the visitors.

Haydn and Church Music.

Carpani, the poet, once asked a friend, Haydn, "how it happened that his church music was almost always of an animating, cheerful and even gay description." To this Hadyn's answer was: "I cannot make it otherwise. I write according to the thoughts which I feel. When I think upon God my heart is so full of joy that the notes dance and leap, as it were, from my pen, and since God has given me a cheerful heart, it will be easily forgiven me that I serve him with a cheerful spirit."

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND MAKES YOU SICK

Acts Like Dynamite on a Sluggish Liver and You Lose a Day's Work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

The Chilton County Singing Convention met at Cedar Grove church May 1st and 2nd.

Saturday: The Convention was called to order by the President, J. W. Hayes, who directed the opening song, Amazing Grace. Prayer by Rev. J. N. Scott.

By order of the committee on program the following directors occupied the floor during the day: Profs. Lawley, Williams, Vandiver, W. R. and J. N. Scott, the Vice President, W. T. and H. H. Armstrong, Dobbs, Hodgens, Langston, Jackson Brothers, and Misses Ida Scott and Leila Davis.

Sunday: Opening song by the President. Prayer by Prof. Lawley. Directors for the day as follows: Vice President, Profs. Scott, Lawley, W. T. and H. H. Armstrong, Teel, Davis, Holdritch, Conway, Williams, Vandiver, Culpepper, Jackson Brothers, Hodgens, Franklin, Morris, Miss Henry Lee Sanders and the Secretary.

It was a good Convention. The people came in great numbers, we doubt if Cedar Grove ever entertained as large a crowd in all her history. Weather was ideal. Dinner was rich and bountiful.

One feature of the Convention was the talk and directing by the venerable Prof. D[illegible] who's age is nearing the century mark. Another was the nice directing by the young ladies.

We thank the people of Cedar Grove for their kindness and hospitality. We particular thank the ones who placed the beautiful flowers in our midst.

The session will be held at Beth Salem near Pletcher on the 1st Sunday in September.

To the great author of music be all the prrise.

Secretary.

VETERAN'S WIDOW MAY STAY AT SOLDIERS HOME

Veteran L. A. Scott, Company B. Fifty-Ninth Alabama Regiment, died at the Alabama Soldiers' Home.

The deceased was 70 years old.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Scott, who can remain in the Home if she so desires, and receive the benefit by act of the Legislature which was passed on the request of Captain J. M. Simpson, providing that all widows of veterans who were connected with the Home at the time of the veteran's death are entitled to remain.

This is pleasing to the commandant, as heretofore he has had to cause the widows' withdrawal from the Home at the death of the husband. The remains were buried in the Home Cemetery.

HIGH SCHOOL CARNIVAL WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

In spite of bad weather a large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to enjoy the Carnival Friday night. The gates opened at 7:30 with outdoor attractions. The Gypsy Dance was a feature of the evening. This took place on the campus in front of the building.

Then there was "Ballin' the Jack" a dance performed by Reuben Popwell in costume.

The old plantation minstrel held in the auditorium drew a large crowd with its music and jokes. Miss Libbie McKee was especially good in her monologue on "matrimony and the trials thereof." After this there were the Freaks, Sleeping beauty, Blue Beard and Goldilocks all of which were extremely creditable to the actors and drew a very large crowd. All of the Carnival folks deserve credit but mention can be made of only a few. Among those who reflected especial glory on themselves were the "Speelers" Messrs. Wesley Adams and Oliver Mullins, who kept the crowd in front of their shows shrieking with laughter at their remarks.

The proceeds of this entertainment, $30.00, will be used to furnish some reference books for the school library.

DRAMATIC CLUB ENTERTAINMENT HIGH SCHOOL

A chaste, classical and beautiful entertainment was given at the High School auditorium last Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Dramatic Club.

The plays of "Fennel," and "Game of Comedy," were well chosen and the parts rendered by Mitchell Foshee, Omar Reynolds, John Burnett and Wesley Adams showed careful preparation, Frank Palmer especially delighted his many friends, who take delight in his ready talents.

Misses Haynes and Smith both exhibited rare dramatic talent. The music by the orchestra, composed of Misses Reynolds, Heath, Matthews and Stanfield was superb.

The vocal numbers rendered by the Quartet, composed of Julian Lathem, Dr. Hopkins, Robert Kenan and Palmer were delightful in the fullest, and the audience exhibited every token of appreciation for their splendid voices.

Miss Brown opened the performance with a beautiful recitation in her usual inimitable style.

Those who failed to attend missed a real treat.

THORSBY NEWS

A new and important industry has been secured for Thorsby. The pro[illegible]ssrs. F. E. Gronquist, of an up-to-date Roller Flouring Mill of 30 barrels daily capacity. Mr. Gronquist has had this matter in contemplation for several months, believing that Thorsby and Chilton county offer a good field for such an enterprise. He already owns a corn and feed Mill with a 20 horse power Gasoline Engine which will be made part of the equipment of his new mill to be built and opened sometime during the summer.

Mr. Gronquist has the advantage of a thorough knowledge of the Flour Mill Business, from building and equipment of the plant, to the production of high grade flour, having spent many years as a millwright, and operator of high class flour mills, he knows the business from the ground up.

The opening of such an enterprise marks a long step in progressive farming for Chilton county. Any industry that enables the farmer to turn his raw material into a finished product at low cost is a direct help to him on the road to prosperity.

The Faculty of Thorsby Institute elected for the ensuing year consists of Rev. S. H. Herbert, Principal; Miss Helen C. Jenkins, Associate Principal; Miss May Stoddard, Miss Effie Pittman, Mrs. J. A. Hunter and Rev. E. W. Butler for the literary department, Miss Ruth Lassfolk, Music Department and Miss Elizabeth Hoopes, Matron and Domestic Science. All but Mrs. Hunter are at present members of the Faculty.

Mr. George W. Derry, of Lowell, Mass., has been engaged as Superintendent of Industries of Thorsby Institute, and has arrived and taken up the work. One of the objects of his employment is to so direct the work of students who are earning their expenses, that it will as far as possible provide necessities for the Boarding Department from the products of the School Farm.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

Friday night, May 7th, the initial number of the Chilton County High School closing exercises will be rendered by the pupils of the 7th grade.

This will be a memorable day for these aspiring little fellows, and they would feel keenly disappointed if parents and friends were not present to share in their triumph.

Sunday, the Commencement Sermon will be preached by Dr. E. D. McDougal, President of the Men's Presbyterian College at Anniston, at the High School auditorium. Both the Baptist and Methodist Churches have yielded their regular services to this, and all will join in the commencement service. The school is to be congratulated on securing this eminent devine, and scholar.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

Clean up and paint up—but not your face.

There's a charming little June bride in the offing, boys! Now guess.

The girl who persistently angles generally makes a poor catch.

To appraise the value of a smile, look up the breach of promis suits.

All the world loves a lover, but the maiden loves him best of all—if his cash holds out.

Of course he who laughs last laughs best. But what about the fellow who never laughs at all?

A self made man and a tailor made woman are shining examples of present day possibilities.

Roosevelt and Barnes got a heap of front page advertising, but its value is yet to be determined.

An ad in this paper is as convincing as a flea beneath your undershirt. It produces quick action.

With good times hanging onto our coat tails the proper stunt is for us to stop yelling "wolf" and go to work.

'Tis said a Missouri farmer is raising elephants on his farm. Does this portend a strike among the mules?

When you hear a man denouncing kissing as vulgar, just write him down as one who has sought and found not.

And now Mexico wants this country to kick Huerta from our peaceful shores. What a handicap is neutrality!

Gentle Spring—but the subject is too overworked, time worn and bedraggled for our versatile pen.

An old bachelor is never so happy as when telling of the many charming women who have yearned to call him hubby.

They say General Villa is reaching the end of his rope. But Pancho hopes it will not be attached to a strong limb.

A dollar spent on the streets of this town is worth ten times the amount to the people who have to walk them. Spend it!

It begins to look as though Italy might grab off all of the benefits of war without doing any of the fighting. Great heads!

Germs are abroad and scientists are warning us against the awful effects of kissing. Hang the scientists—and on with the kiss!

A man in love for the first time often wonders what has struck him. The same feeling usually assails the woman a few years after marriage.

To send money away for your goods when you can buy them just as cheaply right here at home is like robbing your baby to feed a stranger's dog.

Only our well known spirit of neutrality prevents our expressing an opinion of the fellow who reads his neighbor's paper and then gives the paper a roast.

"Time is everything," said a local banker to the tramp.

"Yep! And I've got a mortgage on the world," was the reply as he assumed a comfortable position for his hourly snooze.

Prosperity? The old girl is hitting the high places in her eagerness to envelope us in her golden arms. That fellow who owed us five bones on subscription blew in and elevated us to the Vanderbilt class yesterday. Next!

BOTH ENDS AND THE MIDDLE.

The Retailer—the Newspaper—the Consumer.

There you have it—both ends and the middle—and the three working in harmony should make any community prosperous.

The one cannot prosper without the other, and neither can meet with success without the cooperation of the other two.

Therfeore, to achieve prosperity for this community it becomes the pasamount duty of all concerned to work in harmony—to labor to one common end to protect the homes that give us shelter and to conserve the interest of the people who constitute the community.

We may make of this community a hive of industry and a realm of peace, prosperity and happiness—or we may just drift along with the tide, pick up the crumbs that are thrown our way, and grumble because the Lord provides for others and apparently forgets our existence.

It will be as we make it—no other way.

The Lord has provided us with intelligence, and health, and energy, and the power to accomplish things.

With that his work is done, and the rest is up to us.

If we make the best of that which He has given us we will soon become prosperous, and happy, and contented—a people enjoying to the fullest of life's blessings.

But if we neglect the gifts with which He has endowed us the penalty of failure will fall upon our own shoulders—the responsibility will be ours alone—the commercial stagnation of our common community will be but the natural sequence of our own short sightedness.

No community will prosper without the presence of a variety stores, shops and other marks of commerce and trade. They are as necessary as the ground that we till and the sun and rain that produce our crops.

No store or shop can survive without the loyal support of the community—the whole community.

The interests of the retailer and the consumer are one in common—the success of the one depends upon the cooperation of the other.

But these two interests that should be working in harmony are often too wide apart—separated by a yawning gulf of indifference and neglect.

And the body politic—the community as a whole—suffers, and stagnates, and withers and dies.

But there is a remedy.

And herein comes the province of the middleman—this newspaper.

From a commercial standpoint the local newspaper is simply a "go between"—it is the medium of carrying the message from the merchant to the consumer.

The consumer reads the paper, and if he sees nothing in its advertising columns of which he stands in need it is but natural that in many cases he should drift to other points for his wares.

The local business man is forgotten simply because he does not advertise—because he is slower than his out of town competitor.

But if the merchant is alive to his opportunities, if he uses the advertising columns of the paper to bring his goods to the favorable attention of the buyer, then he is meeting competition, is making an effective bid for the home trade, and invariably achieves prosperity.

Men of brains realize that it is to their own individual interests to foster their own community by trading with their home institutions.

But the seeker—the buyer—never goes to a haystack for a needle.

He follows the lure of the well written advertisement, and if that advertisement happens to be an out of town concern using another paper, then it is generally the out of town retailer who gets the business.

But the remedy should be applied.

The two ends and the middle should get closer together for the common good of the community.

The local retailer and the consumer are the two ends, with this paper as the middle, and if all will unite in the common cause there will be but one verdict—PROSPERITY.

This paper stands willing to do its part.

The consumer is willing to do his part—is waiting for the message from the retailer.

Our advertising columns will carry the message

But what of the retailer?

Will he send that message for which the consumer is waiting?

Or will he remain passive and let stagnation become the common lot because the message is never told, because the community cash floats out to other points? He will render the final verdict.

CEDAR GROVE.

Everybody is feeling better in this community after our singing Convention on the past Saturday and Sunday.

A large crowd attended, and we had good behavior from all. Many good leaders sang. The most enjoyable feature of the convention was the lesson directed by W. F. Culpepper of Clanton and assisted by his pretty daughter. What is more lovely to God and man than a sweet girl in her teens playing the dear old songs of zion? We hope to have Miss Culpepper back in our community. We also hope for other days in song to come to Cedar Grove again.

BIDS WANTED.

In pursuance to an order made and adopted by the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, at their meeting held April 5, 1915, I, E. B. TO PEOPLE INTERESTED IN CLANTON CEMETERY

The Civic Improvement Club requests everyone that has a personal lot at cemetery to clean it off by May 11th, as that day is set apart by Club to clesn up at cemetery.

The Club don't clean the lots of people who live in Clanton and can look after them, and they should have pride enough to do so as well as love and respect for their dead.

Please see to your fences being fixed that need it as the ones that are falling will be removed from grounds by the Club. We don't care to have any hard feelings, but the cemetery has been neglected so long we feel that somebody ought to make it their business to keep it clean.

Fix your fences--the Club wants to paint them later.

Cultivate Observation.

To behold is not necessarily to observe, and the power of comparing and combining is only to be obtained by education. It is much to be regretted that habits of exact observation are not cultivated in our schools. To this deficiency may be traced much of the fallacious reasoning and the false philosophy which prevails.—W. Humboldt.

EFFECT OF GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY SOON REALIZED

I feel it my duty to let you know what Swamp-Root did for me. I was bothered with my back for over twenty years and at times I could hardly get out of bed. I read your advertisement and decided to try Swamp-Root. Used five bottles, and have never been bothered a day since I took the last bottle of it. I am thoroughly convinced that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root cured me and would recommend it to others suffering as I did.

My husband was troubled with kidney and bladder troubles and he took your Swamp-Root and it cured him. This was about five years ago.

You may publish this letter if you choose.

Very truly yours,

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of retirement or affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

BOLL WEEVIL AND LATE PLANTING

DREADED INSECT NOT CONTROLLABLE BY LATE PLANTING AS MANY THINK.

ADVISABLE TO PLANT EARLY

As Soon as Soil and Air Conditions Promise Rapid and Continuous Growth.

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist, Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Each year we hear some persons living within the weevil infested area, advising the delaying of cotton planting until unusually late in order to starve out the boll weevils that have lived through the winter. For some reason, this idea seems to have a peculiar attractiveness for cotton planters. Unfortunately, however, the boll weevil cannot be starved out so easily and there is really only about one chance in many hundreds for cotton planted after the first of June in the weevil area to outyield that planted moderately early. The reason for this is that weevils come from winter quarters during a very long period of time. Some are out and look for cotton even before the earliest planted is out of the ground; but even in the latitude of Southern Texas, not all weevils had left their winter quarters before the last week of June or the first week of July.

Under our Alabama conditions, we can never advise unusually late planting of the cotton; neither do we advise extremely early planting because of the danger to the young plants by frosts, and also on account of the danger of plants being stunted by cold. It is advisable to plant as soon as the soil and air conditions promise a rapid and continuous growth of the young plants. Have the ground thoroughly prepared for the seed, properly fertilized and then cultivate shallow and frequently during the season. Get Alabama press bulletin 64 on "Boll Weevil Control In Early Summer."

In the early spring, several species of insects are commonly mistaken for the boll weevil. Among these, the two of most common occurence are the so-called bloodweed weevil which occurs in the stems of some species of rag weed or blood weed, and the transverse Baris which is found abundantly in the roots and stems of cockleburs. Neither of these weevils bears any close resemblance to the real boll weevil. Compare especially the general shape of the body, the length of the snout as compared with the length of the rest of the body, the curvature of the snout, the teeth on the inner side of the thick part of the front legs, etc. Get Alabama Bnlletin 146 for illustrations of various insects mistaken for the bool weevil. These weevils do not attack cotton and the boll weevil attacks nothing else besides cotton.

HOME MIXING OF FERTILIZERS

Advantages Obtained By This Method Becoming More Popular—Can Be Made Cheaper.

By D. J. Burleson, Assistant Agriculturist, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

By home mixing we mean that fertilizer materials, such as dried blood, sulphate of ammonia, acid phosphate, kainit, etc., are bought by the farmer and mixed at home in whatever proportion he desires. Most farmers buy factory mixed fertilizers, but the mixing of the fertilizer materials at home is becoming more popular. Some advantages of home mixing follow.

First—Usually the amount of plant food contained in a ton of the average mixed fertilizer may be obtained at from two to five dollars cheaper when the fertilizer materials are bought and mixed at home.

Second—By home mixing the farmer may avoid the buying of unnecessary constituents. Different proportions of the food elements may be made for different crops, or for the same crop on different soil types. A factory mixed fertilizer is made for average conditions and, therefore cannot suit every condition.

Third—Since the farmer knows the source of the food elements in a home mixture, he knows how rapidly they become available. Often the farmer does not know the source of the nitrogen in the mixed fertilizer.

Fourth—By comparing the effect of various fertilizer material, when used alone, or when mixed in different proportions, the farmer may learn the needs of his soil. This he cannot do so long as he uses mixed fertilizers.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

Those to Be Envied.

Those are most to be envied who soonest learn to expect nothing for which they have not worked hard, and who never acquire the habit of pitying themselves overmuch, even if in after life they happen to work in vain.—Lord Macaulay.

Simple Cement.

For mending ornaments and delicate china there is nothing better than rice-flour cement. It is very easily made, it being only necessary to mix rice flour or ground rice thoroughly with cold water, simmering gently over a slow fire until it thickens, thereby forming a most durable adhesive substance which can be used hot or cold, in the usual way.

Planning for the Stork's Arrival

Among those things which all women should know of, and many of them do, is a splendid external application sold in most drug stores under the name of "Mother's Friend." It is a penetrating liquid and many and many a mother tells how it so wonderfully aided them through the period of expectancy. Its chief purpose is to render the tendons, ligaments and muscles so pliant that nature's expansion may be accomplished without the intense strain so often characteristic of the period of expectancy.

"Mother's Friend" may therefore be considered as indirectly having a splendid influence upon the early disposition of the future generation.

Whatever induces to the ease and comfort of the mother should leave its impress upon the nervous system of the baby.

At any rate it is reasonable to believe that since "Mother's Friend" has been a companion to motherhood for more than half a century it must be a remedy that women have learned the great value of.

Ask at any drug store for "Mother's Friend," a penetrating, external liquid of great help and value. And write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 402 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book of useful and timely information.

Wonderful Blood Remedy That Works in the Tissues

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced, by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright, and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 201 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES CO. HIGH SCHOOL

A number of the citizens of the town as well as several from the rural districts assembled at the high school building last Saturday for the purpose of enjoying the first program of the commencement exercises, which was the occasion on which the seventh grade pupils of the county who passed on the seventh grade examination were to be given their diplomas, together with some speeches by prominent educational workers of the county and also of the state. After some musical numbers delivered by the music students of the high school and a short introductory speech by Prof. Slaton, the audience was entertained with a short speech by County Superintendent W. T. Bean. Prof. P. W. Hodges of the state department of education delivered in his usual way a speech which was very inspiring to all who heard him; and the suggestions given by him concerning school building and school management were worthy of being carried out by any institution which claims a name among the county high schools of Alabama. Prof. Bean then came forward and handed out to the seventh grade pupils, numbering over a hundred, their diplomas promoting them from the grammar schools to the high school. The county should congratulate itself having so large a number of children not only in town but in the rural quarters successfully passed the seventh grade examination held in the county last month.

As was advertised the commencement sermon was preached by Dr. McDougal, President of the men's Presbyterian College of Anniston. Dr. McDougal is a man of very broad learning, and as was demonstrated by his timely sermon, he possesses an influence which is rarely found both as a teacher and as a doctor. The occasion was duly encouraged by a house full of hearers, almost every seat in the auditorium having been filled.

Monday was the day when the certificates of promotion were awarded to the high school pupils. After some musical productions and also some recitations by the pupils the following numbers of students were given certificates promoting them to the grades named: To the 9th grade 44; to the 10th grade 18; to the 11th grade 13. Only four were passed on condition; these were among the thirteen allowed to enter the 11th grade. There were eleven who remained in the 8th grade, and three in the 9th. Not considering the seniors there were 89 high school pupils, 75 of whom were allowed to pass into higher grades.

The large number of visitors Monday night were entertained by the two Literary Societies of the high school. The program was somewhat brief yet it contributed great pleasure to the interested and attentive audience. The assembly was called to order by Prof. Slaton, after which a short musical program was rendered. This was followed by a number of declamations, essays and recitations, which all enjoyed wonderfully. After a very melodiously delivered vocal solo by one of the talented music students, the assembly was dismissed.

Wednesday night the weather was ideal for the final closing which was exclusively for the Senior Class exercises. These students consisting of O. B. Thompson, Dorcas Maddox, Willie Edwards, W. E. Martin and Jimmie Morrow, bear the unique distinction of being the first graduates of the Chilton County High School.

The stage was beautifully set, flowers were in profusion, and the spirit of one of the finest audiences tended to show that pride and due appreciation were not wanting on the parts of our citizens and patrons for this occasion.

The exercises were conducted in appropriate style, and the papers read by the young graduates speak well for their attainments due to their arduous study, and their superior instruction.

Hons. W. W. Pearson and Ray Rushton, the one our venerable Circuit Judge, the other one of the most brilliant lawyers of the state were the speakers.

FREE SPRINGS

Health of this communlty is very good at present. The farmers have been blessed with a good rain, which was badly needed.

There was preaching at this place Saturday night and Sunday by Bro. Henderson.

Mr. Eunice Watson and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. H. Z. Barnes.

Mrs. Abie Prim visited Mrs. Leatha Brown Sunday.

Mrs. M. J. Prim spent last week with her son, Mr. R. L. Prim, east of Jemison.

Miss Ethel Prim visited Miss Eva Hayes Sunday.

Prof. Howard Roper's school closed at this place April 30th. The patrons visited the school in the afternoon, and we had an old fashion "spelling bee." First we chose and spelled, and then the men challenged the ladies, and so with the men on one side and the ladies on the other we had a jolly good time spelling, and the ladies beat. We were dismissed with a short lecture by Prof. Roper. We were sorry to give him up as our teacher, and hope to have him back again, for he is a fine teacher.

EVERGREEN

There is not any sickness in this community just now.

We had a good rain last week, and everybody seems to be just as busy as they need to be.

Our Sunday school is just fine. There were 86 present last Sunday. We were very glad to have Dr. Caffee and wife with us in our Sunday school last Sunday. Mr. Caffee made a good talk in our Sunday school.

Mr. Will Strock and wife of Verbena visited our Sunday school Sunday.

Mr. E. J. Robinson and sister visited W. S. Beaird last Sunday.

Some of our folks wend out to Corinth last Sunday, and report a nice time.

We are expecting a good time next Sunday at the school house. Singing and Sunday school in the morning, and preaching at 11 o'clock. And we are expecting to use the afternoon for other work, which should have been done before now.

The good old Summer is coming, and as it comes let us fill our County paper with good letters from all over the county; sure do enjoy reading them.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Chilton County Ministerial Association was organized at Thorsby, Ala., on Monday, April, 5th 1915, and the following officers were elected:

Rev. C. E. Moorman, Chairman; Rev. C. H. Rogers, Secretary.

Executive Committee: Rev. J. F. Winkler, Chairman; Rev. E. W. Butler, Rev. M. C. Crumpton, Rev. C. H. Rogers.

It was decided to meet monthly and discuss various subjects relative to the Ministerial Problems and that would hasten the coming of the Kingdom of our Lord and Master.

Every Preacher in the County who missed the meeting was the loser, for it was full of good things.

One man expressed the sentiments of several of us when he said "That he had gotton more out of the meeting than he could from any book in his library."

It is earnestly hoped that the Preachers of Chilton County of all Denominations will become members of the association, as there is so much enthusism in them, and we have so many things in common in the great work of winning souls for the Master.

The following program for the next meeting which will be held at Jemison, Ala., Monday, May 31st, 1915, will benefit you and your presence will be additional inspiration for us.

Every man interested in the moral health of oua town is invited to be present. At the evening service Mr. Fancher will begin a eeries of sermons on "The I Ams of Christ.

UNION SPRINGS

Fine seasons in this part last week.

Mrs. J. D. Atchison of Cox's is visiting here.

Mrs. Ella Pate is visiting at Pletcher.

A fine delegation from this section attended the singing convention at Cedar Grove. They came back jubilant. The convention seems to have perceptibly increased their musical zeal, it seems to have been a great up lift along that line.

The singing Sunday afternoon was largely attended. People just sing right along regardless of the panic. While the panic is severe and after a short respite may come again with unparalleled fury. Yet the people are being prepared musically, agriculturally and otherwise for the great refreshing to follow; because the increasing light from the rising sun of righteousness will drive out the imperfect from both the church and state; hence the great uplift in Sacred song. The authors of long ago who gave us real gems of music, are being prized today with increasing admiration. the good, the beautiful, and true will abide while the false and unholy will pass away. In view of the golden future, for man that will doubtless be ushered in with a storm, people can well afford to sing more and more.

"The mists are cleared away,
All hail the supernal day,
The sun shall go down no more."

In the great concourse, at the Cedar Grove convention, it was a real pleasure to meet so many who have been battling for the people's cause in Chilton, viz: Mims, Barrett, Vickers, Scott, Jackson, Cobb and others too numerous to mention. There was the venerable Dobbs who lived in the time of Reese and White still able to sing. While in his steps were the bright faced children singing, what a picture.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

An Equal Suffrage Association was organized in Clanton, May 5th, under the direction of Mrs. Oscar Hundley.

Officers elected were Mrs. E. M. Pinckard, Pres, Mrs. N. S. Johnson, 1st Vice Pres., Mrs. Sam Johnson, 2nd Vice Pres. and Mrs. J. Hugh Jones, Sec.

The Suffrage means to give women equal rights with men. Men are responsible for the conditions under which the children live. But we hold women responsible for the result of those conditions. If we hold women responsible for the results, must we not, in simple justice, let them have something to say as to what these conditions may be? There is one simple way of doing this, give them the means the men have—let them vote.

NEW SALEM

Health of our community is not very good at present, but we hope everybody will be alright again soon.

On Saturday evening, May 8th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Jessie Price and bore the spirit of his little infant babe to the happy beyond. It seems so hard to give it up, but God's will must be done. He knoweth and doeth all things well, and we must be submissive to his will.

Weep not dear relatives and friends for our loss is heaven's gain. The dear little babe can't come back to you but you can go to it, The remains were laid to rest in New Salem cemetery Sunday morning.

Our Sunday school at this place is still doing fine.

Some of our young people attended the singing at Mt. Pleasant Sunday p. m.

Mr. John Henry Maherg made a pleasant trip to Lomax Sunday.

Mrs. Joe Collins is spending this week with her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Price.

Mr. Marian Driver and wife were visitors at Mr. Meadie Driver's Sunday

The singing at Mr. F. A. Maddox's Sunday night was largely attended and enjoyed by all.

Mr. Jimmie Williams made a trip to Clanton Sunday morning.

Mr. Claudie Deason and Mr. Powell Honeycutt from Coosa visited relatives in this community Saturday night and Sunday.

There will be singing at this place next Sunday p, m., May 16th, at 2 o'clock. Gospel Glory will be the book used. We hope to see a large crowd out, and we cordially invite everybody especially the singers. Now lets everybody be on time and spend the afternoon in singing God's Praises from our 1915 book.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends who aided us during the sickness and death of our beloved father, John Baker. May God's richest blessings fall upon them is our prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, Jr.

DAVIS-MULLINS

On last Thursday, May 6th, Mr. Horace W. Davis and Miss Lilla Belle Mullins eloped in an automobile to West Point, Ga., and were married. The objection of the young couple's parents to their marriage, accounts for the short time they were getting to a place of safety. They left here at eight o'clock a.m. on last Thursday, and was driven to West Point by one of Clanton's most famous chauffeurer's, Mr. Lee Maddox, and arrived in West Point at four o'clock p.m. on the same day—making the long trip in eight hours.

The happy young couple returned to Clanton on Saturday evening, where they will make their future home.

Their many friends here wish them much happiness through life.

DEATH OF UNCLE JOHN BAKER

With the late death of Uncle John Baker, is marked the breaking of another link in the already weak chain that connects the pioneer days of this section of the State with the present time. Uncle John (as he was familiarly known all over Chilton County) was one of the few men living in the present period of time, whose lives date back of the history of Chilton County, and hold together the transactions of those days and the doings of our modern times.

The worthy gentleman to whose memory these few words are meant as a tribute, was born in South Carolina in the year 1825, making him at the time of his death, 89 years old. He came to what is now Chilton County (then Autauga, later known as Baker county) with his parents while he was in his infancy. They settled near the present site of the town of Clanton, and have lived here ever since, growing into one of the largest and most prominent family trees in this section of Alabama.

At the age of 18 years Uncle John was married to Miss Phariby Mims, who died in 1900.

They became the parents of 10 children, 8 girls and 2 boys, all of whom died prior to the demise of their father except the two boys, the youngest and the youngest of the children. But all the children lived to marry and rear families in this County.

At the time death came to him, Uncle John could look around him and see his own decendants down to the 5th generation.

His death was caused by no special ailment. It was the result of infirmities caused by his advanced age,

His remains were entered at Walnut Creek cemetery Thursday, April 29th, the burial being carried out according to his own specifications and designs. Rev. F. A. Gibson officiated at the ceremony, in the presence of hundreds of relatives and friends. There are many things which could be said in honor of the good man's life; but after all they would be merely the repetition of the estimation which he held in the minds and acquaintances of pratcically every man in this County.

He was probably more universally known than any other man in this section, and was equally as much honored and respected.

His life as a whole was a sober, honest, honorable and upright one. He loved his Country and cherished the friendship of his fellows. In all things, he was far sighted and reliable, and his judgment could be trusted.

As a proper conclusion to these last words in his memory, it may truly be said that Uncle John Baker was a MAN, and anything that in any way concerned a man, always found him ready to respond to the call of his duty to right, to Justice and to God.

Many a life has been touched by his at some time or other. Many of them are still on the road to destiny, bearing evidences of his influences. A voice rises from all of them now and may he be permitted to know in his occupancy of his reward that they wish peace to his ashes.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonfull and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

VARIETIES OF COTTON.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist and Recorder Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

A study of the cotton variety tests of the Alabama Experiment Station during the past ten years shows that among the most productive of the hundred or more varieties and so-called varieties are Cook, Cleveland, Dillon, Layton and Toole and others very much like them. These varieties have certain distinct characters that belong to all of them.

These leading varieties are not the earliest nor the latest to mature, neither do they produce the largest nor the smallest bolls. Under ordinary conditions the plants are usually medium size with leaves neither large, coarse, nor very small. The fruit limbs are medium long with many almost or completely suppressed wood-limbs. There are from one to four large base or wood-limbs at the bottom of the vegetative part of the plant. The bolls are usually round or oval and are without sharp bur tips which prick the fingers of the pickers. Seed are small or medium and fuzzy. Each hundred pounds of seed cotton should produce from 36 to 40 lbs. of lint. The fiber is short to medium, but never long.

There is no one leading variety of cotton that is adapted to all soils and climatic conditions. In some sections the leading one may be a very early one, while in other sections the leader may be among the later maturing varieties.

SCOTT CRADDOCK OF JEMISON KILLED

It is reported that on May 12th, Mr. Scott Craddock of Jemison was shot and killed by Mr. Morris Reynolds of Jemison. As told by eye witnesses, Revenue officers went to Craddocks home and destroyed two distilleries, and sixty gallons of beer. Craddock made his escape, and Mr. Reynolds was deputized to make the araest, and Craddock shot at him twice whereupon Reynolds returned fire and killed. The killing occured just over the line in Bibb county.

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

The New Baby is World's Wonder

Every tiny infant makes life's perspective wider and brighter. And whatever there is to enhance its arrival and to ease and comfort the expectant mother should be given attention. Among the real helpful things is an external abdominal application known as "Mother's Friend." There is scarcely a community but what has its enthusiastic admirer of this splendid embrocation. It is so well thought of by women who know that most drug stores throughout the United States carry "Mother's Friend" as one of their staple and reliable remedies. It is applied to the abdominal muscles to relieve the strain on ligaments and tendons.

Those who have used it refer to the ease and comfort experienced during the period of expectancy; they particularly refer to the absence of nausea, often so prevalent as a result of the natural expansion. In a little book are described more fully the many reasons why "Mother's Friend" has been a friend indeed to women with timely hints, suggestions and helps for ready reference. It should be in all homes. "Mother's Friend" may be had of almost any druggist, but if you fail to find it write us direct and also write for book to Bradfield Regulator Co., 403 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

HOUSE FLY SHOULD BE CONTROLLED

LACK OF TOILET FACILITIES ON FARMS CAUSE OF MANY DEATHS.

SANITARY CLOSETS NEEDED

Can Be Constructed at a Cost of From Five to Ten Dollars. Cheaper Than Coffins.

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist, Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In Alabama in 1913, 6,000 babies died before they were two years old. Possibly more than one-half of these deaths were due to bowel troubles produced by germs which were, in most cases, transmitted to their food or drink by house flies. Typhoid fever claimed 900 victims, and of this number it is quite possible that the house flies were responsible for at least 300. Tuberculosis, diarrhoea, dysentery and other diseases are also spread by house flies.

One of the principal reasons for the large number of deaths from fly-borne diseases in Alabama is that so many of our farm homes are entirely without toilet facilities or have closets that do not exclude flies. A fairly satisfactory sanitary closet may be constructed at a cost of from $5.00 to $10 in money and a day's labor. Surely closets are cheaper than coffins. Let us, therefore, build more sanitary closets and buy fewer coffins. Write to the Entomologist of the Experiment Station at Auburn for further information regarding the closet construction.

House flies may be easily controlled by careful handling of stale manure, proper closet construction and by the use of traps, fly paper, etc., around the house. A fairly satisfactory plan is to make a large trap which can be used over the garbage pail or other receptacle. Traps may be purchased at the stores at small cost, and if properly baited, should give good service. Attractive baits may be prepared with a piece of lightbread, a little butter and a little syrup. This combination is more effective if there is added to it about 7 per cent of formalin. Another good bait consists of lightbread with a small quantity of half milk and half water and a little syrup with about 5 per cent of formalin. The formalin can be left out, but the bait is more effective with it. Decaying bananas constitute a cheap and fairly attractive bait.

The breeding of house flies can best be controlled by scattering on the manure powdered borax, which costs from 5c to 10c per pound. The borax can be applied as powder, used at the rate of 10 ounces per 8 bushels or 10 cubic feet of manure. Two or three gallons of water should be sprinkled on after the borax is applied, or a solution may be made of 10 pounds of borax in 32 gallons of water; and two gallons of this should be sprinkled over the manure and especially around the base of the pile.

To prevent flies the premises should be kept clean. Keep flies from having access to human excreta especially. Screen the kitchen and dining room. Trap the flies. "Swat" the flies and keep everlastingly at it.

DO NOT DISTRIBUTE FREE SEED

Reasons Why Experiment Stations Do Not Distribute Seeds Free Explained.

By D. J. Burleson, Assistant Agriculturist, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Letters containing requests for free seeds are continually coming to the Experiment Station. To the writer of each of these letters it must be explained that Experiment Stations do not distribute free seeds, except to some individual in each selected locality where certain definite experiments are needed.

The following are among the reasons why stations do not engage in free distribution of seeds:

First—It would be illegal to use for this purpose any of the Federal funds which support the Stations.

Second—If free seeds were supplied to a few applicants, their neighbors would expect the same donation, and hence the increasing demand would soon require an enormous appropriation from the State.

Third—Such a policy would cause a great waste of funds as a result of giving seed to those farmers who are doing little to improve the seed they already have, and who would not keep pure any improved seed.

Fourth—Some farmers are in the seed breeding business and are doing much good. It would not be just for the Experiment Station to use its funds to compete with these farmers. But this Station sells its small surplus of seeds at prices which do not injuriously compete with private growers.

Whenever any seed is bred upon the Station farm, such improved seed is first tested in careful experiments in various parts of the State. Then, if the new kind is successful, the public is encouraged to buy its seed, not from the Station, but from farmers who have been selected on the basis of special location and fitness for making such tests for a number of years.

WE EXPECT IT

Manifestly it is imposible for the L. & N., serving as it does thousands of people each day, to escape the whip of public criticism.

We expect criticism.

But neither the L. & N. nor the individuals who criticise the L. & N. should be blamed for this criticism.

Individual demands and tempers differ radically. One individual in a passenger coach will complain that the coach is too warm, while another individual in the same coach will complain that the coach is too cold.

A resident of Montgomery is gratified because a certain train leaves his city at 10 o'clock at night, while a resident of Mobile resents the schedule which provides for the same train to leave his city at 3 o'clock in the morning.

To make an extended railway journey is tiring and irksome to most people, fraying their nerves and creating a critical frame of mind.

The L. & N. has sought, through invention, constant observation and the judicious expenditure of large sums of money, to provide modern, comfortable coaches.

No consideration other than the convenience of the people enters into the making of an L. & N. schedule.

In the language of a very great and good American, the L. & N. seeks constantly to provide "The greatest good for the greatest number." We must of necessity consider the people as a whole, as a composite individual, treating all alike in the hope that unfavorable criticism will be reduced to the minimum.

The same conditions obtain in the freight department. Only a few stations can be stops, otherwise there would be no through freights, giving almost passenger train service to the inanimate luxuries and necessities of life.

The L. & N. writes of these things in the hope that the people will realize in a measure the many difficulties encountered in the operation of a railroad, and treat the L. & N. with consideration accordingly.

In the meantime the L. & N. will continue to render the best in passenger and freight service, and on that basis solicits the patronage of the general public.

Shockingly Unfit.

Simple Cement.

For mending ornaments and delicate china there is nothing better than rice-flour cement. It is very easily made, it being only necessary to mix rice flour or ground rice thoroughly with cold water, simmering gently over a slow fire until it thickens, thereby forming a most durable adhesive substance which can be used hot or cold, in the usual way.

Gets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.

In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism that Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to disolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and ask for S. S. S.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

ROOSEVELT WINS VERDICT IN LIBEL SUIT OF BARNES

Decision Reached After Forty Ballots Had Been Taken By Jury

Syracuse, N. Y., May 22.—Twelve men chosen as a Jury to determine whether Theodore Roosevelt libeled William Barnes when he charged that he worked through a "corrupt alliance between crooked business and crooked politics," and that he was "corruptly allied with Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall today returned a verdict in favor of the former President. In the belief of the jury, everything Colonel Roosevelt said about the former chairman of the Republican State Committee was true, and therefore Mr. Barnes was not libeled.

The verdict was returned after forty ballots had been taken and the jury had considered for forty-two hours the evidence which was presented during five weeks of the trial. Nineteen hours were consumed before eleven of the jurymen, who since the second ballot had stood together, persuaded Juror No. 11—Edward Burns, a Syracuse motorman and a Republican—to join with them in returning a verdict which Colonel Roosevelt later declared to be "typically American."

For eleven of those nineteen hours the jurors in favor of an unconditional verdict for the defendant talked to the one who, while himself favoring a similar verdict, insisted that the court costs and disbursements should be divided between the two principals.

The verdict was reached in the dormitory of the jail attached to the Onondaga County court house, and not in the jury room. Juror Burns agreed to vote with his companions soon after the twelve arose this morning, following their second night in custody.

Mr. Barnes was not in court and neither was his chief counsel, William M. Ivins, when the verdict was returned. The Colonel was there, however, with his staff of counsel some time before Justice Andrews ascended the bench and opened court.

Immediately thereafter Henry Wolff, one of Mr. Barne's attorneys, entered an objection to the verdict being received as the jury had once been polled in open court. That objection as well as similar one entered after the verdict had been reported, was overruled.

When the jury had been called in from its room and its members had seated themselves, the foreman, Warren W. Summers, announced almosl in a whisper that the verdict was for the defendant. In response to a request from Mr. Wolff, the jury was then polled.

Colonel Roosevelt thanked the jury, shaking hands with each member.

"I am more moved by this verdict than it is possible for me to express," he said to them. "None of you, I assure you, will ever have cause to regret your action. I am especially gratified that such a verdict came from a jury composed of men of every political faith."

The foreman said forty ballots were taken. The first, taken more than forty hours before the jury came in today, was nine to three in favor of Roosevelt. It remained at that figure for about five hours.

A crowd at the court house door cheered Juror Burns as he left the building. Col. Roosevelt's attorney, John M. Bowers, issued a statement saying:

"The victory that Mr. Roosevelt has won is a victory for good government. The issue put to the jury was whether machine government or government by the people should prevail.

"The verdict certainly assures us that the Anglo-Saxon system of determining questions between litigants is rightly lodged in the hands of a jury of twelve men. Moreover, it determines that jurors holding political views opposed to those held by a party will not be swayed thereby in determining the questions submitted to them."

The foreman of the jury in a statement said: "After the first ballot we stood 11 to 1 in favor of the defendant. These figures were never changed, Mr. Burns refusing to change his vote until this morning.

"Except for Mr. Burns the jurors who voted for the plaintiff on the first ballot, did so, they said, because they did not want it to appear that they gave insufficient consideration to the great mass of evidence that was presented during those five long weeks. We are all very tired, I assure you."

SINCERE CONGRATULATIONS COME TO MISS LOIS WILSON

Alabama's Queen of Beauty, Miss Lois Wilson, has received many compliments and congratulations since she was chosen by the judges at the Alabama Beauty Ball to take the trip to California as the guest of The Birmingham News and the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., but she received an entirely new one this past week.

An old negro woman came to the big plate window in front of the office of the Goodall-Brown Company and peered in at Miss Wilson. Murray Brown saw her and ask her if she wanted to see Miss Wilson. She said she did, and came in to speak to her.

"I told Miss Alice this morning I was coming down to see Alabama's Beauty," she said when she reached Miss Wilson's desk.

"I wants to say this, Miss Wilson, I have promulgated around a lot in my time, and I must say the judges did not make no mistake.

"I wishes you a joyous trip and a most happy return."

Miss Wilson is still busy preparing for the great trip and is almost living up to her rule about no parties before she leaves She broke it Friday night to be a guest at the weekly dance at the Newspaper Club, but she says she expects to be too busy next week, getting ready to leave for Chicago June 4 to be able to go out.

TO HANDLE FRANK CASE FROM GEORGIA BASIS

Harris Not to Consider Outside World If Case Comes Before Him.

Macon, Ga., May 22.—Governor-elect Nat E. Harris today, after going through a pile of letters from more sympathizers in various parts of the country of Leo M. Frank, condemned to die next month for the murder of Mary Phagan, factory girl, made this statement:

"You can just say for Nat Harris that if the matter of dealing executive clemency to the condemned man is to be considered by him, that the entire outside world will not be taken into consideration one bit. It is entirely a Georgia matter, and if I am to consider the case I shall consider it altogether from a Georgia basis, with the interests of Georgia and the interests of Georgia persons at heart."

This statement followed receipt of letters from various. As many as a thousand persons, Mr. Harris estimated, have written him imploring him that in the event the matter comes before him to commute Frank's sentence.

FARMERS OF BUTLER COUNTY DISCOURAGED

A despatch from Greenville, in Butler county, Alabama, says that the farmers in that section are very much discouraged with the present outlook of their cotton crops. At present some kind of an insect is on the cotton and promises to do much damage. It is not known what kind of an insect it is, but many are under the impression that it is the boll weevil. It is thought by some to be a specie of pea weevil. A bulletin has been mailed out from Auburn by the government stating that this is not the boll weevil, but indications point strongly to the boll weevil.

CHILTON FINISHES INTER-CITY ROAD

Stretch of Montgomery-Birmingham Road Practically Completed.

Final work on the Montgomery-Birmingham highway is being done in Chilton County, and that county has almost finished its part of the projected roadway between the Capital and Birmingham, according to Sam A. Latham, lawyer, of Clanton, who called on Governor Henderson yesterday on legal business.

"We are just finishing up this work in our county and I understand that Shelby County has also completed its work. Only a small stretch in Autauga County remains unfinished and, when this is completed, a fine highway between Montgomery and Birmingham will be open to the public," said Mr. Latham.

The Montgomery-Birmingham highway was launched two years ago at a meeting held at Clanton, and much work has been done on it in this period. W. S. Keller was the first president of the Montgomery-Birmingham Highway Association and Barney Roberts of Clanton, secretary. Montgomery Advertiser.

DIXIE HIGHWAY WILL HAVE TWO BRANC

Commission Selects East and West Routes to the North

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 22.—The Dixie Highway, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, was given definite form here today, when the commissioners, two each appointed by the governors of seven states, adopted the route of the highway after a three days' session. Chicago was selected as the northern terminus and Miami as the southern.

The commission designated a west and an east route on various rival links of the thoroughfare between Indianapolis and Miami, but a plan was adopted late today looking toward connecting up the north portion of the two lines with a road along the eastern and western shores of Lake Michigan and connecting the south portion with a road from Miami, along the west coast of Florida, thus making a continuing loop of the highway. This scheme was suggested by Commissioner Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis, who proposed extending the road from Chicago to South Bend, Ind., thence north to Mackinaw, thence south via Bay City to Detroit.

In adopting the plan the commission voted to invite Michigan into the association to provide the lake loop, and pledged itself to extend the east route from Dayton, Ohio, north through Toledo to Detroit. The Florida commissioners also were authorized to investigate extensions of the road from Miami up the west coast, joining the highway between Tallahassee and Jacksonville. Among the principal cities on the west route between Chicago and Chattanooga are Daville, Ill.; Indianapolis, Louisville and Nashville, while south from Indianapolis on the west route are Cincinnati, Lexington, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn.

WHY THE HOME PAPER?

Have you ever asked yourself why you take your home, or why itis necessary to have a home paper at all?

Do so, and you will start a train of thoughts that will be illuminating to you.

The big city daily comes to you and gives you the important news of the outside world, but you and the home people are too small for a place in its columns.

About the only thought of you is the money it gets from you.

It deals in world matters and is of value to you because through it you obtain much of your knowledge of the greater affairs of life.

But it utterly ignores you and yours.

Hence the local paper, and likewise your reason for taking the local paper.

You cannot exist without a knowledge of your home community.

You must know of the plans and of the work of the local authorities, and you must know of the doings of the churches, and the lodges, and of your neighbors, and of the community in general.

You cannot obtain this from the big city paper, but you can and do find it in the columns of the home paper,

You buy the big city daily because you must know of the progress of the world, for your mind is developing day by day and demands this greater fund of information.

But your mind craves even a more intimate knowledge of affairs that are vital to the interests of you and yours, and these things you find only in the home paper.

To the great city daily you are but as a single pebble upon the beach, a drifting sand of the desert.

But to the home paper you are as one of us, an important factor in the community, a force with which to reckoned.

A disreputed and disintegrating community means a shrinkage and loss in property values and a stagnate public mind. Hence the home paper has an ever watchful eye to the interests of the community and of yourself, for only in the preservation of the community and of yourself can the home paper hope for a continued existence.

The home paper is your friend, and you know it.

And because you are loyal to your friends and to the community you believe in the home paper and its ceasless work for home and home people.

Your interests and those of the home paper are identical, and you need it quite as much as it needs you.

And the man who recognizes the necessity for a community of interests becomes a builder, and not a destroyer.

It is said the late John Bunny, the famous picture show man, earned one thousand dollars a week and when he died a few weeks ago left an estate of $8,000. It is suspected too that he must have been interested in some losing enterprises.

The national democratic officials tell us prosperity is here. Where is it? With over a million poor laboring wage earners out of work, and their families suffering, we can't see where the much talked of prosperity comes in.

"War it horrible; but when the Bethlehem Steel Works looks at that $16,150,000.00 check that Kitchener sent them for cannon, war also has its compensations. —Commercial Appeal.

A freak egg brought in by one of our readers, J. S. Gandy, is entitled to some notice. The egg is a perfect shape of a miniature gourd. Mr. Gandy received an offer of a hundred dollars for a hundred of them just like the one brought in. The small part of the egg represents the curved handle of the gourd perfectly.—Falkville News.

The opening of lock 17 on the Warrior River is one that means untold prosperity to the State and to that great old city, Mobile. Mobile is already one of the best cities of the south, and with the increased traffic and business, which this project will add, the gulf city will thrive and prosper. And the great good will not only come to Mobile, but to most every section of Alabama.

BLACKSMITHS OR CARPENTERS FIRST

The other day a blacksmith was arguing with a gardener as to which was the first trade in the world, according to the Kansas City Star.

The gardener said it was gardening, and quoted from Genesis: "Adam was put into the Garden of Eden to till it."

"Ah," said Pat, who had stuck up for his own trade. "Who made the spades?"

ELOQUENT

At the battle of the Modder River an officer observed Pat taking shelter from the enemy's fire, relates the Philadelphia Record. After the engagement the officer, thinking to take Pat down a peg, said:

"Well, Pat, how did you feel during the engagement?"

"Feel?" said Pat. "I felt as ifeveryhairon my head was a band of music and they were all playing 'Home, Sweet Home.'"

At the Alabama Soldiers Home, there is probably the finest herd of Jersey and Holstein cattle that there is in Alabama—numbers considered—and the Commandant, Capt J. M. Simpson, intends to thin out the lot a little.

In this herd there are five male Jerseys that the Commandant intends to offer for sale to Alabama stock breeders exclusively. No fancy prices will be asked, but an effort will be made to supply these splendid young bull calves to men in seperate communities who will take an interest in stock improvement. Formerly this over-plus of young cattle at the Home was disposed of to butchers who used the carcers for veal purposes, but this will not be the case this year or in the years to come. This young stock will be placed in the hands of stock breeders for stock breeding purposes, and preference given to individuals.

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

CROPS TO FOLLOW OATS

Cowpeas, Soy Beans and Other Legumes Preferred.

By J. F. Duggar, Director, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

As a rule, soil improvement crops are most advisable. Among these, first place is usually given to cowpeas.

Late or Mammoth soy beans may also be drilled in promptly after oats, and cultivated for seed or hay.

Spanish peanuts may still be planted. But with both soy beans and peanuts there is greater danger of getting a stand after oats than on less open land.

Only if the land is very rich should corn follow oats, and then usually with peas in every other row, or in the middles.

There is still time for sweet potatoes, but on oat stubble the stand is often poor.

Sorghum may be planted, then corn or sweet potatoes, but it impoverishes the soil.

BEST VARIETIES OF COWPEAS

Some of the Best Varieties for Seed and Hay and for Disease Resistance.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Speckled Peas—The most widely known variety of cowpeas is probably Speckled pea, called by some Whippoorwill or "Shinny." It has some vines and usually produces a good crop of seed. The pods do not burst open as soon as they are ripe and drop the peas on the ground. Harvesting may be delayed some time after the pods ripen.

If this variety is planted for hay it should be sown at the rate of one and a quarter bushels to two bushels per acre. The crowding of the plants forces the vines to grow more nearly upright, makes the mowing easier and increases the yield of hay.

Iron—The Iron variety makes a good yield of hay and a fair yield of seed. In growth the plants are intermediate between the bush and the running varieties. Its seed are rather small and when not weathered, light yellow in color. Its pods do not burst open as soon as they are ripe; therefore a delay of several weeks in their harvest does not cause a material loss in the quantity of seed. Land infected with either cowpea or cotton-wilt should be planted with Iron or Brabham cowpeas. The iron variety is very subject to mildew on the leaves, but resistant to wilt and root-knot.

Brabham—The Brabham is a new variety, resistant to wilt and root-knot. It somewhat resembles the Iron in growth and the Speckled in appearance of its smaller seeds. For seed production it stands high, and for hay medium.

New Era—The New Era is a very early bunch variety. The peas are small. Nearly round, and of a mottled, dark appearance. Two crops of New Era peas may be grown in one season in the central part of the cotton belt. It is one of the most productive of seed of the very early varieties.

Groit—This is a new, productive variety, very much like the New Era.

California Black-Eye—This variety is early and produces white, rather large peas, with black eyes, that sell at the highest price. It is extensively grown for table use, and, like most table varieties, it is less productive of seed or vines than the Speckled, New Era or Brabham.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

KEEP ROOSTER PENNED

Should Be Separated From Flocks Soon as Hatching Season is Over.

By Earl S. Girton, Associate in Animal Husbandry, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In order to get a better quality of eggs and to preserve them in good condition, it is necessary that the rooster be separated from the flock as soon as the hatching season is over.

It is a prevalent idea that the rooster must run with the flock in order to get high egg production, but this is erroneous. By keeping the rooster penned up, the eggs will not become fertilized and there will be no development of the embryo or little chick in the egg.

Although the eggs may not be under a hen, the temperature in the summer time is such that the empryos of fertile eggs will begin to develop after a few days growth, will deteriorate and will cause what we know as rotten eggs. This tendency of the eggs to spoil rapidly is decreased by keeping the rooster away from the hens. Infertile eggs will keep in good condition for two weeks or longer when subjected to a temperature which would spoil a fertile egg in 24 hours. Infertile eggs are also better for preserving purposes than fertile eggs.

Immediately following the hatching season, the rooster should be sold or used for table purposes, unless he is a very valuable bird, in which case he should be kept in a separate pen until early winter, when he may be turned with the flock again.

Mysteries of Rheumatism Practically Solved

Action in the Tissues of a Remarkable Antidote

S. S. S. is a Regular Wizard in Driving Out Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is often the effect of some other blood affliction that has left its impress in the joints, muscles and mucous coverings of the body. It works into the tissue cells, those tiny, little bodies in which nutrition goes on. And it is here that a most remarkable medicine known as S. S. S. does its most active and most effective work.

Its action is marvelous. Bed-ridden rheumatics get on their feet as if by magic. That cold, clammy sensation that made you hug a red hot stove is gone in a twinkling. That excruciating pain that made a feather lay as heavy as a ton of coal on the skin is gone. You get up and dance with glee.

Your rheumatism is gone—absolutely! It is an actual logical fact, that Swift's Sure Specific flushes your blood, gives your entire blood circulation a fine thorough bath. It just naturally and in a twinkling irrigates every atom in your body. It rushes into every cell, causes every bone, muscle, ligament, tendon, mucous surface and every nerve to thrill with freedom, with health, with newfound springiness.

And best of all, S. S. S. though a powerful searching, overwhelming enemy to pain and the causes of rheumatism is as pure as the dew on a peach blossom, as powerful as the heroic works of nature, as searching as the peremptory demand of the most exact science.

Ask for and insist upon getting S. S. S. the world's cure for rheumatism.

For private, personal advice on stubborn chronic rheumatism write at once to the Swift Specific Co., 203 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga. Their medical department is famous on all blood diseases, and is equipped to make personal blood tests, approved by the highest medical authorities. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today. LAKES-TO-GULF HIGHWAY INCLUDE MONTGOMERY

Such is Decision at Meeting in Salem, Ind., Recently.

At a meeting of the Lakes-to Gulf Highway Association at Salem, Ind., recently, it was decided to build the official highway from Chicago to Pensacola through Montgomery, according to a telegram received by Terry T. Greil, president of the Clamber of Commerce, recently.

The wire to President Greil, announcing that it has been decided to have the official highway through Montgomery, President Crum, of the association, declared that the meeting of yesterday was attended by many business men, and not politicians.

President Greil replied that the Montgomery people would give their hearty support to the proposition and called attention to the fact that a highway has recently been completed between Birmingham and Montgomery.

It is the plan, according to the telegram received here yesterday, to have the highway start at Chicago run through Salem and Indianapolis, Ind., Louisville, Ky., Nashville, Tenn., Birmingham and Montgomery and then to Pensacola.

It is thought that this highway will bring many automobile tourists through Montgomery, some thing that the automobile committee of the local chamber has been anxious to have done for sometime.—Montgomery Adveriser.

GERMANY ASKS U. S. FOR A WEEK TO REPLY

London Dispatch States, However, Submarine War to Be Maintained.

London, May 25.—Germany has asked the United States government for another week in which to reply to the note of the sinking of the liner Lusitania, according to the Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company. He adds that the reply probably will be sent from Berlin on Saturday. The correspondent then continues as follows:

"The German reply to the American note will be couched in friendly terms on account of the Italian complications. The feeling toward America in Berlin is calmer now than it was. Everything possible will be done to avoid further trouble. German submarines are being instructed accordingly, although the note will explain, that upon the matter of principle, Germany cannot openly cease her submarine warfare."

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the County of Chilton on June 26, 1915, to be held to fill the position of rural carrier at Mountain Creek, Ala., and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other post offices in the above mentioned county. The examination will be open only to male citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of a post office in the county and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form No. 1977. This form and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C. A CORRECTION.

"Clanton, Ala., May 26, 1915.

Editor Union-Banner:—As I noticed in your last week's paper you printed that I was out under a three hundred dollar bond, and as that is a mistake, I am not out under bond, for I come clear in my case, and will ask you to correct that in this week's paper, and will thank you very much for doing so.

Respectfully yours,
T. F. Hawkins."

In copying the record this mistake was made but not intentional. We do not wish to do Mr. Hawkins an injustice and we cheerfully make the correction.

Speaker Clark Snubs William Jennings Bryan

Bowling Green, Mo., May 24.—William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, will not witness the marriage of Miss Genevieve Clark, only daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, to James McIlhany Thompson of New Orleans, in Bowling Green on June 12. The reason is that he will not be invited. This was made known in Bowling Green today, and confirmed by a member of the speaker's official family. Mr. Bryan will be the only man prominent in official public life who will not receive an invitation to the wedding. Every person of high and low degree in the Ninth Congressional District, all members of the cabinet except Bryan, all members of Congress, except one, and nearly 5,000 persons famed in national and international life will be asked to be present. Bryan's name will be left off.

Five thousand personal friends of the speaker will receive invitation cards and the residents of the Ninth District, most of whom are known to Mr. Clark by name, will be invited by notices to be printed in the newspapers. Speaker Clark more than once has resorted to the use of "blanket invitations" of this kind and they have always broughtcrowds to "Honey Shuck," his Bowling Green home.

Rev. John A. Poole has been re-elected Principal of the Unity-Chilton Baptist High School at Thorsby. His assistants haven't been selected yet.

He Finds Grave of Uncle Killed in Resaca Battle

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 21.—Ex-Governor James Cox, of Ohio, today discovered the grave of Albert S. Andrew, only brother of his mother, who was killed in Resaca, Ga., in 1863. Ever since the war search has been made for the burial place of Andrew. A comrade carried the news back home that Andrew had been killed at Resaca and buried under a peach tree near that village. Today Mr. Cox discovered that the body had long ago been removed to the national cemetery in this city. He found a stone bearing the number 9,000, and tracing it in the records, located the name of his uncle, who was a mere boy when he fell in battle.

HOW WILSON HAS 'SET BUSINESS FREE'

More Failures in Two Years of Wilson Than in Four Years of Taft.

For the first two years of Mr. Wilson's administration there were 35,000 commercial failures. This number is some 10,000 in excess of similar failures during the first two years of the Taft administration. The total liabilities involved in the commercial failures during the first two years of the Wilson administration amounted to 760 millions of dollars. The total liabilities of the commercial failures in the United States during the four years of the Taft administration amounted to 640 millions, 120 millions less than for the two years of Wilson rule.

The liabilities involved in the failures occuring the first year of the Wilson administration exceeded by 70 million dollars the amount of the liabilities involved in the failures occuring in the last year of the Taft administration, and exceeded by 118 millions the liabilities involved in the failures that occurred during the first year of the Taft administration. That tells the real story of what Mr. Wilson's "New Freedom" did for the country.—Philadelphia Press.

Take your county paper and a good farm paper. The Union-Banner has a good clubbing list.

The United States treasury now is in danger of another heavy blow for which the Underwood tariff law is responsible. The customs court has just sustained the "5 per cent.,' clause of the tariff law, reducing duties to that amount on goods imported in American bottoms and from nations granted certain rights as "favored nations." If this decision is sustained by the supreme court of the country, then about $15,000,000 will have to be refunded that has already been collected. The law becomes retroactive to the time the Underwood tariff became effective two years ago. It will seriously embarass the United States, which has insufficient revenue as matters now stand, without this added catastrophe. Mr. Underwood should be proud of the legis lation which bears his name; and so should Alabama—we don't think—Mobile Tribune.

Advertising for Candidates.

This year, before the candidates blossom out in numbers, the newspapers ought to discuss the question of how much space to give them free. I is free advertising to announce tha man intends to be a candidate.

It is hardly fair to charge a merchant for announcing that he has hats for sale, and then advertise a man's desire for a salary free of cost. Advertising is telling what a person or firm desires the public to know. A paper spends money to get a thousand or thirty thousand readers, so that it can tell things promptly and at once. It is to charge one man and give an- same benefit free of cost. It ch importance to advertise a for a $20,000 office as it is vants to sell $20,000 irmingham Ledger.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated snd all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a fifty cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful, and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

REGULATION

There exists a desire in the heart of every individual to better his condition. This is a laudable ambition. Unfortunately the strong are often willing to better themselves at the expense of the weak. The weak resent the imposition. This stirs up active antagonism.

Were all men engaged in creative work, and the development of resources, each striving to help the other in order that all might prosper, regulation would not be such a necessary part of our economic progress.

But there are men greedy for dollars, greedy for power, greedy for political preferment, greedy for prominence, who subordinate every paragraph in the code of ethics to an overpowering ambition.

These men need to be regulated. Calm, judicious minds are required. Pretense must be sifted from justice. The welfare of the people as a whole must be given the benefit of every doubt. Personal interest must not be allowed to influence public acts.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad believes in this policy because the Louisville & Nashville has a close, sympathetic relation with the people. Crops must be good, factories must be busy, the worker must earn before the Louisville & Nashville Railroad can bring in and carry out necessities and luxuries.

...dertul Blood Remedy That Works in the Tissues

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced, by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.

LIME REQUIREMENTS OF CROPS

Lime Loving, Those That Are Indifferent to Lime and Those That Are Injured by Lime.

By M. J. Funchess, Associate Agriculturist, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Field crop plants and garden or truck plants may be grouped into three classes, namely, (1) those that are lime loving, (2) those that are indifferent to lime, and (3) those that are frequently injured by lime. Among the field crops that are distinctly responsive to lime are alfalfa, red clover, crimson clover, bur clover, sweet clover (melilotus), the vetches, peanuts, soy beans, velvet beans, wheat, barley, oats, sorghum and tobacco. Some of the garden or truck crops in this group are lettuce, beet, okra, onion, cabbage, cucumber, cantaloupe, rutabaga and garden pea. On very sour lands in middle and south Alabama both cotton and corn have responded profitably to lime, though these two crops are usually not classed as lime-loving plants.

Among the field crops that may be placed in the group indifferent to lime are cowpeas, lespedeza, or Japan clover, rye and red top. Cotton and corn may also be placed in this group, especially where nitrate of soda is used as the source of nitrogen in the fertilizer. On land that is only slightly sour, lime will seldom pay profits when used for these last named crops.

Among the few important crops injured by lime the watermelon is a good example, consistently injured by the use of lime. This crop almost invariably is more thrifty on sour land than on land that has been limed.

As a general rule, it is more profitable to use lim for the legumes, such as alfalfa, the clovers and vetches, etc., than it is to use it for the non-leguminous crops like corn, cotton, oats or wheat.

THE PRODUCTION OF PORK

Hog Emeregency Animal—No Other Animal Compares With Him as Money Crop.

By J. C. Ford, Field Agent for Pig Clubs, Alabama Extension Service and U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Just at present we need something that can be substituted in part for cotton as a money crop; and in this respect there is, in my opinion, no plant and no other animal that compares with the hog.

A sow pig farrowed in the fall of 1914 will, if well cared for, produce a litter of pigs in the fall of 1915. These pigs can be used during the winter of 1915-16 to concert into cash the crops grown during the summer of 1915 and the winter of 1915-16.

Those farmers who are short of brood sows should start now and be ready for business by next fall. A good sow pig can be bought for a small price and fed through till next fall at very little cost. Such a gilt need be fed very little if any corn. She should be kept in thrifty, vigorous growing condition but not excessively fat. She will develop into a much better sow and can be carried through much more cheaply if given the run of a good pasture and regularly supplied with the following mineral mixture: Charcoal, 1 bushel; sardwood ashes, 1 bushel; salt, 8 lbs.; air-slaked lime, 8 lbs.; sulphur, 4 pounds; pulverized copperas, 2 lbs. This mixture will prevent worms and keep the system in good tone. It also tends slightly to balance rations that are poor in minerals.

Too Poor.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of Kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root,

When I think upon God my heart is so full of joy that the notes dance and leap, as it were, from my pen, and since God has given me a cheerful heart, it will be easily forgiven me that I serve him with a cheerful spirit."

Are We Reaching Our Share?

We have in North America twenty-four million Protestant church members and about fourteen or fifteen million Roman Catholic church members. Added together, these make almost one-third of the population of these countries. In other words, if we divide our field to be reached in North America by the number of us that ought to be active as Christian workers, each one of us has to reach two persons in order to make North America wholly Christian. Against that, every missionary has seventy thousand people to reach, or a field exactly thirty-five thousand times the average size of the field of each one of us here at home. Yet some of you, in your thought about your tremendous importance, are wondering whether this country or Canada can get along if you happen to decide to go away!—J. Campbell White.

FACTS THAT COUNT.

Natives on the Zambesi in South Africa have undertaken to pay the salaries of the French Mission school masters this year, rather than have the Mission schools close.

In 1859 you could buy a man in the Fiji Islands for seven dollars, butcher him and eat him. Today the Bible is in nearly every house, and on Sunday, nine-tenths of the people may be found assembled in the churches for worship. What about the power and profit of Foreign Missions?

A student in Pekin has been so impressed by the value of the New Testament that he has purchased over 5,000 copies to send to his friends.

Chinese Christians in Fukieu province take up an annual collection for the evangelism of the Jews.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOL. 4. CLANTON, ALABAMA, THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1915. NUMBER

ALABAMA SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Advance Steps of Importance to the S. S. Workers of the State.

Two advance steps of importance to the Sunday School workers of all denominations through Alabama have just been taken by the Alabama Sunday School Association. The first is the complete organization of a State-wide Men's Bible Class Federation, (Mr. John W. Bowers of Troy, President,) and a Women's Bible Class Federation (Miss Ethel Beane, of Montgomery, President,) to include all organized Adult Bible Classes of whatever name, in all denominations in Alabama. These are the first Federations of their kind in the world, but it is said that International Sunday School leaders are planning to advocate similar organizations in other States. Preliminary steps in organizing these Federations were taken at the State Sunday School Convention at Dothan six weeks ago, but the final organization was just perfected a day or two ago. The purpose of both Federations will be: (1) To organize auxiliary Federations in all the leading towns and cities. (2) To help the unorganized Adult Bible Classes to organize along approved lines. (3) To increase the membership and efficiency of existing classes. (4) To create a city-wide and state-wide bond of fellowship and spirit of fraternity among all Bible Class men and women. (5) To cooperate in large evangelistic, missionary, temperance and civic righteousness campaigns.

The other forward step in Alabama is the publication of two new periodicals, the "Alabama Bible Class News" and the "Alabama Teen-Age News," both of which are the first periodicals of their kind in the world. A tentative issue of these was distributed at the State Sunday School Convention as an experiment, but the demand was so general that they have now been established as regular periodicals, issued from the headquarters of the Alabama Sunday School Association, 525-528 Bell Building, Montgomery, Ala.

JIM CONLEY DENIES WRITING LETTERS

Released From Jail After Serving Sentence of One Year as Accessory to Phagan Murder

Atlanta, June 2.—James Conley, negro factory sweeper, who last night completed his sentence of one year as accessory to the murder of Mary Phagan, today denied that he had written the Anna Maud Carter letters, which played such an important part in Leo M. Frank's extraordinary motion for a new trial.

Conley's denial, made today in the presence of Solicitor Dorsey, was the first intimation that Conley had written the famous "murder notes" found beside Mary Phagan's body without assistance from anyone. Conley had testified at Frank's trial that the notes were written by him at Frank's dictation.

Frank's attorneys claimed that the expressions and general form of diction in the Carter letters were identical with those of the "murder notes" and that Conley had written both independent of outside suggestion.

Conley stated today that while he had received letters from the Carter woman, he had never replied to them and that he knew nothing about the letters of which he was reported to be the author, further than what he had read in the newspapers.

The negro called voluntarily at Solicitor Dorsey's office today and made the statement.

BUTLER SHERIFF CAPTURES WHISKEY

Greenville, Ala., June 6.—The Sheriff Harrison of Butler county today found on the premises of W. S. Waller, a farmer living near Greenville, about eighty cases of whiskey. It was taken and brought to the Butler county jail today. Sheriff Harrison early this morning followed two large touring cars to this place. He says he saw the cars loaded to the tops with boxes. He claims to have information that will lead to the arrest of several people in connection with the case. It has been learned in Greenville that the cars were from Montgomery.

Tomorrow the Colonel and a party of men will board the Louisiana ConservationCommission's yacht Daisy for a trip among the Federal and State game preserves on the lower coast, which comprise about 30,000 acres. It is said that it was at Colonel Roosevelt's suggestion that the first Federal preserve was established in Louisiana, but he never has seen it.

FUNERAL PARTY GOES 120 MILES BY AUTO

Mexico, Mo., June 7.—The funeral trip of Mrs. Martha E. Jamieson, whose burial took place in Bowling Green, was perhaps the longest ever made by motor in Missouri. The body passed through Mexico, being in a large box strapped to the rear of a touring car. Arriving in Bowling Green, it had traveled in automobile fully 120 miles.

There were two cars, one carrying the body and the other members of the dead woman's family. The motor trip followed the news that should the body be shipped on a train from Huntsville, connections were such it would not arrive at its destination until too late in the afternoon.

OIL MILL PROPOSITION UNDER CONSIDERATION

It is currently reported that Clanton is soon to have a cotton seed oil mill. Just who the projectors are and when the new industry will be in operation we have been unable to learn; but it is hoped that the prevalent current news may not fall to the ground, but materialize, and bring this much needed enterprise to our city. To a man looking for a place to establish a business of this kind, no proposition could be more favorable and inducing than Clanton.

BRIDE WITHOUT RACE WON'T FIGHT DIVORCE

Detroit, Mich., June 7.—Mrs Annie Boone Little, "bride without a race," whose sensational fight to disprove charges of her husband that she is of negro origin, attracted nation-wide attention, has withdrawn her suit for divorce and will permit her husband, Charles A. Little, to obtain a decree on his cross bill without contest.

It has been learned that Mr. and Mrs. Little have signed an agreement whereby Little will be given a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty. The question of Mrs. Little's parentage will not be an issue when the case comes up for final action.

Girls Tomato Club Has Good Outlook for This Season

Editor Union-Banner:—It is with pleasure that I am able to write that the girls canning club in Chilton county is making great progress. We have more working members this year than last, 87 being on roll. I have visited quite a number and heard from all. Almost everyone is in high spirits about the work and I think when the canning season is finished we will all be proud of the work accomplished.

We are earnestly urging each girl to keep a correct record of her work. so we may know what she did; and of course this is absolutely necessary in order to compete for prizes that will be given. We do not know yet what prizes will be offered, but we are trying to have something for every member who keeps records and reports promptly this fall.

We are getting three Chilton county girls ready to attend the short course in domestic science at Auburn on the 21 26th inst. These scholarships were given to the girls for work done in the club last year (two were given by the Union State Bank, and the other by two government employees). We greatly appreciate their interest in our work.

We do not want the girls to get the idea that prize winning is the chief aim of the club. The desire to win a prize is a worthy ambition, and we are proud of the girls who can win "fair and square." The girl who gets most out of this work however, is the one who thinks first of the knowledge and experience to be gained, and the money it will bring her, and who finds solid pleasure in achievement, in doing a good work better than those around her have done it.

Canning season will soon be here; then what a jolly time we canning club girls will have visiting demonstrations and club picnics.

We are hoping to hear from our prize-winning girls through our county papers on their return from Auburn.

COWBOYS TAKE ABDUCTED BOYS FROM MEXICANS

American Posse Rides Across Border Into Sonora--Troop Commander is Cowed.

Nogales, Ariz., June 5. A posse of ten American cowboys and miners rode eight miles across the border into Santa Cruz, Sonora, this afternoon, levelled their guns at the colonel commanding the garrison, while 150 soldiers looked on, and obtained the release of two American boys kidnapped early today by three of the soldiers on the Arizona side of the border.

The colonel gave up his two 17 year-old prisoners, George Vaughan, son of a storekeeper at Duquesne, and Henry Chang, son of a Chinese-American citizen of Washington Camp, Ariz., without demur and the posse rode triumphantly back to the United States.

Santa Cruz is garrisoned by forces of Jose Maytorena, the Villa governor of Sonora. Washington Camp, where the Mexicans captured the boys, and Duquesne are border settlements 25 miles east of here.

What was expected to be gained by the kidnapping of the boys was not ascertained. O. K. Franklin, a miner, reported the kidnapping. He saw the three Mexican soldiers, mounted, near the border, driving the boys, who were on foot, ahead of them at the point of revolvers. The boys' hands were tied.

Army officers were notified, as was Sheriff W. R. Knight, who promptly started out from here with a posse. Meantime cowboys and members from Duquesne had taken the trail with the announced intention, which they proceeded to carry out, of going into Sonora to rescue the boys.

With such enormous dividend as declared by the Ford Motor Co., it does look like cars would get cheaper.

With a cotton seed oil mill in Clanton the pay roll of the town would be larger and of course more money exchanged.

The officials in Washington can write some attractive compositions on prosperity; but when it comes to the empty dinner pail and the man out of a job—that is something else.

The crops iu this section are fn good condition, but probably a little late. If seasons hit for a few days longer the farmers can ccunt on hog and hominy another year.

The Ford Motor Co has been reorganized and the capftal of the corporation raised from two million to one hundred million dollars. A dividend of 48 million was declared.

The Federal court decision in which it decided with the United States Steel Corporation will be the means of much money being spent in the Birmingham District.

The Brewton Standard says: "Fight the Mexican boll weevil." If there are any signs in the times it looks as if we were going to have to fight the Mexican bone heads.

Watch the columns of onr paper for advertisements from our merchants. Clanton business men believe in printers ink, and they want the people to know what kind of bargains they have to offer.

With approximately one and a half million people out of employment in the United States and no means of support and their families starving, this country is in the middle of a bad fix. Cleveland's administrations were prosperous compared to the present crisis.

Irish potato growers in the southern part of the state have been busy for the last few days shipping their product. While the yield was not entirely up to expectations some made as much as 75 bushels to the acre, and sold them for 85 cents a bushel.

It is gratifying to the people of this section to know that Birmingham will get the meeting of the next Re-union. Birmingham always does herself proud on occasions of this kind and especially will she treat the old vets royal. No better place could have been elected.

Hon. F. W. Lull of Wetumpka and Leon McCord of Montgomery were the principal speakers at Clanton on last Monday night on the subject of illiteracy. Many valuable thoughts, with figures and statistics were put forth along this line.

The North, East and West are not panic stricken as a result of the war. If the war in Europe was not in progress hard times would be the cry there also. Grain, live stock and feed stuffs are at a premium during these war times. Financially the war is a benefit to some sections.

Just to think, we are to have another campaign for President next year! But it promises to be a very tame affair, and will make it unanimous for Wilson.—Montgomery Times:

Unanimous, nit! If there is any unanimous to it, it will be over the left. Too many people are on the eve oi starvation. But they say the war did it—eh?

Organize a Marketing Association Right Now.

Without waiting for the government to work out a rural credits system, however, there are some things our farmers should do for themselves. In fact, the more efficient our farmers become in solving their own problems the more they can get the government to do for them. God helps them that help themselves. Power is given to those who have power.

And our farmers through organization may certainly do much for themselves to better market conditions. If the members of the local unions, suballiances, or other farmers clubs or the individual farmers in your part of the county will begin now to make plans to market your cotton next fall in 25, 50, 100 or 500 bale lots, it is impossible to say how much you would gain.

1. Where large quantities are sold together it is easier to get competitive bidding and therefore higher prices.

2. You will doubtless get the advantage of higher prices for grades above middling—profits that are usually almost wholly lost to growers. As the farmers said in one county where a government grader did work last year, "Buyers had never before recognized any grades above middling."

3. The poorer and less well informed farmers who are now frequently imposed upon will be protected by this co-operation with their stronger neighbors.

4. If prices are low and you wish to hold your cotton, it will be much easies to secure favorable terms from banks and warehouses if you concentrate your holdings.

5. By pooling your cotton seed you will also get better cash prices, or if you exchange cotton seed for meal, it will be easier to get "a ton of meal for a ton of seed" or better.

Just one more word of caution: It takes longer to organize a marketing association than you think. If you are to be prepared to get full value for the 1915 crop, it is none too early to ask your neighbors to meet somewhere some Saturday and see what you can do about it. Of course a marketing association should not be confined to cotton, but should also aim to market corn, hay, livestock, meats, etc. A general farmers marketing association likn that reported last week from Lafayette county, Miss., will probably be best —Progressive Farmer.

100 Thousand Men.

Nature has smiled once more generously on the western farmer. It is estimated by the department of agriculture that the services of 100,000 men will be required to harvest the wheat crop.

The immensity of last year's yield, it is believed, will be equaled, if not eclipsed this year.

Weather conditions have confirmed this opinion. The recent fall o snow in 11 wheat states must strengthen this opinion.

The greatness of the present yield can be measured mentally by the state. ment that 100,000 men will be necessary to properly harvest the crop.

The first call for recruits has just been issued in the western cities, fo within a month the harvest will have begun in Oklahoma and will then move steadily northward until the last fields are gleaned in Minesota and Dakoa, in time to escape the early frosts.

This shows that nature is generous at a time when the farmer can appreciate her generosity. The war may end before winter. It may be prolonged indefinitely. It makes no difference, for people must be fed, and this country will be looked to for the supply of wheat. Germany is not only actively cultivating her own fields, but also the fields of Belgium and France. The other nations are not so fortunate, and even Germany may, in the end, depend on the United States for bread. War prices have also added to the good fortune of the Western farmer. It means a golden harvest to them in more ways than one.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Next week we shall talk particularly about silos and silage, how to build silo, how to make silage, and how to feed it. The south is a great grass country; but with the very best pastures it is possible to obtain, there still must be times, particularly in midwinter and mid-summer, when they will be short. For filling in these periods as well as to furnish an abundant supply of cheap and palatable roughage for all seasons of the year, the silo is coming to be recognized as one of our greatest assets. If you are in the live stock business on even a small scale you can well consider building a silo, and the letters and articles in our next issue will help you in doing it.—Progressive Farmer.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

CHRISTIAN-CAMP

In the parlor of the Tutwiler Hotel, Birmingham, Wednesday evening, May 26th, the marriage of Mr. W. L. Christian and Mrs. Pearl Camp was solemnized, Rev. John Milner officiating. The bride was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Lena Duran, of Montevallo. The culmination of this happy romance came as a surprise to their many friends. The bride was becomingly gowned in a blue tailored suit with hat to match. After the ceremony the bridal party with a few friends were entertained at a lovely dinner in the diningroom of the hotel.

Mr. Christian is a man of sterling qualities and stands high in the esteem of the people of this community where he counts his friends by scores. He occupies the position of cashier of the Columbiana Savings Bank, and has won for his bride one of Columbiana's choicest characters.

Mrs. Camp for a number of years has held a position with the Southern Railway at this place as assistant agent where she made friends of all with whom she came in contact. Her winning ways and charming personality have given her a very warm place in the hearts of our people, and it is with pleasure we welcome this happy couple to a permanent home in our city.

We wish for them a bright future filled with many blessings. —Columbiana Peoples Advocate.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store, and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a reme... known as "Mothe... Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, restful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief.

Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted healthful influence imparted to the coming baby.

One very important thing to remember about "Mother's Friend," it can not exercise any other influence than to simply lubricate the parts, make them more firm to naturally withstand the constantly increasing pressure. And as the muscles continue to expand, the nerves become accustomed to this new condition and adjust themselves without undue pain. "Mother's Friend" is entirely free of any drug influence whatsoever and may be used freely at all times.

THORSBY INSTITUTE COMMENCEMENT

Thursday night, June 3rd, occurred the Graduating Exercises of the Class of 1915 from Thorsby Institute. The class consisted of Misses Harriet Swan and Ethel Tapscott, who graduated from the High School Normal Course, and Mr. Einar Anderson, who graduated from the Scientific Course. The address before the Graduating Class was given by Rev. George B. Waldron, of Tampa, Fla., before an audience that filled the large auditorium. Many flowers and other presents were received by the graduates.

On Sunday night, May 30th, the Baccalaureate Sermon was preached by Rev. I. W. Chalker, of Clanton, Rev. Henry W. Fancher being unable to be present because of sickness.

The Recital of the Music Department, on Tuesday night, was attended by an audience which packed the house. The program was well rendered and showed the good work that has been done during the year in the Music Department. After the Recital the Domestic Science Class served light refreshments.

The play which was to have been given on Wednesday night, was omitted because of the sudden death of Miss Sadie Waites, which occurred early Wednesday morning. Miss Waites had been a student in the school for ... and a half, and was known and loved by teachers and students. Her death cast a shadow of sadness over the closing exercises, and made that which would, otherwise, have been a time of gladness, a time of sorrow.

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are the thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

...ets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.

In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism that Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and ask for S. S. S.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

EVERGREEN DISTRICT

After a hard fight with General green, we have him subdued, and crops are looking fine. Our corn is mighty good; oats were a little short this time; wheat fair.

Our Sunday school is a little off on account of all day singings. It is good to sing praises to the Lord.

The arge crop of watermelons planted in this section shows a promising outlook.

What is wrong with the Mineral Springs writer? Wish all the writers would send in their news each week.

If all the business men would advertise in the Union-Banner, the readers could keep up with the times better.

Many of our people went to the singing at New Prospect Sunday.

Best wishes to The Union-Banner and its readers.

Atlanta, June 7.—It became known today that Solicitor General Hugh Dorsey, has written Governor Slaton asking that he be allowed to appear before the governor to protest against clemency for Leo. M. Frank, when appeal for clemency reaches the governor for consideration. The governor has granted the solicitor this privilege.

Neither the solicitor nor the governor would talk concerning the letter to the Governor, but it is understood from an authoritative source that Dorsey is in possession of a large amount of data and evidence which he intends to submit to the Governor, including affidavits of a nature not [illegible] divulged. A large number [illegible]titions opposing Frank's [illegible]on are also in the [illegible]itor. It is re[illegible]ations

The Ford Automobile Company has a way of doing unusual things in an unusual way. Because nobody has ever done the thing before does not deter them; in fact, it invites their effort. When they voluntarily agreed to practically double the wages of their employes and distribute $20,000,000 a year among them, the business world wasped and said, "Can they do it?" The answer is written in the history of the company.

In August of last year this company announced that it would return to each purchaser of a Ford car bought between August 1st, 1914, and August 1, 1915, between forty and fifty dollars if they sold 300,000 cars between the dates mentioned. "Just a bluff," said the knockers. "They know they can't sell so many cars. They are after advertising." Henry Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company announces that 300,000 cars have been sold and each purchaser will be returned the amount agreed upon, aggregating $15,000,000.

Carrying out the Ford policy of doing unusual things in an unusual way, the Brownell Company, agents for the Ford in Alabama, in conjunction with their sub agents, inserted in The Birmingham Ledger's issue of June 5th, THE LARGEST ADVERTISEMENT FOR AN AUTOMOBILE EVER INSERTED IN ANY NEWSPAPER IN ANY CITY IN THE WORLD. There were twelve full pages describing the Ford car and giving the name of each of its agents.

Mr. L. J. Duncan, the Ford agent for Chilton county, is to be congratulated upon exhibiting the same spirit of enterprise as the home company at Detroit and the state agency in Birmingham. In the last sixty days he has sold almost as many cars as were sold last year in Chilton county.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of Kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen cr m [illegible] e not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root,

GERMAN EDITORS ATTRIBUTE MOTIVE TO BRYAN

Says Wilson Acts With Regard to Political Fortunes at Home.

Berlin, June 12, (Via London) —The Vossische Zeitung alone has published so far what purports to be a short summary of the latest American note. The newspaper makes this comment:

"The note happily contains nothing of that sharpness which, according to dispatches from London, it was to contain, nor is there even a threat to break off diplomatic relations. On the contrary, the text does not lack a certain warmth and an acknowledgement of the legality to be found on the German side.

"The line of thought and the tone of the note do not make it easily understandable that it brought about the break between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan. After the declarations made by Mr. Bryan one expected a note which would increase the danger of a German-American crisis. Mr. Bryan, who stands at the head of the American peace societies and likes to hear the people call him the 'prince of peace' apparently desires to appear as the rescuer of the nation from this danger. This for the sake of internal political reasons: in order to win for himself friends among the peace advocates among the German-Americans, the Irish and the Hebrews, perhaps looking ahead to the next Presidential election.

"As for Mr. Wilson he seems to hope to play the role of arbiter between Germany and England, and through his great success in foreign politics to strengthen his position at home."

Referring to Robert Lansing, the Vossische Zeitung says:

"This gentleman cannot be regarded as an unconditional Anglophile; he once wrote in a letter that he was tired of being England's messenger boy."

KILLING NEAR JEMISON MORRIS SLAYS COBB

It is reported that last Friday morning a man by the name of Morris went to the field where Mr. Ernest Cobb was plowing and shot him to death with a shot gun.

The circumstances surrounding the foul murder, as reported are these: It seems that Morris had a house rented from Mr. Cobb and Mr. Cobb's father-in-law having returned from Georgia he (Cobb) asked Mr. Morris to vacate the house, so his father-in-law could occupy it. This made Mr. Morris angry but on the evening before the killing the two men settled the matter and it is understood Mr. Cobb thought all was well. But it seems later Morris got enraged over the matter and the next morning borrowed a gun and went to Jemison and bought some shells and about 8 o'clock the killing of Mr. Cobb occured.

Little is known of Morris as he was comparatively a new comer to this county. Mr. Cobb was a respected citizen and his death in a manner like this is much deplored.

Shortly after the killing Sheriff Harris was notified and no means by the Sheriff and his deputies have been spared to catch the murderer. Blood hounds were secured and the Sheriff and his deputies have labored day and night but at this writing Morris has not been captured.

1 Deputy Killed, Another Wounded by Negroes

Centerville, Ala., June 13—News has been received here of a terrible tragedy that occurred at Piper in the northern part of Bibb county about eleven o'clock last night in which Manley Burns a deputy sheriff of Bibb county, was killed and R. E. Narremore, another deputy sheriff, was severely wounded and two negroes killed. It seems that from the report that the two deputies had gone from Blocton to Piper, a mining town, to raid a crap game, and when the officers approached the negroes began shooting and deputy Burns was fatally wounded. After receiving the death wound, the deputy fired and killed one negro and then fell to the ground, but fired again and killed a second negro.

Sheriff Ward left Centerville at a late hour Saturday night for the scene of the killing which is about fifteen miles from Centerville. Deputy Burns was a brave officer and has many relatives in Bibb county.

TRIPLE FUNERAL AT WALNUT CREEK

Burial Services for Three Persons Held at Same Time And Same Place.

Probably one of the most unique and out-of-the-ordinary funeral ceremonies that was ever witnessed under ordinary circumstances was held last Thursday by Rev. M. J. Parrish at Walnut Creek church near here.

The minister at one and the same time, spoke the last earthly tributes of respect to the lives of three persons, as their bodies lay side by side before him, cold in death, and looked upon thru tearful eyes by hundreds of relatives and friends.

The deceased persons were Mrs. Meranda Miner, an aged lady, and two children of Henry and Crawford Easterling. Death in all three cases came as consequence of serious bodily ailment.

After the touching ceremony by the minister, the bodies were interred in the cemetery there.

MISS SADIE WAITES

At one o'clock Wednesday morning, June 2nd, Sadie Belle Waites, one of the students of Thorsby Institute, was called to her eternal home. Her death was sudden, being the culmination of an operation which she had undergone some two weeks previous.

For a year and a half the school had been permitted to enjoy her presence, and her kindly smile and friendly words had made for her a place in the hearts of both teachers and students. Her high ideals and noble purpose in life had been an inspiration to others. She will be sadly missed when the stndents gather again for school in the Fall.

The body was taken to the home near Eclectic, Ala., for interment, and was accompanied to Wetumpka by Rev. E. W. Butler, Miss Lassfolk, and Miss Stoddard representing the Faculty, and Miss Lois Abernathy representing the student body. A short service was held at the Dormitory just before train time, and many flowers were placed upon the casket.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the family of the deceased, who were so suddenly deprived of her who had been their joy and pride.

Organization of Potato Growers Would Be of Much Benefit.

(As Seen by a Promoter of Diversified Farming.)

Editor Union-Banner:

As your county is a member of the diversified Farming Association of Central Alabama, I take the liberty of reporting through you to your readers the recent organization in Montgomery county of a potato growers association. It is the plan of this organization to encourage the formation of potato growers associations in each county in central Alabama. We will be delighted to furnish a copy of our constitution and by laws to anyone interested in the subject. The object of our organization is to promote the growing of potatoes in this county and territory contiguous thereto. It shall be the policy of the association to glean all the knowledge and information possible relative to growing, grading and marketing potatoes, and to disseminate such knowledge and information thru schools of instruction, pamphlets lectures, etc. The programs include all the practical phases of these topics, and our members express themselves as greatly benefitted by coming together and hearing experts and comparing experiences.

It is suggested that your readers who are interested in potato growing, obtain copies of the following bulletins from Auburn: Bulletin No. 183 on "The Irish Potato;" and No. 184 on "Local fertilizer experiments with sweet potatoes;" and a special bulletin on "Sweet Potato growing in the cotton belt."

The potato comprises a large item of our bill of fare, and if Alabama can grow enough potatoes to feed herself, she can save several millions of dollars that she spends elsewhere for them. For instance the records show that Montgomery county spent a million and a half dollars last year out of the state for potatoes. Of this sum, $150,000 was paid in freight rates.

The diversified farming association's director for Chilton county is Mr. N. C. Robinson of Coopers. I am sure that with the assistance of your farm demonstration agent our director could easily organize the potato growers of your county into an association. When every county in Alabama is organized, we will then be able to grow potatoes on such a scale that buyers can come to us, and the question of a market will then be settled.

Respectfully,
M. B. OWEN, Sec'y.

DEATH OF A CHILD.

On the tenth inst. the two-year old child of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Mims died after a short illness. The remains were interred in the Shady Grove cemetery, feneral conducted by Rev. C. D. Messer.

OBITUARY

Died at her home near Oakley on June 6th, Mrs. Gothard, wife of Mr. Will Gothard. She leaves a large family and many relatives to mourn her departure.

Her body was laid away in Mars Hill cemetery, funeral service conductdd beautifully by Rev. Smitherman of Randolph. While she is now conquered by death, she is resting, waiting until the voice of Him who is the resurrection, and the life shall call her from the grave. "The dead know not anything." The world's dark night of weeping is closing, 'The Morning Cometh." The angry nations are being torn in fragments. Earth's coming king is present, removing the debris thus preparing the world for the inauguration of His kingdom the beautiful land--the home of the soul, the land that is fairer than day, the sweet bye and bye, the land of the olive and rose, the new earth where there will be no more death.

Mrs. Gothard's body was borne from the church house under the strains of sweet music, but that was not a prelude to the harmony and music that will prevail throughout the universe when she comes back again. Let her loved ones be cheered. Their creator makes no mistakes. The out working of His plan will more than satisfy. When they realize the grandeur and beauty of his plan in the destruction of the grave in the restitution spoken of in the sacred book with all its attendant harmony, they will not regret the trials along the way.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

We take it that Mr. Bryan will readily admit that he "ain't no fightin' man."—Montgomery Advertiser.

There is a project on foot to build an Electric line from Birmingham to the Warrior River by the Tidewater Railways.

A league peace conference will be held at Philadelphia Thursday and former President, W. H. Taft will preside at the meeting.

The Mexican situation has become more civilized here of late, and it now appears that both factions are willing to have peace.

Villa says he is williug to lay down his arms and leave Mexico if Carranza will do likewise.

The note to Germany which Ex-Sec. Bryan was afraid would cause war seems to have been received with favor with a majority of the American people.

Many, many, people have said in the past, we are willing to give the national democratic administration a trial, but you can't find many such people now.

W. J. Bryan got scared and quit, but after reading the note to Germany people are wondering if the great Commoner didn't have some other idea in view.

Mr. S. P. Crockett of Montgomery has enlisted in the war, and will fight with the allies. If he had been of the opinion of W. J. Bryan perhaps he would not have gone away.

From present indications it looks as if the leaders of the warring factions in Mexico would be willing to quit fighting—but who can tell what this set of geesers over there will do.

We haven't heard much of the Hon. Champ Clark's sayings about W. J. Bryan's resignation. Perhaps Mr. Clark would have been glad of his resignation before the democratic convention at Baltimore.

In the North and East many factories have been running day and night for the last few months filling war orders, giving employment to thousand and thousands of hands, yet they tell you the war is the cause of it all.

Ex-President Roosevelt has declared hiss willingness to stand by President Wilson in his stand on the German situation. As all other good citizens Mr. Roosevelt believes in protecting the rights and liberties of the American people.

If the Tidewater Railway should be built from Birmingham to the Warrior River that would only be another stride in the many, many, achievements in the Greater Birmingham district. Only a few years, is our prediction, will mark this great enterprise.

Col. Harvey chose for the text of an inimitable article on Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan a few months ago a Spanish proverb: "When two men ride on an ass one must ride behind." Mr. Bryan has concluded to walk.—The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Union-Banner wants a correspondent from most every section of the county to give us the local happenings of interest. We will adhere strictly to the following:

Let the writer send his name with the communication. Write only on one side of the paper. Let your communication reach our office Tuesday. We are going to get our paper out on time and communications reaching us later than Tuesday will have to be left out. In writing letters leave off personalities and public controversies, as such things WILL NOT be published.

The wage earners of this land are the people who are feeling these conditions more keenly. For instance, the laboring man has had his salary cut and has been compelled to work at a reduced salary or lose his job and when he goes to buy his provisions he has to pay enormous prices. Flour something like $10.00 per bbl., meat 30 and 40 cents per pound, and all other supplies in accordance. Now besides millions of the poor fellows being out of employment—many of them—who have jobs are not getting wages enough to live and feed their families, yet there are some people who say there is no panic. If it isn't a panic, what on earth is it? It comes nearer being a famine than anything else. And some people say the war is the cause of it all.

Our Growing Export Trade.

This editorial from the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, one of the best Democratic papers of the whole country is a fair statement of affairs. The war is aiding this country and the facts in this editorial are proof positive. Then where is the trouble and why the present bad conditions? The distinguished writer failed to tell us.

Following is the editorial:

"It is an ill wind that blows no one good, and while our hearts bleed for struggling Europe, we cannot refrain from expressing our gratification over the glowing reports from the Department of Commerce, showing the enormous business we are now carrying on in European countries.

"An official statement issued by the department on our foreign trade since the opening of the war shows just what we are doing and just how dependent Europe is upon the United States.

Europe has increased its purchase from us over $350,000,000 more than during the same period last year. Of this increase England bought two-thirds France took $133,000,000 more than during the same period last year, Italy nearly $100,000, Sweden $60,000,000, Holland $30,000,000, and Norway nearly as much.

Because of the English blocade our exports to Germany thus far have decreased $290,000,000, to Austria-Hungary, $18,500,000, and to Belgium, $34,000,000.

The greatest amount represented in our exports, of course, is in foodstuffs, for we have been feeding Europe, and it is not surprising to note that since the war began, up to May 31, we have sold to the nations at war $355,000,000 more than during the same length of time in 1914. Then the fertile European fields were rich with harvests which meant fndependence. Today the same fields are harrowed with shot and shell and the food prospects are precarious.

Another important item is represented in the sales of horses to England, Franee and Italy, and this item alone represents something over $50,000,000, while $10,000,000 worth of mules were sold to the allies. Roughly speaking, the United States has been enriched something like a half billion dollars as a result of the war and tne sale of foodstuffs and war munitions alone.

"Now that the nations are growing more desperate and the supplies of ammunition are becoming exhausted, the American gun makers are being overtaxed with orders. The Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia on Saturday accepted a subcontract from the Remington Arms Company, to turn out $5,000,000 worth of guns, while two Pittsburg firms have accepted contracts more than double this for the manufacture of projectiles and cartridges.

"This country in other ways has suffered by the interruption of trade and the disturbance of commerce, but not nearly so much as the war has increased our business in a general way."

Rev. F. B. Ticknor, former editor of The Union-Banner, is making his mark in the newspaper business in Florida.

Upon leaving here he went to the Gulf to indulge in pleasurable fishing, swimming and general recreation; but his youthfdl dreams of newspaper success returned when he observed the great opportunities that lay about him, and he abandoned pleasure for work.

He is now editor of The Bradford County Times, having merged with it The Raiford Tribune, he having been editor of the latter for the past six months. Under the new arrangement his opportunities are increased, and his broad experience and newspaper knowledge will no doubt manifest itself by making The Times, more than ever, a journal full of thrift and energy for the upbuilding of the town of Lake Butler, and the whole of Bradford county.

His friends in Chilton county glory in the success he is finding in the sunny land of the Gulf coast, and whish him well.

SPLIT.

The observant reader, cannot but discern between the lines of the many, many, things recently written on the Bryan resignation that a decided split in the democratic party must inevitably come sooner or later. So far as that is concerned the split has already come, and it only remains for it to widen and become effective. Like Roosevelt and Taft, Wilson and Bryan must divide. The parting of the waves are gradually getting broader and broader and when W. J. Bryan failed to sign the note to Germany his great political friendship towards Woodrow Wilson begun to dwindle. Naturally, when great men like these do not agree—they differ. Difference in opinion makes oponents and bitter oponents make enemies-and ultimately the warm friendship which once existed turns to hatred and bitter opposition.

In this case these two great men of state in their party have seen fit to differ, perhaps nonestly so, but nevertheless the Democratic party unfortunately reaps the result.

The Alabama Convention of ginners will meet in Birmingham July 20th. A good move on the part of the ginners of the state is this one, and we are glad to see them making efforts to benefit themselves. As we understand, the business of this convention will be the consideration of laws for protection of ginmen, etc.

It is said Five hundred Italfians may go from Birmingham across the River and fight for their country.

Letters to The Editor.

Washington, D. C., June 9.

Editor Union-Banner:

After spending a few days in "Old Virginia," I came on to Washington.

I paid a visit to the office of Mr. W. J. Bryan, who yesterday threw the whole country into astonishment by resigning his office of Secretary of State in Wilson's cabinet. He seems a bit worried over the matter. Some believe he is just starting something to boost him for next year. Perhaps he thinks he will yet have a chance to be President. I think his chances are small as our next President will be a Republican.

I have talked with many people in regard to the hard times, as to causes, etc. They say we really ought to have better times than ever before, and that we would have if the Republican party were in power.

I am enjoying myself in the capital, but have not forgotten the good people in old Chilton.

Neither have I forgotten the fact that the legislature will soon meet again, when those local bills will be taken up. We should all bear in mind the grave danger with which those measures threaten our civic liberties.

I shall soon be "Alabama bound," so will close, with best wishes.

Yours very truly,
CHAS. COOPER.

Dubberly, La., June 14.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space for a few words to my old Chilton County friends.

We are having some dry weather in this section. Corn is being laid by already here. There is not so much cotton planted here this year. I have 220 acres in cultivation. Have already harvested 92 acres of oats, and am ready for the threshing machine. Harvesting was done in six days with a binder. I will thresh a thousand bushels, to sell farmers for seed. Have been sowing the Burt oat for 11 years. I planted 25 bushels of peanuts, and have 50 hogs to turn on them.

Mr. Editor, I will send in my dollar in a few days. Good luck to all.

Yours truly,
J. W. FOSHEE.

OAK HILL.

Childrens day here last Sunday was quite a success.

Mrs. Prim and Mrs. Winkler deserve much credit for their work in arranging and carrying out the program.

The music by Prof. Glass was fine; especially the duet, assisted by Miss Lonnie Winkler.

Notwithstanding the rain a good number was in attendance.

Sunday school here every Sunday at ten o'clock, prayer meeting Wednesday night.

Shockingly Unfit.

The subaltern was being put through an examination in geography, wherein he proved himself astonishingly ignorant. At last, after a failure on his part of unusual flagrance, the examiner scowled at him and thundered: "Idiot, you want to defend your country, and you don't know where it is!"

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

All Blood Disorders Quickly Driven Away

Astonishing Results With the Greatest Blood Purifier Ever Discoverd.

Strength, Power, Accomplishment are all Typified in S. S. S.

Some blood disorders become deeply rooted in the glands and tissues, and the mistake is made of resorting to drastic drugs. These only aggravate by causing other and worse troubles. A host of people know this to be true. They know from painful experience.

To get right down into where the blood is vitiated requires S. S. S. the greatest blood purifier ever discovered.

This remarkable remedy contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced-health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation of these local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.

In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are obseved. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of newed health.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence. Not one drop of drugs or minerals is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to The Swift Specific Co., 205 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "Just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS

It is a grave mistake for mothers to neglect their aches and pains and suffer in silence—this only leads to chronic sickness and often shortens life.

It possesses in concentrated form the very elements to invigorate the blood, strengthen the tissues, nourish the nerves and build strength.

Houston, Texas.—In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks, I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui to-day. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

All Babies Destined to Great Achievement

To be born is to be great. For there are possibilities in every tiny human infant. And for this reason every one should remember that whatever is done to aid the mother, to relieve her of distresses during her trying months, will surely be of marked benefit to the child.

Among the sterling aids is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend." It is what is called an embrocation. It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in by your own hand guided by your own mind. It makes the muscles pliant, they expand quite naturally and the effect upon the nerves is such that they adjust themselves to the process of expansion so that pain from this source is almost eliminated. Women who use "Mother's Friend" refer to the absence of morning sickness, they are relieved of a great many minor distresses, all apprehension disappears and those peculiar nervous "fidgets" no longer disturb the nights. It is well named "Mother's Friend." Get a bottle today of any druggist. Then at once write for a most entertaining and instructive book for all prospective mothers. Address Bradfield Regulator Co., 705 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

This book explains the physical action of "Mother's Friend," tells why it enforces strength to the muscles and relieves undue strain. It also contains letters of experience from many happy mothers. It is just such a handy little book as every woman will at once recognize as just what she had always wished to read—plain facts about herself. The book is mailed free to any address. Write for it today.

HOW LONG

do you want to live?

Disregard the laws of health and die early, or keep in touch with the druggist and live to a ripe old age.

A few pennies occasionally does it --keeps your system purified and in good working order.

Ask the Druggist--he knows.

WOMEN MAKE APPEAL FOR A SANITARY TOWN

Civic Club Appealed to the City Fathers for Money to Clean Up Clanton.

As the city is financially embarrassed, the civic club will do the best we can. We have spent some of the funds in cleaning the alleys, but without the loyal co-operation of the business men, we cannot bring about the best results. We beg each man in his business to clean up and not throw his refuse out so it will be an eye sore to passers by. We want Clanton to be a CLEAN TOWN, and we feel after making this appeal it will be all that is necessary for the true men of our town to respond to our wishes for an up-to-date little city.

You must co-operate with the "City Fathers"—why not honor and be loyal to city mothers of the civic club? Whenever you do we will throw you our best boquets.

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

TO FARMERS:

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company maintains an Agricultural Department composed of men who are expert in soil treatment, plant industry, poultry and dairying, cattle and live stock, fruit and berry; also men who are expert in mineral lands.

The service of these experts is free, and subject to the wishes of the people living in the territory traversed by the L. & N.

We would be very glad to have any one interested in agricultural and mineral products avail himself of this service, as we are convinced it would be of benefit to that individual.

In providing this service the Louisville & Nashville seeks to assist in the maximum development of the territory. These experts can give valuable information on soil conservation, on what kinds of crop to plant in a particular soil, and on crop rotation.

If the scientific principles outlined are carefully adhered to, the farmers of the territory will enjoy increased crops, and consequently increased wealth, which means more traffic and increased business for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

This Department is but another evidence of the constructive policy of co-operation adopted by the L. & N. for the benefit, not only of itself, but of the people it serves.

A letter addressed to the Agricultural Department, L. & N. R. R. Co., at Louisville, Ky., will receive prompt response.

BABY SHOWS IN THE CONGO LAND

Missionaries are Teaching African Mothers how to Rear Better Boys and Girls.

The attention of the whole civilized world has recently been directed to the efforts being made to raise "better babies," and it is interesting to know that efforts of this kind are now being made in the Congo to check the appalling rate of infant mortality.

Miss Margaret Van Leancourt, trained nurse of the Belgian Evangelical society, says:

"Many causes have contributed to this depopulation, for we are led to believe that the country once had an enormous population before the demoralizing effects of an unchristian civilization entered it.

"Undoubtedly the ignorance of the mothers should be mentioned as one of the primary causes, yet even this cannot be responsible for such a terrible death rate as exists here."

Miss Leancourt mentions alcohol and the prevalence of sleeping sickness as contributing causes of the terrible death rate among the babies in the Congo. She continues:

"A committee has been formed in Belgium which has undertaken the work of reformation in the colony and they are devoting their best efforts to improve the moral conditions of the natives. This committee has at its head, Madam Vanderpeere, a woman of common sense and sound judgment who has given herself with untiring zeal to the alleviation of distress among the poorer classes of Brussels. This committee has received the sanction and approval of the government and has received very substantial support from the authorities.

(Father of well known native Presbyterian missionary in Africa. This man recently walked 100 miles to hear his son preach.)

"It is needless to say that the Protestant societies with their doctors, trained nurses and hospitals can be of invaluable assistance in carrying out the plans and purposes of this committee and thus enable our country to appreciate more fully the real value of the Protestant missions in the advancement of civilization. We have better means at our disposal and the members of our missions are more capable of accomplishing the desired result of the movement and let us hope that they may soon take full advantage of this excellent opportunity.

"Every station should have a "Baby Show" at least once a week where the little ones can be weighed and examined and advice should be given to the mothers concerning the care of their children and all other such subjects which are absolutely new to them.

"But opportunity is given to us all as missionaries to be in constant touch with the native women who are far less teachable than the men because they hold more tenaciously to their old customs and superstitions. But I know that they are very sensitive to kind treatment and when they are treated as human beings they become astonishingly near to us and permit us to become guardians with them of that which is dearest to them, their children."

FACTS THAT COUNT.

"The Methodist Episcopal church, South, has 3,000 Indian members, 122 Indian local preachers, 70 Indian preachers in active service, and three white preachers who give all their time to the Indians. The work is among the Nez Perces, Kiowas, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Cherokees and the Creek tribes. It is said that there are 54,000 Indians without religious instruction and 24,000 Indian children of school age, who do not go to school."

Baptist Gifts for Missions.

The handsome sum of $2,600 was given on missionary day in the Sunday school in the First Baptist church of Dallas, Texas, of which Rev. George Truett is the pastor. This sum represented is the offering to Home and Foreign Missions from 1,500 givers.

The plan now in operation by the Southern Baptists to observe every year what is known as "Missionary Day in the Sunday School" has proved to be a most effective and efficient plan for increasing the interest as

WILT RESISTANT COTTON VARIETIES

SOME VARIETIES ALMOST ENTIRELY IMMUNE TO WILT OR NEMATODE INJURY.

COOK NO. 307-6—NEW WILT RESISTANT STRAIN ORIGINATED AT AUBURN

Yields Well, and Turns Out About 35 Per Cent. Lint—Is Not an Early Variety.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist, Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The number of wilt resistant varieties of cotton has increased during the past few years. The farmer who has wilt or blackroot in his cotton land can select from them a variety that conforms to his ideas of a good cotton.

None of the varieties are entirely immune to wilt or nematode injury, but any of those mentioned below will increase the yield from almost nothing on badly infested lands to almost one hundred per cent. of a crop.

DILLON. Of the different wilt resistant varieties Dillon is the oldest, and withstands the disease to a greater extent than any other variety. However, it is not well liked by many farmers because it grows very tall on fertile land and because the bolls form in clusters, are small, and difficult to pick. It yields well, and turns out about 35 per cent. lint. It is not an early variety.

WOOD. A variety grown extensively on southeast Alabama, known under the name of Wood, Sam Wood, Bass, or Anti-blight, is somewhat like the Dillon in that it has small bolls, is late, and makes a very large growth on fertile land. It is unlike Dillon in that it has several woody limbs, longer fruit limbs and is much easier picked.

COVINGTON-TOOLE WILT RESISTANT. This variety makes a small plant, is early, has small bolls and picks easily. It yields well and turns out about 36 per cent. of lint.

The wilt resisting variety of Covington-Toole should be distinguished from ordinary Covington-Toole, which does not resist wilt disease or nematodes

DIXIE. Dixie is a small-boll, long limb, variety that has proven very satisfactory on badly infested lands. It is medium early, not hard to pick, and yields a good per cent. of lint.

COOK 307-6. This is a new strain of Cook, originated by the Alabama Experiment Station. It has medium size bolls, picks very easy, is early, yields well and turns out a good per cent. of lint. There are very few seed of this strain, as it has not yet been grown extensively. The supply of seed has been exhausted.

TRI-COOK. This is a new variety that is promising. It combines some of the good qualities of both Cook and Triumph.

There are some other good wilt resistant varieties, but for lack of space they are not described here.

HYMN SUNG IN SIX LANGUAGES

Missionaries from Foreign Fields Blend Their Voices in "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."—World-Wide News.

Blending their voices in five different languages, missionaries on seven foreign fields sang "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" in unison at the Southern Baptist convention recently held in Houston, Tex., as a fitting close for the missionary session, at which representatives from almost every foreign field assisted by the convention made addresses. The languages in which the song was sung were Chinese, Japanese, native African, Spanish and Portuguese, and the audience came in on the chorus, making the rendition of the song in six different languages with harmony.

A Moslem Youth's Companion.

One of the excellent plans which the Rev. S. Van R. Trowbridge, who sails this month for Algiers to take up his work among Moslem children, hopes to realize, is the publication of a paper for boys and girls, similar to the "Youth's Companion," or "The American Boy." It is his purpose to produce the paper first in English. It is then to be translated into the various languages spoken throughout the Moslem world and published by the mission presses in the several localities.

Missionaries Far Away.

These countrymen of ours are in the torrid belt of Africa and at Point Barrow, four hundred miles within the arctic circle, where mail is delivered once a year.

Their hospitals are in the New Hebrides and among the fisher folk of Labrador, a thousand miles north of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. They are administering chloroform in Jerusalem and Damascus and Tyre, vaccinating in Peking and Singapore and on the road to Mandalay, giving quinine in the malerial forests of the Zambesi, the Congo and the Niger.

They are on the slopes of the Andes and high up in the Himalayas, "the roof of the world."

There is a medical station at Harpoot, near the headwaters of the Tigris and the Euphrates, and these are the instructions how to get there: "Cross the Bosphorus from Constantinople to Scutari and take the train to Angora going thence for three weeks by caravan."

Baron Kato on the Sunday School.

In an interview with the Rev. Horace E. Coleman, honorary secretary of the Japan Sunday School association, Baron Kato, minister of foreign affairs of the Japanese empire, said:

"As to the work of the Sunday school, we feel the need strongly now of moral education for our children. In former times they had a very good moral training through the teaching of Confucius, but in recent times this teaching has very much waned, and now we are really in a serious state so far as our moral condition is concerned. For this and other reasons we gladly welcome the moral training that the Christian Sunday school can give to our people. I wish you the best success in the undertaking in which you are concerned."

PREVENTION OF SMUT IN OATS

By H. B. Tisdale, Assistant in Agriculture Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala

The following method is the simplest one for preventing smut in oats. Pour the grain on a clean floor or canvas and sprinkle with a solution of formaldehyde at the rate of one ounce of a 40 per cent. solution to three gallons of water. Stir the grain and sprinkle until it is wet throughout. Then cover it well with clean sacks or canvas, and leave it for three to ten hours; after which the grain should be dried as quickly as possible.

Do not let the treated grain come in contact with material that might contain smut spores. The floor and the sacks should be treated with a stronger solution, about one ounce to one gallon of water.

Most druggists sell formaldehyde in solution of about 40 per cent strength (often called formalin) at 45 cents to one dollar per pound.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of Kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root,

Yours very truly,

JIM COLLINS OF CALERA KILLED; FATHER INJURED

Fateful Result of Auto Accident Brings Death to Son and Injury to Father.

The people of Clanton and Chilton county are sorry to know of the accident in which Mr. James Collins of Calera lost his life on Wednesday night, the 16th inst. Mr. Collins and his father were on their way from Birmingham to Calera when within about one mile of Pelham his car crashed into a large hog in the road. The car was turned completely over and the two men were caught underneath it. The body of the younger Mr. Collins was mangled and it was thought his father was fatally injured, but the latest news is that he will recover.

Both gentlemen are well known citizens of Shelby county and at one time lived in Chilton. They have many friends here who regret to learn of the sad accident.

The funeral of the deceased was conducted from the Baptist church in Clanton, by Rev. H. W. Fancher last Friday; interment was made in the Clanton cemetery.

MRS. W. A. KING TAKES OWN LIFE

Marion, June 20—Mrs. W. A. King committed suicide this morning by jumping into an unused well at her home on Judson College square. Her husband noted the absence and began a search, which led to the well, where he heard her struggling in the water; but before assistance arrived she had drowned. She had been in poor health all the year, but kept up her work at Judson, where she had been a teacher of piano and organ for over 40 years.

BECKER'S LAST HOPE IS GOVERNOR WHITMAN

And That is Slight---High Court Refuses Reargument of Case.

Albany, N. Y., June 18.--The court of appeals today denied the application of Charles Becker for a reargument on its decision affirming his sentence of death.

Becker, convicted of inspiring the murder of Herman Rosenthal, is in the Sing Sing death house, sentenced to die during the week of July 12. Intervention by Governor Whitman, or the United States supreme court, alone can save him, according to legal authorities. Little hope is expressed that the federal court will act favorably, or that the governor, who prosecuted the former police officer, will be inclined to grant him clemency.

There was no written opinion in the case handed down today. Becker's attorneys alleged in the application for reargument that Justice Seabury, who presided at the second trial, in instructing the jury, failed to present fully the defense's testimony.

$100 REWARD IS OFFERED BY OFFICERS

For Man Who Shot and Killed Earnest Cobb June 11th.

The above reward will be paid for the arrest and delivery of Bon Morris, alias "Bonnie" Morris, alias Lee Ducket, alias "Adams" (white) to the Sheriff of Chilton county, Alabama.

Morris is wanted for the murder of Earnest Cobb, at Jemison, Ala., on Friday June 11.

Description;—Age about 28: height about 5 ft. 9 inches; weight about 160 pounds; hair light sandy red; eyebrows very thin and light; teeth full in front and upper teeth slightly worn.

Heel string of one foot has been cut by circle saw; this foot he slightly drags; wears No. 7 or 8 shoe.

He is heavy set, full red face, and of Irish descent; speaks slow and has limited education; is a cigarette fiend.

A CHILTON BOY.

The following bit of news clipped from the Southern Democrat of Oneonta, will be of interest to the many friends of "Red" Robinson in Chilton:

"'Red' Robinson, the famous foot ball and baseball player, of Howard College has been selected as one of the teachers, and director of athletics in the Blount County High School."

Mr. Robinson's home is at Thorsby, and he has many friends in the county who have gladly noted his successful college career.

MRS. ISABELL BUSBY

"Earth hangs her head, not for shame; but because she holds so many dead."

On June 15th Mrs. Isabell Buzby, wife of Francis Buzby, passed away at her home near Providence in the northern part of the conty. She suffered much, but did not complain.

She was a noble christian woman; to the sick and suffering an angel of comfort. She was a descendent of the Atchison family, who were among the pioneer settlers of Mulberry community.

Her remains were laid to rest in Providence cemetery, the funeral conducted by Rev. Honeycutt, who paid her a glowing tribute.

He touchingly alluded to the home gathering of the saints at this particular time—how they are being called away while needed here, before the approaching unparalelled trouble bursts upon the world, marking the close of the present dispensation.

Her casket covered with flowers was borne from the church to the sweet strains of the funeral march, and placed in the nearby cemetery.

Leo. M. Frank Will Not Hang

Governor of Georgia Commutes his Death Sentence to Imprisonment for Lifetime.

Atlanta, Ga. June 21—A crowd gathered this morning between 8 and 9 o'clock in Marietta street some of whom indulged in some threats against the governor. Five arrests were made, and the crowd dispersed. Most of them were from Cobb county, just north of this city, where the girl, Mary Phagan lived before she went to work in the pencil factory in Atlanta.

Milledgeville, June 21—Leo M. Frank, commuted late last night from a sentence to be hanged to life imprisonment, arrived at the Georgia prison farm shortly after 5 o'clock this morning in an automobile. The trip from Macon was made without incident.

Atlanta, Ga., June 21—Leo M. Frank is now in Milledgeville, at the Georgia prison farm where he will serve out a life sentence, after being commuted from the death penalty, to which he had been four times sentenced for the death of 16 year old Mary Phagan.

The action of the Governor came as a complete surprise to many in the capital of the state and was not generally known until this morning. Governor Slaton reached his decision Sunday morning and except for a few of his most confidential friends to whom he confided his decision, was kept a secret until early to day. Feeling all over Georgia was at such a high tension that it was deemed advisable to have the prisoner safely landed at the state penal institution before giving out the news.

The arran ements for removing Frank from the Fulton county jail were made with the utmost secrecy. Not even the news paper men who were keeping a vigil around the jail knew when or how the prisoner left. The Sheriff with his deputies guarding the condemned man left the jail shortly after ten o'clock last night, and proceeded to the terminal station where tickets were secured, and the party boarded the train which pulled out two minutes after midnight.

Two policemen and several of the railroad station employees recognized Frank and the news then began to spread. But before the general public in Atlanta knew of the action of the governor or the removal of the prisoner, Frank was well on his way to the state prison, and the sheriff and his deputies had returned to their homes.

From Atlanta to Macon there were no developments, the trip was a quiet one and few people on the train knew that the end of one of Georgia's greatest cases had come in commutation.

At Macon the train was met by a number of reporters. Frank and his guards left the train and entered an automobile, in which the party left at once for the state farm at Milledgeville where he will probably be given some light work.

Frank had little to say in regard to his case.

SAYS SLATON'S ACT IS UNPRECEDENTED

Atlanta, Ga. June 21 Solicitor General Dorsey, who prosecuted Frank, issued a statement tonight in which he declared that "the action of Governor Slaton nullifying the judgments of the state and Federal courts and overriding the recommendations of the state board of pardons was unprecedented." He added that no defendant in his recollection had had the benefit of more appeals to both the state and Federal courts.

"I cannot find in the record of the Frank case, or in the governor's lengthy statement of attempted justification, one reason why the governor should interfere with the judgments of the courts in this case," said Dorsey.

In some sections the farmers are plowing up their cotton, on account of the boll weevil, and planting other crops instead. It would be a great deal better if those farmers had not planted cotton in the first instance.

The Liberty Bell, on its way from the World's Exposition back to Philadelphia will stop over for a short time in Birmingham. Many local citizens will take a peep at this most famous relic in America.

A novelty in neckwear for women and children is the Tipperary tie; 15 in. long with adjustable slip-knot, so it can be worn in any way that pleases you. Every single subscriber at 50 cents can have one of these ties for a premium.—Home and Farm.

This paper is not in the habit of boosting the other fellow's "ad" but it seems to us the above offer is a good one. In the first place the Home and Farm is a worthy home paper and every farmer should read one—and then the tie is a valuable addition in these times of low tariff democratic administration.

The Republicans left in the treasury of the United States one hundred and sixty-six millions of dollars. In about two years we have spent all of it but fourteen millions, and we have the "war tax," the corporation tax, and the income tax that the Republicans didn't have. By the time we are thru with this administration we will have spent the rest of it, and will have issued two hundred million dollars in bonds like Mr. Cleveland did. That is all because we abolished the tariff.—Collinsville Courier.

The "Great Commoner" (and he is settiug commoner and commoner all the time) said away back in 1896: "Open the mints and we will open the mills" McKinley said, "Open the mills and we will open the mints." Who was right? McKinley had passed a protective tariff bill, and this country never saw such prosperous times since the signing of the Declaration of Independence. What good could it possibly do for Underwood and Wilson to tinker with the tariff? Whom did it benefit?—Collinsville Courier.

The farmers of Chilton county rank among the best in the state. It used to be that the best of farmers were unable to have ripe watermelons by the glorious Fourth. Now the farmers have peaches, melons and most any kind of fruit in June. Cotton blooms are numerous in this section, and have been for several days. Our farmers are progressive. It is true they raise cotton, but they are otherwise thrifty. As the old saying goes, "they live at home and board at the same place." As a result Chilton county is fast coming to the front.

Politlcal Clash Certain.

The remarkable step of Mr. Bryan, in retiring from the cabinet with a criticism of an unpublished note dealing with a crisis in foreign affairs, has shocked the country. There is grave concern among democrats as to the effect of this step upon the party. People who uphold the President's policy will not remain mute. They will defend it against Mr. Bryan's assaults. Judging from his first gun, they will have little difficulty in defeneing it. Politicians may say that they are with both the President and the former secretary. They cannot maintain this position of neutrality long. They cannot follow men going in opposite directions, even if one of them claims they will thereby reach the same destination. Mr. Bryan modestly admits he has received many telegrams of congratulations. Who is sending them is not known. Doubtless many men who have accepted the designation Bryanites with pride are of the number.

Notwithstanding the friendly character of the letters of the president and former secretary, there is unquestionably some bitterness. If Mr. Bryan is human he must have felt keenly his treatment in connection with the preparation of the last two notes. No secretary of state was ever paid such scant courtesy before. He was treated as a figurehead, the president and Mr. Lansing alone being recognized as capable of handling the situation. The president, if he is human, must, on the other hand, resent the resignation at such a time, and the subsequent statement, on which he has refused to comment. Mr. Bryan has launched a propaganda, opposing the president's foreign course. The controversy will engender heat as it progresses. The president's friends will rally to his defense and Mr. Bryan will gather around him the extreme pacificists and the German partisans. He may also hold the allegiance of many of his personal followers in the west and South. Pride of opinion has long characterized the former secretary. He was included in the cabinet party to prevent the criticisms he has always indulged in as a free lance. He hints that he disagrees with the pnesident on a few other matters besides those mentioned in his statement. The malority of the Democratic party will side with the president, but Mr. Bryan will have a strong personal following. No other man in the party could do the president equal harm.—St. Louis Globe-Democaat.

Prosperity Note.

There is a spirit of optimism and a note of prosperity from one end of the country to the other. Confidence has been restored; capital is again seeking investment; trade has been resumed; the busy hum of machinery and the music of the saw and the hammer are to be heard everywhere; smoke is again issuing from the furnace stacks; the little cottages so long vacant are again opened; the front gates are again on their hinges; the weeds have been cut from the front yards, and the children are again to be seen on the front door step, and the smile of the father as he reaches his home, indicates that he has gone to work again. The outlook is brighter all along the line.—Montgomery Times.

It is always commendable to be optimistic and see the bright side, but we imagine the million laborers out of work in this country would rather see these things than to hear talk of them. They are "from Missouri."

Oh, they say everything is o.k., times are getting good and prosperity is in sight. Well, if we mistake not this kind of taffy has been handed out from time to time since the present administration has been in power—and yet such times have never been realized as now exists. More people are out of employment—money is harder to get, soup house are still in vouge and laborers are paid less for their work and provisions are higher than ever before in this country. With these real conditions staring us in the face where is the prosperity we hear so much of. People who are rich do not feel the strain. The high salaried official who draws his per diem—panic or no panic—war or no war does not feel the pangs of the ordeal which has the poor laborer in its grip. The half starved working man—(though willing to work) who can't get a job, cannot realize the prosperity which is spoken of so frequently. He sees only poverty and devastation. He longs for the time to come when he can do an honest day's work and thereby receive compensation enough to feed his family.

Offset Boll Weevil With Some Other Crops Now

(By Mrs. G. H. Mathis)

Alabama's great woman farmer, Mrs. G. H. Mathis, State President of the Diversified Farming Association, has just completed a tour of certain of the Central Alabama Counties which are over-run with the boll weevil, In view of the number of requests she has received for suggestions as to steps to offset the evil results of the boll weevil, she has written the following letter to the farmers of Alabama:

"Fellow Farmers:

I regret to find that the boll weevil is devastating the cotton crop in Central Alabama. Among the things that can be done at this time to offset the evil effects of this loss is to plant other crops that will yield some return during the fall and winter. It is not too late to plant hay. Sorghum and pea vines make a good and nutritious hay. Popcorn and pea or giant soy bean vines make a fine forage crop for stock or hogs to harvest in the field, and will feed a number of head until near Christmas.

Cow peas should be planted on the land from which grain has been harvested to insure fertility and produce a hay crop. All corn that will mature within 100 days can be planted now and up to the middle of July.

The late fall growing Irish potatoes can be planted from now until the middle of August. The Peach Blow potato is probably the best of the fall varieties. Lookout Mountain is also another good late potato. All this class of potatoes are salable in the winter and keep perfectly. There is a demand for the small potatoes in the northern cities in January at quite a good price. The fall grown potatoes can be kept without housing. They should be dug by the first of November and sorted; that is, the large ones and the small ones should be separated as they are to be sold in different markets, the large ones in nearby markets and the small ones in Northern cities.

KEEPING POTATOES

Dig trenches about 18 inches deep and pile the potatoes down in the trenches. Put a little straw over the top of the potatoes and then throw the dirt over them. That should make a top covering five or six inches deep, which is quite sufficient in this climate to preserve the potatoes. In an exceedingly cold spell it is sometimes worth while to throw pine straw or some other litter over the trenches. The winter rains do not hurt the potatoes, and they are ready for the market at any time. There is a good market for the small potatoes in January and a large demand for the large potatoes as seed potatoes in June and July. The potatoes that are kept for seed should be taken from the trench in April and May and allowed to dry out in the shade so that they will sprout for planting time.

FOR FALL GARDENS

If at any place in the garden there are tall weeds that shade the ground during July and early August broadcast mustard seed among the weeds and make small hills and plant squash. The weeds will serve as a protection against the beating sun and can be cut down in early September, leaving the vegetables to grow. Collards and winter cabbage seed should be sown now in a shaded place, and the plants drawn off and set out in September.

Enemy of the Snake.

Snakes in South Africa fear the secretary bird, and will even crawl away from his shadow. This bird devours snakes and can easily kill a reptile twice its size.

NOTICE

The undersigned, convicted in the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, Nov. 30, 1910, and sentenced to 35 years in the penitentiary, will at the July session of the Board of Pardons, apply to the Governor of Alabama for a pardon.

Mr. Bryan says his next statement will be divided into three parts. Th' second part you'll understand an' I won't. Th' third part, nobuddy'll understand."—Montgomery Advertiser

The famous Liberty bell of Philadelphia, which will be exhibited at the San Francisco fair, and will begin its trip across the continent the latter part of this month, is 162 years old. When the Declaration of Independence was signed by 56 patriotic Americans, July 4, 1776, the tidings were proclaimed by the Liberty bell, which was then 23 years old. It was cast in Philadelphia in 1753 and has remained in that city ever since, except for three trips away from home. The bell was taken to Allentown, Pa., in 1777, to prevent its falling into the hands of the British. It figured in the centennary celebration of New Orleans and was a feature of the World's Columbian exposition in Chicago in 1893. For more than 50 years the Liberty bell was rung in celebration of Independence Day. It finally cracked under the strain and all efforts to restore its tone proved a failure. It was taken down from the statehouse tower, later placed on the wooden timbers that originally supported it and made a sort of shrine for patriotic Americans to visit while in Philadelphia. It was reported recently that the crack in the bell was spreading and a support was made to relieve it of all unncessary strain. The bell weighs 2080 pounds.—Age-Herald.

SOUTH SHOULD BE GREATEST CORN PRODUCER

Record of Production by Boys' Corn Clubs Gives Highest Percentage to Dixie.

Washington, June 16.—Commenting on the record of Boys' Corn Clubs throughout the United States for the season of 1914 just published by the United States department of agriculture, President Harrison of the Southern Railway Company said:

"As in each former year since the inauguration of the Boys' Corn Clubs the championship has gone to the South, having been won by Carl Graves, at Soso, Mississippi, with the production of 202 bushels of corn on a single acre at the remarkable low cost of 14.5 cents per bushel The highest record made by any boy outside of the South was by a Pennsylvania boy, who made 148 bushels at a cost of 26.7 cents per bushel. This record was exceeded by ten of the first and second prize-winning boys in the South. The average yield per acre made by the winners of the first and second prizes in the State of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky and Tennessee was 159.26 bushels, as compared with an average of 104.22 by the prize winners in the Northern, Central and Western States. Taken into consideration with the records of previous years, these figures show that, with the adoption of proper cultural methods, the South can be made the greatest corn-producing section of the United States."

NEGRO SHOOTS SIX OTHERS

The Sheriff and his deputies are looking for one Cleveland Williams, colored, who it is reported run amuck out at the Wynn's Camp Tuesday night and proceeded to empty his shot gun into six others. None of the other negroes were seriously wounded and after the shooting Williams made his escape.

Henry Ford in the Factory

Somewhere between eight and nine o'clock each morning a Ford coupelet dashes briskly into the factory-garage of the Ford Motor Company. From it descends a tall, slender man who chats a minute with the men about him and then disappears through the doors into the administration building. That is Henry Ford. He has driven in from his farm at Dearborn, fifteen miles from the Ford factory. For an hour or so Mr. Ford is closeted with some of his executives. Then he emerges from his office and promptly disappears in the factory somewhere.

The popular magazines, in fiction and character sketches, have given us a picture of the great executive in his office. One thinks of the president as pushing buttons, receiving reports from department heads, giving directions and reprimands in, short, gruff, staccto sentences. But Henry Ford doesn't go in much for that sort of thing. He's a new kind of president and chief executive. Instead of listening to reports, he goes out and gets the information first hand. That's the reason he disappears into the forest of belts and machines.

Sewing Circle With Much Whispering

Before the stork arrives there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic. And there is sure to be someone who has used or knows of that splendid external help, "Mother's Friend." It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in and has a most pronounced effect as a lubricant. It soothes the network of nerves, enables the muscles to expand naturally, relieves strain on the ligaments and thus sets at ease any undue strain on the organs involved. And it does this with perfect safety. Expectant mothers thus go through the ordeal with comparative ease and comfort. Knowing mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" speak in glowing terms of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and a freedom from many other distresses.

One of the most important symptoms to be relieved by "Mother's Friend" is the imagination that so often disturbs repose. Pains, even though natural, may so distort the mind that undue apprehension will sometimes follow. The gentle, soothing influence of "Mother's Friend" gives the mind substantial aid to become conscious of strength and there is a real, physical sensibility of muscular vigor as evidenced by freedom from undue strain.

You can get "Mother's Friend" at any drug store or they will gladly get it for you. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 701 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book of great value to all expectant mothers. It contains a valuable expectancy chart, rules on diet and is brimful of suggestions that all women will appreciate.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system.

To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and upbuild your strength.

Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

Missionary Items

In the absence of the pastor, who is attending the Divinity School at Seashore Camp ground Biloxi, Miss., there will be an illustrated lecture on foreign mission fields. Many beautiful and interesting, as well as instructive scenes, will be shown, and no one could spend an hour more profitably than to thus pleasantly investigates these far distant and needy comers of the Lord's vineyard where the fields are so white unto the harvest but the laborers so few. Everybody is cordially invited.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU DEATHLY SICK

Stop Using Dangerous Drug Before it Salivates You! It's Horrible.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and Take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

We call attention to the advertisement of the new Palace meat market on the corner, in this issue. This new firm has screened, renovated and polished up this stand and are ready to feed the public good fresh steak.

The writing school here is progressing nicely. New pupils coming in every day. The people of Clanton should certainly take advantage of this splendid opportunity to learn to improve their penmanship. Mr. Brown takes good interests in training his pupils, not only to write, but how to live right in this life.

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

TO FARMERS:

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company maintains an Agricultural Department composed of men who are expert in soil treatment, plant industry, poultry and dairying, cattle and live stock, fruit and berry; also men who are expert in mineral lands.

The service of these experts is free, and subject to the wishes of the people living in the territory traversed by the L. & N.

We would be very glad to have any one interested in agricultural and mineral products avail himself of this service, as we are convinced it would be of benefit to that individual.

In providing this service the Louisville & Nashville seeks to assist in the maximum development of the territory. These experts can give valuable information on soil conservation, on what kinds of crop to plant in a particular soil, and on crop rotation.

If the scientific principles outlined are carefully adhered to, the farmers of the territory will enjoy increased crops, and consequently increased wealth, which means more traffic and increased business for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

This Department is but another evidence of the constructive policy of co-operation adopted by the L. & N. for the benefit, not only of itself, but of the people it serves.

A letter addressed to the Agricultural Department, L. & N. R. R. Co., at Louisville, Ky., will receive prompt response.

NEW METHODS IN WHALING

Old-Fashioned Harpoon Has Been Discarded for the Most Modern of Deadly Weapons.

In early days the wooden sailing ships engaged in the whaling industry in southern seas pursued only right whales and sperm whales, or cachalots. The so-called "finners," such as the blue whale, the largest animal in the world; the finner whale; the small fish whale; and the humpback, were all too active, and sank too quickly when killed. But their turn has now come, for the modern whale gun is a finely fashioned cannon, the harpoon carries a shell, and the body of the whale is kept afloat by inflating it with air through pipes from the engine room of the whaler. The rendering is now done in a factory on shore, or in a special large vessel moored in the harbor. Besides the whalebone, which no longer pays well or at all, and the oil, which is graded into qualities as it comes from the blubber, the fat of the tongue and kidneys, the flesh and bones and the refuse, there remain the dried flesh and bones, which are now also put to commercial use. The absolutely fresh flesh is used to make whale-meat meal, a nutritious and wholesome foodstuff that is largely fed to cattle From the remaining flesh and about a third of the bones whale guano is made, and from the bones alone bone meal. The largest whaling business in the world is now conducted in the Falkland islands and their dependencies. The season begins in November, and lasts until the end of April, and the average production of oil is nearly half a million barrels; of guano, 8,375 tons. The industry gives employment to about 3,500 men.—Youth's Companion.

FIRST OF LIFE'S LESSONS

Finding and Filling One's Place Perhaps the Most Essential of All That We Learn.

To find our niche and fill it is, perhaps, the most essential of all life's lessons. It sums up in a word not only our duty to ourselves but to others as well and embraces much more than at first glance seems possible. It is a lesson that is assigned to us from the beginning, sometimes long before our immature minds can grasp its full meaning, but it is one that lies ready at hand for our assimilation the moment we show evidence of our ability to take it in. Of course there are many persons who shrink from undertaking life's responsibilities, who defer until the last the acceptance of certain duties which must evidently come to them and who, sometimes, enter upon these duties unprepared for their proper discharge. It is so easy to drift from day to day unhampered by the knowledge that there is work for us to do; so long as we know that there is someone else upon whom we can depend for our well-being, someone who shoulders all necessary responsibilities, someone who indulges our whims and fancies and protects us as far as possible from the necessity of assuming our natural debts, we are well content to let the days pass unmarked by any attempt on our part to discover for ourselves the part we must play in this world.

Famous Bridge Builder.

Gustav Lindenthal, who is building the Hell Gate bridge at New York, the greatest structure of the kind in the world, which will have a length of three and one-half miles, is an Austrian by birth. He received his technical education at Brunn and Vienna, and before coming to this country in 1874 he had had considerable practical experience in railroad building. His first work in the United States was as an assistant engineer on the force constructing the Centennial exhibition buildings. He became a citizen and took up railroad building. Some of the greatest bridges which he has built span the Alleghany and Monongahela rivers, though he has also spanned the Mississippi and other streams. Though famed as a bridge builder he prefers to be known as a man who has had more to do with laying out railroad routes.

How Labor Cost Comes In.

Labor plays a larger part in the conditions faced by the dress goods selling agents than perhaps they are aware. Some years back the mills had no difficulty in selling cotton worsteds in large quantities to the cutters-up. With increasing labor costs, however, the garment manufacturers find that it does not pay them to put what is high-priced workmanship into low-quality goods. The results obtained, no matter how production is speeded up, are not satisfactory. The demand has therefore shifted toward better fabrics that give a larger return in the manufactured state. This goes a long way toward explaining the shifting of values upward and why it is no longer possible to sell the amount of cheap goods that was disposed of in past years with little difficulty.

Queen Wilhemina's Beauty.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is sometimes referred to as the queen with the complexion in Europe, but few people know that she has a special recipe for keeping the skin in perfect condition. Some time ago she adopted the plan from the Dutch Indies of taking lemon baths. Five or six lemons are squeezed into the bath, and various scents then added, including eau de cologne, of which she is said to use a pint a day. The bath is highly invigorating.

"Hair of the Dog."

When a man is debilitated from the effects of the previous night's debauch he is frequently counseled to take "a hair of the dog that bit him," the meaning being that he should take a little of the same kind of liquor that had upset him. The saying is a remnant of an old superstitious belief that the burnt hair of a dog was an antidote against the ill effects of intoxication.

AFRICAN KINGS GIVE TO MISSIONS

New Ruler of Well-known Lawless Tribe Greets Christian Bishop.

Thousand Teachers Wanted in China—Increased Baptist Equipment.

Bishop Tugwell of western equatorial Africa recently spent three days at Benin city, in the Niger delta, as the guest of the commissioner. On the Sunday the church was crowded the commissioner and the other resident Europeans, and also the newly crowned king of Benin, with many of his chiefs, being present. The collection was devoted to the Prince of Wales national relief fund, to which the bishops believes the chiefs are giving a sum of 200 pounds sterling. On his way thence to Onitsha, wherever he halted, the bishop was met by deputations from outlying districts, bringing tokens of good will and begging that their need of teachers might not be forgotten. Benin, it will be remembered, was occupied by the British expedition in 1897, the wanton cruelties and lawlessness of the king and people having rendered this interposition necessary.

A Thousand Chinese Teachers Wanted.

To show what an opportunity there is for educated Christian Chinese, Professor Paul Monroe of Columbia university teachers' college said, on returning from his visit to China, that in one province the Chinese commissioner of education expressed his willingness to employ a thousand Christian Chinese as teachers if he could find them.

Increased Baptist Equipment.

Southern Baptists are celebrating the Judson centennial by raising $1,250,000 for foreign missions. This money is not to be kept for endowment but is to be spent entirely upon equipment; $200,000 of it is to be used for general equipment, such as church buildings, hospitals, and missionaries' homes; $25,000 for publication houses for the circulation of Bibles and Christian literature; $800,000 for schools of all grades, from the kindergarten to the college and theological seminary. The $1,250,000 was apportioned to different states, and the campaign began with enthusiasm. The sum of $800,000 had been secured in cash and pledges by Christmas. The whole amount will be raised beyond doubt. This is an achievement worth while, especially in a year in which the chief crop of the south has failed of a market.—Watchman-Examiner.

Facts That Count.

Despite the war in Europe, one of the great Bible societies reports that it publishes the gospel, translated into a new language, once every six weeks.

During the past ten years the membership of the Southern Presbyterian church in foreign mission fields has increased from 8,743 to 29,000, a gain of 240 per cent.

The whole number of Protestant missionaries supported by North American churches is nearly 10,000; in 1894 there were only 5,489. The native Christian workers now number 50,000. The total number of members of churches connected with American missions is 1,439,000 an increase of nearly 200 per cent since 1964; last year 159,000 converts were added, three times the number added in 1904

In Cuba there are 149 organized Protestant churches, with a membership of 10,975. There are 290 established missions with 170 ordained missionary workers. The average gain in church membership in the last six years is 100 per cent. The total average expenditure of all Protestant societies is $221,427 a year.

Great Britain has 10,000 missionaries in the foreign field and contributes $10,000,000 a year for their support. Germany has 1,200 missionaries and contributes about $150,000 a year; Holland, 120 missionaries and contributes $216,000 a year. Switzerland has 450 missionaries and contributes $600,000 a year. Scandinavia has 700 missionaries and the amount contributed is not known. All the continental societies combined maintain about 2,500 missionaries and spend about $4,000,000 for their support.

During the present year the China inland mission will complete its fiftieth year of work. Its total staff of missionaries and native workers is now about 2,500 persons, and during the past ten years there has been an increase of six native workers for each new missionary.

According to latest statistics Japan has almost 7,000,000 pupils in her elementary schools. In the secondary schools nearly 200,000 students are enrolled. In addition to these, various technical schools are maintained, including agricultural, commercial, industrial and nautical institutions. These send out yearly about 90,000 graduates. Institutions of higher learning for both men and women are supplemented by effective mission schools. There are also four imperial universities.

The work in China was begun by Morrison 107 years ago. There are now about 4,500 missionaries in China and about half a million Protestant church members.

Central Turkey college, at Aintab, is the oldest of the American colleges in the interior of Turkey. It was established in 1876 and is under the care of the Congregationalists. About sixty of its alumni are classified as ministers and a large number as teachers. Its graduates are pastors in Turkey of evangelical congregations numbering 18,000 and preach to an average of 8,000 people each Sabbath.

In India there is a Christian population of 3,873,203, an increase of more than 32 per cent since 1901.

The work in Korea was begun thirty years ago. There are now about 500 missionaries in that country and 280,000 Christians.

The Japan Methodist church was organized as an independent body eight years ago, and now has 145 ordained ministers and 14,000 members.

The British and Foreign Bible society reports 9,000,000 volumes of the Scriptures issued last year. These were issued in 400 languages.

The following statistics of mission hospitals of the Southern Methodist church for last year are given: Patients treated in China, 34,480; in Korea, 30,399; in Africa (eight months), 920.

The annual report of the Bible Institute Colportage association of Chicago, founded by D. L. Moody, showed that during the past year this society had published 150,000 copies of the Gospel of John and issued 3,183,920 pages of Gospel tracts and leaflets for the believer (177,000 copies of tracts against "Russellism" are included in this number). "The Way of God," one of Mr. Moody's most used books, was translated and published in Italian, making five books of the great evangelist's now available in six foreign tongues. Already more than 6,239,000 copies (English and foreign) of the Moody Colportage Library books have been published.

The Sunday school teachers in Wonsan have been organized by Rev. C. T. Collyer into a Sunday school teachers' union. This is the first teachers' union in Korea, and will be watched with great interest by the Sunday school workers in other parts of the country. Sunday school teachers' institutes have been held in the Wonsan, Pyengyang and Kwangju districts of Korea. So great has been the interest in these district institutes that the workers are planning several larger institutes for the coming summer in larger centers of population.

Following are the newest medical statistics for China for 1914, gathered at the recent medical conference:

Physicians, foreign men, 312; women, 155; Chinese, 94. Nurses, foreign, 112; Chinese, 336. Chinese medical assistants, 1,028. Hospitals, 264; inpatients, 126,788; individuals treated, 2,129,774.

According to latest records, there are only a few oriental women students in America. They are divided as follows: Chinese, 65; Japanese, 31; Indian, 5; and a few from the near east.

The first service held in the crypt of the new cathedral in San Francisco, at which 1,500 were present, was a missionary service, held on February 7. "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" was sung in Japanese, and "Jesus Shall Reign" in Chinese.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of Kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root,

VOL. 4. CLANTON, ALABAMA, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1915. NUMBER 13.

SIGNATURE IS FORGED SAYS CAPTAIN KOLB

His Name on Checks Recently Discovered Not Written By Him

Indorsement of "R. F. Kolb" on the back of two checks said to have been cashed on the account of the Department of Agriculture by C. Homer Billingsley after leaving that office was yesterday declared by Captain Kolb to be a very obvious case of forgery.

"I never saw the checks until Mr. Wade showed them to me in his office the other day, said Captain Kolb, former Commissioner of Agriculture; "and anybody who knows my signature can see very readily that the indorsement is not my own writing."

Billingsley, who was pure food clerk under Captain Kolb, went out of office with the latter in January. Both of the checks are dated in February. They are for $100 and $50. The larger check was endorsed with the names of Capt. Kolb and Billingsley; the other with those names and that of Harry Hood.

Capt. Kolb, whose signature is probably as familiar as that of any man in the state, said that several persons who had seen the canceled checks immediately pointed out that the ex-commissioner's name had very plainly been forged. It was not even a good forgery apparently. Commissioner Wade himself told Capt. Kolb when he showed him the checks recently, that it was a clear case of forgery.--Montgomery Advertiser.

TAX COLLECTOR COLLINS MAKES A FINE SHOWING

In his report to the State Auditor, Tax Collector J. D. Collins, will have less than $20.00 insolvent taxes unpaid in Chilton county.

This is a good showing on the part of Mr. Collins as a county official, besides it speaks well for the people of Chilton county.

HARRIS ISSUES STATEMENT TO GEORGIANS.

Atlanta, Ga., June 28.—Governor Hrrris late today issued a statement to the people of Georgia, asking that there "be an immediate cessation of all efforts at violence or riotous demonstration" because of the Frank case. He asserted that he continued the martial law zone around former Governor's home because of representations of Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash and Sheriff Mangum of Fulton county, and added that the action of former Governor Slaton in the Frank case now "is past history."

BOOTH CONFESSES TO LIQUOR FRAUDS

Fort Smith, Ark., June 27.--David A. Gates, deputy internal revenue collector, announced tonight that Knox Booth, former internal revenue agent for Tennessee and Alabama, had laid bare the details of the alleged "moonshine" whiskey frauds which federal officials assert cheated the government of many thousands of dollars in taxes.

Gates in his announcement declared that Booth admitted receiving nearly $12,000 as bribes from the distillers.

Gates was one of the chief workers for the government in the investigations of the alleged frauds which led to the indictment by the federal grand jury here last week of Booth, John L. Gasper and Guy L. Hartman of Kansas City and a number of other former government employes and distillers. The indictments grew out of the alleged illegal manufacture of whiskey by the Rush Distilling company of Fort Smith and of Kansas City of which Casper is president. One indictment charges Casper and Hartman with bribing Booth and another charges the former agent with accepting the bribe. Details of the alleged confession were not made public tonight but, according to Gaites, it contains details of a plan whereby Gates was to be killed in order to put an end to the investigation.

The deputy agent said Booth alleged Gates was to be decoyed to Atlanta, Ga., and slain in the internal revenue office there during a quarrel. The men involved, Gates said, were to support each other's story of self-defense and by having the killing take place on a government reservation the case was kept in the federal court. Gates said the confession alleged the plan was abandoned because Booth refused to take part.

TENNESSEE LOCKER LAW HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Memphis, Tenn.—Tennessee's new locker club law prohibiting storage of liquors for individual use in social and fraternal clubs was held unconstitutional in a decision handed down here today by Judge Jesse Edrington in the criminal court. The law became effective June 1 last. The ruling was made in a test case brought by a local fraternal organization.

The contentions were that the act was unjust and discriminatory; that the ception of the bill did not meet the embodied requirements of the state constitution, and that it was in violation of the fourteenth amendment of Federal constitution. The state supreme court is expected to pass upon the case at its September term.

THEO LACY HEARD BY A LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE

But the Story of His Embezzlement Still Remains Shrouded In Mystery.

Montgomery, June 26.—Theo Lacy appeared before the legislative investigating committee this morning, but testified in executive session, and as far as the public is concerned his story is still untold. Much disappointment was shown by a large crowd that gathered to hear his testimony, when it was announced he would be heard in executive session. At the end of the conference the committee would utter no word of what had transpired.

"We are satisfied," said Chairman Merritt.

Other members of the committee expressed satisfaction.

Lacy entered the committee room shortly after 10 o'clock. He came from Wetumpka in the custody of a deputy warden. He was permitted to visit his home in the city before appearing before the committee.

When Lacy had finished his testimony the reporters besieged the committee for information. "I have nothing to say at all," said chairman Merritt.

The Democratic party has been in power in Alabama so long that perhaps a good renovating would be of some benefit to the common people.

What does a man care if flour is $10 a barrel?—if he's got the ten dollars. But if he hasn't got the ten dollars, why then that is something else.

Young W. J. Bryan is quoted as saying that his father will be a candidate for President next year. We suspect the son, like the father, has found that he talked too much.—Advertiser.

With the htgh cost of living, pienty of money, and good business the laboring people can live and prosper; but when business is cut out, and the cost of living is still higher, the poor man is in a dickens of a fix. He can't survive long at that.

By chance the democratic party got in power again, and it is thoroughly demonstrated that their policy will not do for this country. The very thing it should have avoided it did first—cut business off.

The democratic party wanted low tariff so the high cost of living might be reduced. Well where a fellow has to pay about three times as much for living expenses as he used to, where does the reduction in high cost of living come in?

It is part of the duty of a country agriculturist to assist the farmers in planning their farms so they may become more productive and attractive. And the farmers should take advantage of the chance thus afforded.—Labor Advocate.

We have frequently quoted the Washington Post, an independent democratic newspaper, in favor of a protective tariff. Now the Morning Herald, rock-rooted democratic Washington city paper, says that "if the party in power does not revise the tariff upward, the party of protection will do it."—Marion, (Ia.) Register.

DeWITT'S CARBOLIZED WITCH HAZEL SALVE For Piles, Burns, Sores.

The Cost of Living.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has just issued a formidable document entitled "Retail prices," in which are presented voluminous statistics of the relative cost of living in the years between 1907 and 1915, coming down to the 1st of January of this year. Compiled by a department of the government in which an error is something akin to treason, the accuracy of the figures may be relied upon.

It will be recalled that the "high cost of living" was the most potent influence in the Democratic campaign of 1912. The "iniquitous tariff was responsible for high prices. There was not any doubt about it. It was proven time and again, by line upon line, figure upon figure. The troubled and discontented electorate was shown with the utmost elaborateness of detail and convincingness of logic that the tariff was due to the "fiendish machinations of a selfish and heartless plutocracy," that "ever clutched at the vitals of a downtrodden people." It was only necessary to destroy the tariff, or to tie it down, and the cost of living would be immediately and automatically reduced, everybody would be prosperous and everybody would be happy. In the inelegant but eloquent language of the street, it listened good and they put it over, with some outside help.

As Uncle Joe Cannon delights to say, "The proof of the pudding is the eating of it." Everyone knows that prices have not declined since the tariff was reduced. Everyone knows that it costs at least as much to buy a beefsteak, or a sack of flour or a suit of clothes as it did in 1912, but this document, "Retail Prices," issued under auspices of a democratic administration shows that the cost of living is really highar now than it was then. Nor can it be argued that the war is the cause, for proof is presented that prices in genera! were higher at the beginning of the war than they were before the present administration went into office. The average prices of fifteen articles of food, representing the necessities of life, are compared by fixing the average price of all for 1913 at 100. Upon this basis the average price of these articles for 1912 was 97.4, and in 1914 was 102. The average for July 1914, before the war began was 102.3.

These figures are not to be denied, nor are the conclusions to be drawn from them. They prove again the fact that the tariff has relatively no influence whatever upon prices to the consumer. The Payne-Aldrich tariff did not cause high prices. The Underwood tariff has not lowered them. We get no joy from this. On the contrary, we sorrow that 'tis so. But it is a lesson that must be learned, and it is not to be taught by silence.—The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is shameful to have to see the United States bureau of education officially proclaiming that the only four states so backward as to be without compulsory attendance laws are all in the south—Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi. The new South Carolina law adopted last winter we fear is too weak io deserve much praise, but it at least registers a definite growth in educational sentiment there. The new Texas law requires all children between the ages of eight and fourteen years to attend school—sixty days of the first year, eighty days of the second year, and one hundred days thereafter in every school year.—The Progressive Farmer.

We want to appeal to our subscribers who are in arrears. We are very much in need of funds to carry on the business of the paper. The tough times and increase in prices has hit us hard. We have bills to meet and must pay them if we carry on our business. Just a dollar from this one or that one will help us out. We want you to think over the matter and if you are in arrears on your subscription we would thank you to kindly drop in, or send it to us. Perhaps you think—oh, well, he can get along without mine, but every "little bit helps" and if its little or big send or bring it along and help us to get up a good clean newsy paper, get it to you on time and pay our bills. We trust everyone will not forget us along this line.

He Dic Not.

Jeff de Angelis met a New York newspaper man. "Do you remember," asked the newspaper man, "one time while you were playing in Kansas City, you offered $10 for the best original verse for your 'Women' song?" "I do,' replied the comedian. "I won that ten." According to the laws of fiction, Mr. de Angelis should have said: "I've been looking for you for years. Here's $1,000 as a retainer. I want you to write me a comic opera."

But he didn't What he did say was: "Well, that's so long ago I guess we can be good friends, nevertheless."

A WORD OF EXPLANATION.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow us a few words of explanation through your paper.

It is the opinion of many that the Unity-Chilton Baptist High School and the two associations have turned their contributions from the Boards of the Alabama Baptist Convention. This is not true. It was understood that the education commission had dropped all secondary school wnrk. This proved to be a mistake, but not till a few from the Association met in Thorsby and submitted a proposition to the churches for their adoption or relection. As the matter cleared up some—not many—of the churches adopted the resolution. The trustees have taken no action at all. The contributions of the churches are taking their regular channells and will continue to do so. We will help our school all we can without interference with the convention schedule, and trust the education commission to see the opportunity and need of a great Baptist high school in this section and help us as soon as they can. A great people; a great opportunity, brethren. "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

FROM A PRIZE WINNER.

Jemison, June 28, 1915.

Editor Union-Banner:—Allow me space to say a few words in regard to the Auburn scholarship awarded me by our canning club, and given by the Union State Bank.

I left home on June 21, going to Auburn, and returning on the 28th.

Upon arriving at Auburn I was met by Prof. L. N. Duncan, with a party of about 50 tomato club girls.

The party, under direction of Mr. Duncan and Miss Reese, were entertained for a week. Many places of interest were visited, and some valuable lessons were taught the girls regarding canning club work.

We received the very finest treatment and care from Mr. Duncan and Miss Reese and Miss Tappan.

The trip is a prize indeed. It is a week of great value, and our girls ought to increase their interest in the club work and strive tc get the prize trip next year.

We should be proud of the interest our leaders are taking. They have been and will continue to a wonderful inspiration to the club girls.

I want to thank our county agent for her assistance and suggestions.

Now girls, let us continue our work with interest, and make our county the banner for the state.

Feared for Grandma.

Billy is fond of attending the picture shows with his grandma and he considers himself her chief protector. One evening a large black bear was performing all sorts of antics in the picture, which Billy was enjoying immensely until suddenly the bear turned towards the audience. Billy slipped down from his seat, and, taking hold of his grandma's hand, said: "Tum an, danma, let's do home. I don't like the looks of dat bear."—Exchange.

Fern Was Peeved.

According to an eminent botanist, plants are so sensitive that they resent neglect and are susceptible to kind treatment, showing their gratitude in charming ways. We are therefore the more ready to believe a story told us a day or two ago by a lover of nature. He was watering a fern on a cold morning. He forgot to temper the water. The fern, incensed by the shock, leaped from the pot and bit him savagely in the leg.—Philip Hale, in Boston Herald.

FOUGHT HIS OWN BATTLES

Such Progress as Man Has Made He Has Laboriously Carved Out for Himself.

It has become a bromidian common-place to say that man can do everything he has to, supply each need he feels and meet every emergency that arises with some expedient or Yankee trick. And there is some warrant for such boastfulness, for everything that man enjoys or employs he has made for himself out of such raw material as he found to hand. All that he knows he has learned for himself. No one ever gave him any information of the slightest value which contributed to his material welfare or the comfort of his life. The lower animals furnished him certain hints. Some of them burrowed to escape the cold, climbed trees to elude their enemies, lined their abodes with moss and floss for warmth and laid up food against the season of snow. But all that man is and has he made himself. All that he does he found the way of doing. He was an orphan child, ignorant of every branch of useful knowledge, set adrift in a trying environment to perish or provide for himself as best he could. If anybody deserves an iron cross or other honorary decoration, it is man—resolute, resourceful, self-reliant homo sapiens—for he is self-made and has done a very creditable job of it, considering that he had to battle with his environment for everything worth while.

BLIND FARMER GIVES TO MISSIONS

Wants Spiritual Vision to Those Who Have It Not—World Wide News.

Rev. E. F. Goodson, Henderson, Ky., sends a check for one hundred dollars to the Methodist Board of Missions, with this interesting note:

"At a quarterly meeting which I recently held, after I had emphasized the importance of the mission cause, I was approached by a blind man, a farmer, who said he wanted to give something as a special for foreign missions. I told him of our work in Africa, and it appealed to him. As he is deprived of physical sight, he wants to give spiritual vision to those who have it not. He handed me one hundred dollars as a special for Africa, which I inclose."

Mass Movements Toward Christianity

The Indian mass movements toward Christianity continue, and all Indian missions are put to it to find teachers for the numbers who are turning to them. In one district 2,600 people registered as applicants for baptism, but no one was available to go to teach them. In some districts many more men than women have been baptized, and women workers are urgently needed to train and help the households of these new converts. They must be gathered into churches also, and taught to make progress in the new way; and this is quite as difficult as well as quite as important as their conversion in the first place.

Christian Education in Orient.

In China about one-third of the government schools and colleges have recently been closed, and many are attended by reduced numbers. In Kwangsi, the province about west of Canton, the government has withdrawn financial support of schools and advises teachers to depend on scholars' fees.

Although the government has withdrawn many students from Japan, this does not seem to be due to lack of money, as it has recently devoted $12,000,000 to sending other students abroad.

The government is increasingly eager for missionary co-operation in the management of schools, and both in Shansi and Fukien provinces the American board is in close touch with government educational boards.

World Wide News.

Eighteen hundred Bible study classes are carried on regularly in Korea, and the portions of Scriptures sold in that land during 1914 amounted to a million copies.

In the Japanese building at the Panama exposition there is to be a Sunday school booth, which will specially advertise the 1916 World's Sunday School Convention in Tokyo.

The first Christian service with prayer and singing ever held in the Imperial University at Tokyo, Japan, took place December 5th last. Rev. Mr. Ebina, the pastor of the large Kumi-ai church, spoke on "Elements in Modern Christianity" to an audience of 260 men.

In 1913 the entire annual budget of about $500,000 for Moravian missions, 17 per cent came from Great Britain and 12 per cent from the continent of Europe, while 47 per cent came from mission fields in the way of contributions from native Christians, government grants, returns from industrial and commercial missionary enterprises, school fees, etc.

Baptist Gifts for Missions.

The handsome sum of $2,600 was given on missionary day in the Sunday school in the First Baptist church of Dallas, Texas, of which Rev. George Truett is the pastor. This sum represented is the offering to Home and Foreign Missions from 1,500 givers.

The plan now in operation by the Southern Baptists to observe every year what is known as "Missionary Day in the Sunday School" has proved to be a most effective and efficient plan for increasing the interest as by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Wanted to Be Hospitable.

When I went to Paris, said Gen. Horace Porter, I told my friends that any of them who got within a mile of the embassy must come to see me. The latchstring, I told them, was out; there was always a spare seat in my pew at church. The latchstring was often pulled; the seat in church remained vacant. One of my friends who visited me stopped his subscription to the Christian Observer. He said he didn't want any observers while he was in Paris.

Oval Water Pipes Best.

Oval water pipes are less liable to burst when they freeze than round ones. The reason is that repeated freezings and thawings cause a round lead water pipe to stretch at the weakest points and form bulges, which finally split; but a pipe that starts life as oval may be frozen a number of times without cracking, because each time it gets a little rounder, and not until the strain can no longer be relieved in that way does it form bulges and burst.

MAY MEAN END OF ALL WAR

Development of Destructive Airship Sure to Have Powerful Effect on Humanity.

The difficulty of properly arming and protecting aircraft lies in the fact that we cannot yet obtain sufficiently powerful engines — even though, in the course of a few years, the engines have increased in horse power from about fifty to two hundred, says Claude Grahame-White in the Youth's Companion. But when we look ahead, and estimate what may be possible with a power plant, not of hundreds of horse power, but of thousands, then we can imagine a perfected war machine, of the future—a huge armored craft, that carries a crew of hundreds of men, and that is equipped with formidable guns and aerial torpedo and bomb-dropping tubes. Such a vessel will be able to reef its wing surface when traveling at high speed, and will rush through the air as a speed of several hundred miles an hour.

But even against such metal-built monsters of the air, flying at their amazing speeds, man will pit his ingenuity. It is clear that he cannot fight them from the earth; he must fight them high in their own element. So in the future, if wars continue, we may have fearful struggles of the air—not small and isolated combats, such as this campaign has shown us, but battles desperately waged, with death and destruction raining from the clouds. There are those, however, who argue that such a form of war, when pushed to its ruthless limit, will prove so ghastly that humanity will revolt, and that the science that revolutionizes war will also end it.

CHANGES WROUGHT BY WAR

"Tommy Atkins" of Today Is a Different Being From His Prototype of a Few Years Ago.

The old pouter-pigeon type of British soldier, with his ramrod deportment and feet at impossible angles, is now as obsolete as his red coat. This change is evident, not only in the training of the new army, but in the royal cadet schools at Sandhurst and Woolwich. Alertness and agility, mental and physical, are now aimed for instead of physical rigidity and mechanical precision as in the old times.

Swedish exercises have taken the place of conventional calisthenics. About the only piece of apparatus left in the Sandhurst gymnasium is the padded horse. Parallel bars, rings, heavy dumb-bells and pulley exercises have been sent away. Now the cadets are taught what is known in their slang as monkey tricks, such as walking on top of high and narrow stone walls and jumping safely to the ground, skipping the rope and playing various kinds of games.

One reason why the pouter chest has gone out of style is its menace to health. An overdeveloped chest is held to be dangerous, as it invites pneumonia and other troubles. Men on the march are allowed to unbutton their coats and make themselves comfortable, but smoking at such times is discouraged by the medical authorities. The deportment of the soldier on parade has also been made normal and natural.

Sanity and Insanity.

Dr. Stephen Smith, now ninety-two years old, has been one of the foremost public-spirited physicians of New York. He has a theory of the insane, set forth in an interview the other day, which merits attention. Cornell, when governor of New York, made Doctor Smith commissioner in lunacy, telling him that many people believed persons were kept in asylums by their enemies when they were not really insane, and charging Doctor Smith to find out what there was to it. The painstaking physician accordingly talked privately with 15,000 lunatics, coming to the conclusion then, and holding it ever since, that 90 per cent of them might as well be out of asylums and sanatoriums as in them, if somebody would only take suitable care of them. He cured many merely by interesting them in congenial work. He also noticed that when he left the asylums and began to converse with people outside they told him stories very much akin to those that he had just heard from the presumed lunatics.—Boston Herald

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

SOME OTHER MAN'S PARCEL

Commuter Made Profitable Exchange, but Probably Man Who Got the Cat Was Peeved.

A man once lived in Montclair, N. J., whose wife had a pet cat. On a wintry day the cat died. So wintry was the day that the cat could not be buried, for the ground was frozen hard.

To get rid of the body the man determined to bring it with him when he went to New York to business. So he wrapped it up neatly in brown paper, and, on getting into his train, put it gently on the hatrack, with the firm intention of forgetting all about it. When he reached the terminus he walked rapidly out of the train, but was barely on the platform when a kindly old gentleman overtook him.

"Your parcel, I think, sir," said he pleasantly, and the man from Montclair thanked him most politely.

All day long the parcel containing the dead cat lay in his office. In the evening he took it home, placing it again in the hatrack and again carefully forgetting it. But again a fellow passenger warned him of his carelessness. Finally he reached home in a not very pleasant frame of mind, and flung the irksome parcel on the kitchen table.

Later on the wife entered the kitchen. The parcel aroused her curiosity, for her husband had said nothing about his failure to bury the cat. She opened it, and discovered three tenderloin steaks!

Solves Secret of Ages.

A New York man advertised the other day for red-haired girls, and a woman writer asked him why he preferred girls with red hair. "Surely they are not prettier," she ventured to remark, "and the ages have not proved them better or brighter. In fact, they are noted for their tempers." "Well, it's this way," explained the employer. "There are so many brunettes and blondes, and when you have a red-haired girl in your office you feel as though you had a girl who is just a little different from the common run. Something exclusive." But are they different?" asked the woman. "No," said the man. "But you always feel they are going to be." So the secret of the ages is solved.

Swatting the Fly in Korea.

The Japanese administration in Korea has been making strenuous endeavors to stamp out the housefly and its attendant ills, according to an official report received here. The American slogan of "Swat the Fly" was not considered sufficiently forcible to stimulate the oriental imagination, so the administration hit upon the idea of buying flies from the populace, using the slogan, "Sell the Fly." The official report, which is headlined "Purchase of Flies from Natives by Government Officials," does not state the price paid, or the result of the cru-

He Got the Apples.

"Once upon a time," began the teacher, "two little brothers started to Sunday school on Sunday morning. Their way led past a fine orchard, where the trees were bending down with ripe, luscious apples. One of the brothers proposed going into the orchard and getting some fruit, but the other refused and sped away, leaving his companion greedily devouring the apples.

"Now, it happened that the owner of the orchard saw them, and the next day rewarded the good boy who refused to steal his apples by giving him a shilling. He got a prize for his honesty, and what do you suppose the other boy got for his dishonesty?"

"He got the apples!" yelled every member of the class.

Audacity of Woman Spies

A climax to the audacity of spies is said to have been reached in the case of a woman pretending to be English and giving her name as Miss Booth, who, in connection with another woman calling herself Baroness de Rosen, organized a charitable work at the Gare du Nord, in Paris, which they called "For the Wounded and for the Refugees." The former, suspected of illicit communication with the Germans, passed before a court-martial and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, while the latter, against whom no tangible proof could be produced, was invited to leave French territory within 48 hours.

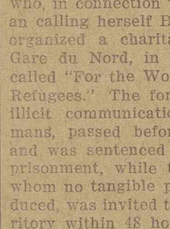
Lost Art.

They had been sitting around the table at the club all evening as usual talking about the war—always the war. There fell a little silence at last and then Jones spoke. "Is there any person present," said he, "who can tell me what it was we used to talk about before the war?"

British Colonial Taxes.

England's colonies do not pay direct taxes. That principle was established in the American war for independence. Just now the colonies are making voluntary grants and are establishing the principle that they can only be petitioned for free gifts.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind



The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

Uses Bat to Best Burglar.

A baseball bat was used by John Kearney of West Philadelphia, to subdue a burglar who attacked him in the cellar of his home. After pummeling the intruder until he howled for mercy Kearney turned him over to the police.

Kearney awakened before daylight and smelled gas. After careful daylight examination of the rooms of the first floor, he made his way to the cellar.

At the bottom of the stairs a man jumped on Kearney's shoulders and a struggle followed. Jars of raspberry jam, tomatoes, pickles, and other preserves were smashed during the combat. At last one of Kearney's hands closed on a baseball bat as the two men rolled about the floor.

Wrenching himself loose, he swung the bat against the burglar's head and repeated the operation until the man cried "enough."

Better Kind of Dishpan.

At last a man has invented a better kind of dishpan, says the Philadelphia Ledger. How very long we have used either a high, round pan or a low oval one, neither of which was the shape or size of the sink. But we have now a vast improvement—namely, a square dishpan made of very heavy retinned ware. It is much more like the shape of the sink, and, in addition, has the peculiar feature of a little plug at the bottom with a piece of wire netting so that the plug need only be drawn out when the dishwater needs to be changed. In this way, the water is strained and food particles prevented from going down the sink.

NOT ENOUGH CHILDREN

ever receive the proper balance of food to sufficiently nourish both body and brain during the growing period when nature's demands are greater than in mature life. This is shown in so many pale faces, lean bodies, frequent colds, and lack of ambition.

For all such children we say with unmistakable earnestness: They need Scott's Emulsion, and need it now. It possesses in concentrated form the very food elements to enrich their blood. It changes weakness to strength; it makes them sturdy and strong. No alcohol.

"Hair of the Dog."

When a man is debilitated from the effects of the previous night's debauch he is frequently counseled to take "a hair of the dog that bit him," the meaning being that he should take a little of the same kind of liquor that had upset him. The saying is a remnant of an old superstitious belief that the burnt hair of a dog was an antidote against the ill effects of intoxication.

Daily Thought.

The cure of heartache is to be found in occupations which take us away from our petty self-regardings, our self-pityings, our morbid broodings, and which connect our life with other lives and with other affairs, or merge our individual interest in the larger whole.—C. C. Ames.

Wise Habit of Silence.

Give not thy tongue too great a liberty, lest it take thee prisoner. A word unspoken is, like the sword in the scabbard, thine; if vented thy sword is in another's hand. If thou desire to be held wise, be so wise as to hold thy tongue.—Francis Quarles.

Appropriately Named.

Of course the morning-glory derives its name from the fact that it blooms out in the morning, and the "four-o'clock" because they close at that hour.

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and use for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

To Manufacturers:

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company is anxious to have progressive manufacturers locate along its lines. As an inducement it offers to co-operate in securing desirable factory sites, at reasonable prices, and agrees to supply unexcelled railroad facilities in both its freight and passenger departments.

The L. & N. is willing to co-operate in this work in the knowledge that a successful manufacturing enterprise is a valuable asset to the territory in which it is located. It supplies employment to the people of the section, turns raw material into a finished product, brings more money to the territory, creates taxable values, home owners, and freight and passenger traffic.

There is no territory in America better adapted to general manufacturing enterprises than is the territory served by the lines of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. The section is possessed of vast natural resources, the full value of which cannot be estimated. The L. & N. hopes to see these resources developed, and the section made prosperous. To this end we supply the people the best possible freight and passenger service, and solicit business with the distinct understanding that the service rendered cannot be excelled.

Those interested in securing factory sites will receive prompt service and cordial co-operation if they will communicate with the Industrial Department at Louisville, Ky.

Dr. G. G. Lunsford, of Weston Ga., after an examination, pronounced them normal babies in every respect. Mother and babies doing well.

RAPID PROGRESS OF SURGERY

Operations That Would Have Been Remarkable Years Ago Now a Matter of Course.

War will lose half its terrors if surgery continues to make the rapid progress of the past few years, for arms and legs will be replaced by new ones when necessary, remarks London Answers.

A millionaire lost an ear in an accident, and offered $5,000 to anyone who would supply the missing article. A man agreed; the patients were placed side by side for 11 days, which completed the grafting process.

In another case a whole finger is said to have been transferred from one woman to another, the hands being bound together for 22 days. The fee was $500, but the new finger was somewhat shorter than the original member.

America is the home of remarkable surgical operations, and it was at St. John's hospital, New York, that a man, whose face had been badly injured in machinery, was supplied with a new nose and mouth, both quite serviceable. The operation was a lengthy one; grafted muscles and skin formed the mouth, and by careful and skillful operations the little finger replaced the nose.

British surgeons can be quite as clever when necessity arises. A man was badly wounded in South Africa, and lost most of his ribs, which were replaced by a steel jacket which allowed him to do light work. Then a London hospital took him in hand and provided him with a set of silver ribs.

A small boy had what amounted to a hole in his skull, caused by a fall when very young. The London surgeons replaced this by a piece of his shin bone, and the operation proved successful.

Wounds from bullets and knives in hearts have been sewn up; a weak aorta was strengthened by a silver spring being placed in it at the weak point; a pig's eyelid replaced one which had been removed; a broken back has been set; and the story goes that a blind man was made to see by transplanting the cornea.

Uncle Eben.

"It's better to agree wif a man as much as you kin," said Uncle Eben. "It makes him feel good-natured an' you don't have to listen to so much talk."

The Fourth is on Sunday but we'll celebrate Monday. We invite you most cordially and will entertain royally. So won't you rally loyally at our Silver Tea at Mrs. B. M. Roberts's, 4:30, p.m.
Woman's Missionary Society

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to win the People's Confidence.

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are so extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medical preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommeeded by those who have been benefited by it, to those who are in need of it.

A brominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmers Swamp Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of our customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousonds who have used the prepartion, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcels post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghawton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Clanton Weekly Union-Banner.

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND MAKES YOU SICK

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you loose a day's work.

There's no reason why a person should take sinkening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can't salivote.

Children and grown folfs can take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated to-morrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more billiousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

AMERICA'S SHARE IN FEEDING WORLD

Has Exported Foodstuffs Valued at $724,000,000 in Last Eleven Months.

Washington, July 2nd.—The share of the United States in feeding the world, a task vastly increased by the European war, was disclosed today in statistics of the department of commerce. Foodstuffs valued at $724,000,000 were exported during the eleven months ending June 1. This was the principle factor in the nation's billion dollar foreign trade balance. The effect of the war is seen in the enormous increase in the value of foodstuff exports compared with the figures for the same eleven months a year ago, when the total was$443,000,000. Wheat formed the biggest item in foodstuff sent abroad. In all 249,576,000 bushels were exported, an increase of 164,000,000 bushels. It was valued at $319,961,000, showing an increase of $239,138,000 over the previous year.

SECRET SERVICE MEN ARE EXTRA CAUTIOUS

Cornish, N. H., July 3.—Extra precautions were taken by secret service men today to guard President Wilson. The attack upon J. P. Morgan and the explosion of a bomb in the capitol in Washington served to make the President's guards particularly alert.

Eight secret service men are now on duty here and another is on his way to join them. While no particular fear is felt that an attack on the President might be attempted, it was thought best to take every possible precaution.

President Wilson heard with regret of the shooting of J. P. Morgan and of the bomb explosion in the capitol. The president's plans are to spend Independence day very quietly.

ALABAMA TEACHERS WIN PEABODY PRIZE.

Nashville, July 3—The Fourth of July was celebrated at Peabody College this afternoon. All southern states were represented in the pageant, and prizes were offered to the three states making their gift to liberty in the most original way. Alabama won first prize, her gift to liberty was an alphabet of her famous sons and daughters. Mrs. J. Alex Moore represented "Alabama," and as each letter of the alphabet was called one of the Alabama students stepped forward and raised a banner bearing the name of the son or daughter, while the "Alabama" told in what way he or she had helped the nation.

The letter "I" was represented by a tall man covered with black crepe, when "Alabama" announced with a shudder, "I" is for illiteracy. The state delegation cried with one voice, "Let's remove it." Several men seized "Illiteracy" and carried him away amid the applause of the large audience. Alabama has more than sixty teachers in attendance at Peabody.

"SMARTEST HEN" EVER IS RESIDENT OF HURTSBORO

Hurtsboro, Ala., July 5.—T.M. Jones of this city is said to be the owner of the "smartest hen." Through a strange perversion of mind, the hen has insisted upon laying her daily egg on the roof of the Jones' kitchen only to see it roll off on to the groung. The daily tragedy got on the hen's nerves, and spying a pile of nails close by, she built a ring of them around her nest, so that several eggs are now to be seen resting peacefully on the shingles.

The Liberty Bell started from Philadelphia Sunday, July 4th on a long trip across the continent.

The outlook for the recovery of J. P. Morgan, who was shot by a crank some days ago is good, and his chances for recovery most certain.

It required two automobile trucks to haul the first blind tiger that was looted in Jefferson county after prohibition went into effect.

Old Huerta thought he had the plans
For Mexic revolution cinched;
But Uncle Sam was "on the job,"
And now they got old Huerta pinchd.
—Commercial-Appeal.

The South has always been the bone and sinew for democratic administrations, and yet the present incumbents at Washington have done little to aid the southern cotton growers.

Old Huerta spent last Sunday, July 4th, in the El Paso, (Tex) jail. That is just where he ought to be, and every other one of those bandits and outlaws over there who are causing so much strife and trouble in Mexico.

War is deplorable, but inasmuch as it seemed inevitable, it is fortunate that the United States has been able to export goods to relieve the people to that extent during this regime of low tariff democrotic administration.

What's become of the old fashioned fellow who used to think it was smart to tell a bald headed man he had lots of face to wash?—Dothan Eagle.

He is still before the mirror vulcanizing his brain leaks.—Marion Standard.

We would wager the editor of the Standard is a bald headed man.

Don't forget, if you have a dozen or more cattle to winter, you need a silo. You need it because it will enable you to save your corn crop, ears, fodder, stalks and all, and thus provide you with the cheapest winter feed that can be obtained. Think this matter over—it means more profits for you.—Progressive Farmer.

Governor Whitman of New York has declined to commute the sentence of Charles Becker. This seems to be a case of rubbing it in, as Whitman had the pleasure of prosecuting Becker. The Governor says: "I deem it my duty to decline to appoint a commission to further examine into the Becker case, and feel that I must deny the application for commutation of the sentence to imprisonment for life."

The complete demoralization of business in the United States could not possibly be blamed on the war, when statistics show that this country has exported in the last eleven months 724 millions of dollars worth of foodstuffs. Has not this amount of exports been beneficial to the people of this country? And would this enormons quantity have been exported if the war had not been in operation. Taking these facts into consideration, the war has really been beneficial from a financial standpoint.

Monkeying with the Tariff.

This year's government finance shows a deficit of $117,000,000 with all our expedients to raise money—corporation taxes, income taxes, and stamp osculations, Still it seems to be our fate to "monkey with the tariff" with recurring regularity. If history and experience teach anything about the tariff, it is that the Republicans have the working theory of it.—Eagle Grove (Ia.) Eagle.

Who Will Oppose Wilson?

It is taken for granted that Mr. Wilson will have no Democratic opposition and that idea has given impetus to the Republican candidates. Those gentlemen are really hopeful that they can win next year.

Mr. Burton, of Ohio. is a probable candidate, though his friends have not announced him. He can probably carry more delegates than any other candidate, but he is said to think he had rather be Secretary of State in the next Republican administration, and his friends think he can beat our Senator Pomerine for the Senate, So Mr. Burton is rather independent in his aspirations.

Senator Root, of New York, is supposed to be the strongest man, personally, and New York is an important state without which the republicans cannot win. But he, too, is said to prefer to be Secretary of State. He too, would accept the presidency.

Next to these stands Mr. Fairbanks, of Indiana, who wants to be President. He has long had that ambition. He feels that he can carry that state now, that rome Democrats have been caught cheating in the election. Thus three of the doubtful states have candidates, and the Republicans are girding their loins and tightening their armor, and are as confident as Germans, of victory next year.

The democrats have the fight of their lives on hand. If Mr. Bryan shows coldness towards the administration, we will have a struggle to hold what we have. The battle is already on, and we have one candidate and the republicans have three. Their strongest three.—Birmingham Ledder.

What Makes A Democrat?

Texas papers are debating as to what makes a Democrat. There is a plain answer, just as there is to "What makes a prohibitionist?" The answer is, one who votes the ticket. Theories and statements are clear outside the discussion. A democrat is one who votes the democratic ticket.—B'ham. Ledger.

That sounds all right until we ask: Whence the democratic ticket the voting for which makes a Democrat? Must be something that goes ahead of voting the ticket.—Mobile Register.

The Ledger does not mince the question. It says a democrat is one who votes the democratic ticket. The Ledger is undoubtedly beyond question on that point. A democrat is one who votes 'er straight.

The man who does that is branded is a true blue, however we were of the opinion that the prohibitionist theorized, but from the Ledger, all he has to do is vote the ticket, though he may imbibe freely. Eh?

The Kentucky Republican State convention, held at Lexingtou June 15, adopted the following declaration on the tariff question:

"First, we approve the policies of the national republican party in providing for the defense of our coasts against foreign invasion, and the protection of American industry against the pauper labor of other countries, without imposing unnecessary or unjust burdens upon the consumer. We favor the nomination for the presidency of a candidate who is in accord with those policies, and is abreast of the spirit of progress required by ever-changing conditions.

"We condemn the inefficiency of the adminstration at Washington, its inadequate tariff law, and its war tax in times of peace, which have resulted in the closing of factories, the stagnation of business, and the enforced idleness of millions of workmen.—The American Economist.

Judge John Purifoy is charged with paying J. H. Nunelee a thousand dollars to quit the race for Secretary of State in the last primary. W. P. Fonville, clerk in the office of the Secretary of State, and John Chapman, clerk in the Auditor's office, swore before the legislative investigating committee that they were present when the sum in currency was delivered to Nunelee.

Judge Purifoy was summoned before the commiettee, but claimed his constitutional rights and declined to answer the questions put to him by the investigators.

It's a long, long time until the next democratic convention. Senator Kern says Wilson will have no stronger advocate in that convention than Bryan. It's a long time for the breach to widen. We'll bet dollars to doughnuts Wilson wouldn't risk his nomination on the prospects of Bryan's support.

Can Everybody be Producers?

In most cases the high cost of living means that some people spend more than they make, consume more than they produce. The man who produces is not complaining. Be a producer and let the other man do the grumbling.—Oneonta Southern Democrat.

The above may sound all right to a fellow up a tree, but it doesn't strike us with much force. In the first place everybody can't be producers. The natural order of things suggests that some must be consumers. It is true some people spend more than they make, regardless of any and everything. But let those who will save, buy at a reasonable price.

The democratic party promised a reduction in prices, but like the fellow's bird, prices have soared higher and higher, and wages have gone lower and lower, until the wage earners are almost lost in the game.

There is something dead up the branch somewhere, and it is not because everybody are not producers. If everybody were producers, who would do the buying?

Such explanations as the Democrat is handing us does not fill the empty dinner pail, nor give the poor laborer out of work a job.

The proposition in a nutshell is this: Put all the manufacturing concerns to work, restore confidence, reduce the high cost of living, and give the laboring classes something to do, and then grumbling will be curtailed.

Faked the Country.

The Democratic platform of 1912, upon which Mr. Wilson was elected, declared that "the high Republican tariff raises the cost of the necessaries of life," bnt does not "protect" wages. Then it continues: "The high cost of living is a serious problem In every American home. The republican party in its platform, attempts to escape from responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff. We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff law . . . and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessaries of life are materially reduced."

Import duties were reduced in October, 1913, but there has been no substantial relief. The cost of living has increased. Wages are lower in thousands of cases. There is and has been more unemployment than at any time, save possibly a brief period after the panic of 1907, since the days of the last democratic administration and democratic tariff bill. The democratic party in short, faked the country in 1912, and is faking the country to-day.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Elimination of Business.

Many people overlook the indirect effect of industrial depression upon every line of business. Just now, for instance, attention has been directed to the fact that although this country has received enormous orders for shoes for the warring nations of Europe, yet the shoe industry is experiencing exceptionally dull times. The reason is not difficult to find. A pair of shoes may easily be made to wear a double length of time. The man who in good times, would discard a shabby pair of shoes, and buy a new pair, will, in hard times have a small patch put on the uppers, and a new half sole nailed on, and then wear the repaired shoes until he gets thoroughly ashamed of them. Children whose parents would encourage them to wear shoes in good times, will encourage them to go barefoot when money is scarce. All this makes dull times for the dealer in shoes, who, by making his clothes wear twice as long, cuts down the trade of the clothing merchant. The clothing merchant makes up his loss by letting his house go another year without painting, and the painter and paint dealer must economize in some other respect. It is a simple process of elimination of business, but it could not be understood by the tariff tinkers who started all the trouble in 1913 by enacting a law which invited the cheap labor of Europe to come in and take the trade that belonged by right to the workmen of the United States.—Louisiana (Mo.) News.

THE GOSPEL ON WHEELS

Baptist Missionary in China Does Effective Work on Bicycle. Facts that Count.

Just before Rev. T. O. Hearn, a Baptist missionary in China, returned from his furlough last year he visited the church and school at Newton, Ala., where friends presented him with the money to purchase a bicycle to be used in his work. He says:

"I remember with so much pleasure my visit to Newton. Surely it was the crowning experience in all my work while at home—a mountain peak. I shall never forget the forty-two hands that went up that night, and the way the good spirit of our God definitely led and abundantly blessed each, and then the love and interest that was manifested in presenting me with the "gospel wheel." I have already used it a good deal and am well pleased with it. It is light running and strong. I can use it to great advantage many times running out to different churches and out-stations in our mission field and save much time and expense.

"Brother Dawes and I have just returned from a six days' trip on a part of our field. We organized one church, visited and had services at other churches and out-stations, preached at market towns and smaller villages, scattered tracts, sold gospels and I greatly enjoyed it. Had a cordial reception and treated well everywhere.

(Two young preachers of Kiangsi. Mr. Chen (reading) is over the church in Ienshen. Mr. Liu (the other) is over the church in Iangtsuen, a very idolatrous place.

"I preached fifteen times and visited and examined five of our seven village scholars. We have a boarding school here in the city, and have in it forty-five fine looking boys and young men.

"I am more and more impressed with the greatness of this field—rich in opportunities, great in possibilities. This is the largest county in Shantung province and has something over a million people and we two missionary families with only a little band of native workers, are the dependence to give the Bread of Life. So there is much to encourage but many difficulties in starting a work in a new field."

Americans in Japan.

The Japan Christian university committee, which met for a week's session the middle of May, counted, among its Methodist representatives Bishop Harris, of Korea, Bishop Lewis of China, and Dr. John F. Goucher, chairman of the Edinburgh committee on education. These were guests of honor at a dinner given by Methodist missionary, Arthur D. Berry, of the Aoyama (Tokyo) Methodist college. Other notable guests were Dr. and Mrs. Nitobe and Dr. Shosuke Sato, of the Imperial university, Sapporo.

Facts That Count.

At every breath we draw four souls perish never having heard of Christ.

In South America there is only one ordained missionary for 200,000 people; in China, one for every 400,000.

The northernmost mission station of the world is the Presbyterfan mission at Point Barrow, Alaska, a village that for ten months of the year is ice-locked.

During the church year ending with April the debt of the Foreign Missions committee of the Northern Presbyterian church was reduced from $292,150 to $84,000.

Florence Nightingale's Statue.

"The Lady With the Lamp," statue of Florence Nightingale, has been unveiled without ceremonial, in Waterloo place, London. The statue stands high on a red and gray granite pedestal, and makes a notable and an appropriate addition to Waterloo place. By its side, fully harmonizing with it in general outline, is that of Sidney Herbert. The effective background for both is the Crimean memorial. The sculptor portrayed his subject in a sympathetic pose, standing in the voluminous skirt of the early Victorian period, with the lamp borne in the right hand. This statue of "The Lady With the Lamp" is the first public statue of a woman in London other than those of royal ladies.

Of Prehistoric Age.

Two petrified skeletons—one of a man of giant stature and one other of a woman, much smaller—were found in a cavern blasted out of solid blue rock in a Hulton (Pa.) hillside by quarrymen. Geologists who have examined the skeletons say they evidently belong to a pre historic age.

Wonderful Blood Remedy That Works in the Tissues

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced, by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright, and energetic but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 201 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. They maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores.

PEOPLE TAKING TO WALKING

Most Healthful Form of Exercise Has Become a Popular Fad Among All Classes

Walking has taken a hold on popular fancy as a sport, pastime, recreation and form of exercise. Walking has been urged upon the people by men and women interested in public health, by physical culture enthusiasts, by nature students and by the press. Every person converted to walking has become a missionary, and unusually with all the spirit of a convert. The walking habit, which is being contracted by an increasing number of persons yearly, is a relatively new habit.

In those days usually referred to glowingly and somewhat indefinitely as the "good old times," walking was not practiced as a pleasure, but only as a necessity, and as a necessity it was avoided wherever possible. The average person did not move around much unless with the aid of a horse or a horse and trap. There was not much going to and fro on foot. Walking was apt to be considered as a sign of poverty or as evidence of dementia. On the other side of this question it may be said that in the olden time more men got their exercise in the open by their daily work than now.

Cities were small, and men were generally not called on to walk long distances. The cab or the omnibus came into operation on the city thoroughfare, then the horse car, the cable and the electric car. Now the automobile is here. The ratio of indoor to outdoor workers increased and the means and opportunities for moving from place to place without much physical exertion multiplied.

TEETH AND THE DIGESTION

Importance of Proper Mastication of Food Is Seldom Given Proper Consideration.

From the time food enters the mouth and is masticated until its waste has left the body the function of digestion goes forward through its various stages.

Mastication, accomplished in the mouth, is no doubt the most important stage of this function.

Defective teeth are a threat to health by reason of impairment of mastication, and consequently of digestion.

While the vigorous stomach may attack particles of food of considerable size and resistance, the process of digestion is naturally slowed up in proportion to the magnitude and firmness of the unground particles.

In addition to this, the admixture of healthy saliva to the food during the process of mastication is of no little consequence, especially in the digestion of starch.

Thus defective teeth not only injure by reason of imperfect mastication, but likewise by reason of a failure to properly incorporate the saliva with the finely divided particles of the food while it is still in the mouth.

It's an old saying, but a wise one, that "people dig their graves with their teeth." Take care of your teeth and save your health and lengthen your life.

Deep Snow in Scotland.

Snow fell last winter to a depth of over three feet in the upland districts of Athol and Strathtay, and on several sheep-grazing holdings it was impossible to gather the sheep herds. In one case a shepherd's dog successfully located a sheep which got enveloped in a large wreath. The dog scraped away the snow, disclosing the presence of the sheep, which was none the worse for its confinement. For some time hand feeding of hill herds and high-lying grazing stocks had to be resorted to. While hay is fairly plentiful this season the stock of roots available is somewhat small.

Birds, Cats and Dogs in War.

Bird and animal lovers have made an investigation of the effect upon both domestic and wild creatures of gunfire, especially heavy cannonading, says the Cologne correspondent of the Associated Press. They find that for two and sometimes three days the birds are terribly excited and fly back and forth in bewilderment, and that cats and dogs hide in the darkest places they can find. At the end of that time, however, their excitement subsides and they become absolutely impervious to the noise.

WHEN TY GETS JEALOUS HE SETS THE WORLD ON FIRE

It seems that the best way in which to get Ty Cobb to show super-human skill is to tell him that somebody is better at one or another department of the game than is Tyrus.

A couple of years ago when Josephus Jackson began clubbing 'em out for a mark around 400 someone said to Ty,

"Jackson's going to beat you out on batting this year. He's hitting .415 now."

"That so? .415, eh? That is quite a healthy average," answered Ty. "But Jackson wont beat me out. If he bats .500, I'll bat above that mark."

Jackson finished the season with .408—and Ty finished with .420.

"That fellow Mai-el of the Yanks, is the greatest baserunner in the American league:" Ty was told during the spring.

"Maisel is fast but he is not the fastest," answered Ty. "I'll try to demonstrate for you during the 1915 season."

And Tyrus Cobb certainly is demonstrating. He has stolen 51 bases already. If he maintains that average until the end of the season he will have stolen about 108 bases, which would burst all modern records.

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equaled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

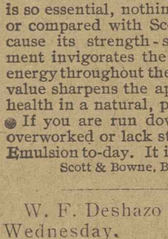
Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store,



and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, restful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief.

Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted healthful influence imparted to the coming baby.

One very important thing to remember about "Mother's Friend," it can not exercise any other influence than to simply lubricate the parts, make them more firm to naturally withstand the constantly increasing pressure. And as the muscles continue to expand, the nerves become accustomed to this new condition and adjust themselves without undue pain. "Mother's Friend" is entirely free of any drug influence whatsoever and may be used freely at all times.

Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Then write Bradfield Regulator Co., 704 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers.

"Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it. And you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

HOW LONG

do you want to live?

Disregard the laws of health and die early, or keep in touch with the druggist and live to a ripe old age.

A few pennies occasionally does it --keeps your system purified and in good working order.

Ask the Druggist--he knows.

TO THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

With the summer approaching there will be many things you will need for wear and also for the house and the table.

Your husband is the maker, but it is for you to be the saver. He does the accumulating, but the thrifty housewife is just as important in her line of work. If she is careful of her household expenditures the bank account is constantly being increased and the day of eventual affluence is nearer at hand. The thrifty housewife makes the home.

But how are you to practice economy without denying yourself or your household of those things that are necessary to a comfortable existence in life.

It is a very simple and easy matter.

Avoid waste and buy economically. In other words, buy goods of quality, but buy them where you get what you want at a price below the other fellow.

It is useless for us to tell you we have the goods, for you know that. It is equally useless for us to tell you that we make the price, because everybody knows that, too.

Your best method of practicing economy, then, is to trade with us, for this is essentially a store of quality and economy. For the best evidence of the truthfulness of this statement try it yourself, or just take an hour or so and size up the people who pass in and out of our doors. They are thrifty people, and have learned from experience where it is best to trade.

To Manufacturers:

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company is anxious to have progressive manufacturers locate along its lines. As an inducement it offers to co-operate in securing desirable factory sites, at reasonable prices, and agrees to supply unexcelled railroad facilities in both its freight and passenger departments.

The L. & N. is willing to co-operate in this work in the knowledge that a successful manufacturing enterprise is a valuable asset to the territory in which it is located. It supplies employment to the people of the section, turns raw material into a finished product, brings more money to the territory, creates taxable values, home owners, and freight and passenger traffic.

There is no territory in America better adapted to general manufacturing enterprises than is the territory served by the lines of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. The section is possessed of vast natural resources, the full value of which cannot be estimated. The L. & N. hopes to see these resources developed, and the section made prosperous. To this end we supply the people the best possible freight and passenger service, and solicit business with the distinct understanding that the service rendered cannot be excelled.

Those interested in securing factory sites will receive prompt service and cordial co-operation if they will communicate with the Industrial Department at Louisville, Ky.

In the group were 7 children and 16 grand children, who mingled together on the 4th until a late hour in the evening. Water melons and ice cream were plentiful and were indulged in freely which added much to the occasion. Uncle Jessie Jones and his family and Uncle John Dennis and his family were recipients of the hospitalities of this home on the occasion.

AMERICANIZATION DAY

Americanization Dav was observed by the Clanton Civic Improvement Club. The ladies Suffrage and Civic clubs held their meetings at the court house at 4 and 5 p.m. Tuesday. After dispatching the regular business, the civic club carried out quite an original program emphasizing Americanization Day. Mrs. E. M. Pinckard, the president, delivered a most impressive and appropriative talk on American Independence and opportunities. Mesdames Chandler, Jones and Johnson rendered appropriate music for the occasion accompanied by Miss Emmett Matthews as violinist.

Judge Deason read the Oath of Allegiance in a very Judicial manner. Mrs. Callen read a paper on A Genoaise vision A.D. 1455, portraying in her own peculiar style Columbus's dream of a new nation dwelling in prosperity and contentment, far removed from European Autocratic tyrany. Prof. A. Rogers delivered a very instructive address, pointing out opportunities to us in the line of art and literature unheeded in the past. The last feature of the program was the little tots tableau of American Independence presided over by a Peace Mother, represented by Mrs. A. Johnson, who indeed looked a royal queen.

Mr. J. S. Moran was present and talked so forcibly on community organization that the club announced that Labor Day would be observed September 6. Every Fraternal Order in Clanton will be expected to take part in that occasion.

Delicious iced punch added to the social feature.

Womens' Missionary Society

The Women's Missionary Socity of the Methodist church entertained, and celebrated the glorious Fourth with a Silver Tea at the residence of Mrs. B. M. Roberts, which was prettily decorated in the national colors.

Invitatians in the shape of fire crackers were sent out, and a literary and musical program carrying out the patriotic idea was rendered. After the program a social hour was enjoyed in a red, white and blue guessing contest, the ladies showing themselves mentally very alert, since there were few incorrect answers.

As the ladies arrived they were served with refreshing fruit punch, and at the close with an ice curse in red, white and blue. The ladies all voted this the most interesting and successful meeting through the year though the steady down pour of rain upset the plans somewhat. It was imporrible to deliver more than half the invitations thus preventing the attendance of many who would have come.

Especial thanks are due Misses Emmett Matthews, Willie Reynolds, Jewel Leonard, Warrene Spigener, and Mrs. Marion Wimberly, who so kindly used their talents for the entertainment of the guests.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER.

Crashes Into Sour Bile Making You Sick, and You Lose a Day's Work.

Calomel salivates! Its mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes in contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel billious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and sraighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you will be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It is harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Yaung man, remember that when you get married, J. M. Dunn has the furniture you need and the price is right.

PROVIDENCE

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your paper to tell your readers what a grand time we had at Providence the 4th of July. The children's day was a perfect success. I have been to a good many children's days, but I can't say I ever saw anything that would come up with this one. The children did so well and the singing was so good, it seemed to touch every heart that was there.

Why I believe this childrdn's day was such a asuccess was because the spirit of God was with us. Mr. Fred Lowery is to be credited for training the children for this exercise.

I want to compliment Prof. C. N. Oden for the singing and the grand talk he gave us. And the most of all the visitors are thanked for their good behaviour, and bounty of dinner.

CLANTON GROWING.

The people of the State perhaps will be surprised to know that Clanton in the last two years has added to its town assessment sheets something near 145 or 150 thousand dollars worth of property. The many substantial improvements stand stalwart on our streets to testify for themselves. The business section has added several big business houses, besides the new County High School building and new hotel. These brick buildings are a credit to any town. The Gowan addition has many beautiful new homes. Many buildings are now in progress of erection, and Clanton has nothing slow about her. The merchants and business men are wide awake, and already Clanton ranks with the best towns of the state.

NEW SALEM LOCALS

Health of this community is not very good at present, but we hope everybody will soon be up again enjoying good health. Our Sunday school is still doing nicely. We are awfully sorry to see our singing on the drag now. Let's all come together and see if we can't organize a singing society at this place twice a month. I don't think there is anything nicer than good singing.

Mr. Mack Pierce and wife visited the latters parents near Mulberry Saturday night and Sunday.

Prof. C. N. Oden returned home Saturday evening to be at the bed-side of his sister, who has been sick with appendicitis for the past week; but she is reported as being little better now.

Some of our boys went to an ice cream supper near Mt. Pleasant Saturday night.

The singing at Jim Cateans Saturday night was largely attended.

DRY VALLEY LOCALS,

Health of this community is good.

Crops in this section are good; some talk of the boll weevil.

J. P. Dykes attended church at Bethel below Clanton Sunday.

Prof. Herbert of Thorsby will make an educational address at Concord on Friday night before the Fourth Sanday.

The ice cream supper at Theo Lucas last Thursday night was enjoyable.

Mrs. J. W. Dykes of Montevallo is visiting relatives and friends here.

MOUNTAIN CREEK RED MEN INSTALL OFFICERS

The installation of officers of Omersee Tribe, Imp'd. O. R. M., which took place at the Soldiers Home last Saturday, was a gala occasion for the "Indians" of the local hunting grounds, and indeed for "followers of the trail" from all over Chilton and Autauga counties, and for a large number of palefaces as well.

The iastallation took place in the large hall of the auditorium building at the home, and was impressively done by Rev. W. J. Armstrong, Great Junior Sagamore of the Great Council of Alabama. The following officers of the Tribe were invested with their respective ranks: R. C. Hudson, Sachem; Ed Powell, S. S.; G. C. Kicker, J. S.; I. J. Henderson Prophet.

Rev. R. H. Long delivered the address of welcome, and Rev. J. A, Cannon invoked the divine blessing, after which there was a singing and dinner on the ground.

Of the "braves," and "squaws," and "papooses" and "palefaces" in attendance, there were a total number hf about 500.

CORINTH

The singers of this and other communities met here on July 11 to sing and the result was as good music as the writer has ever heard. Everyone seemed to have one cammon desire, and that was to serve God with song. There was a large crowd in attendance, yet order prevailed to almost a degree of perfection, which we most heartily appreciate. We wish to thank the singers of other communities of the county for their aid in every way, both in singing and other helps they rendered us.

CLANTON VS. THORSBY

The Clanton baseball team come up to Thorsby Saturday loaded to the teeth, and Thorsby engaged them in one of the best ball games of the season. Mims and Collins doing mound duty for Thorsby while Pyron and Palmer did same for Clanton. The game was a seven inning affair which wound up in favor of Thorsby by the tune of 3 to 2.

Old Volley Mims, the veteran pitcher and farmer put those balls across the plate so fast that really some of the Clanton boys inquired if the Germans did not have a krupp gun on the field shooting base balls across the plate, and of course they failed to hit them; hence the result 3 to favor or Thorsby. Some of the boys on both teams did some fine work and we must admit that it was a pretty game and the best team won. But, Oh! how those Clanton boys hate to lose a ball game.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

There is talk of another recess in the legislature.

The adjourned session of the Legislature convened in Montgomery Tuesday.

The report of the Merritt investigating committee promises to be some spicy reading.

It is said that the German reply to the United States does not come up to the wishes of the Washington officials.

The Democratic party of the State has a bad record to be bared. The Meritt investigating committee says many of the officials have acted ugly.

The State of Alabama has been under Democratic control for years and years. The present condition of things indicates that a change would be good.

Graft! Graft! Graft! It seems that graft oozes from every key hole in the capital. No wonder the state is in debt and we have the worst schools in the United States!—Collinsville Courier.

It is said that Governor Henderson will recommend a state bond issue of about one and a half or two million dollars. The executive must feel that he needs help to get Alabama out of the hole.

The Rockford Chronicle suspended publication with its last issue, Bro. Bentley says he has borne the expenses of the paper with money from other sources, till the supply is about exhausted. He appeals to the citizens to come to the support of their county paper.

TO MERCHANTS:

The success of any business enterprise depends, to a great extent, on the transportation facilities afforded the territory in which the business is located. This is particularly true of merchandising. Bearing this in mind the Louisville & Nashville Railroad offers to merchants located in its territory the best possible freight and passenger facilities. The schedules are fast and frequent, the charges for service as reasonable as permitted by law, and the cordial co-operation to facilitate rapid transportation unexcelled.

Any one engaged in merchandising will do well to locate along the lines of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. The products of both foreign and domestic factories are delivered promptly and in good condition. Shipments made out of the territory are delivered in the same manner.

The heavy rails, low grades and straight tracks of the L. & N., in connection with its full equipment of rolling stock, make this service possible.

Any agent or employe of the L. & N. will cheerfully co-operate with any merchant, at any time, on any subject connected with either freight or passenger transportation. On this basis the Louisville & Nashville solicits patronage of the merchants located in its territory.

REPORT OF THE CO. HEALTH OFFICER

To the Honorable Probate Judge and Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama.

Gentlemen:—

I beg to aubmit my report for the month of June. As required by law, I inspected the county jail and poor house, and found both to be in good condition, with the exception of one leaky roof at the poor house.

MURDERER BETRAYED BY TALKING IN HIS SLEEP.

Slayer of Earnest Cobb Captured by an Extraordinary Circumstance.

Tuscaloosa, July 14,—As a result of a conversation carried on in his sleep, Bon Morris, alias "Bonnie" Morris, wanted for the murder of Earnest Coob, at Jemison, on Friday June 11, has been arrested and returned to the Sheriff of Chilton county. While working on the Warrior River near Lock 13, Morris slept in the room with a man named Wooly, who came in one night to find Morris talking in his sleep. He was evidently addressing his wife, repeating over and over, "Yes, I killed him."

A few days later Wooley is said to have asked Morris in a casual manner what he was wanted for. Morris, it is alleged, became angry, and asked, "What in the hell do you know about it?" Believing that Wooly knew all the facts, and unable to stand the strain, Morris a few days later broke down and made a full confession. Wooly then notified the Sheriff of Tuscaloosa county who got into communication with Sheriff Harris of Chilton county, who sent a description of the alleged murderer and ordered his arrest.

The killing with which Morris is charged is said to have grown out of a dispute over a chicken.

Feeling is said to be high in Jemison and the vicinity of the scene of the murder. Realizing this, Morris begged that in taking him to Clanton, he be carried by Montgomery, instead of going by way of Jemison, for as he stated, he feared that if the people of that place learned of his presence on the train he would be lynched.

CHICKEN SUPPER.

TRAVELING EXPENSES OF THE STATE OFFICIALS

A Few Revelations of the Legislative Ppobe Committee.

The probe committee of the legislature, in its efforts to clear up certain details of the government expenses of Alabama, hit upon the subject of traveling expenses for state officials, and in its report to the legislative body sets out the following as a result of the findings, and the expense trips, etc:

The expense trips made by Homer Billingsley, J. H. Wallace, Cyrus B. Brown, Lorrie Rice, Governor O'Neal and Louis B. Farley are criticised. Vouchers filed in the auditor's office of several trips made by Governor O'Neal are set out in full. On May 5, 1913 Governor O'Neal drew $200 for traveling expenses. February 17, 1912, an itemized bill shows that he drew $174.10 for a trip to mints and pronounced them correct, it is suggested that three reputable public accountants be appointed to examine applicants for these positions and that no man shall be appointed who has not stood the test before this board.

Recommends that the board of compromise be abolished.

Recommends the repeal of the law giving the governor the right to approve requisitions for temporary clerks. Recommendations were also made in reference to the short time of convicts who had earned what is known as short time by good conduct.

Recommends the repeal of the present text-book commission and a more effective law be substituted.

Itemized statements of the accounts of Louis B. Farley's two trips to New York are set out in full. One trip to New York for the purpose of making financial arrrngements for the state cost $208.65. Eight days at the Waldorf-Astoria cost $40, meals and tips, $40.75; laundry and taylor service, $7.05; telegrams on state business, $30.95; cab and car fare, $1.85; railroad and pullman tickets, $40.35; pullman compartment $18.50; messenger to make reservation 50 cents; telegrams $3.47; telegrams paid by Farley bank $19.64, making a total expense on this trip of $208.85. Mr. Farley made another trip to New York which cost the state $217.42 meals and tips on this trip cost $60.25 and tips alone, $10.25. Cincinnati, Baltimore, the former for the purpose of attending the Metal Trades association and the latter place to attend the governors conference, itemized statement to be filed later. On page 62 is an undated order on the treasury for $200 on a trip to the governors' conference at Madison and the Irvin Pope case. There are a number of these expense accounts and the amount drawn set out in full, one for $286.22, trip to Washington $89.53.

Lorrie Rice, deputy insurance commissioner, drew $138. 90 for a trip to New York to attend a meeting of insurance commissioners.

The report goes on to say that Governor O'Neal spent on these trips $2,315.28, in addition to $400 subscribed and paid as Alabamas part of the expenses of the governors coeference. Governor O'Neal is criticised for "indiscriminate trips to various cities and conferences for the purpose of delivering addresses, not legitimate charges against the state."

BON MORRIS IS CARRIED TO MONTGOMERY JAIL

Sheriff Harris transferred Bon Morris, who was placed in jail here for the murder of Ernest Cobb, to the Montgomery jail last Friday. It is said the feeling in the community where the atrocious murder was committed was very high against the prisoner, and this news reaching Sheriff Harris' ears, he quietly slped the prisoner off to the Montgomery jail. There has been no demonstratien of misconduct on the part of any citizen so far as is known, and at the time of the writng things are quiet. The preliminary trial of Morris which was to be held before Justice W. H. Killingsworth last Tuesday, has been postponed to July 31st.

The indications are that the legislature will again recess.

They say W. J. Bryan is getting pay for his peace lectures. Perhaps that's why he loves peace so well.

The crops of Chilton county have never been better. Corn, peas and potatoes will be in abundance next fall.

The report of the investigating committee is interesting reading. It is democratic.

Harry Thaw has at last come clear, and is again a free man. If he had been a poor man he would be wearing the stripes.

The libel case against the editor of the Mobile Tribune ended in a mistrial. The jury stood 9 to 3 for acquittal, but failing to agree, a mistrial was entered.

The office of State Game and Fish Commissioner has been abolished by the present legislature. This takes a considerably fat title from the Honorable John H. Wallace.

The Merritt investigating committee says one man on a trip to New York for the State spent, among other useless ways, $10.25 for tips. Do you suppose this party would have spent that much for tips if he had been on the trip for his own interest and business?

The State of Alabama, so the Governor says, will be three million dollars in debt by October 1st. In the report of the investigating committee it alleges that one representing the state paid $10.25 out for tips on a trip to New York. How does this set with the tax payers of the state?

The lawyers in the Thaw case for nine years have been having a good time. This does not apply to one side of the case, as the state's attorneys were most always assisted by hired help. Money has caused Thaw a lot of worry, and perhaps also has been the means of causing his release.

When the officials of any state get so corrupt that they have to be called down and prosecuted in their own party, it is getting time to call a halt and have a change. What we need is two parties in every county in the State, and then the people would get justice and there would not be so many defaulters.

No general prosperity will come until after the restoring of the Protection policy by the Republican party. The Underwood-Wilson Tariff revenue free trade scheme has ditched business, with no hope of recovery as long as the Democrats are in power, and because of the failure of that party to make good are the reasons why the Republicans will be victors in 1916.—Cedar Rapids, (Ia.) Leader.

Our Failing Meat Supply.

A campaign of education for increasing the meat supply of the country has been decided upon by the American Feed Manufacturers' Association. The seriousness of the situation was well indicated by G. A. Chapman, president of the Association, in saying that, within the past fifteen years, the number of beeves raised for market has declined about 50 per cent. The figures, as he cited them, show that in 1900, 66 beeves were raised and sold for each 100 population, and in 1914 the number was but 36 to each 100. It was his opinion that unless the farmers can be brought to raising more cattle for the table the United States will be forced to depend upon foreign countries for its supplies of beef within 25 years.

The danger is not a new one. It has menaced the country for some years, and the rise in meat prices has often and correctly been attributed to it. The settlers who displaced the ranchmen in the west, southwest and northwest, have used the lands for raising crops and not live stock, and they have, as a rule, raised crops to be sold outright and not for feeding purposes. Some years ago there began an educational campaign toward showing the greater profits in stock raising, and there are of late, some evidences of its effectiveness, although Mr. Chapman's figures show that the process of education has been a slow one. Southern planters are now said to be turning their attention more to the raising of stock than heretofore, and in the west the growing popularity of alfalfa may soon lead to more cattle and lower prices. If not the beef trust will have to continue standing as the object of the ultimate beef consumer's wrath.—The St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Letters to The Editor.

Childrens' Home Society.

Montgomery, Ala., July 17, 1915.

Editor The Union-Banner:—When the Alabama Childrens Home Society was organized and its articles of incorporation filed with the Probate Judge of Montgomery county a week or two ago, a new philanthropic movement was made in the state, which promises a vast and beneficent achievement.

The membership of the society is obtained by an annual contribution of $5.00, which entitles the donor to a vote at all regular and special meetings for a period of one year; by a promised contribution of $2.50 or over for a term of years, which entitles the contributor to a vote each year his contribution is paid up; or by cash contribution of $50, which entitles the contributor to a life membership in the organization, with full privileges to participate in the transactions of the body.

The active control of the society is vested in an executive committee of five members, elected by a board of 40 directors. The directors, however have supervision over the executive committee and may order that body to carry out any plans the directors may adopt. Working under the executive committee is the superintendent, or field executive of the society, on whose shoulders, of course, rests the principle burden of the work. The superintendent of the society is Capt. L. A. Odum, who was selected solely on account of his eminent fitness for the place, he having had several years experience in a similar work before entering this state-wide campaign to help neglected children.

The principle object of the society is to find "The childless home for the homeless child." It is a work that has been successfully carried on by almost every state in the union, the south not excepted. It will, no doubt, surprise many of the readers of The Union-Banner to learn that in our sister state of Florida the income of a similar organization last year was over $33,000, and that nearly one thousand children were received and cared for.

It is especially desired that all those who wish to adopt a child will communicate with the society, stating the age and sex preferred; in order thas a record may be kept and, in each case, the special want supplied. All communications should be addressed to the Alabama Children's Home Society, Room 82, Vandiver Bldg., Montgomery, Alabama.

Very respectfully,
HERBERT COLEMAN,
Secretary.

A Friendly Criticism

Editor Union-Banner:—Will you be so very kind as to allow me to say a few words through your paper? This is my first attempt at writing for the paper; and, while I enjoy the letters written by other people, I was somewhat shocked at a statement appearing in last week's issue.

I trust that I will not say anything out of place or that will wound the feeling of anyone. But as religious matters are concerned we have two classes of people—Christians and sinners. By Christians I mean those who are trying as nearly as possible to follow in the footsteps of Christ. By sinners I mean those who have not allied themselves with any church and have not accepted Christ as their savior and leader.

Now, it is to this first class I wish to direct the following remarks; and they may call me old foggy crack-brain or anything they please, but I don't care for it is nothing but a sense of Christian duty which prompts my statement. The words to which I have reference are these: "The ice cream supper and dance given in the interest of the church was a decided success," at a certain place. Some things belong to Christianity and some things to the world and no one can be on the fence. It is simply a matter of separating the sheep from the goats, or in other words it is either serving God or that old serpent called the devil; and this latter is the same creature that deceived Eve in the beautiful garden of Eden and is deceiving the people of today. I take the position that anyone who subscribes to the opinion that dancing, play-parties, baseball, pool, billiards, etc., belong to Christianity is deceived. This deception has gone so far that some of the so called "churches" have gone so far as to try to attach them to Christianity. Just to think of dancing being brought into the church circle! It is the thing which has sent more young girls down to reck, ruin and woe than any other one thing known to man. It is a faet that 90 per cent of the fallen girls of our country took their first downward step in the dance performance. It need not be a public dance hall, but is as seductive in its evil efforts in the parlor as elsewhere. In the language of Billy Sunday: "The people who will not dance in the public hall, but go to the private homes, have got them beat a mile."

Doncing is a thing that belongs altogether to the world; and Christ said that we cannot serve two matters. If we attempt to serve the world and Christ we are trying to serve twe masters. Shame on the church members of today because there is only one way of telling whether a large per cent of them belong to the church or not and that is by going to the church book. Those who of themselves are living right seem to have turned a deaf ear to the things being carried on around them. It is time we were waking up to our duty and cry aloud against such things, in order that we might show to the world on which side of the fence we are. Too many of us are afraid that the world will point the finger of scorn at us, and again we are afraid of our past record. Christ said: "He that is ashamed of me, him will I also be ashamed of before my Father." When you accepted Christ, you showed to the world that you were dead to sin. You turned your back to the world and took up your cross to follow the Nazerene. If you love the world better than Christ you are not of him. If you profess to be a Christion and continue to dance and indulge in other kindred pleasures you will be a stumbling block to others. The New Testament says woe unto him by whom the offense cometh. By this you see that you are only heaping woes upon yourself when you cause some one else to stumble. I have nothing against a nice ice cream supper provided it is carried on right; but let us not mix up dancing with it. A church that does this does not deserve the name of church.

Yours truly,
Buford Lawrence.

MULTITUDES ARE TURNING TO CHRIST

Remarkable Progress of Christianity in Korea—Conversions Reported at 3,000 a Week

It is stated that Korea's multitudes are turning to Christianity at the rate of 3,000 a week. There has been an average of one convert an hour since the missionaries first went to Korea over twenty-five years ago. The average, however, in these times, according to the World Outlook, has amounted to eighteen converts an hour.

In Urganda, which now has 1,200 churches where twenty-five years ago there was but one—the coronation of the new king, Dauda Chiva, was held with Christian ceremonies and under Christian auspices.

Progress in the Kongo.

Twenty-two years ago there was not a man in all the Luebo country, (Belgian Congo) who had heard the name of Jesus Christ. Now there are 10,360 believers and 67,500 adherents. Twenty-two years ago there was not a man there who knew a letter in any alphabet. Today there are 7,000 pupils in the various schools. Twenty-two years ago there was not a man, woman or child in all the vast region who could utter a syllable of intelligent prayer. Now at six o'clock every morning 20,000 people gather for morning worship in various villages. This mission is in charge of the Southern Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Ozaki, a devout Japanese Christian, and her fatherless child.

Gains in China.

Morrison baptized his first convert in China in 1814. In 1842 there were six believers in all China. In 1900 there were 113,000 and of these 13,000 perished in the Boxer uprising. At the present time there are half a million Protestant Christians in China, and there are numerous indications of the rapid spread of Christianity over all parts of that vast republic. The church has in China the greatest opportunity she has had since Penticost, and the greatest opportunity she ever can have in all her history.

Significant Fact.

The most significant fact in the world today is the breaking down of the non-Christian faiths. In Japan the issue is no longer between Christianity and Buddhism, but between Christianity and Agnosticism and Atheism. Buddhism no longer holds the leading Japanese minds, and the common people are influenced by it less and less continually. China is pushing aside the idols that have been reverenced for millenniums and is using the temples for school purposes. In India there are great mass movements toward Christianity. In some sections the increase in church membership is as much as four hundred per cent in one year. The words of India's own prophet are coming true, "None but Jesus, none but Jesus, deserves India, and he alone shall have it."

There are today in China over 500 medical missionaries, almost all British and American, united into an association, which meets tri-annually, publishes a bi-monthly journal and has a committee in charge of the translating of books and the making of a Chinese medical nomenclature. There are about 230 hospitals owned by the various missions.

(Dr. Wang, a well known medical missionary in China.)

Wonderful Blood Remedy That Works in the Tissues

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that worriness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced, by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel better, and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 201 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. We maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores.

Beware of all attempts to sell you something "Just as good." Insist upon S. S. S.

Next year the democrats will have the duty of nominating a ticket at the national convention but that will not even be interesting, for it will be a formal renomination. PEOPLE TAKING TO WALKING

Walking has taken a hold on popular fancy as a sport, pastime, recreation and form of exercise. Walking has been urged upon the people by men and women interested in public health, by physical culture enthusiasts, by nature students and by the press. Every person converted to walking has become a missionary, and unusually with all the spirit of a convert. The walking habit, which is being contracted by an increasing number of persons yearly, is a relatively new habit.

In those days usually referred to glowingly and somewhat indefinitely as the "good old times," walking was not practiced as a pleasure, but only as a necessity, and as a necessity it was avoided wherever possible. The average person did not move around much unless with the aid of a horse or a horse and trap. There was not much going to and fro on foot. Walking was apt to be considered as a sign of poverty or as evidence of dementia. On the other side of this question it may be said that in the olden time more men got their exercise in the open by their daily work than now.

Cities were small, and men were generally not called on to walk long distances. The cab or the omnibus came into operation on the city thoroughfare, then the horse car, the cable and the electric car. Now the automobile is here. The ratio of indoor to outdoor workers increased and the means and opportunities for moving from place to place without much physical exertion multiplied.

TEETH AND THE DIGESTION

Importance of Proper Mastication of Food Is Seldom Given Proper Consideration.

From the time food enters the mouth and is masticated until its waste has left the body the function of digestion goes forward through its various stages.

Mastication, accomplished in the mouth, is no doubt the most important stage of this function.

Defective teeth are a threat to health by reason of impairment of mastication, and consequently of digestion.

While the vigorous stomach may attack particles of food of considerable size and resistance, the process of digestion is naturally slowed up in proportion to the magnitude and firmness of the unground particles.

In addition to this, the admixture of healthy saliva to the food during the process of mastication is of no little consequence, especially in the digestion of starch.

Thus defective teeth not only injure by reason of imperfect mastication, but likewise by reason of a failure to properly incorporate the saliva with the finely divided particles of the food while it is still in the mouth.

It's an old saying, but a wise one, that "people dig their graves with their teeth." Take care of your teeth and save your health and lengthen your life.

Deep Snow in Scotland.

Snow fell last winter to a depth of over three feet in the upland districts of Athol and Strathtay, and on several sheep-grazing holdings it was impossible to gather the sheep herds. In one case a shepherd's dog successfully located a sheep which got enveloped in a large wreath. The dog scraped away the snow, disclosing the presence of the sheep, which was none the worse for its confinement. For some time hand feeding of hill herds and high-lying grazing stocks had to be resorted to. While hay is fairly plentiful this season the stock of roots available is somewhat small.

Birds, Cats and Dogs in War.

Bird and animal lovers have made an investigation of the effect upon both domestic and wild creatures of gunfire, especially heavy cannonading, says the Cologne correspondent of the Associated Press. They find that for two and sometimes three days the birds are terribly excited and fly back and forth in bewilderment, and that cats and dogs hide in the darkest places they can find. At the end of that time, however, their excitement subsides and they become absolutely impervious to the noise.

Wisdom Not a Man's Gift.

I can ennoble a thousand men in a single day; but I am not powerful enough in a thousand years to make a single wise man.—Kaiser Sigismund.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store,

and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, restful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief.

Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted healthful influence imparted to the coming baby.

One very important thing to remember about "Mother's Friend," it can not exercise any other influence than to simply lubricate the parts, make them more firm to naturally withstand the constantly increasing pressure. And as the muscles continue to expand, the nerves become accustomed to this new condition and adjust themselves without undue pain. "Mother's Friend" is entirely free of any drug influence whatsoever and may be used freely at all times.

Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Then write Bradfield Regulator Co., 704 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers.

"Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it. And you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

SOME OTHER MAN'S PARCEL

Commuter Made Profitable Exchange, but Probably Man Who Got the Cat Was Peeved.

A man once lived in Montclair, N. J., whose wife had a pet cat. On a wintry day the cat died. So wintry was the day that the cat could not be buried, for the ground was frozen hard.

To get rid of the body the man determined to bring it with him when he went to New York to business. So he wrapped it up neatly in brown paper, and, on getting into his train, put it gently on the hatrack, with the firm intention of forgetting all about it. When he reached the terminus he walked apidly out of the train, but was barely on the platform when a kindly old gentleman overtook him.

"Your parcel, I think, sir," said he pleasant /, and the man from Montclair thanked him most politely.

All day long the parcel containing the dead cat lay in his office. In the evening he took it home, placing it again in the hatrack and again carefully forgetting it. But again a fellow passenger warned him of his carelessness. Finally he reached home in a not very pleasant frame of mind, and flung the irksome parcel on the kitchen table.

Later on the wife entered the kitchen. The parcel aroused her curiosity, for her husband had said nothing about his failure to bury the cat. She opened it, and discovered three tenderloin steaks!

Solves Secret of Ages.

A New York man advertised the other day for red-haired girls, and a woman writer asked him why he preferred girls with red hair. "Surely they are not prettier," she ventured to remark, "and the ages have not proved them better or brighter. In fact, they are noted for their tempers." "Well, it's this way," explained the employer. "There are so many brunettes and blondes, and when you have a red-haired girl in your office you feel as though you had a girl who is just a little different from the common run. Something exclusive." But are they different?" asked the woman. "No," said the man. "But you always feel they are going to be." So the secret of the ages is solved.

Swatting the Fly in Korea.

The Japanese administration in Korea has been making strenuous endeavors to stamp out the housefly and its attendant ills, according to an official report received here. The American slogan of "Swat the Fly" was not considered sufficiently forcible to stimulate the oriental imagination, so the administration hit upon the idea of buying flies from the populace, using the slogan, "Sell the Fly." The official report, which is headlined "Purchase of Flies from Natives by Government Officials," does not state the price paid, or the result of the cru-

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body.

In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol.

Phosphorus.

The discovery of phosphorus by Brandt in 1668 was first applied commercially as a means of obtaining fire by Godfrey Haulwitz of London, who in 1860, under the direction of Robert Boyle, prepared and sold large quantities. It was used for procuring fire by rubbing small particles between the folds of brown paper, and a sulphur match was ignited from the resulting flame; but as phosphorus was both costly and dangerous this invention was not long employed.

NEW METHODS IN WHALING

Old-Fashioned Harpoon Has Been Discarded for the Most Modern of Deadly Weapons.

In early days the wooden sailing ships engaged in the whaling industry in southern seas pursued only right whales and sperm whales, or cachalots. The so-called "finners," such as the blue whale, the largest animal in the world; the finner whale; the small fish whale; and the humpback, were all too active, and sank too quickly when killed. But their turn has now come, for the modern whale gun is a finely fashioned cannon, the harpoon carries a shell, and the body of the whale is kept afloat by inflating it with air through pipes from the engine room of the whaler. The rendering is now done in a factory on shore, or in a special large vessel moored in the harbor. Besides the whalebone, which no longer pays well or at all, and the oil, which is graded into qualities as it comes from the blubber, the fat of the tongue and kidneys, the flesh and bones and the refuse, there remain the dried flesh and bones, which are now also put to commercial use. The absolutely fresh flesh is used to make whale-meat meal, a nutritious and wholesome foodstuff that is largely fed to cattle From the remaining flesh and about a third of the bones whale guano is made, and from the bones alone bone meal. The largest whaling business in the world is now conducted in the Falkland islands and their dependencies. The season begins in November, and lasts until the end of April, and the average production of oil is nearly half a million barrels; of guano, 8,375 tons. The industry gives employment to about 3,500 men.—Youth's Companion.

FIRST OF LIFE'S LESSONS

Finding and Filling One's Place Perhaps the Most Essential of All That We Learn.

To find our niche and fill it is, perhaps, the most essential of all life's lessons. It sums up in a word not only our duty to ourselves but to others as well and embraces much more than at first glance seems possible. It is a lesson that is assigned to us from the beginning, sometimes long before our immature minds can grasp its full meaning, but it is one that lies ready at hand for our assimilation the moment we show evidence of our ability to take it in. Of course there are many persons who shrink from undertaking life's responsibilities, who defer until the last the acceptance of certain duties which must evidently come to them and who, sometimes, enter upon these duties unprepared for their proper discharge. It is so easy to drift from day to day unhampered by the knowledge that there is work for us to do; so long as we know that there is someone else upon whom we can depend for our well-being, someone who shoulders all necessary responsibilities, someone who indulges our whims and fancies and protects us as far as possible from the necessity of assuming our natural debts, we are well content to let the days pass unmarked by any attempt on our part to discover for ourselves the part we must play in this world.

Famous Bridge Builder.

Gustav Lindenthal, who is building the Hell Gate bridge at New York, the greatest structure of the kind in the world, which will have a length of three and one-half miles, is an Austrian by birth. He received his technical education at Brunn and Vienna, and before coming to this country in 1874 he had had considerable practical experience in railroad building. His first work in the United States was as an assistant engineer on the force constructing the Centennial exhibition buildings. He became a citizen and took up railroad building. Some of the greatest bridges which he has built span the Alleghany and Monongahela rivers, though he has also spanned the Mississippi and other streams. Though famed as a bridge builder he prefers to be known as a man who has had more to do with laying out railroad routes.

How Labor Cost Comes In.

Labor plays a larger part in the conditions faced by the dress goods selling agents than perhaps they are aware. Some years back the mills had no difficulty in selling cotton worsteds in large quantities to the cutters-up. With increasing labor costs, however, the garment manufacturers find that it does not pay them to put what is high-priced workmanship into low-quality goods. The results obtained, no matter how production is speeded up, are not satisfactory. The demand has therefore shifted toward better fabrics that give a larger return in the manufactured state. This goes a long way toward explaining the shifting of values upward and why it is no longer possible to sell the amount of cheap goods that was disposed of in past years with little difficulty.

Queen Wilhemina's Beauty.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is sometimes referred to as the queen with the complexion in Europe, but few people know that she has a special recipe for keeping the skin in perfect condition. Some time ago she adopted the plan from the Dutch Indies of taking lemon baths. Five or six lemons are squeezed into the bath, and various scents then added, including eau de cologne, of which she is said to use a pint a day. The bath is highly invigorating.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Oil Treatment for Stomach Troubles

A simple prescription made up of a combination of pure vegetable oils is producing wonderful results for sufferers from stomach, liver and intestinal troubles. The remedy, which is said to have originated in France, where it has been used for years by the peasantry, was introduced into this country by George H. Mayr, a leading Chicago druggist, who cured himself of severe stomach, liver and intestinal troubles by its use. Those who have used it say the first dose is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable merit, and that within twenty-four hours the sufferer feels like a new person. This medicine, which has become known as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

MAY MEAN END OF ALL WAR

Development of Destructive Airship Sure to Have Powerful Effect on Humanity.

The difficulty of properly arming and protecting aircraft lies in the fact that we cannot yet obtain sufficiently powerful engines — even though, in the course of a few years, the engines have increased in horse power from about fifty to two hundred, says Claude Grahame-White in the Youth's Companion. But when we look ahead, and estimate what may be possible with a power plant, not of hundreds of horse power, but of thousands, then we can imagine a perfected war machine, of the future—a huge armored craft, that carries a crew of hundreds of men, and that is equipped with formidable guns and aerial torpedo and bomb-dropping tubes. Such a vessel will be able to reef its wing surface when traveling at high speed, and will rush through the air as a speed of several hundred miles an hour.

But even against such metal-built monsters of the air, flying at their amazing speeds, man will pit his ingenuity. It is clear that he cannot fight them from the earth; he must fight them high in their own element So in the future, if wars continue, we may have fearful struggles of the air—not small and isolated combats, such as this campaign has shown us, but battles desperately waged, with death and destruction raining from the clouds. There are those, however, who argue that such a form of war, when pushed to its ruthless limit, will prove so ghastly that humanity will revolt, and that the science that revolutionizes war will also end it.

CHANGES WROUGHT BY WAR

"Tommy Atkins" of Today Is a Different Being From His Prototype of a Few Years Ago.

The old pouter-pigeon type of British soldier, with his ramrod deportment and feet at impossible angles, is now as obsolete as his red coat. This change is evident, not only in the training of the new army, but in the royal cadet schools at Sandhurst and Woolwich. Alertness and agility, mental and physical, are now aimed for instead of physical rigidity and mechanical precision as in the old times.

Swedish exercises have taken the place of conventional calisthenics. About the only piece of apparatus left in the Sandhurst gymnasium is the padded horse. Parallel bars, rings, heavy dumb-bells and pulley exercises have been sent away. Now the cadets are taught what is known in their slang as monkey tricks, such as walking on top of high and narrow stone walls and jumping safely to the ground, skipping the rope and playing various kinds of games.

One reason why the pouter chest has gone out of style is its menace to health. An overdeveloped chest is held to be dangerous, as it invites pneumonia and other troubles. Men on the march are allowed to unbutton their coats and make themselves comfortable, but smoking at such times is discouraged by the medical authorities. The deportment of the soldier on parade has also been made normal and natural.

TO MERCHANTS:

The success of any business enterprise depends, to a great extent, on the transportation facilities afforded the territory in which the business is located. This is particularly true of merchandising. Bearing this in mind the Louisville & Nashville Railroad offers to merchants located in its territory the best possible freight and passenger facilities. The schedules are fast and frequent, the charges for service as reasonable as permitted by law, and the cordial co-operation to facilitate rapid transportation unexcelled.

Any one engaged in merchandising will do well to locate along the lines of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. The products of both foreign and domestic factories are delivered promptly and in good condition. Shipments made out of the territory are delivered in the same manner.

The heavy rails, low grades and straight tracks of the L. & N., in connection with its full equipment of rolling stock, make this service possible.

Any agent or employe of the L. & N. will cheerfully co-operate with any merchant, at any time, on any subject connected with either freight or passenger transportation. On this basis the Louisville & Nashville solicits patronage of the merchants located in its territory.

Substitute For Nasty Calomel

Starts Your Liver Without Making You Sick and Cannot Salivate.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason, Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and the people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today, and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

An Extract From Their Recommendations to the Legislative Body.

To the Legislature of Alabama:

Pursuant to a joint resolution heretofore adopted, providing for a committee to inveatigate and report to the Legislature any misuse of public funds, abuse of public property, and other matters set out in said resolution, we report as fellows:

We have examined over twelve hundred witnisses. The testimony of each witness has been transcribed from stenographic notes, and we return herewith in printed and bound volumes the sworn testimony of such witnesses, together with all documents and papers offered in evidence. It is worthy of note and an evidence of interest and patriotism that, with but few exceptions, none of these witnesses have claimed any fees or expenses for their attendance. We have endeavored to limit as far as possible, consistent with good service, the cost of this investigation. The committe has been in session ——days. Each member has in addition given the larger portion of his time in the preparation of bills suggested by this report. We submit a detailed statement of the cost and expense of this investigation. The amount totals not over $5,500. Your committee has conducted these investigations without fear or favor.

The system or rather the lack of system, which has existed in the different departments of the state in reference to the disbursement of public moneys and the keeping of public accounts is something of which no Alabamican be proud. Each department has had its own individual way of handling its finances and keeping its books. An examiner of accounts, as he goes from department to department, is confronted with different conditions and different systems. A lack of uniformity results in a loss of efficincy. Embezzlement of public funds, unauthorized expenditures of public moneys, gross extravigances, misuse of official trust, and graft, large and petty, to which we shall hereafter call attention, can for the most part be traced to a total lack of system. A business corporation or man, following similar methods, would meet certain bankruptcy. No intelligent business man having control of a large operation, divided into many departments. would countenance a different system of bookkeeping for each department, the absence of a proper voucher or check system, the payment of money through many agents, the presence for each department of an unexplained and undefined contingent fund, expense accounts unitemized and without supervision, unauthorized trips by its different department heads and sub-heads, the free and unlimited right of each department manager and sub-manager to order printing and supplies. All of these practices have existed in the state of Alabama. If they would not be tolerated in and would force business corporations into insolency, why should they exist in a great state? We deem it our duty in this report to call attention to many things which bring the blush of shame, to other things partaking not of criminality except in carelessness, to other things which standing alone may seem to some petty, to other things growing out of honest misconception. We purpose to call attention to all of them, having in view not so much the embarassment or punishment of any one, as we have the paramount desires that the future may profit by the experience of the past.

Our first recommendation, is therefore, is that there be employed through a commission provided for in a bill herewith submitted the most competent certified public accountant that can be obtained; that this accountant be authorized to put the state of Alabama on a spstematic business basis at once, that the bookkeeping, the payment of funds, the record of receipts and disbursements, be modernized, simplified and made uniform throughout all of the departments of the state and throughout such offices of the counties as handle state funds and as are subject to state supervision. We find that many states have recently thru experts installed a business system and that the operation of the system has resulted in the saving of large sums of money. A tentative proposal, recured from accountants who have done this work in other states, estimates the cost here at $4500.00. Appointed for the purpose, among other things, of reducing expense, our first recommendation is for an expenditure. Its ultimate resul will be an enormous saving. Not to make it will be "penny-wise and pound-foolish".

Dr. and Mrs. Grady Broadhead are at home in Clantan after a delightful honeymoon at Gulfport, Miss.

Primitive Matches.

The first matches of which we have any account were thin splinters of wood about four inches long, tipped with sulphur. They were ignited when live coals or other fire were not available by means of a tinder box and its copartner, flint or steel. Fire was first communicated to the tinder by sparks of burning metal struck from the steel by the flint.

What Makes White Spots on Nails.

It is now thought that the white spots which frequently appear on finger nails are due to the presence of gas in the substance of the nail. They occur much more frequently during youth and in women, and are usually found in persons of nervous type. There is no remedy for them and no means of prevention except the avoidance of injury to the nails.

Origin of the Organ.

The origin of the organ is lost in the night of the past. It is generally supposed that the organ, in its simplest state, was a modification of the "Pipes of Pan," or simple hollow reeds of various lengths bound together and so arranged as to be rapidly swept over by the mouth of the player, each pipe graduated as near as might be to some natural "note" of music.

SACRED HARP SINGING HELD IN BIRMINGHAM

On last Saturday and Sunday your correspondent attended the Alabama State Singing Convention of the Sacred Hurp, held in the court house in Birmingham. The attendance was large.

The energetic Professor W. R. Davis of Birmingham was President, and Miss Emma Hood. Secretary.

Among the many fine directors we noted Prof. Calloway of Cullman, a young man, with a skill and enthusiasm indescribable. See him direct the convention, hear the noble poetry, and you will feel a touch of the old time power. Prof. Denson, of Helican, Ala,, the prince of leaders was there; and Cagle and wife of Cullman, Burns of Carbon Hill, Hattiway of Shelby, Jackson of Birmingham, Williams of Chilton, Riggins of Birmingham, Davis of Talladega, and others.

Sunday afternoon the convention was swept off its feet when two beautiful young ladies, Misses Isabell and Bettie Jackson of Birmingham were called to the floor and led a lesson of twenty minutes each. They were greeted with an outburst of applause.

A touching scene was on Sunday just before noon when Prof. Denson called on the audience to manifest by a show of hands those who had relatives gone from this life; a number of hands went up. This was as a memorial service, and many were moved to tears.

The deep interest and success of the convention emphasizes the fact that sacred music as well as in everything else, the worthy and good are being preserved, while the imperfect go. Away back in the seventies the writer can remember hearing a lady—Miss Mollie Riggins—sing in Chilton. The same lady was singing the same song in the Birmiugham convention.

CONCORD DEFEATS COOPERS.

The Legislature wanted to curtail the power of the Governor, but it now looks as if this move is lost.

Looks like Leo Frank is going to get well. The doctors say he is practically out of danger.

President Wilson, after returning to Washington to send the last note to Germany, is again at Cornish, N. H., extending his vacation.

Some good farmer told us the other day that Chilton county would raise more corn, peas and potatoes this year than ever before. The farmers of our county are noi behind the times, and we venture to say that diversified farming will hit here as quickly as anywhere. Let 'er come!

The Birmingham Age-Herald, and most any other paper you pick up is raging about good times and prosperity. If some of those apostles had to borrow some money we imagine their tune would change. The war situation is not hurting this country, only in the cotton states. The fact that people who have moncy are holding on to it is evidence a plenty to convince the world that lack of confidence in the democratic administration is the cause of the present distressing conditions.

Let prosperity come! Everybody knows we need it. The panic stricken peaple of the country had rather see and feel the wave than to hear talk of it. With all the immense crops, one would wonder—why are times so tight? The real fact is there is no confidence; people who have money are clinging to it, business or no business. The big man who has money is not affected. It is the laborer with his wages cut. Let prosperity come and then people will realize it.

The Chilton County Fair this fall should receive the support of every citizen. Chilton has the reputation of being among the leading counties of the State along this line. The Eair and its enterprising efforts reaches the home of every citizen. It gives encouragement and inspiration to the young as well as the old. It lets the people of one section know what the people in another section are doing in the way of progress and prosperity. It furnishes pastime and recreation from your yearly l...rs, besides the help and adv...ge it gives. Let everyone begi... to make it the best Fair we have ever had. The management will give us something to be proud of, and the entire county should lend a helping hand.

Last Year's Cotton Crop.

We copy below a paragraph from a recent address of State President, J. J. Brown, of the Farmers Union of Georgia, relattve to the pollcy of the national administration toward the cotton growers of the south last year:

"The national president of the Farmers Union will tell you how he summoned one hundred and fifty delegates composed of the strongest, brainiest farmers of the nation, together with several southern Governors, to go before the present administration last fall when our cotton was being taken from us at less than half of its real value, and how our demands were ignored and turned down, and I declare to you that after this cotton was taken from you by methods more outrageons than highway robbery—the same administration did for the speculator and gambler what it had refused to do for us, namely: insured the cotton for twice the amount paid the farmer, guaranteed that it was worth $70 a bale, protected the speculator to that extent, helped him fix his price. The administration insured the ships that carried the cotton, placed the stars and stripes on the masthead, thereby pledging every drop of blood in defense of that cotton. All of this was done to enable the speculator to get the untold millions of profit wrung from the men who grew the cotton."

Letters to The Editor.

Verbena, Ala., July 24, 1915.

Editor Union-Banner:—For the past several weeks I have been talking to friends of the two political parties in this county, seeking to bring them together—united into one party.

I see no reason, nor has one been suggasted, showing it unwise or impracticable. Shelby county is doing this, and her people cannot be very different to those here.

The people of the county, so far as I know (and it is a good number) are universally in favor of the move, and so express themselves.

I have no selfish motive in this. The common saying, "I have no axe to grind," expresses it.

Several of my friends, maybe half a dozen, but no great number, have asked me to offer for office next year. I have no aspiration for office, and will not seek or accept one; what I wish so much, is to see our people united, so we can take our place with other leading progressive counties of the state, and the conservative voter, in either party will be glad to get together if given an osportunity.

The Executive Committees of the parties can find a way to test the matter, and I trust it may be done.

And if this thing is accomplished we must "bury the hatchet" and never refer to past political differences afterwards.

It cannot then be said "we have politics in the churches, schools and jury boxes"—will have less politics and more friendship and brotherly love for our neighbor.

Yours truly,
H. B. OLIVER.

From A Louisiana Farmer.

Dubberly, La., July 23, 1915.

Editor Union-Banner:—You will find enclosed a dollar for my subscription for this year.

Things generally are quiet here. We need rain; have had none since the Fourth. We have no boll weevil here. They have disappeared from Louisiana.

I have harvested 1,200 bushels of oats, and am getting my land ready for another crop.

Best wishes to the Union-Banner and my old Chilton friends.

JOHN W. FOSHEE.

Legisiative Investigators.

We are going to publish each week an extract from the Legislative Investigating Committee's report, which we believe will be interesting as well as instructive to the tax payers of the county. We believe it will open some peoples' eyes to existing conditions in the state, and to what extent the democratic party for years has been imposing on the people. It is said that the state will be two and a half million dollars in debt by October 1st. The legislature has just passed a bill calling for an election for a bond issue to relieve the present bad conditions. When you read the record of the democratic party can you wonder? The people have paid high taxes. The revenues of the state amount to enormous sums and yet under the faithful leadership of one party alone the state is almost beyond redemption. It is high time the tax payers of the state to wake up to this awful condition.

Roosevelt's Place.

In in a discussion of Republican Presidential possibilities for 1916, Collier's Weekly has the following to say about Roosevelt:

"The list of men named in the preceding paragraph would not be complete without mention of ex-President Roosevelt. It is certain that in several of the states which have direct primaries on Presidential nominations Mr. Roosevelt's name will be put on the ballots by local Republican admirers; and it is quite possible that the Republican Convention may contain more delegates instructed for Mr. Roosevelt than for any other man. All this will be true, regardless of what the Progressive party may do. There are a fair number of folks in the United States who don't like Mr. Roosevelt. But those Roosevelt haters who expect the year 1916 to pass into history without Mr. Roosevelt cutting a figure in proportion to his size are merely letting their prejudices overcome their judgment.

Mercy a Plus.

Evelyn had been instructed by her mother not to ask anyone for a penny. A week ago Evelyn was visiting her aunt, and as her aunt opened her purse to take a nickel to use in the telephone Evelyn, shyly glancing in the purse and seeing one lone penny, remarked that she thought pennies were such a nuisance in a big lady's purse.

Never Touched Him.

BREAKS THE RECORD

Production of Bauxite and Aluminum Greatly Increased.

Growth of Aluminum Industry Shown by Fact That Production in 1884 Was 150 Pounds, and in 1904 8,600,000 Pounds.

Washington.—The production of bauxite and the consumption of aluminum in the United States in 1914 were the largest ever recorded. The report prepared by W. C. Phalen of the United States geological survey shows an output of 219,318 long tons of bauxite, valued at $1,069,194, in 1914, against 210,241 long tons, valued at $997,698, in 1913. The states which produced bauxite in 1914 were Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and Tennessee. Arkansas produced more than 80 per cent of the output and the output was larger in 1914 than in 1913. The production of Georgia, which held second place in both years, and of Alabama and Tennessee was considerably less in 1914 than it was in 1913. The imports of bauxite amounted to 24,844 long tons, valued at $96,500, or 3,388 tons more than in 1913.

Bauxite is used in the production of metallic aluminum and in the manufacture of aluminum salts, of bauxite bricks, and of alundum. The use of bauxite in the production of the metal aluminum is by far the most important one, and the largest part of the bauxite produced in Arkansas, as well as most of that imported, is used in the aluminum industry.

Alundum, which is used extensively as an abrasive, is made at Niagara Falls, N. Y., by fusing calcined bauxite in an electric furnace. Alundum is especially efficient for the grinding of steel forgings and castings. Only the best grades of bauxite are used in the manufacture of such chemicals as alum, aluminum sulphate and aluminum salts, as freedom from oxide of iron is desirable for such purposes.

Another use to which bauxite is adapted is in the manufacture of calcium aluminate, which gives a quick set to plaster compositions.

The quantity of aluminum consumed in the United States in 1914 was 79,129,000 pounds, against 72,379,000 pounds in 1913 and 65,607,000 pounds in 1912. The growth of the industry is shown by the fact that the production was 150 pounds in 1884, 550,000 pounds in 1894, and 8,600,000 pounds in 1904.

The value of the exports of aluminum and of manufactures of aluminum amounted to $1,546,510 in 1914, as compared with $966,094 in 1913.

Aluminum is the most abundant of metals and ranks third among the elements which compose the crust of the earth, being exceeded only by oxygen and silicon. It is an important constituent of all common rocks except certain sedimentary rocks, as sandstone and limestone. It is never found native, or in elementary form, but occurs as an oxide, hydrous oxide, fluoride, phosphate, sulphate silicate, or other compound. The only source of the metal so far commercially utilized is bauxite, an ore that contains 50 to 60 per cent of alumina (the common oxide), which corresponds to a metallic content of 26.5 to 31.8 per cent of aluminum.

The consumption of aluminum is constantly expanding, and aside from its use in the manufacture of cooking utensils, it is being employed in the construction of automobile castings and of welded tanks used by brewers, preserve manufacturers, and fat renderers and for wire for power-transmission lines. Other uses which are important in their adaptability and efficiency but which absorb only a small portion of the domestic product are the manufacture of powdered metal used as a paint pigment and in making aluminum foil. Aluminum foil is gradually displacing tin foil, which heretofore has been used for wrapping cheese, candies, tobacco, tea and other products.

COWARD BECOMES WAR HERO

Man Sentenced by Court-Martial Shows Bravery at the Ypres Battle.

London.—The story of a convicted coward who turned hero during the fighting around Ypres is told by Prof. J. H. Morgan, who spent five months at British headquarters and whose investigations were summed up in the Bryce report on German atrocities. He has just returned to London. He says: "There was a sergeant who had lost his nerve and had been sentenced by court-martial to five years' penal servitude for cowardice. Before the sentence could be carried out the Prussian guard made their famous attempt to break through our line, and the sergeant, in the fighting which ensued, fought with such bravery that, but for being nominally under arrest at the time, he would have been awarded the Victoria cross."

Shocked His Dog.

Flint, Mich.—Because a bulldog failed to recognize his master in nature's bathing suit, William O. Reynard, traffic manager for the Weston-Mott company, is nursing several injuries. Mr. Reynard was passing from the bathroom in his home to a bedroom and stepped over the dog. As he was dressed only in a pair of slippers, the dog evidently did not know him. Towser grabbed him by the ankle and then nipped his left side and little finger.

Had Duties to Attend To.

The first morning my little brother went to kindergarten he was very good until about ten o'clock, when he got up and started out. The teacher asked where he was going. He replied, "I'se doin' to det some lunch." Not living very far she let him go. He returned in the afternoon and was very good until about three o'clock, when he started out again. The teacher called him back and said, "Where are you going now?" He answered, "I des I dota take my nap, don't I?"—Chicago Tribune.

ENCOURAGEMENT IN TIME OF WAR

Southern Methodists Make Sacrifices to Give to Missions. Baptist Work in Po Chow.

The general secretary of the Board of Missions of the M. E. Church South has received many encouraging letters recently. A North Carolina layman wrote:

"Last Winter, in forming my plans for the present year, I had to face this question: On account of business depression, and much smaller income than heretofore, can I continue the support of both of my preachers in foreign fields? After much thought and prayer, I determined to renew my pledges and do my best to meet them during this year, but to meet these and those of my home church requires fully one-third or more of my gross annual income."

A Mississippi layman wrote:

"I have given up the idea of dropping the special that I have had for years, but I was so hard hit by the low price of cotton I felt I could not send the amount; however, on account of the urgent need of the cause I am borrowing the money to send you, trusting in the good Lord that I may be able to do more for the cause another year."

The Sunday school of Central church, Clifton Forge, Va., has undertaken the support of a foreign missionary at $600 a year, and in writing about it the pastor said: "We just had to take him, for scarcely a prayer is offered in the church that specific appeal for him is not made."

On June 24, the Board of Missions received requests for twenty-one specials, nineteen of which were from Dr. T. N. Potts, missionary secretary, Virginia Conference. In addition to the new specials there were renewals amounting to $1600.00, making a total of $3,370.00 in one day.

Baptists in Po Chow.

In writing of the opening of the new church building at Po Chow Mrs. Wade D. Bostic says:

"On the day of the dedication, we began the day with an early morning baptismal service, when twenty-two followed the Lord in Baptism. We have had services every night for most of the time since the dedication, with large and attentive comgregations.

"Especially during the last week have we had large audiences of women. The city has been full with visiting women from every direction, having come in to burn incense at the temple of the 'God of Hades,' hoping thereby to win his favor and thus have their sufferings alleviated when they reach his regions.

"Our big church attracted their attention so many of them attended the services and some of them upon hearing, professed to accept the True God, and salvation through His Son and said they would never worship false gods again. Our outlook is most encouraging and we desire the prayers of Christian people that we may have the strength to make the most of these wonderful opportunities."

The leaders of New China realizes the importance of moral education as never before. President Yuan, in an interview with a missionary in 1912, said: "I am not a Christian. I am a Confuctianist. But unless the ethics of Christianity shall dominate the scholarship of China, there is no hope for China."

CROPS TO FOLLOW OATS

Cowpeas, Soy Beans and Other Legumes Preferred.

By J. F. Duggar, Director, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

As a rule, soil improvement crops are most advisable. Among these, first place is usually given to cowpeas. Late or Mammoth soy beans may also be drilled in promptly after oats, and cultivated for seed or hay.

Spanish peanuts may still be planted. But with both soy beans and peanuts there is greater danger of getting a stand after oats than on less open land.

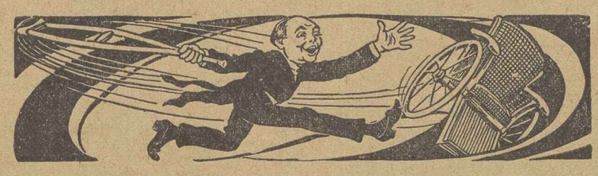
Only if the land is very rich should corn follow oats, and then usually with peas in every other row, or in the middles.

There is still time for sweet potatoes, but on oat stubble the stand is often poor.

Sorghum may be planted, then corn or sweet potatoes, but it impoverishes the soil.

Gets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.



In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism that Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to disolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and ask for S. S. S.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

Valuable Oak Carvings.

In the vaults of St Paul's cathedral in London is stored away a rich store of priceless oak carving part of which was originally in the cathedral, and part removed from city churches when demolished. A selection of these relics, consisting mostly of woodwork placed in the cathedral in the time of Sir Christopher Wren, has just been lent to the Geffrye museum of the L. C. C. Of special interest are a prayer desk, an overdoor, stall brackets, trusses, and an oak capital, all beautifully carved, together with specimens of Tijou's ironwork.

Dust and Iron in the Appendix.

That foreign bodies in the appendix are often the initial cause of appendicitis is a long-exploded idea; that is, so far as bodies of any size are concerned. But Dr. Carlo Savini of New York reports to the Medical Record that in many cases very minute sharp foreign bodies are found in that organ and, in some cases at least, were probably the cause of the initial lesion. Doctor Savini has recovered from appendices microscopic particles which prove on chemical analysis to be slivers of coal containing a small quantity of iron, sometimes with very sharp cutting edges.

A Daring Little Vixen

By FLORENCE L. HENDERSON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

It does not matter which side had my sympathies. I was strictly a neutral. I was a neutral, as well, in a sense that was humanitarian. I was benefiting Germans and allies alike, I was under the protection of both, I, Carl Isberg from the far North, but understanding English, French, German and something of low Dutch besides.

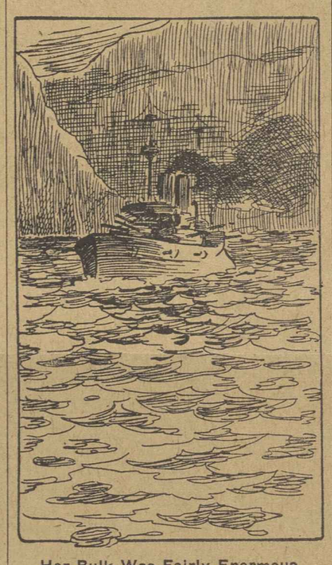
To me one day came Professor Abarbanel at Munich. His big goggles took me in affectionately. We had been good friends. More than that, I had been a faithful servant and was proud of it. We had mutually shared much of peril.

"The supply has run out," he announced to me, and I knew what he meant, and my face fell and then expressed an irresistible relief that was born of selfishness—and love.

The supply of what? you will ask. I will reply artictene. That is not the word, but you would understand it no better if I said diatose-radii, or kokanlubrica. Enough to say that artictene was a drug, the formula of which was held only at Munich by a firm becoming rich, vastly rich because of the fact.

Its use among the wounded and dying in hospitals at the battle front was the final relief for excruciating pain. It subdued the lant pangs of the dying. It was a nepenthe for the tortured agonized wretch half shot away and through its qualities allowed a peaceful, painless death.

How the arrangement was ever cemented I never knew, but Professor Abarbanel, as the distributor for the Munich house, had safe conducts through the camps of every nation in Europe. The panacea was minute in bulk, and almost priceless. Its vital ingredient was imported, war conditions had shut this out, and the precious supply had "run out," the professor said.



Her Bulk Was Fairly Enormous.

This was not literally true, but it meant that its manufacture had ceased. I was given a proportion of what was left, was to deliver it at Paris and my labor was done. Other agents were dispatched to Russia, Italy, England. Forestalling what I knew must come, I had got word to Vice-Admiral Burtelle, the father of my fiancee, of my plans. I had the drug and my earnings of well-nigh a year secreted under my shirt. I had other funds at home in America and was in a position to wed my peerless Adele.

The Polaric, war ship, was to convey me to a point on the Belgian coast, where I was to be landed by small boat. Thence there was open territory by sea or land to French or English ports, as I chose.

I knew that Vice-Admiral Burtelle was in the vicinity of Aile, a town just beyond the Holland frontier. His present marine command was the charge of the Seeker, an inspection cruiser of small type. It had done some wonders in discovering mines set for the unwary and in venturing, spy fashion, into perilous waters. The craft had extraordinary speed. I did not know if Adele might be with her father. I hoped it and counted on being welcomed by both of them at the seaport town of Vranches, just about one hundred miles over the Belgian border.

We steamed away boldly enough and the night passed and the day broke with smooth, unruffled progress our lot. The Polaric was worth studying in its superb armament and I was interested in all that I saw. At various points the craft met brother marines and stopped at several ports to disembark some soldiers, to land some ammunition. It was about three o'clock in the afternoon when we sighted a bounding, speeding marine flying the tricolor.

There was great animation on deck. The officers were in consultation, their subordinates were sent scurrying from point to point.

"Who is she?" I heard one of the officers sing out to the lookout man.

The answer came definitely: "The Seeker."

I was more than interested. She seemed coming toward us and one of the big guns was trained in readiness for a try at her.

Just then there was a new commotion. Out from a cliff-guarded inlet there set out one of the largest men of war I had ever seen. Her bulk was fairly enormous. She steamed along slowly, clumsily. The officers of the Polaric were manifestly troubled. Then I overheard one of them cry out:

"I see the game!"

"What is it?" sharply challenged his companion officer.

"We have headed off the Seeker and she is making for the protection of the big marine. Set position to give the little one a shot as she passes in range."

"She is a daring little vixen!"

"Yes, and troublesome—a worry to the admiralty, with her quick ways and daring dodgings. It will be a feather in our cap to end her. Get her sure, and the admiralty will see to promotions."

The Seeker seemed heedless of peril. She seemed resolute to dart past us. The big cruiser seemed to be her goal. I moved nearer to the swivel gun, mounted and leveled. An officer handed me his glass. I looked once and shuddered.

"Great heavens!" I exclaimed, irresistibly.

"What is that?" sharply asked the officer.

"Nothing," I stammered, and handed back the glass. "Thanks!"

I stood electrified upon the gun deck of the Polaric. I had made out the commander of the Seeker, the vice-admiral, and, fearlessly viewing the outlook of collision or attack, was a girl wearing a bright tri-color knot on her left shoulder, a favorite adornment of the girl I loved.

Then Adele was with her father! It was now a race; the Seeker getting to the shelter and protection of the big cruiser before the Polaric could half intervene and get a square shot at her. As the Seeker neared, neared, neared, the Polaric maneuvered. The gunner had his clear poise, for the Polaric had shut down steam and was nearly motionless. As the gunner watched and waited, I followed the swift course of the Seeker with distended eyes and bated breath.

I saw the Seeker come squarely across our bow. The gunner sighted. Then he drew back and his hand reached out for the electric switch which ignited the cap fuse. Aloft the lookout kept the focus of his glass shifting with the progress of the Seeker. It was the hazard of a second. A whistle rang out—the signal.

My love! I had but an instant to think. I pretended to slip clumsily. A curse echoed in my ears as the gunner, torn from the electric switch, went flat, I on top of him.

Then rapid orders rang out. The Polaric shifted to get in new range of the scudding runaway.

They were all but ready when a startling, a remarkable thing transpired. The Seeker made straight for the bow of the big cruiser. Two mammoth sheet steel doors swung open. Into the arms of the cruiser darted the Seeker. The giant gates reclosed, shutting the Seeker out of view, secure in the safety well of the mother ship.

I was landed two hours later. The officers of the Polaric viewed me grimly, recalling my timely collision with the gunner. They did not voice their suspicion, however.

It was not until after I had seen my drug consignment safe in the hands for which it was intended that, the evening before my marriage to Adele a month later at Paris, I recited the episode of the gun deck.

"Your little craft vanished beyond those stout metal gates like a child clasped by the protecting arms of a mother," I told Vice-Admiral Burtelle.

And Adele, peerless Adele, nestled into mine, loving and endeared, and proud of me, I could see, and her father's approving smile told me that he believed me worthy of her.

When Spot Played Cupid.

I was acquainted with a sweet young widow, had known and visited her occasionally for about two years. Among her late husband's possessions left to her was a small fox terrier, a great pet of mine. While calling one evening the dog, Spot, jumped on my knee and tried to lick my face.

"Mel, don't let him lick your face," and she called the dog, who quickly jumped on her lap. Patting the dog, she said to it: "I think Mel is as fond of you as I am. Ask him would he like to own you himself. But he must never take you from me—I must go too, wherever you go."

I called the dog back to me and said: "Doggie, tell your missus I want to own you." I own both now. God bless the dog—I never had the nerve to propose.—Chicago Tribune.

What Is a MS. Worth?

What is the value of a stolen manuscript of an unproduced play? The author had to set a value in a lawsuit last week. In such a case the bias is naturally in favor of the play. But once (in search for a lost umbrella at New Scotland Yard) I encountered a friend who had lost the only copy of his play in a cab and had come in search of it. It was produced, for the cabman was honest. What was the value by which to fix the cabman's remuneration? My friend's bias swung to modesty. He fixed the worth of his play at the cost of typewriting. The cabman got a shilling—more than my friend ever got from his play.—London Chronicle.

"Nobody Home."

The judge did not seem to appreciate the remarks of the lawyer for the defense. (Several years before they had had a fight over the question of religion.) At last the judge interrupted the lawyer and said: "Do you not know that everything you are saying is going in one ear and out the other?" The lawyer turned to him and replied: "Your honor, what is to prevent?"—Burr.

The Power of Toxins.

One thousandth of a gram of tetanus (lockjaw) toxin is enough to kill a horse weighing 1,300 pounds or six hundred million times its weight. More remarkable still, one-thousandth of a milligram of tubercular toxin will produce action on a man weighing 132 pounds—sixty trillion times its weight.

All Babies Destined to Great Achievement

To be born is to be great. For there are possibilities in every tiny human infant. And for this reason every one should remember that whatever is done to aid the mother, to relieve her of distresses during her trying months, will surely be of marked benefit to the child.

Among the sterling aids is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend." It is what is called an embrocation. It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in by your own hand guided by your own mind. It makes the muscles pliant, they expand quite naturally and the effect upon the nerves is such that they adjust themselves to the process of expansion so that pain from this source is almost eliminated. Women who use "Mother's Friend" refer to the absence of morning sickness, they are relieved of a great many minor distresses, all apprehension disappears and those peculiar nervous "fidgets" no longer disturb the nights. It is well named "Mother's Friend." Get a bottle today of any druggist. Then at once write for a most entertaining and instructive book for all prospective mothers. Address Bradfield Regulator Co., 705 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

This book explains the physical action of "Mother's Friend," tells why it enforces strength to the muscles and relieves undue strain. It also contains letters of experience from many happy mothers. It is just such a handy little book as every woman will at once recognize as just what she had always wished to read—plain facts about herself. The book is mailed free to any address. Write for it today.

If you own an "AUTO"

There are two ways of handling a car--the ECONOMICAL way, and the DESTRUCTIVE way. Compare them:

ECONOMICAL—Bring it to us occasionally and let us examine it, adjust it, and make slight repairs the moment they are needed. Keeps it in good shape and running smooth.

DESTRUCTIVE—Just to keep on "putting it off," regardless of its wheezings and groanings, until the final break comes and you have a big repair bill and weakened car.

We recommend the ECONOMICAL way. It is the safest, and by far the most inexpensive way.

A recent editorial paragraph in the Gadsden Times-News expresses in a few words a truthful and significant constructive policy. It says:

> "Lower freight rates over the Louisville & Nashville Railroad will be welcomed by Gadsden merchants and manufacturers—provided they do not impair the income of the road to such an extent that it will be forced to adopt a retrenchment policy. Good railroads are just as desirable as good wagon roads, and it takes money to build and maintain both."

When the editor of the Times-News wrote that paragraph he did not write it in the interest of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

The paragraph was written in the interest of the merchants and manufacturers, not only of Gadsden and surrounding territory, but in the interest of merchants and manufacturers everywhere.

This attitude on the part of a truly constructive editor indicates the trend of modern, progressive thought. It indicates that the people demand of a railroad that most important of all things—satisfactory service.

That the people should be willing for the railroads to earn a sufficient amount over and above expenses to insure a fair return on the investment and a surplus for maintenance and development.

The L. & N. agrees with this view, not only in the interest of the L. & N., but in the interest of the territory served by the L. & N.

The L. & N. states in all sincerity that it would not, under any circumstances, knowingly impose an unfair freight or passenger rate on the people doing business in the territory served by the L. & N., even if it had the power so to do.

To impose such a rate would handicap the farmers, the merchants, the manufacturers in their efforts to succeed in business.

To the extent that the people are handicapped, the L. & N. is handicapped.

To the extent that the people succeed the L. & N. will succeed.

The L. & N. will endeavor to at all times supply the best in passenger and freight services at rates as reasonable as possible, consistent with good business.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

An Extract From Their Recommendations to the Legislative Body.

There exists in Alabama no well defined plan for presenting to the legislnture the needs of the several state offices, departments, commissions, bureaus, boards and the several state institutions. It is the practice for state offices and heads of departments and state institutions, through some friend in the legislature, to present bills for such appropriations as may by them be deemed necessary. The presentation of such bills is usually followed by more or less activity akin to lobbying for the purpose of bringing about favorable legislation and appropriations. In the hurly-burly of a short legislative session, the result is that appropriations do not receive the necessary consideration. The consideration that is given is not supported by any intalligent advice or investigation, the result being that the department, interest or institution which has the most influential friends present obtains the largest appropriation without reference to the relation the several departments bear to each other or the state. Alabama can never enter on a high plane in the conduct of its business affairs until some more rational and business-like system is devised. Throughout the country what is known as the budgetory laws are coming to be considered by way of meeting the objections described aboye. A budget has been defined as, "the financial statement of the government far a definite period which reveals in details the objects and amount of expenditures and the source and yield of reveenues and the way the expenditures and revenues are made to balance." It properly includes estimates both of revenues as well as of expenditures. In a recent official publication of the State of Ohio it is declared that "the wisdom of preparing the state budget of expenses and submitting the same to the general assembly is unquestioned. It is the only scientific method of obtaining economy in the state expenditures." In foreign countries this system has long been in force. We find state budget laws in force at the present time in California, 1909; Illinois, 1913; Indiana, 1901; Kansas, 1909; Montana, 1907; North Carolina, 1908; Ohio, 1913; Rhode Island, 1909; and Wisconsin, 1911. It is also noted in their messages to the legislatures of 1915, the governors of the States of Alabama, Colorado, Massachuretts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New York, North Dakota, Tennessee, Washingion and West Virginia urge state budget laws. These laws vary in detail but all of them uniformly require the preparation in advance of the session of the legislature of a carefully worked out statement, setting forth with particularity the support currently allowed the several subiects receiving state approprsations, together with detailed estimates of all needed appropriations for the future, with full explanations as to increases or decreases. Section 70 of our state constitution contains the following provision: "All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives. The governor, auditor and attorney general shall before each regular session of the legislature prepare a general revenue bill to be submitted to the legislature for its information, and the secretary of state shall have printed for the use of the legislature a sufficient number of the copies of the bills so prepared, which the governor shall thransmit to the House of Representatives as soon as organized, to be used or dealt with as that house shall elect." This constitutional provision has served very little practical purpose. Section 123 contains the following, among other things, which the governor is instructed to communicate to the legislature: "At the commencement of each regular session, he shall present to the legislature estimates of the amount of money required to be raised by taxation for all purposes." In another part of the same section the governor is required to "give to the legislature information with respect to the state of the government." It will be noted that these constitutional provisions read together include recommendations not only with reference to the revedues but also with reference to the expenditures both actual and proposed. They should be aided by satuary enactment.

We recommend that the state bueget be compiled and transmitted to each regular session of the legislature by the governor; that it include not only an estimate of what amounts may be necessary for the couduct of the state affairs, but also a suggested method of raising the amount of revenue necessary to meet the outlay. We submit herewith draft of a bill providing for the introduction in Alabama of the budget system. The bill has been prepared after a careful consideration of the laws in force in the several states. For details of the plan reference will have to be made to the proposed bill as its length prevents us setting it out in this report.

JUNE PROGRESS IN TICK ERADICATION

Forward Steps of the Movement in Some Counties of Alabama.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Federal field agents in Alabama report that the prospects for freeingfrom the cattle tick this season all the counties in the state in which systematic work is being conducted are excellent. There are now nine of these counties, During the month of June 1,106 dipding vats were in operation, and 387,925 dippings of cattle took place.

Regular tick eradication work was begun in June in Colbert and Lowndes counties, and preliminary work was begun under supervision in Pike and Macon counties. An election will be held in Sumter county later in the season. Another election will be held in Limestone county, more in order to conform to legal requirements than for any other purpose, since the people of Limestone county have been dipping their cattle some time now, their interest being shown by the fact that 27,614 dippings of cattle were made in June. The county will, no doubt, vote for eradication in the coming election.

Some opposition, it is said, is being shown by a few persons who have been able to profit from prevailing low prices of cattle in Alabama.

On January 1, 1915, the average value per head of beef cattle in Alabama was only $20, while in Tennessee, which has freed itself from ticks, the average value was $35. A similar difference is shown in the average prices for beef on the hoof.

Statistics show that in the nine counties in the state, during June there were 1,106 dipping vats in operation, and the number of cattle dipped was 387,925.

KENTUCKY CLAIMS THE ORIGINAL "CASEY JONES."

Cayce, Ky., July 31.—This village claims to have furnished the first half of the title of that popular song dear to railroaders, "Casey Jones." Despite the fact of nearly every railroad division in the country asserting ownership of the identical Casey Jones of the song, the best authorities agree that it was originally written by John Luther Jones, a well known engineer of the Illinois Central, born here in 1863, and by him taught to the round-house negroes along the lines of his run. Jones's nickname was Casey, from his native village.

True to the song, Casey Jones' engine bumped. It was while pulling the New Orleans Limited that he smashed into a freight train one dark night in 1890, at Vaughn's Miss. Casey reached home all right, but Casey was dead. It was not until several years later that the song swept the country, after being taken up by professional singers.

PULLING FODDER AN INJURIOUS PRACTICE

Five Reasons Why It Should Not Be Done. Farmers Should Take Notice.

1. It cuts the corn yield. Carefully conducted tests by a number of southern experiment stations have conclusively shown that fodder pulling may cause a loss in the yield of corn of from 5 to 25 per cent., or from one to ten or fifteen bushels loss per acre. Every farmer who pulls fodder may expect either to suffer this loss or to delav fodder pullieg until the corn is fully matured and the fodder practically worthless.

2. It injures the seed corn for planting next year. When fodder is stripped from the immature corn the grain is not fully developed, and consequently its vitality and germinating power are lessened.

3. Saving the whole corn plant is a better practice. Aside from the serious lossss from decreased yields and injury to the grain for planting purposes, fodder pulling is an uneconomic practice, in that it makes no provision for saving the whole plant. Over 40 per cent. of the value of a field of corn is in the stalks, leaves, shucks and cobs, and the greater portion of this is lost unless the corn either be cut, shocked and shredded, or cut green and put in a silo.

4. Getting your hay with a mower is cheaper than fodder pulling. Pulling is hard, hot, expensive work, and the farmer who finds it impracticable to cut shock and shred his corn or to use a silo, will find it far more profitable to get his roughage with a mowing machine and a rake than by the all hand labor required in fodder pulling.

5. Fodder is poor feed compared with legume hays. Not only does the farmer who, instead of pulling fodder, uses peas beens and clovers as a source of roughage get his feed at less expense, but he gets a better feed, particularly so in its protein contents. Furthermore, in growing the legumes for hay, and returning manure to the land, soil fertility is being conserved. If you have not already done so, there is still time to plant cow peas and soy beans on the stubble land, and a few days spent at this sort of work will be more profitable than all the fodder pulling you have ever done or will ever do.

It is time we were looking squarely at this fodder-pulling problem and getting our true bearings. If you are still inclined to the idea that you can afford to pull fodder, suppose you pull as usual this year, but leave a dozen rows in the middle of the field unpulled. Then accurately measure the corn at harvest time, and we believe that you will decide that fodder pulling is a pretty poor sort of business.—The Progressive Farmer.

CHILTON COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Our Annual County Sunday School Convention which was held in Verbena July 29 and 30 was well attended. There were about 30 schools represented. The statistical reports were very encouraging. Nearly all of the schools have taken at least one step forward in making their school a banner school; and one school gained six poins since December with the result of having the best school in the county. The reports of our County and District officers show that some "efficient" work has been done since July, 1914. We have 12 more teacher training classes now than last year, which speaks well for our teacher training Superintendent. J. W. Mitchell and Miss Madge Cooper, our Missionary Superintendent, have done some splendid work. Reports show that 164 were added to the church from the Sunday school. The county went back to the old original six districts instead of four as we have had since July, 1914. The follo ving district presipents were elected: District No. 1, W. E. Thomas, Jemison; No. 2, Phillip Horn, Thorsby; No. 3, D. O. Manning, Maplesville, No. 4, B.M. Roberts, Clanton; No. 5, J. H. Gulledge, Verbena; No. 6, J. W. Mitchell, Maplesville.

The county officers are: President, W. H. Bell, Verbena; Vice-President, W. E. Thomas, Jemison; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Della Wilhams, Verbena. Department Supts.: Elementary, Miss Mary Car Gibson, Verbena; secondary, Miss Madge Cooper, Jemison; adult, E. L. Thornton, Mt. Creek.

The following resolutions were offered and adopted: First Resolved, that we thank Miss Minnie Algood, Miss Ethel Bean, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Marbury for their service in the Convention. Second—that we thank the good people of Verbena for their kind hospitality shown us while in their midst. Third—that we thank Miss Alta Easley and the choir for their splendid music. Fourth That we thank the Clanton Press and Union-Banner for publishing notices of our convention. Fifth—that we in convention assembled endorse the action of of our state legislature for passing a state wide prohibition bill, prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages in Alabama; also that we thank our county president, who is a member of that body, for using his influence and casting his vote to help in passing this bill.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. Mitchell,
N. J. Jones.
Committee.

Last Sunday morning about 3 o'clock the garage known as Carleton Garage on 6th street was burned down. The fire was not discovered until it was in good headway, and though the fire department gave good service, it was unable to extinguish the flames until the contents of the building was destroyed. It is said that only the building was covered by insurance.

Even the Mobile Register calls the Roosevelt Doctrine the Monroe Doctrine. Rooseveit's Doctrine makes it the duty of the United States to police its neighbors. There is nothing like that in the Monroe Doctrine.—Ledger.

It is said that Governor Brewer of Mississippi charges that Theodore Bilbo was bribed for the small amount of $100 to stay in line with Vardaman. We don't know as to the charges, whether true or false, but we will bet a ginger cake that Theodore gives them a hot chase for the Governor's office.

With 224 corn club boys representing every county in Alabama assembled at Auburn for the demonstration course in practical agriculture, it is reasonable to predict that Alabama's corn crop will increase steadily each year and soon become one of the state's largest material assets. The corn club boys of Alabama have already rendered the state a great service, and are preparing to increase the same in direct value as well as through indirect helpful aid.—Birmingham Ledger.

We have examined the published report of the legislative probe committee, and find many things in it that are discouraging. Taking it in connection with other probes throughout the state and what we know of the preceding administration we can safely say that Alabama has had eight or ten years of very bad government. It is to be hoped that the people will be aroused to a higher sense of duty to see to it that competent men are selected for the public places.—Alexander City News.

And we might add "honest" men as well as competent men.

Editor Rosson Dead.

Editor Joseph R. Rosson, of the Cullman Democrat, died at his home in that city last week, after an illness of several weeks.

It is the least that can be said of this noble man to assert that he was a most worthy and aggressive citizen; a man whose good influence and inspiring ideals, made manifest through his splendid paper, The Democrat, for a long time have animated his fellow citizens of the county and city of Cullman, and commanded the highest respect from all over the State. His long connection with the Alabama Press Association has made him widely known among newspaper men, and the journalistic profession of the state will feel keenly the loss of his efforts and influence.

The Colonel Speaks Wisely.

"Finally and most important, let us remember that there can be no efficient preparedness against war unless we prepare our own souls. If we become soft and flabby physically and morally, we shall fail. No nation ever amounted to anything if its population was composed of pacifists and paltroons; if its sons did not have the fighting edge; if its women did not feel as the mothers of the men who followed Grant and Lee felt; men who are not ready to fight for the right are not fit to live in a free democracy. The only women fit to be wives and mothers in a free republic are those who feel that their sons are not sons of theirs, unless when their country calls, their souls are eager and their feet jubilant to answer the mighty trumpet note which announces that the hearts of men are being sifted out before the judgment seat."—Roosevelt.

The Colonel has made no finer utterance in recent years. This deliverance is an expression of real Americanism. It is an utterance needed so much at this time. It will do good.—The Montgomery Advertiser.

Concerning Party Union.

The Clanton Press seems to be troubled because the Union-Banner has not commented upon the proposition of the two political parties uniting in Chilton county.

Since The Press is so much interested, may we ask of our contemporary what it would have us to say in the premises?

The Union-Banner feels that a proposition of this kind is not to be determined by a few. Upwards of 2,000 voters and citizens of the county are more or less concerned in a proposition of this kind, and naturally one should expect that these citizens, no matter to which party they belong, are entitled to have a voice in this great question.

Our party has always stood for the material interest and progress of the people; and if our distinguished contemporary will kindly refer to the call made a year or so ago, it will find that our policy was broad, liberal and patriotic in that we invited every white citizen, a qualified voter, to unite wilh us in the selection of the various county officers. The fact that we extend always a welcome hand to all must convey the impression that we are not selfish or unmihdful of the opinion of others. Did the party of which The Press is an exponent, do this, and has its record ever been a spirit of harmony and union?

The Press says let's unite under one banner, but in its intense interest in this matter, it does not tell the people which banner. Is it the banner of the whole people of Chilton conny?

Letters to The Editor.

A Corn Club Prize Winner.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me a small space to tell my friends of my recent trip to Auburn, which I received as a prize winner in the boys corn club of Chilton county.

This is about as pleasant, and at the same time as valuable a trip as a boy could take.

The boys from Chilton were accompanied by our demonstration agent, Mr. Conway. On our way we stopped over in Montgomery, and while there Mr. Conway showed us many interesting scenes of the city. Among these was a tour of the state capitol. We saw much of interest there, and from the dome of the statehouse we had the pleasure of a complete view of the beautiful city.

Leaving Montgomery and arriving at Auburn, we were received by Prof. Curlin, and joined the other corn club boys from the other counties. At the dormitory we were given splendid fare and the most pleasant entertainment.

At the agricultural hall we listened to some splendid lectures on all points of farming.

We all thank Mr. Curlin for his kind attention while at Auburn. And I wish to thank Mr. Conway especially, for assisting me in winning the trip.

Respectfully,
GRADY PRICE.

Mr. Jones on Political Union.

Mountain Creek, Aug. 3, 1915.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please give me space for a few words.

Things are very dry in this section. We had some showers Sunday.

Mr. Editor, I notice that some of the Democrats are asking the people to unite under one political banner. Now, I do not know about it, but if they want to come in with us, I think it would be well enough for them to tell their experience and be baptized so they will stay with us, for they won't stay without it.

Some 18 or 20 years ago the Democrats asked the populists to unite with them and nominate a ticket. We did so, and they bolted the primary and nominated a ticket to suit themselves.

They may want Progressives and Republicans to unite with the Democrats, but when we look back a few months to those bills presented to the legislature to abolish certain county offices in this county, we can see just what it is all intended for.

As for our people uniting with the democrats, I would like to know one man that will vote the democratic ticket. I have heard that old song years ago.

Yours truly,
J. S. JONES.

Profit Sharing With Retail Buyers.

On August 1, 1914, we made an announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between August 1, 1914 and August 1, 1915, we would share profits with the retail purchasers, to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car. We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

BLUE BACK SPELLER NOT TO BE USED IN SCHOOLS

The bill providing for the use of the "Blue Back Speller" in the schools of Alabama is going to be adversed by the senate com mittee on education when it makes its report to the senate on Wednesday.

This bill passed the house and there were many who thought it would have easy sailing in the senate. But the members of the educational committee do not look with favor upon the bill. While they all believe in the old "Blue Back" they do not think the bill should become law. It might prove very expensive to school children and the members do not think it should be made compulsory that this speller be used.

Sewing Circle With Much Whispering

Before the stork arrives there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic. And there is sure to be someone who has used or knows of that splendid external help, "Mother's Friend." It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in and has a most pronounced effect as a lubricant. It soothes the network of nerves, enables the muscles to expand naturally, relieves strain on the ligaments and thus sets at ease any undue strain on the organs involved. And it does this with perfect safety. Expectant mothers thus go through the ordeal with comparative ease and comfort. Knowing mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" speak in glowing terms of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and a freedom from many other distresses.

One of the most important symptoms to be relieved by "Mother's Friend" is the imagination that so often disturbs repose. Pains, even though natural, may so distort the mind that undue apprehension will sometimes follow. The gentle, soothing influence of "Mother's Friend" gives the mind substantial aid to become conscious of strength and there is a real, physical sensibility of muscular vigor as evidenced by freedom from undue strain.

You can get "Mother's Friend" at any drug store or they will gladly get it for you. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 701 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book of great value to all expectant mothers. It contains a valuable expectancy chart, rules on diet and is brimful of suggestions that all women will appreciate.

SHOT AT GOV. HARRIS SIXTEEN TIMES AND MISSED

Atlanta, Ga., July 30. — The fact that he shot at Governor Harris of Georgia sixteen times, and missed each time, may win for I. C. Wade of Gornelia, Ga., an appointment on the Governor's staff, provided the governor can persuade the state legislature now in session to abolish the age limit of 60 years. Gov. Harris is a Confederate veteran. Mr. Wade served in the northern army.

The governor met Mr. Wade when campaigning about a year ago. Talk turned to the fighting at Moorefield, Va., in the 60's.

"Where were you on the morning of the second dey's battle, when you fellows were making it so hot for us?" asked the Confederate.

"I was on outpost duty, on the extreme end of the upper right wing, and I thought every minute would be the last", replied Mr. Wade.

"You don't mean it! Well tell me, did you see a man saddle a roan horse and ride off at top speed?"

"Did I see him? Why, I shot at that man sixteen times and missed him every time."

It's a good thing you missed," said Mr. Harris, "or I wouln't be here. I'm the man you shot at."

A Close friendship resulted from the meeting, and today Governor Harris announced he would try to have the legislature change the age limit in Mr. Wade's favor.

COMMITTED TO JAIL WITHOUT BAIL

Bon Morris charged with the murder of Ernest Cobb near Jemison a few weeks ago had his preliminary trial before Judge W. H. Killingworth at the court house last Saturday; and was committed to jail without bond. The killing of Cobb by Morris occurred in Cobb's field some weeks ago, when it is charged Morris went to the field where Cobb was plowing and shot him to death with a shot gun. The trial Saturday lasted only a short while as there was not much evidence adduced in the case. A large crowd was in Clanton to witness the trial.

A PRIZE WINNER

Through your paper I wish to thank Mr. Conway and others who helped to send me to Auburn to school, in which I learned a good deal about farming. I was greatly benefited, and rereived much pleasure from the trip. I learned how to judge cattle.

Gets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.

In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism that Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to disolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and ask for S. S. S.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

Valuable Oak Carvings.

In the vaults of St Paul's cathedral in London is stored away a rich store of priceless oak carving, part of which was originally in the cathedral, and part removed from city churches when demolished. A selection of these relics, consisting mostly of woodwork placed in the cathedral in the time of Sir Christopher Wren, has just been lent to the Geffrye museum of the L. C. C. Of special interest are a prayer desk, an overdoor, stall brackets, trusses, and an oak capital, all beautifully carved, together with specimens of Tijou's ironwork.

Dust and Iron in the Appendix.

That foreign bodies in the appendix are often the initial cause of appendicitis is a long-exploded idea; that is, so far as bodies of any size are concerned. But Dr. Carlo Savini of New York reports to the Medical Record that in many cases very minute sharp foreign bodies are found in that organ and, in some cases at least, were probably the cause of the initial lesion. Doctor Savini has recovered from appendices microscopic particles which prove on chemical analysis to be slivers of coal containing a small quantity of iron, sometimes with very sharp cutting edges.

By Rural Delivery

By EMMA WALTER BROSS

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

The good-looking but modest postman on Rural Delivery Route 21, District K, experienced a token of interest and a flutter of expectation as he neared the half tubular zinc receptacle labeled "Adam Foster."

Beyond, at the end of a leafy-roofed arcade two hundred feet long, was the substantial, inviting-looking old farmhouse. It held three daughters and two sons. In one of them young Worth Merrell was especially interested. A shy, blushing, fluttering young creature, the morning previous she had flitted down the shady lane to the side of the mail cart, light and graceful as some fairy.

He had handed her some letters addressed to her father and a couple of magazines. She had smiled upon him in a way that set his nerves tingling. In her embarrassment she had dropped letters and bundles. Their heads had bumped together as they stooped mutually to recover them. Then both had smiled.

"Could you—would you—that is, I must get a small package to Nellie Blake—you know?—the next farmhouse."

"Surely," assented Merrill eagerly.

"I can't go there and I can't wait to have it mailed."

"As a private individual I am at your service," bowed Merrill.

"Oh, thank you!" and Pearl Foster handed him a neat parcel, smiled bewitchingly and flitted away like a frightened fawn.

The Blake home was the last farmhouse on Merrill's route. He delivered the package to Miss Blake and went on his way, dreaming fondly of the lovely girl who had broken the ice of a mutual acquaintance.

Merrill looked eagerly for his charming ideal the next day, but it was raining, so she did not come down to the mail box at the road. The next afternoon was fair, but the farm path leading up to the house was muddy. From the porch, however, Pearl made urgent gestures, apparently directing the attention of Merrill to a package on top of the letter box.

Merrill saw that it exactly resembled the one he had delivered to Miss Blake two days previous. It felt soft and fluffy and he decided it was some article of feminine adornment, a lace collar, an embroidered handkerchief, or the like. Merrill had heard that the elder sister of Miss Blake was about to be married. This new parcel, he theorized, might be a contribution to a prospective linen shower.

At all events he took it up, waved it at Pearl to indicate that he understood, and his pulse heightened as she vigorously bobbed her pretty head and smiled radiantly.

At the last delivery point Merrill had picked a spray of forget-me-nots. He released the tiny thing of beauty from his buttonhole and placed it between two letters directed to Pearl. Then he went on his way.

The next afternoon he sighted Pearl again on the porch. He hoped she would come to the road in person for the mail. Merrill even waved the letters intended for the house invitingly.

But coy Pearl betrayed an inexplicable shyness. She made a gesture and half hid behind a post. On top of the mail box was a fine bouquet of red roses.

"Ah, another errand to Miss Blake?" soliloquized Merrill, taking up the pretty flowers. He raised them to inhale their delicate perfume. Then his heart beat fast. Was it fancy? Could it be reality? Pearl had wafted him a light kiss with a lighter cooing laugh, and had flown into the house as if hiding some conscious guilt in a breach of decorum.

Miss Blake stared strangely at Merrill as he handed her the bouquet. She looked at him as if misunderstanding. Then she smiled quietly, but she took the flowers and thanked him.

By this time Merrill was head over heels in love with Pearl. His heart fluttered as he hoped that she was interested in him. But the next morning she did not even appear on the porch. The second morning she passed across the lawn, her chin high in the air. She actually turned her back upon him.

The third morning there was a sheet of paper across the mail box. It bore one word:

"Stupid!"

Merrill went his way, pondering. When his route was finished he dropped the reins of the old horse, sat back in the gig listlessly and saw life and all its hopes and motives drop into a sea of despairing gloom.

"What does it mean?" he murmured dejectedly. "'Stupid' — surely! It was meant for me, but why? why?"

The horse, left guideless, had strayed from the road into a thicket. In his present joyless mood Merrill allowed him to graze. His day's labors were over and he was in a frame of mind where solitude was a boon. Suddenly, however, Merrill was startled by the echo of a vivid scream.

"That is a woman's voice!" he decided, and leaped from the gig and dashed through the underbrush in the direction from which the cry had sounded. He came to an abrupt halt where a path intersected the wildwood

Miss Blake stood rigid with fear, confronted by a brawny tramp, who, cudgel in hand, menaced her.

"Out with your purse and off with your jewelry, my pretty!" ordered the man, and then he went sprawling at a well-directed blow from the strong fist of Merrill and made off baffled, as Merrill caught the half fainting girl in his arms.

Miss Blake was hysterical with gratitude, but in a few moments had somewhat regained her composure.

"I had just left Pearl—that is, Miss Foster," she explained, "when that horrid man came along."

"Then perhaps that fellow has started after her—began Merrill in an anxious tone.

"Oh, she is surely home by this time," interrupted Miss Blake. Then she paused. There seemed to be something on her mind. She finally placed a pleading hand on his own.

"You have been so good to me," she spoke falteringly, "I think I should tell you something about — about Pearl.

"Anything about Miss Foster will be of infinite importance to me," assured Merrill ardently.

"But—but it is a breach of confidence, perhaps." She hesitated. Then she burst out. "It was about those flowers."

"Oh, the roses Miss Foster sent you."

"She did not mean them for me."

"Indeed?" questioned Merrill puzzled.

"No. They were intended for—you."

"For me? Oh, I understand now!" cried Merrill in a quick, comprehensive gasp. "Why, I never dreamed of such a thing!"

"Your forget-me-nots—"

"I fancied she would scarcely notice them."

"Was it not a floral message?" intimated Miss Blake archly.

"And the roses were—"

"A reply. In the language of flowers—you should feel honored."

"And 'Stupid,' indeed, was I!" exclaimed Merrill, joyously.

"Poor Pearl!" continued Miss Blake. "She has been searching the woods for some grewsome plant that would express her heartbreak."

"She need not, if the assurance that I read her good will aright at last and am eager to tell her how happy she has made me!" orated Merrill in a riotous fervor of delight.

"Suppose—suppose you come over to our house tonight?" gently suggested Miss Blake.

"Suppose I do?" submitted Merrill hopefully.

"Pearl will be there. You can tell her all about your modest mistake."

Which Merrill did, in a quiet corner of the pretty garden, amid sleeping roses, and the chiming crickets, and the sweet white moonlight and—love!

Tuberculous Children.

The New York Medical Record, calling attention to a paper in the Journal of the American Medical Association of December 19, 1914, on the need of segregating young children born of tuberculous mothers, shows how promptly this suggestion has been acted on. Such an institution, called the Farmingdale (N. Y.) Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children, has been established where more than 180 children are accommodated. Recently provision has been made for the reception of infants under one year of age. The children are kept here for an average period of four months, so that the institution provides for nearly 600 children a year. The scheme of treatment is simple: Plenty of good food, a 24-hour day in the open air, an intimate acquaintance with the fields and woods and practical lessons in cleanliness and hygiene.

The "Camel" Among Plants.

The New York Botanical garden possesses a curiosity in a plant which supplies its own water from an internal reservoir. It comes from the Sonora desert in Mexico, and is called the guarequi. The plant develops a large, thickened root and stem base, and, in the short season—only a few weeks in length—during which it can obtain water from the soil, it supplies itself by means of short tendrils, which then dry up. After that it lies on the desert entirely detached from the soil. It is said that this odd plant can store enough water to last a quarter of a century.—Wide World Magazine.

Narrow Teaching.

Those who teach morality, limiting its obligations to duties toward family or country, teach you a more or less narrow egoism and lead you to what is evil for others and for themselves. Country and family are like two circles drawn within a greater circle which contains them both; like two steps of a ladder without which you could not climb any higher, but upon which it is forbidden you to stay your feet.—Mazzini.

HEAVY RAIN IN THIS SECTION SUNDAY

Last Sunday evening about 5:30 o'clock a heavy rain visited Clanton and this vicinity. For some weeks it had been dry and dusty, and crops were on the eve of serious damage. The nice rain Sunday and frequent showers since have greatly benefitted if not saved many of the crops. But at the time of the writing hopes are entertained for a full crop.

There are two ways of handling a car--the ECONOMICAL way, and the DESTRUCTIVE way. Compare them:

ECONOMICAL—Bring it to us occasionally and let us examine it, adjust it, and make slight repairs the moment they are needed. Keeps it in good shape and running smooth.

DESTRUCTIVE—Just to keep on "putting it off," regardless of its wheezings and groanings, until the final break comes and you have a big repair bill and weakened car.

We recommend the ECONOMICAL way. It is the safest, and by far the most inexpensive way.

SENSIBLE

A recent editorial paragraph in the Gadsden Times-News expresses in a few words a truthful and significant constructive policy. It says:

> "Lower freight rates over the Louisville & Nashville Railroad will be welcomed by Gadsden merchants and manufacturers—provided they do not impair the income of the road to such an extent that it will be forced to adopt a retrenchment policy. Good railroads are just as desirable as good wagon roads, and it takes money to build and maintain both."

When the editor of the Times-News wrote that paragraph he did not write it in the interest of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

The paragraph was written in the interest of the merchants and manufacturers, not only of Gadsden and surrounding territory, but in the interest of merchants and manufacturers everywhere.

This attitude on the part of a truly constructive editor indicates the trend of modern, progressive thought. It indicates that the people demand of a railroad that most important of all things—satisfactory service.

That the people should be willing for the railroads to earn a sufficient amount over and above expenses to insure a fair return on the investment and a surplus for maintenance and development.

The L. & N. agrees with this view, not only in the interest of the L. & N., but in the interest of the territory served by the L. & N.

The L. & N. states in all sincerity that it would not, under any circumstances, knowingly impose an unfair freight or passenger rate on the people doing business in the territory served by the L. & N., even if it had the power so to do.

To impose such a rate would handicap the farmers, the merchants, the manufacturers in their efforts to succeed in business.

To the extent that the people are handicapped, the L. & N. is handicapped.

To the extent that the people succeed the L. & N. will succeed.

The L. & N. will endeavor to at all times supply the best in passenger and freight services at rates as reasonable as possible, consistent with good business.

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND MAKES YOU SICK

Acts Like Dynamite on A Sluggish Liver and you lose a day's work.

There no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for colomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can't salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel sick, weak and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a days work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more billiousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

TO REPRODUCE GRAND REVIEW

Veterans of G. A. R. Will Repeat in Washington Famous Parade of Years Ago.

Washington.—Fifty years ago the victorious Union armies, fresh from the battlefields of the Civil war and the surrender at Appomattox, marched down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington.

It was a grand review of the war-scarred legions of Grant and Sherman, of Meade and Sheridan, and the other famous commanders whose "boys in blue" had preserved the union. President Johnson and General Grant were in the reviewing stand as the veterans swung proudly past to the exulting music of their bands, while the battle flags that had flown on a hundred bloody fields waved over the triumphant host.

This thrilling pageant will be reproduced, as far as possible, during the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which will be held in Washington, September 27—October 3, next. Thousands of the same veterans who marched in that review a half century ago uniformed in the Union blue, will again keep step to martial music down Pennsylvania avenue, and pass in parade before President Wilson and members of his cabinet. It will be the last time the veterans will march in Washington, and the last time that hundreds of them will ever again attend an encampment, as the aged men are fast passing away.

An elaborate program of entertainment for the veterans and citizens who visit the capital at that time is being prepared. The war and navy departments are co-operating in the program.

The former has arranged for exhibition drills of United States troops, cavalry, artillery and infantry, at Fort Myer, which is a suburb of Washington. The navy department will have a fleet of torpedo-boat destroyers, submarines, gunboats and a cruiser sent up the Potomac river to Washington, where the ships will remain during the encampment.

PRETTIEST GIRL IN AMERICA

Hoboken, N. J., has come into its own again, for the prettiest girl in America was once called the "belle of Hoboken." That was before Miss Justine Johnstone won the $5,000 prize for being the most beautiful girl in America. "If I were not a pretty girl," says Miss Johnstone, "I might still be living in Hoboken, instead of New York. If I had my choice between being the prettiest girl in America and the most talented girl, I would unhesitatingly choose the latter."

He has papers which establish his age beyond question, and the oldest inhabitants of Floyd county remember that Jerry was a grown-up man when they were in their kilties.

Jerry, the father of 44 children, distinctly remembers the war of 1812, and many of the Indian wars. He is now a widower, but has been married three times. He is well and hearty, but uses a cane when walking.

MAN FINDS HE HAS WIFE

Indianian Makes Sensational Discovery, While Preparing for Second Wedding.

Elmwood, Ind.—After William Gannaway, a local contractor, had obtained a license to marry Lillian Brack, an Elwood young woman, he learned that his wife, from whom he had been separated 12 years and who he had been informed had obtained a divorce from him, had never obtained a divorce.

Gannaway obtained a postponement of the wedding and the license is being held pending a decision on a suit for divorce which Gannaway has just filed. His wife was in Kenosha, Wis., the last time he heard of her.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

An Extract From Their Recommendations to the Legislative Body.

A bill is submitted herewith, requiring, with a few necessary exceptions therein mentioned, each department which receives money to make daily settlement with the state treasurer.

We recommend that every officer or agent of the state entrusted with the custody of any state funds be required to execute a bond conditioned for a faithful and true accounting of the moneys entrusted to his care and having as surety a bonding company authorized to do business in the state of Alabama. We recommend that the bond of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries be increased from $5,000 to $10,000.

The reasons for the general recommendations made above will be found as a running thread from the following report on and recommendations for the several departments.

The secretary of the senate and the clerk of the house are employees of these bodies at a stipulated salary. Their time belongs to the state. Following a long continued custom and one which this report will hereafter disclose has found its way into almost every department of state, these officers have used the state's time for their own financial gain. The copying and sale of legislative bills has become an attractive prerequisite of the office. This is specifically prohibited by the constitution as to certain of the state departments. Others are not mentioned. The spirit of the law would dictate that no department or officer of the state be allowed to charge for information peculiarly within a certain department and appropriate the money so obtained for his own use: This tends to lower the dignity of the office and to commercialize its functions. We submit herewith, recommending its passage, a bill prohibiting this practice.

We also find on the pay roll of the state persons who never worked for the state, and never came to the capitol.

We find that in the legislature of 1911, covering a period of 95 days, the number of employees of the senate was 107 at a cost of $21,375.80. The number of employees in the house, 103, at a cost of $23,342.50. In the legislature of 1915, covering a period of 38 days, the number of employees in the senate, 61, at a cost of $8,025.00. The number of employees in the house, 106, at a cost of $10,276.50. There is no necessity for this large number of employees. The positions have been created chiefly for the purpose of giving some friend or some member of the legislature a job. The work can be done more efficiently by fewer employees, and we submit herewith bills for the correction of these abuses.

Our constitution prescribes that the laws of the state shall be compiled and codified every 12 years. Since the code of 1907 the legislature has only met every four years. The constitutional provisions was doubtless adopted in its inception, because of the fact that the legislature met every two years. On account of the financial condition of the state at this time. we recommend that this legislature do not appoint a code commissioner. Other states have adopted the plan of codifying and compiling the statute laws by means of supplemental codes. We advise that this plan be adopted in Alabama. A saving to the state thereby of $35,000 will result.

Our laws now provide for the printing of the acts of the legislature three separate times: first, during sessions of the legislature for distribution in pamphlet form among the members of the legislature; second, after adjournment of the legislature in a newspaper; third, in permanent bound volumes. We see no necessity for publishing these acts, except in bound volumes, and, therefore, recommend that the other two publications be dispensed with.

GOOD ROADS DAYS

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week are the days set apart for good roads days in Alabama. Not only should this appeal be responded to because it is the proclamation of the governor, but everybody should take an interest in this because everybody needs good roads. Every little bit helps, and though you might not be able to put in a full days work, you can dig up a few roots and pitch out a few rocks and help some in that way. Let everyone do something for good roads on these days.

STANDARD WAREHOUSES FOR AMERICAN COTTON

Advantages Gained by Storing Cotton When the Markets Are Unsatisfactory.

Office of Information, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—The importance of properly constructed storage houses which conform to the standards recommended by the underwriters association and afford ample protection and a low insurance rate, as a means to help the farmer, banker and business man of the south hold the surplus cotton in times of over production or unsatisfactory market conditions, ls emphasized in a new bulletin of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, No. 277, entitled "Cotton Warehouse Construction." Types of warehouses designed to command a low rate of insurance and to minimize the cost of handling are described in detail. An earlier investigation, the results of which have been published in Bulletin 216, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, showed that although the existing storage facilities in the south, if used, could take care of an ordinary crop, few of them were properly located, many poorly designed, the insurance rates and cost of handling high, and that in general there was need of a great change in taking care of the cotton crop from the time it is picked until finally marketed, The so-called "country damage" to cotton is estimated at from $30,000,000 to $75,000,000 a year, almost all of which could be saved with an adequate warehouse system.

When properly stored and insured, cotton is considered by many to be one of the very best collaterals that can be offered upon which to loan money.

Money loaned on cotton stored in such warehouses should command a very low rate of interest. One of the primary reasons that farmers and business men have for storing cotton is to enable them to borrow money on it till market conditions improve.

The correct designing of a cot ton warehouse is of much importance, because upon the construction of the warehouse depends the rate of insurance charged for cotton inside it. The average insurance rate, it is said, in the buildings now in use is as high as $2 a year on $100. In standard warehouses. properly protected by automatic sprinkler equipment, this rate could be reduced to 25 cents on $100. It a curious fact that many of warehouses now in use more to build than if the been made to conform standards.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

They tell us prosperity is here but we fail to hear much money ratling in this section of the country.

The farmers of the country can sell every good mule and horse for the war zone, and also food stuffs are in demand.

It seems that the bill for a new county to be made out of Jefferson, championed by the Bessemer delegation has lost out in the Legislature.

The recall law is giving some of the officials of the cities some worry and trouble, and is costing them their political heads.

The local option candidate on the democrat ticket was nominated for governor of Kentucky in a recent primary election in that state.

Moran, the heavyweight, who fought 20 rounds with Jack Johnson last June in Paris, has arrived in America and says he wants to meet Jess Willard.

Bilbo of Mississippi polled more votes for Governor than all his opponents put together. You must not forget his name is Theodore.

The exemption of corporations from taxes and making the man with 40 acres of land and a mule pay his, is discrimination in favor of the rich.

There are 398,000 idle people in New York City alone—in the face of the high cost living that the free-traders were going to reduce at once.—Greenville Couriur.

The prospects now are that the Legislature will have another split session. The majority of this body pass as economists, but if they do not mind, the reforms along that line will be taken up by themselves and the people will get no benefit at last.

The Montgomery Advertiser printed the last sad rites over Bilbo of Mississippi too soon. Bilbo lacked a darn sight of being dead. He came forth with more votes than all his antagonists combined. The Advertiser lost its amunition that time.

The muddle in Mexico is still a problem in the affairs of this government. The report goes that North America and South America have agreed on the situation, and the Secretary of State reports the outlook for an early settlement most encouraging. It is to be hoped so, however. So small confidence is placed in those Mexican generals that nothing certain can be foreseen.

The Legislature will likely recommend the impeachment of Judge John Purifoy, Secretary of State. The recess probe committee made some ugly charges regarding Mr. Purifoy, and it is no more than what should be done that such charges be investigated. Judge Purifoy has been in office quite a number of years.

The towns and townsmen of Mississipppi were against Bilbo, but when buggy mails began to come in Bilbo's votes picked up. We do not know about Bilbo. He has had many charges brought against him, but it seems the common yeomanry of Mississippi want him for their governor, and we hope he will prove faithful to them.

We publish on our front page each week an exstract from the Legislative Probe Committee's report. The tax payers of the state should know and realize the real conditions, and should remedy those things at the ballot box. Graft is charged on every hand and the people pay the freight.

That the voters of the country in 1916 will vote for a return of the protective tariff laws there can be little doubt. The brand of prosperity we get under free trade is not very well calculated to fill a man's stomach nor afford him a hundred and one comforts and necessities. President Wilson is all right but we don't like free trade.—Adair News.

Letters to The Editor.

Billingsley, Ala., Aug. 2, 1915.—Editor Union-Banner: I see that there is being some pressure brought by the Democrats of Chilton county to try to get the Progressives to join them, since Bro. Adams has returned from his winter home in Florida.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to know what inducements they have to offer. I wonder if they will take the Legislative Investigating Probe Committee's Report to offer, where all manner of graft is shown. One writer says in effect that if the people of Chilton would come together and join Miss Democracy, that prosperity and happiness would dawn upon our county that would cause the most confirmed pessimist to get up and hustle like a three year old. Now brother I would like for some one in the name of all thats good and bad to tell me who ever heard of peace and prosperity under a democratic administration. Is'nt it a fact that the common people of Chilton county are in the worst shape they've been since the days of Grover notwithstanding there were the largest crops of everything raised in the south last year. What is the cause? Well, I guess they will cry war. But has the war caused all this trouble, or is it because the government is controled by the corporations and money power; or they may say what is the matter with the farmer because he dont diversify crops. Well, I had forgotten that he might do that and come all right. The lawyers, doctors, merchants bankers and politicians all advise that and I wonder some times why those people will stay in town and run their banks and hold a little unprofitable office when they could come out in the sticks and don a pair of overalls, get behind a gray mule, go to diversifyiny and get rich quick. I venture that any of those bankers captalist or politicians could settle on the poorest forty in Chilton get them a herd of jersy cattle build them a silo raise all manner of crops the first year and make a clear profit. Then they could raise tarpins; there is a great demand for them. I have been told that no rich Yankee would mind to pay ten dollars apiece for them. He could raise a few bears to dance for the children to amuse when the wasnt busy harvesting those bumper crops then when the tax collector comes round pay your tax, let those fellows that wont diversify take the money build schools for their children, automobile roads for those fellows that persists in running the banks and you just jog along behind your gray mule and haul your bumper crop to town over any kind of road you can. Lets quit politics brethren until the war is over.—One that wants to quitand have peace and prosperity.

Clanton, Ala. August 8, 1915.
Editor Union-Banner:—Will you please allow me space for a few words on the subject of our political condition in Chilton County? I hope that I can be heard for and in the interest of all the people, and I do not intend to waste a moments time or thought on the errors of the past, for every man must know, when he stops to think that we can never reform or do our best for the future while we stand and hold up the wrongs and mistakes of our lives, whether they are mistakes in politics, religion or business, in fact the great apsostle taught the doctrine that we should "lay aside every weight and sin which doth so easily beset us" and urged us to run the race that is set before us and before our children is the race which every good citizen should be concerned about.

Now if it can be shown better for all the people and for their children to continue this political strife in the schools, churches, lodges, in jury box, in fact in every public thing in Chilton county, then I have not another word to say, but if a better understanding, less abuse, less campaigning and less bitterness in feeling can be had by union, then I am for union, and it does seem to me that if we have unreasonable men, men who are not fair and honest toward their fellow men, that when all the people come together that certainly they would be able to look after such men.

Doesn't it look to you that all the good citizens of this county, working in harmony, and for the one great purpose for the greatest good to the greatest number, that they would be able to handle any unruly or unprincipal man?

In my judgment the two executive committees will have no trouble in suggesting a plan whereby all men regardless of past affiliations in politics will be able to honorably vote in and abide the decision of such primary.

Respectfully submitted,
S. M. Adams.

Profit Sharing With Retail Buyers.

On August 1, 1914, we made an announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between August 1, 1914 and August 1, 1915, we would share profits with the retail purchasers, to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car. We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

Corn Club Prize Winners.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me space to thank the Judge and Commissioners of the county for their generosity shown toward me in giving me the trip to Auburn. I also duly appreciate the kindness of Mr. Conway in accompanying me on the round. Mr. Curlin of Auburn is due many thanks for his interest in me while I was there. I believe that farming is the greatest business in the world if it is scientificly followed; and I am glad that I am a little boy living in the country, as there is a great opportunity lying open for me. I hope to have charge of a farm some day myself, and help Chilton county to be the best one of the state.

Yours truly,
Johnny Short.

Dear Editor:—I wish to express my regards to Mr. W. H. Conway also to the County Commissioners for sending me to the summer school at Auburn. They were so kind as to let me stop off at Montgomery and go up to the capitol of Alabama. I enjoyed very much the entire trip.

Yours sincerely,
Ernest H. Murphy.

Kind Editor:—I wish to say a few words in regard to my trip to Anburn.

I was very thankful to be one of the prize winners and to have the splendid advantages of the trip. There were 221 boys in attendance together with the agents of the corn club work. We received a cordial welcome, and were enjoyably entertained.

Convict System

Some of the legislators are quoted as saying that they were opposed to the manner in which the convicts of the state were being handled and abused, and in many cases killed out right in the mines of the state, but that owing to the financial condition of the state they were not willing to make a change now. This is a bad state of affairs. With the admission that it isoutrageous and almost a crime against human naiure, yet our law makers are willing for this condition to exist, and for human lives to be sacrificed, all because the politicians and grafters of the state have gotten the state in bad straits financially. If it is wrong to work the poor, unfortunate convicts in the mines and besides the punishment, sometimes get them killed, without worrying even, why is it not right to change these conditions and the quicker the better? These creatures who are sent to these places under the strong arm of the state are human beings, and the life of one human being is worth more than the wealth of the state, when it comes to right or wrong; and the fact that Alabama is heavily in debt should not stand in the way of the protection of those unfortunate creatures. If the system is wrong it should be changed and changed at once. Let the finances take care of themselves.

From many scurces the reports come from Birmingham that, that district is on the eve of prosperity again. This is an encouraging thought to the entire district, and we hope it is true this time. Those who are in a position to say, tell that the furnaces in and near Birmingham, which have been idle for years are again in blast. The iron and steel markets have advanced in price and demand, so the papers say, and almost a boom is in sight. The people of the district whose wages have been cut—some half and some all—will welcome this wave of prosperity. Let it be hoped that this is no idle dream this time.

If the bill exempting the corporations in the state from paying taxes passes both houses and becomes a law, it will be a slap in the face of every individual tax payer in the state. If these corporations cannot live and prosper without their taxes being remitted they are poor concerns. The fact is that they are money coining institutions, and what they bluff out in the way of tax exemptions is picked up, to the detriment of the people. These big mills and corporations have as much right to pay their lawful taxes as any body in the state and should be made by law to pay them. As was suggested by some of the Legislators, there are too many corporation lawyers in the Legislature.

Great Old Remedy For Skin Diseases

S. S. S. Clears Skin of Eruptions Drives Poison From the System.

Get it fixed in your mind that skin eruptions, Scrofula, Eczema, burning itching skin, and all skin diseases are due entirely to impure and infected blood. If the trouble was on the outside of the skin, by simply washing and keeping it clean you could obtain relief — not even ointments, lotions, and salves, would be necessary. Agree with us in this belief, and your trouble can be relieved—you can be entirely restored to health. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable treatment that you can secure from your own druggist—it is a blood tonic that will purify your blood and cause a most decided abatement of your trouble, and finally make you entirely well. Fifty years ago S. S. S. was discovered and given to suffering mankind. During this period it has proven its remarkable curative properties as a blood purifier and tonic, and has relieved thousands of cases of disease caused by poor or impure blood, and chronic or inherited blood diseases. You can be relieved, but you must take S. S. S. Take it if only pimples appear, for they denote bad blood, and may be followed by the sufferings from torturing skin eruptions. Therefore be sure. Don't take chances, don't use lotions. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. If yours is a special case, write for expert medical advice to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Sewing Circle With Much Whispering

Before the stork arrives there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic. And there is sure to be someone who has used or knows of that splendid external help, "Mother's Friend." It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in and has a most pronounced effect as a lubricant. It soothes the network of nerves, enables the muscles to expand naturally, relieves strain on the ligaments and thus sets at ease any undue strain on the organs involved. And it does this with perfect safety. Expectant mothers thus go through the ordeal with comparative ease and comfort. Knowing mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" speak in glowing terms of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and a freedom from many other distresses.

One of the most important symptoms to be relieved by "Mother's Friend" is the imagination that so often disturbs repose. Pains, even though natural, may so distort the mind that undue apprehension will sometimes follow. The gentle, soothing influence of "Mother's Friend" gives the mind substantial aid to become conscious of strength and there is a real, physical sensibility of muscular vigor as evidenced by freedom from undue strain.

You can get "Mother's Friend" at any drug store or they will gladly get it for you. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 701 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book of great value to all expectant mothers. It contains a valuable expectancy chart, rules on diet and is brimful of suggestions that all women will appreciate.

Dust and Iron in the Appendix.

That foreign bodies in the appendix are often the initial cause of appendicitis is a long-exploded idea; that is, so far as bodies of any size are concerned. But Dr. Carlo Savini of New York reports to the Medical Record that in many cases very minute sharp foreign bodies are found in that organ and, in some cases at least, were probably the cause of the initial lesion. Doctor Savini has recovered from appendices microscopic particles which prove on chemical analysis to be slivers of coal containing a small quantity of iron, sometimes with very sharp cutting edges.

Valuable Oak Carvings.

In the vaults of St. Paul's cathedral in London is stored away a rich store of priceless oak carving, part of which was originally in the cathedral, and part removed from city churches when demolished. A selection of these relics, consisting mostly of woodwork placed in the cathedral in the time of Sir Christopher Wren, has just been lent to the Geffrye museum of the L. C. C. Of special interest are a prayer desk, an overdoor, stall brackets, trusses, and an oak capital, all beautifully carved, together with specimens of Tijou's ironwork.

Japanese Cookery.

Japanese cooks seldom use the fingers in the preparation of food. Chopsticks, spoons and many other ingenious little utensils in white wood do the work, which is of the most elaborate nature, many of the dishes requiring twenty-four hours to prepare.

Would You Cripple Alabama?

Would You Close its Ore Mines and waste its Coal?

Then Why Check the Development of the State's Water Power?

In 1907 the legistature of Alabama, in order to induce capital, exempted the investments of all persons, firms and corporations from taxation for a period of ten years, on plants erected in Alabama for the development of its water power. This was a most important consideration in bringing the Alabama Power Company into existence, for it showed that the people of the state desired the improvements. It was this declared policy---an assurance of protection---that brought the Alabama Power Company into the state.

Please bear in mind that this exemption law applied to all persons, firms and individuals, and was passed four years before the developments of Alabama Power Company began.

Further developments of the state's water power—now going to waste—is at a crisis. The repeal of the tax exemption law now before the State Legislature, would be a repudiation of the state's solemn promise of protection, and itwould stop the biggest industrial development in the state of Alabama.

This means the door of opportunity in hundreds of small towns in Alabama would be closed, for the reason that they could not get power except at prohibitive cost frm any other source.

The Alabama Power Company is one of the biggest factors in the industrial progress of the state. To date their expenditures in Alabama are more than 12 million dollars, funds secured from the sale of secureties to INDIVIDUAL inves tors. It will be impossible to realize evon interest on this investment during the first ten years of operation. The initial investment in developing water power is so enormous that some inducement is necessary—that is why the state of Alabama very wisely exempted water power plants from taxation for ten years, and the state will not withdraw the guarantees made and accepted in good faith, and on which millions of dollars have been spent. Alabama will not repudiate its pledge which induced these investmeets.

Workis just beginning or in progress on an extension of the Alabama Power Company's lines of 137 miles, at a cost of a million and a half dollars, that will bring cheap, efficient power to Tuscaloosa, West Blocton, Jacksonville, Piedmont, Quenelda, Ashland, Hartselle, Guntersville, Boaz, Albertville and others.

This territory anticipates greater industrial prosperity when this work is completed.

Relying on the good will and the letter of the law, we have made surveys and preljminary plans for other extensions to bring the commercial blessings of cheap, efficient power to other Alabama cities. We know Alabama will not repudiate its sacred promise.

Resolution passed by the Board of County Commissioners Chilton County, Ala., Aug. 10th, 1915:

BE IT RESOLVED by the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, Alabama, that while we are opposed to the passing of any laws creating any further exemptions of property from taxation in the future, we believe that the present exemption laws on the statute books, the purpose of which is to induce the coming of capital into this state for the development of water power, should stand, and not be repealed, as they affect all investments that have come into this state, relying on the exemption provided in these statutes.

We firmly believe that the state of Alabama should keep inviolate its faith and agreements with all persons, firms and corporations who have invested money in the state of Alabama upon the face of these statutes exempting them from taxation.

We believe that the investments made by the Alabama Power Company in this county have been of great benefit and will be of greater benefit in the future, and we are glad they are here, and welcome them in our midst.

JAMES MITCHELL, President

In the East and the West

By H. M. EGBERT

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

"It's never Will Thorpe!"

"That you, Jimmy?"

The two men gazed at each other in half incredulity. Then:

"How you've changed, Will!" exclaimed the easterner.

"I guess I'm wearing clothes that I wouldn't have cared to be seen in at Harvard or in Boston," said Will Thorpe, smiling at his friend.

"I don't mean that," answered Jimmy Tremont. "It's—it's—well, I don't know just what it is!"

Will Thorpe thought about his friend's words that evening when he was alone in his cabin on the mountainside. Had he changed during his three years in the West, beyond the mere physical appearance? He was inclined to think he had. Certainly his tastes seemed to have altered in many ways.

Will Thorpe had been sent West three years before. He had been an idler and extravagant; at last his father, who had always dealt with the boy rather harshly, refused to assist him further unless he entered his iron foundry and settled down. Angry words had arisen, and in the end Will had packed his suitcase and gone West with a hundred dollars in his pockets.

His sweetheart, Marion Vansittart, had scolded him for his decision. She had reminded him, petulantly, that she could neither marry a poor man nor wait for ever. He had kissed her and told her that he would return with his fortune made. And for a few months she had written. Then her letters became shorter and less frequent; finally they ceased altogether.

It was more than two years since he had heard from her. And gradually the new life had woven itself about him, and he had ceased to care.

Then he had received a mysterious,

Rode Slowly Down the Valley.

unsigned message asking him to be at the railway depot at a certain hour, to meet the train. And he had gone, to find Jim Tremont waiting there. Jim was passing through on his way to California, he told him, and he had heard he was in that part of the country. Did Will know that his father was dead and he was the sole heir to five million dollars? He had better write home quickly, because everyone was searching for him, and he had only heard of his address by chance.

"I suppose you'll be back East in a week, and holding out at the club," said Jimmy casually, as he shook hands and said good-by.

It was that that made Will think he had really changed. How could he associate those elusive memories which he had almost forgotten with this life that had taken possession of him?

He thought of Norma Gale, the daughter of the old homesteader down the valley. How was he to tell her? The girl, educated and refined as were all the people of the district, was utterly unpresentable in the sort of society in which he had moved. She had never worn a gown with a low neck in her life. She would be helpless among a crowd of people such as—Marion Vansittart!

Yet it never occurred to Will that he could do anything but go. It had never entered his mind that he was to stay permanently in the West.

A man on horseback was riding up to his cabin. Will watched him as he approached. Visitors were something of an event in the settlement, and Will knew the rider as the telegraphist in the cluster of houses that had grown up around the depot and was called a city.

"Wire for you, Thorpe!" he announced briefly.

Will took the message and opened it. He stared at it as if he did not understand. It was from Marion. She had learned his address, she said—probably everyone could discover the address of a millionaire—and she was passing through on her way East from the San Francisco exposition. She would stay an hour while they changed engines. Would he meet her?

"Thanks," said Will to the telegraphist, and watched him ride down the hill.

Yes, he was going East, and going back to Marion. For a moment the old life came rushing over him, with its memories, its thousand allurements. And the new life meant nothing.

He mounted his horse and rode slowly down the valley. He had no destination in mind, but suddenly he realized that he was approaching the homesteader's house. And at the door stood Norma, in her sunbonnet.

She greeted him. "Won't you come in and take some tea?" she asked. "I hear you are going East, Mr. Thorpe."

He dismounted, and now he saw that her lips were trembling. How had she known he was going East? Did news fly as fast in this settlement as in the great world? And what did it matter to her?

"Yes, I am going East, Norma," he answered, taking her hands in his.

"I—I congratulate you," she answered quietly. But he saw the tears in her eyes.

"You have meant so much to me," he said impulsively. "I hate the thought of going. And yet—it is my duty, I suppose."

"Then you must go," said the girl softly. She was smiling very bravely at him. "Won't you come in?"

"No—I can't now," he said crudely. "Norma, I shall—I shall see you again before I go."

She nodded, and he knew the meaning of her silence. The girl cared for him, and in her unsophisticated way was incapable of concealment. He saw her walk back quickly into the cabin.

Marion's train was to arrive the following morning. Will rode down to the depot with a heavy heart. The old and the new were tugging at it, and he did not know which pulled him the harder. There were so many memories here—yet the thought of Marion came to him like a flood of sunlight. How he had loved Marion! She had tacitly released him by her silence, and yet doubtless she would explain that. He would follow her soon. He saw the old life vividly, their marriage, the quiet home in Boston. . . .

The train was pulling in. He had stood on the platform in a sort of daze. Now he awakened suddenly, and he felt his heart beating hard in anticipation. The men about the platform were watching him curiously. He looked into the carriages of the train as it came to a halt. He walked its length. Marion was not there. Had she missed her train?

"Still dreaming, Will?" asked a hard voice over his shoulder.

He started round, to see Marion, with a party of girl friends, dressed in the height of fashion, looking at him with a smile.

"Dear me, I must be very hard to find," she said. "Well! When are you coming home?"

The hardness of her tones struck him like a blow. Surely he had changed out of all recognition if he had ever thought Marion's voice beautiful. The girl whom he had loved to the point of infatuation stood revealed to him as an artificial, hard young woman, without the slightest charm.

"I think it was very wrong of you not to write to me for so long," she continued. "But I forgive you, Will. We can forgive a man with millions anything, can't we, Dora?"

The girl addressed as Dora murmured something. The whole party was taken aback, not to say shocked, at the sight of this man in the cowboy clothes. And he was a millionaire! He was Will Thorpe of Harvard and Boston!

Perhaps Marion shrewdly divined the change that had occurred in him, for she drew him aside.

"Will, I know I ought to have been more serious," she said, "But you can't think how startling and ridiculous you look, dressed like one of these natives. Listen, Will, and let me explain. I have always cared for you just as much, but I couldn't be engaged to a beggar. You see that for youself, don't you? And everybody understood that your father was going to cut you out of his will, instead of leaving you the sole heir. I am just as fond of you, Will."

Will Thorpe looked at her with slowly rising anger. She did not realize what she was saying. Had he ever been like that? Was that the kind of man that he had been, that she so confidently imagined he was still?

"So when are you coming home, Will?" she continued. "When are you coming home to me?" she added softly.

The train conductor blew his whistle. Will looked her full in the face. "Never!" he answered roughly.

The party was moving toward the train. Will saw the look of amazed indignation upon Marion's face. He broke from her. He mounted the horse that was tethered to a post outside the depot. The train was starting. But Will was riding for the mountain slopes, and his "never" rang in his ears like the sound of a chanted chorus.

He flung himself from his horse at the cabin door which hid at that moment all that life held most precious for him.

"Norma!" he shouted, hammering with his knuckles.

He heard her footsteps; he saw her stand before him; he caught her in his arms.

"Norma! I have come home to you," he cried.

Narrow Teaching.

Those who teach morality, limiting its obligations to duties toward family or country, teach you a more or less narrow egoism and lead you to what is evil for others and for themselves. Country and family are like two circles drawn within a greater circle which contains them both; like two steps of a ladder without which you could not climb any higher, but upon which it is forbidden you to stay your feet.—Mazzini.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

PREPAREDNESS

The value of being prepared is one of the great, impressive lessons learned from the present devastating war in Europe.

Whether or not we agree with the motives which actuate Germany in the struggle, we can not help but admire the remarkable spirit demonstrated in the face of great odds.

Germany was prepared, the result of a policy fixed forty years ago.

James J. Hill, the great developer of the Northwest, asserts that war is wanton waste. But the waste is going on in Europe. We, of the United States, and of the South in particular, should be prepared to replenish that waste.

The L. & N. is vitally interested, and anxious to impress the necessity for preparedness on all the people. There is of necessity going to be an enormous demand made upon the territory served by the L. & N. for cotton, food stuffs and every known necessity, not to speak of many comforts.

Those of the people who are prepared to supply the demand are the ones who will reap the benefits.

The L. & N. will benefit to the extent that the people supply the demand, because the L. & N. will be prepared to supply every facility demanded by the traffic. There would be no use for the people to prepare to supply the demand if the L. & N. was not prepared to supply the transportation.

In order to supply the demand the L. & N. must maintain its present high standard of road bed and rolling stock. The L. & N. must continue to operate safe and fast schedules, so that the products of the territory will be able to compete in time of delivery with the products of other territories.

The L. & N. has no idea when this demand will make itself known, just as the nations of Europe and America had no idea when the world would become involved in war.

But the L. & N. hopes for the sake of humanity that the time of peace, industry and prosperity is not far distant.

In the meantime the L. & N. will work with and for the people to bring about conditions here at home as nearly mutually satisfactory as is possible.

CAVE MAN TEACHES

Tells California University Students of Primitive Life.

Half Starved Indian, Captured in the Wilds of California, Is Now an Instructor at State Institution.

Oakland, Cal.—A naked, half-starved Indian, knowing less than the children in the first grade in Oakland schools and captured only when treed by dogs in the wilds of the hills near Oroville, is today a college professor. He can't read, in fact, he can hardly speak, but he's taught scientists something they have been groping for through many years, and "Ishi," as he is called, is now one of the notables of the University of California, one of the most famous of professors, and probably will give lessons to boys and girls in Oakland when they grow up and go to college, that is, if they take up the study of anthropology.

"Ishi" is employed daily as an instructor at the Affiliated Colleges, the medical school of the university, and, besides teaching men how the Indians chopped wood and rubbed sticks to make fire he has shown them how men lived long before they knew the things we know now, for "Ishi" is the last of the cave men, or the men who in ages past lived in caves almost like the beasts of the field.

"Ishi" isn't a cave man any more. He's a gentleman now, and in his "store clothes" and with his top hat he's very proud of himself, all except the feet. He won't wear shoes because he says they hurt his feet, and besides, what's the use of being a professor if one has to wear shoes?

"Ishi's" lectures tell of the mode of life of his people, of whom he is the last. He tells of his explorations in the hills and of his hunting and fishing. He never tells of those who went before him, because he believes that to call them by name would mean that they could come back and ask who called, and his religion won't let him speak of the dead.

"Ishi" was, and perhaps still is, the most "uncivilized" man in the world. Until he was captured by the university scientists in 1911 none of his tribe had been seen since 1860. The little tribe lived near Mill creek, in the forests, where they stayed in hiding, avoiding traders and keeping away from the railroad track where engines rumbled by them. They thought the locomotives some strange sort of demon; in fact, "Ishi" is just a little nervous about them yet!

MAN LIVES IN TWO COUNTIES

Parlor in One Congressional District in West Virginia, Bedroom in Another.

Washington.—After moving his bedroom across the hall so he will sleep in Cabell county instead of Wayne county, James A. Hughes of Huntington, W. Va., has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congressman from the new Fourth district.

Mr. Hughes recently completed 14 years of service in congress, having represented the Fifth district ever since it was created. Foreseeing a possible change in the districts, he built his home with the county line running through his hallway.

Heretofore his parlor has been in Cabell while he slept in Wayne county, in the Fifth congressional district. But the legislature recently redistricted the state, putting Cabell county into the Fourth district, in which Mr. Hughes preferred to run. Consequently he shoved his parlor into Wayne and his sleeping room into Cabell to make him eligible to run in the Fourth district.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

An Extract From Their Recommendations to the Legislative Body.

The committee has given more of its time to the convict system than to any other subject that has come under consideration. We have visited every coal mine that the state has any connection with; have been under the earth; through the camps; have seen the prisoners fed; have watched them at labor; have observed them on Sunday; have examined the members of the state boards, the wardens, convict guards, the chaplains; have talked with the convicts while under sentence; have had before us those who had served and completed their sentences. Every phase of convict life in Alabama has been considered. Endeavor has been made to leave nothing relative to it untouched or unnoticed.

The laws of other states have been looked into, and in some instances we have personally observed their operation. This subject was approached with an open mind. After consideration we have been forced to the conclusion that the convict lease system of Alabama is a relic of barbarism, a species of human slavery, a crime against humanity. We do not advocate the pampering of prisoners, and are not seeking to prepare for them a bed of roses. They should be made to work; their fate should be an example to others. We have no legal or moral right after they are sentenced to add thereto "cruel and unusual punishment." A sentence to hard labor should not impliedly include a deprivation of nourishment, an absence of God's sunlight, the breaking of bones, the maiming of limbs, the disfigurement of persons, the loss of life [illegible]. Lessees should not have the authority after jury and judge have acted to add punishment which no court could in the first instance have imposed.

Two boys were arrested for stealing a ride on a train, tried, convicted and sentenced for a short time. The second day in the mine an explosion snuffed out their lives. Investigations ascertained that they were Kentucky youths of good repute and family, on a foolish escapade, too proud to give their true names. To put untrained, inexperienced short-term convicts at extra hazardous work where life may pay the forfeit is almost judicial murder. Farmer's son, tillers of the soil, bred-in-the-bone to the open life; mountaineers, lovers of nature, used to God's country, we found them in the bowels of the earth, going in hours before the sun rose and coming out hours after it set. The imposition tasks from ten to fourteen tons of coal day required, and from one to four tons added to guard against rock in the coal, the enforcement of these tasks by brutal treatment, so brutal that in some instances brought to the committee's attention, the skin was literally beaten from the back, causing scars that will be carried to the grave. ill-prepared and insufficient food, their burial in roughly constructed boxes made from lumber taken from old houses, at a cost not exceeding $2.50 a funeral, are all illustrations of man's inhumanity to man.

It may be said that we mention exceptional cases. But we found them of general occurance. We know these conditions exist because we saw them, and have had evidence of them. Instances could be multiplied except for lack of space in this report.

Under normal conditions the convict would not perform average work, yet we find uuder this driving slavery system where the free miner mines two tons, the convict produces four. The convict should not be allowed to choose his work, but without experience, knowledge, aptitude or training, he should not be forced to take his life in his hands by engaging in labor dangerous even to those who are trained and experienced in such work on account of falling rock, explosives, unsupported roofs, gas and dust explosions.

Our courts have decided that no one can contract against his own negligence and where the covict is working under control of the lessee the latter is liable for injuries received through his negligence or wanton or willful acts. We find that under the late leases of the state, they are so worded that the convict is under the control of the state and wehn maimed or injuried has no remedy, however great may be the negligence, or however wilful or wanton may be the act causing his injury. The state has therefore become, not only a partner, but also a protector of these iniquities.

CHILTON COUNTY TEACHERS INSTITUTE

Complete Account of Proceedings of Last Weeks Session.

The annual institute for the teachers of Chilton was in session last week at the county high school building, and came to a close Friday at noon. All the sessions were highly interesting and inspiring.

Prof. J. R. Rutland of the department of English at Auburn and state high school inspector, was the head conductor. He had charge of the work of the advanced and elementary grades and vocational work for men. Prof. Rutland is one of the most able men of educational force in Alabama. His talks to the teachers were very masterful and he won many friends by his pleasant manners during his stay here.

Prof. Rutland was assisted by Miss Raynor Tillman of the city schools of Birmingham. She had charge of the primary grades and vocational work for women. Her unusual ability was demonstrated by the success she had in carrying on the work of her department.

Especial emphasis was placed on vocational work, and the need for it in the public schools. A number of articles in manual training work were made and demonstrated by the teachers. Particular attention was given to the construction and use of the fireless cooker as an economic and sanitary method of cooking. Miss Tillman gave a number of useful lessons in domestic science.

Among the special features of the institute were addresses by Prof. Zebulon Judd, head of the Department of Education at Auburn, Dr. V. J. Gragg, Chilton county health officer, and Mrs. E. D. Thames of Greenville, the field agent for the Alabama illiteracy commission.

Prof. Judd spoke Tuesday on the subject: "The School—Its Character, its Aim, and its Method." The speaker first emphasized the fact that the school is a social institution founded to carry out the purpose of society. It was brought about by the complexities of social life.

He then spoke of the aims of the school, viz: 1. To socialize its members. One of the greatest impediments to the progress of the commonwealth has ever been the unsocialized condition of its population. It has limited the power of the people to cooperate in social and industrial enterprises. 2. To vocationalize the members of society, or to provide them with the knowledge and skill necessary to secure their industrial freedom. 3. To vitalize the boys and girls who come under its influence. This aim is attained by and thru the first two aims, for through the realization of their social ideals and the intelligent application of some worthy occupation the children and youth develop motive and initiative ideas which characterize a vital life. The speaker also emphasized the importance of recreative and play activities.

Last, Prof. Judd discussed briefly the methods by which a school accomplishes its aims. First in importance is the study of language whereby the pupil acquaints himself with the genius of past and present civilizations. Second is the sciences, through which those bodies of knowledge by means of which civilization has been built up.

Dr. Gragg made a very interesting talk Friday morning on the health conditions of the county, and the work of the rural schools in co-operating with the health officer in his plans.

Mrs. Thames spoke on Friday morning on "Why we should remove illiteracy, and how it can be done." She gave interesting statistics upon conditions in Alabama. She also referred to the work being done in Dale, Shelby and other counties to remove illiteracy, showing that it is possible to educate the adult illiterate; that they are anxious to learn. Three different plans were outlined by which the teacher could help in the work, viz: The one for one plan, by which each teacher agrees to teach one individual to read and write; to teach an adult school, and third, to make a contribution.

Reports were made made by some of the teachers who have been teaching illiterates in Chilton county.

Mrs. Thames closed by calling on all those who would agree to support the sub-commission in the county work to rise. Almost the entire body rose.

Supt. Bean explained the project of publishing in Chilton county a public school magazine in the interest of education, which was received very enthusiastically by the teachers.

The roar of the lion, according to our men of science, can be heard farther than any noise made by any other living creature. Evidently the Colonel was overlooked.—Commercial Appeal.

The people should rule in all things public. When the people speak and act the best ends are subserved to the public good. The people can be trusted at all times. The public is safeguarded in their hands.

Democratic reign and corruption has ruled in Alabama for many years past. Is the present condition of the state worthy of the support of the honest citizen. Graft and thievery is charged on every hand.

One of the signers of the Delaration of Independence said as he signed the historic document: "We must all hang together, or we will all be hanged separately." Doesn't that fit our farmers now? They must all hang together, or they will pay the penalty separately.—National Field.

If you can think of anything that can be done to beautify or build up our town, go to it. Keep your capital at home; patronize home industries; help your home merchants so they can sell cheaper; always get your work done in your own town if possible; subscribe and pay for home papers, don't steal or borrow the reading of them. If you follow these suggestions and your town does not improve and build up, it will not be your fault. Try it.—Southern Democrat.

Bilbo of Mississippi, it is said has been elected by the country people, to be the next governor of the state. If Bilbo is a good man, his election will prove a blessing for the state of Mississippi. If he is a good man, he will look to the welfare and interest of his constituents, who elected him, and they arethe country people and they need help. If he does not stick to the people whe elected him, he is not worthy of the name of governor.

In this country now the people are capable of judging for themselves. The ordinary citizen reads his daily papers his farm papers and periodicals, and he is enlightened on most all subjects. It used to be that just a few—the intelligent and virtuous—had to shape the lives of the common people, by dictation and wielding the influences of the powers that were, but that day is past. The common people have as much to say in the affairs of this free and independent government as anybody, and they should have.

The law passed by the Legigislature allowing a board of education to appoint the Superintendent, is only another slap at the rights of the people. It is true the board is elected directly by the people, but the election of the officer who serves the people comes from an appointive power. The sovereign right of the people is ignored and no good reason can be given. Why not have a board elected by the people in cojunction with the Surerintendent; and also let the people elect all of them.

The democratic candidates for the House of Representatives in Coffee County who were opponents in a recent election within the democratic party are charging all manner of fraud and corruption, and the election is being contested. They are both democrats and ran in a democratic primary and had no opposition.

The office they were seeking was made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Carmichael, a former representative in the Legislature. Shame on the democrats of Coffee for having any discension within their ranks. Everything should be brotherly love, peace and harmony in an election like that.

In an extract from the Recess Probe Committe's report we find these words: "We also find on the pay roll of the state persons who never worked for the state and never came to the state capital."

This sounds like olden times when the poll tax list never showed the names of the many voters who voted in the elections. How long will the people of Alabama submit to such conditions. Is it not a fact that such things have been imposed on the people for the last 30 years? By what authority has any one to draw state funds without having performed some service for the state? Would the people of Alabama ever been the wiser, had not this committe divulged the facts? This is given out from the same party men—all claiming to be democrats.
Is it not getting to be a bad state of affairs when such conditions exist and the people are being swamped in such a manner. The democrat party has been in power too long.

Letters to The Editor.

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 17, 1915.—Editor Union-Banner: — I wish to say a few words in regard to the uniting of the two parties, as advocated by a few democrats, who can't see any office for them unless such a thing was done.

They don't tell us which crowd they want to join, the crowd that's geting the money or the crowd that is furnishing the investigating committees.

I oppose any such a movement, for can we walk up in the 1916 election and vote for Woodrow Wilson and to continue things as they exist now.

I have not heard anyone say that they would suffer their right arm burned off to their shoulder before they would join the democratic partv, but from the way they talk there would be about fifteen hundred stubs in our county before they would vote to continue things as they are now in our national government.

L. O. Vickers.

Jemison, Ala., Aug. 17, 1915.—Editor Union-Banner:—Times are awfully dull in this part of the world, as there is a lot of long faces. Cotton and corn are both cut short, but some have plenty of home-made biscuits to eat.

J. T. Abbott and I, bought us a new threshing machine this season, and we threshed a little over 1,300 bushels of wheat, 2,900 of oats and 81 of rye. I would be glad if every man that ran a thresh in the county would report the number of bushels they threshed, so we could see how much was made. All we threshed was grown in Chilton but 160 bushels, which was raised in Bibb county.

Well Mr. Editor, I am getting my gun loaded up again and will let it off again in a few weeks. I did not know Mr. Adams was back until he appeared in the paper. I will tell you all about it in a few weeks.

I will close for this time after stating that I have seed rye for sale at home or at Collum's and Shaw's stores at Jemison.

Yours for success,
J. N. Scott.

Corn Club Prize Winners.

Dear Editor: Will you please allow me a space in your paper to tell my friends about my trip to Auburn which I received as a prize, together with a nice desk, through the boys corn club of Chilton County.

I think every boy should strive to win this prize for this is as pleasant and as valuable a trip as a boy counld take. I was accompanied by Mr. Conway, who took great interest in my welfare. As we arrived at Auburn we were met by several corn club boys from different counties, together with Prof. C. B. Kerlin.

I wish to thank Mr. Kerlin for his kind attention while at Auburn; and we all thank Mr. Conway and the Commissioners for assisting us in winning the prize.

A Corn Club Member,

U. S. Internal Revenue Notice

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 2, 1915.

Yours truly,

Sworn to and subscribed before me this second day of August, 1915.

The Legislature of Alabama is democratic with the exceptions of 2 or 3, and has been for many years. This body of men assembling at the capital from time to time have had every opportunity to do good for the people. If continuous power goes for the accomplishment of things, then why can it be said that Alabama has any bad laws. The democratic party virtually unopposed has had sway and control. We dare say that the conditions existing are not complimentary in the least. Graft and corruption should not be the result of many years reign.

TIME TO SOW BUR CLOVER

Sowing in the Bur Should be Earlier Than in the Hulled Seed.

By J. F. Duggar, Director of Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Bur clover seed, if in the bur, should be sown earlier than any other winter-growing soil-improving plant.

Bur clover seed is found on the market in two different conditions, that is, (1) unhulled or in the bur; and (2) as hulled seed. The time of sowing hulled and unhulled seed is quite different.

Bur clover, sown in the bur, unless scalded, requires a long time for the soil to become closely settled into close contact with the seed. Only after this packing of the soil around the seed does germination become general.

Bur clover seed in the bur, whether of the Southern or of the California species, should be sown in central Alabama as soon after September 1st as practicable.

If the seed are scalded, as shown in the Alabama Experiment Station Circular No. 29, the date of sowing may be two or three weeks later.

Hulled or cleaned bur clover seed, which heretofore has consisted entirely of the California variety, germinates promptly, and hence may be sown as late as crimson clover seed. That is, in central Alabama, one may sow hulled bur clover seed from September 10th to October 10th. In sowing unhulled bur clover seed, and usually in sowing even the burs of the California species, the seed or soil should be inoculated, either with soil from an old patch of bur clover, alfalfa, or melilotus, or else with pure cultures (bottled) of these bacteria.

FALL GARDEN SUGGESTIONS

By Ernest Walker, Horticulturist, Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Till surface of the ground in midsummer after rains, to conserve moisture and have ground in fine condition for fall garden crops. Apply fertilizer before such tillage, so as to work it thoroughly into the soil, and preferably, three or four weeks in advance. The best plan is liberal spring fertilization, which leaves a surplus in the soil for late crops.

Sow or Plant as Late as August.

Beets, Swiss Chard, Winter Cabbage, Carrot, Lettuce, Dandelion, Parsley, Irish Potatoes, Radish (Winter), Kale (Green), Turnips, Vegetable Marrow (English Squash).

Irish potatoes do not start readily in mid-summer, unless they were bedded at time of digging early crop. If that was done plant those which have started to grow. Northern grown cold storage seed are now in growing condition.

Sow or Plant in September.

Radish, Chives, Corn Salad, Endive, Kale (Scotch), Onion (Seed).

Sow or Plant in October.

Cabbage (October to December), Chives (Sets), Garden Cress, Kale (Green and Plain), Lettuce, Mustard, Onion (Sets).

Sow or Plant in November.

Spinach (September to November), Califlower, Brocolli, Spring Flowing Bulbs.

For detailed instructions, consult Southern Garden Manuals, and catalogues of leading Southern seedsmen.

DWARF ESSEX RAPE

Makes Good Winter Pasture on Rich Land.

By J. F. Duggar, Director of Experiment Station and Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Dwarf Essex rape is an annual, winter-growing plant of the cabbage or mustard family, making its principal growth during the cooler months. It is useful for winter pasturage, especially from the middle of December to the middle of April in the case of seed sown in the fall; and throughout May and June, from seed sown early in spring. It is particularly valuable for pasturage for hogs and poultry and is also well adapted to grazing by sheep.

For rape select the richest land available, preferably lots near the barn that have been well manured in recent years. If the soil is not rich, use manure, especially fine, well rotted manure, as liberally as you would for turnips; and in addition apply on most soils 400 pounds per acre of acid phosphate at time of planting and at least 100 pounds of nitrate of soda after leaves are about two inches long. Sow in drills wide enough for cultivation, at the rate of from 5 to 8 pounds of seed per acre, or sow broadcast 8 to 12 pounds per acre.

In short, fertilize and otherwise treat rape just as you would turnips, except that rape should not be thinned. Make the fall sowing in central Alabama about September 1st to October 15th, and in north Alabama about two weeks earlier. In the southern part of the State, the seed may be sown at any time in the fall.

Another sowing should be made about March 1st for central Alabama, and correspondingly later or earlier for other parts of the State. One can expect grazing from rape in about two or two and one-half months after the seed germinate.

Malaria a Blood Trouble S. S. S. Conquers It!

S. S. S. Has Been the Standard Malaria Remedy for 50 Years. Relieves Malaria by Cleansing the Blood

Malaria does impoverish the blood, thereby weakening the entire system. Once the Malarial germ gets into the blood it multiplies, saturating the blood with Malarial poison and impurities. You immediately lose energy. You are a constant prey to headaches, worn-out, tired feeling. The complexion becomes sallow, the tongue coated. In order to get relief you must administer an antidote directly to the poison, and a tonic—blood nourishing food, to build up the wasted system. S. S. S. is the one thoroughly reliable blood tonic that will destroy the Malarial germs, and enrich the blood. This building up and blood cleansing process go hand in hand. You feel the effect immediately. S. S. S. begins right at the root of the trouble. It destroys the germs and poison, revitalizes and restores the red blood corpuscles. In a short time you feel the delightful sensation of relief from ague, headache, chills and fever. You soon feel the full sense of vigor that goes with perfect health. There is nothing as good. Get S. S. S. from your druggist.

The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

CHAPTER I.

A Call in the Night.

There are few things darker than a country road at night, particularly if one does not know the lay of the land. It is not difficult to traverse a known path; no matter how dark it it, one is able to find the way by the aid of a mental photograph taken in the daytime. But supposing you have never been over the road in the daytime, that you know nothing whatever of its topography, where it dips or rises, where it narrows or forks. You find yourself in the same unhappy state of mind as a blind man suddenly thrust into a strange house.

One black night, along a certain country road in the heart of New Jersey, in the days when the only good roads were city thoroughfares and country highways were routes to limbo, a carriage went forward cautiously. From time to time it careened like a blunt-nose barge in a beam sea. The wheels and springs voiced their anguish continually; for it was a good carriage, unaccustomed to such ruts and hummocks.

"Faster, faster!" came a muffled voice from the interior.

"Sir, I dare not drive any faster," replied the coachman. "I can't see the horses' heads, sir, let alone the road. I've blown out the lamps, but I can't see the road any better for that."

"Let the horses have their heads; they'll find the way. It can't be much farther. You'll see lights."

The coachman swore in his teeth. All right. This man who was in such a hurry would probably send them all into the ditch. Save for the few stars above, he might have been driving Beelzebub's coach in the bottomless pit. Black velvet, everywhere black velvet. A wind was blowing, and yet the blackness was so thick that it gave to the coachman the sensation of mild suffocation.

By and by, through the trees, he saw a flicker of light. It might or might not be the destination. He cracked his whip recklessly and the carriage lurched on two wheels. The man in the carriage balanced himself carefully, so that the bundle in his arms should not be unduly disturbed. His arms ached. He stuck his head out of the window.

"That's the place," he said. "And when you drive up make as little noise as you can."

"Yes, sir," called down the driver.

When the carriage drew up at its journey's end the man inside jumped out and hastened toward the gates. He scrutinized the sign on one of the posts. This was the place:

MISS FARLOW'S PRIVATE SCHOOL.

The bundle in his arms stirred and he hurried up the path to the door of the house. He seized the ancient knocker and struck several times. He then placed the bundle on the steps and ran back to the waiting carriage, into which he stepped.

"Off with you!"

"That's a good word, sir. Maybe can make your train."

"Do you think you could find this place again?"

"You couldn't get me on this pike again, sir, for a thousand; not me!"

The door slammed and the unknown sank back against the cushions. He took out his handkerchief and wiped the damp perspiration from his forehead. The big burden was off his mind. Whatever happened in the future, they would never be able to get him through his heart. So much for the folly of his youth.

It was a quarter after ten. Miss Susan Farlow had just returned to the reception room from her nightly tour of the upper halls to see if all her charges were in bed, where the rules of the school confined them after 9:30. It was at this moment that she heard the thunderous knocking at the door. The old maid felt her heart stop beating for a moment. Who could it be, at this time of night? Then the thought came swiftly that perhaps the parent of some one of her charges was ill and this was the summons. Stilling her fears, she went resolutely to the door and opened it.

"Who is it?" she called.

No one answered. She cupped her hand to her ear. She could hear the clatter of horses dimly.

"Well!" she exclaimed; rather angrily, too.

She was in the act of closing the door when the light from the hall discovered to her the bundle on the steps. She stooped and touched it.

"Good heavens, it's a child!"

She picked the bundle up. A whimper came from it, a tired little whimper of protest. She ran back to the reception room. A foundling! And on her doorstep! It was incredible. What in the world should she do? It would create a scandal and hurt the prestige of the school. Some one had mistaken her select private school for a farmhouse. It was frightful.

Then she unwrapped the child. It was about a year old, dimpled and golden haired. A thumb was in its rosebud mouth and its blue eyes looked up trustfully into her own.

"Why, you cherub!" cried the old maid, a strange turmoil in her heart. She caught the child to her breast, and then for the first time noticed the thick envelope pinned to the child's cloak. She put the baby into a chair and broke open the envelope.

"Name this child Florence Gray. I will send annually a liberal sum for her support and reclaim her on her eighteenth birthday. The other half of the inclosed bracelet will identify me. Treat the girl well, for I shall watch over her in secret."

Into the fixed routine of her humdrum life had come a mystery, a tantalizing, fascinating mystery. She had read of foundlings left on doorsteps—from paper covered novels confiscated from her pupils—but that one should be placed upon her own respectable doorstep! Suddenly she smiled down at the child and the child smiled back. And there was nothing more to be done except to bow before the decrees of fate. Like all prim old maids, her heart was full of unrequited romance, and here was something she might spend its floods upon without let or hindrance. Already she was hoping that the man or woman who had left it might never come back.

The child grew. Regularly each year, upon a certain date, Miss Farlow received a registered letter with money. These letters came from all parts of the world; always the same sum, always the same line—"I am watching."

Thus seventeen years passed; and to Susan Farlow each year seemed shorter than the one before. For she loved the child with all her heart. She had not trained young girls all these years without becoming adept in the art of reading the true signs of breeding. There was no ordinary blood in Florence; the fact was emphasized by her exquisite face, her small hands and feet, her spirit and gentleness. And now, at any day, some one with a broken bracelet might come for her. As the days went on the heart of Susan Farlow grew heavy.

"Never mind, aunty," said Florence; "I shall always come back to see you."

She meant it, poor child; but how was she to know the terrors which lay beyond the horizon?

* * * * * * *

The house of Stanley Hargreave, in Riverdale, was the house of no ordinary rich man. Outside it was simple enough, but within you learned what kind of a man Hargreave was. There were rare Ispahans and Saruks on the floors and tapestries on the walls, and here and there a fine painting. The library itself represented a fortune. Money had been laid out lavishly but never wastefully. It was the home of a scholar, a dreamer, a wide traveler.

In the library stood the master of the house, idly fingering some papers which lay on the study table. He shrugged at some unpleasant thought, settled his overcoat about his shoulders, took up his hat, and walked from the room, frowning slightly. The butler, who also acted in the capacity of valet, always within call when his master was about, stepped swiftly to the hall door and opened it.

"I may be out late, Jones," said Hargreave.

"Yes, sir."

Hargreave stared into his face keenly, as if trying to pierce the grave face to learn what was going on behind it.

"How long have you been with me?"

"Fourteen years, sir."

"Some day I shall need you."

"My life has always been at your disposal, sir, since that night you rescued me."

"Well, I haven't the least doubt that when I ask you will give."

"Without question, sir. It was always so understood."

Hargreave's glance sought the mirror, then the smileless face of his man. He laughed, but the sound conveyed no sense of mirth; then he turned and went down the steps slowly, like a man burdened with some thought which was not altogether to his liking. He had sent an order for his car, but had immediately countermanded it. He would walk till he grew tired, hail a taxicab, and take a run up and down Broadway. The wonderful illumination might prove diverting. For 18 years nearly; and now it was as natural for him to throw a glance over his shoulder whenever he left the house as it was for him to breathe. The average man would have grown careless during all these years; but Hargreave was not an average man; he was, rather, an extraordinary individual. It was his life in exchange for eternal vigilance, and he knew and accepted the fact.

Half an hour later he got into a taxicab and directed the man to drive downtown as far as Twenty-third street and back to Columbus circle. The bewildering display of lights, however, in nowise served to lift the sense of oppression that had weighed upon him all day. South of Forty-second street he dismissed the taxicab and stared undecidedly at the brilliant sign of a famous restaurant. He was neither hungry nor thirsty; but there would be strange faces to study and music.

It was an odd whim. He had not entered a Broadway restaurant in all these years. He was unknown. He belonged to no clubs. Two months was the longest time he had ever remained in New York since the disposal of his old home in Madison avenue and his resignation from his clubs. This once, then, he would break the law he had written down for himself. Boldly he entered the restaurant.

Some time before Hargreave surrendered to the restless spirit of rebellion, bitterly to repent for it later, there came into this restaurant a man and a woman. They were both evidently well known, for the head waiter was obsequious and hurried them over to the best table he had left and took the order himself.

The man possessed a keen, intelligent face. You might have marked him for a successful lawyer, for there was an earnestness about his expression which precluded a life of idleness. His age might have been anywhere between 40 and 50. The shoulders were broad and the hands which lay clasped upon the table were slim but muscular. Indeed, everything about him suggested hidden strength and vitality. His companion was small, handsome, and animated. Her frequent gestures and mutable eyebrows betrayed her foreign birth. Her age was a matter of importance to no one but herself.

They were at coffee when she said: "There's a young man coming toward us. He is looking at you."

The man turned. Instantly his face lighted up with a friendly smile of recognition.

"Who is it?" she asked.

"A chap worth knowing; a reporter just a little out of the ordinary. I'm going to introduce him. You never can tell. We might need him some day. Ah, Norton, how are you?"

"Good evening, Mr. Braine." The reporter, catching sight of a pair of dazzling eyes, hesitated.

"The Princess Perigoff, Norton. You're in no hurry, are you?"

"Not now," smiled the reporter.

"Ah!" said the princess, interested. It was the old compliment, said in an unusual way. It pleased her.

The reporter sank into a chair. When inactive he was rather a dreamy-eyed sort of chap. He possessed that rare accomplishment of talking upon one subject and thinking upon another at the same time. So while he talked gayly with the young woman on varied themes, his thoughts were busy speculating upon her companion. He was quite certain that the name Braine was assumed, but he was also equally certain that the man carried an extraordinary brain under his thatch of salt and pepper hair. The man had written three or four brilliant monographs on poisons and the uses of radium, and it was through and by these that the reporter had managed to pick up his acquaintance. He lived well, but inconspicuously.

Suddenly the pupils of Braine's eyes narrowed; the eye became cold. Over the smoke of his cigarette he was looking into the wall mirror. A man had passed behind him and sat down at the next table. Still gazing into the mirror, Braine saw Norton wave his hand; saw also the open wonder on the reporter's pleasant face.

"Who is your friend, Norton?" Braine asked indifferently, his head still unturned.

"Stanley Hargreave. Met him in Hongkong when I was sent over to handle a part of the revolution. War correspondence stuff. First time I ever ran across him on Broadway at night. We've since had some powwows over some rare books. Queer old cock; brave as a lion, but as quiet as a mouse."

"Bookish, eh? My kind. Bring him over." Underneath the table Braine maneuvered to touch the foot of the princess.

"I don't know," said the reporter dubiously. "He might say no, and that would embarrass the whole lot of us. He's a bit of a hermit. I'm surprised to see him here."

"Try," urged the princess. "I like to meet men who are hermits."

"I haven't the least doubt about that," the reporter laughed. "I'll try; but don't blame me if I'm rebuffed."

He left the table with evident reluctance and approached Hargreave. The two shook hands cordially, for the elder man was rather fond of this medley of information known as Jim Norton.

"Sit down, boy; sit down. You're just the kind of a man I've been wanting to talk to tonight."

"Wouldn't you rather talk to a pretty woman?"

"I'm an old man."

"Bah! That's a hypocritical bluff, and you know it. My friends at the next table have asked me to bring you over."

"I do not usually care to meet strangers."

"Make an exception this once," said the reporter, who had seen Braine's eyes change and was curious to know why the appearance of Hargreave in the mirror had brought about that metally gleam. Here were two unique men; he desired to see them face to face.

"This once. My fault; I ought not to be here; I feel out of place. What a life, though, you reporters lead! To meet kings and presidents and great financiers, socialists and anarchists, the whole scale of life, and to slap these people on the back as if they were everyday friends!"

"Now you're making fun of me. For one king there are always twenty thick brogans ready to kick me down the steps; don't forget that."

Hargreave laughed. "Come, then; let us get it over with."

The introductions were made. Norton felt rather chagrined. So far as he could see, the two men were total strangers. Well, it was all in the game. Nine out of ten opportunities for the big story were fake alarms; but he was always willing to risk the labor these nine entailed for the sake of the tenth.

At length Braine glanced at his watch, and the princess nodded. Adieux were said. Inside the taxicab Braine leaned back with a deep, audible sigh.

"What it is?" she asked.

"The luck of the devil's own," he said. "Child of the Steppes, for years I've flown about seas and continents, through valleys and over mountains—for what? For the sight of the face of that man we have just left. At first glance I wasn't sure; but the sound of his voice was enough. Olga, the next time you see that reporter, throw your arms around his neck and kiss him. What did I tell you? Without Norton's help I would not have been sure. I'm going to leave you at your apartment."

"The man of the Black Hundred?" she whispered.

"The man who deserted and defied the Black Hundred, who broke his vows, and never paid a kopeck for the privilege; the man who had been appointed for the supreme work and who ran away. In those days we needed men of his stamp, and to accomplish this end. . . ."

"There was a woman," she interrupted, with a touch of bitterness.

"Always the woman. And she was as clever and handsome as you are."

"Thanks. Sometimes . . ."

"Ah, yes!" ironically. "Sometimes you wish you could settle down, marry and have a family! Your domesticity would last about a month."

She made no retort because she recognized the truth of this statement.

"There's an emerald I know of," he said ruminatively. "It's quite possible that you may be wearing it within a few days."

"I am mad over them. There is something in the green stone that fascinates me. I can't resist it."

"That's because, somewhere in the far past, your ancestors were orientals. Here we are. I'll see you tomorrow. I must hurry. Good-night."

She stood on the curb for a moment and watched the taxicab as it whirled around a corner. The man held her with a fascination more terrible than any jewel. She knew him to be a great and daring rogue, cunning, patient, fearless. Packed away in that mind of his there were a thousand accomplished deeds which had roused futilely the police of two continents. Braine! She could have laughed. The very name he had chosen was an insolence directed at society.

The subject of her thoughts soon arrived at his destination. A flight of stairs carried him into a dimly lighted hall, smelling evilly of escaping gas. He donned a black mask and struck the door with a series of light blows; two, then one, then three, and again one. The door opened and he slipped inside. Round a table sat several men, also masked. They were all tried and trusted rogues; but not one of them knew what Braine looked like. He alone remained unknown save to the man designated as the chief, who was only Braine's lieutenant. The mask was the insignia of the Black Hundred, an organization with all the ramifications of the Camorra without their abiding stupidity. From the assassination of a king, down to the robbery of a country post office, nothing was too great or too small for their nets. Their god dwells in the hearts of all men and is called greed.

The ordinary business over, the chief dismissed the men, and he and Braine alone remained.

"Vroon, I have found him," said Braine.

"There are but few: which one?"

"Eighteen years ago, in St. Petersburg."

"I remember. The millionaire's son. Did he recognize you?"

"I don't know. Probably he did. But he always had good nerves. He is being followed at this moment. We shall strike quick; for if he recognized me he will act quick. He is cool and brave. You remember how he braved us that night in Russia. Jumped boldly through the window at the risk of breaking his neck. He landed safely; that is the only reason he eluded us. Millions—and they slipped through our fingers. If I could only find some route to his heart! The lure we held out to him is dead."

"Or in the fortress, which is the same thing. What are your plans?"

"I have in mind something like this."

And Hargreave was working out his plans, too; and he was just as much of a general as Braine. He sat at his library table, the maxillary muscles in his jaws working. So they had found him? Well, he had broken the law of his own making and he must suffer the consequences. Braine, who was Menshikoff in Russia, Schwartz in Germany, Mendoza in Spain, Cartucci in Italy, and Du Bois in France; so the rogue had found him out? Poor fool that he had been! High spirited, full of those youthful dreams of doing good in the world, he had joined what he had believed a great secret socialistic movement, to learn that he had been trapped by a band of brilliant thieves. Kidnapers and assassinators for hire; the Black Hundred; fiends from Tophet! For nearly eighteen years he had eluded them, for he knew that directly or indirectly they would never cease to hunt for him; and an idle whim had toppled him into their clutches.

He wrote several letters feverishly. The last was addressed to Miss Susan Farlow and read: "Dear Madam: Send Florence Gray to New York, to arrive here Friday morning. My half of the bracelet will be identification. Inclosed find cash to square accounts." He would get together all his available funds, recover his child, and fly to the ends of the world. He would tire them out. They would find that the peaceful dog was a bad animal to rouse. He rang for the faithful Jones.

"Jones, they have found me," he said simply.

"You will need me, then?"

"Quite possible. Please mail these and then we'll talk it over. No doubt some one is watching outside. Be careful."

"Very good, sir."

Hargreave bowed his head in his hands. Many times he had journeyed to the school and hung about the gates, straining his eyes toward the merry groups of young girls. Which among them was his, heart of his heart, blood of his blood? That she might never be drawn into this abominable tangle, he had resolutely torn her out of his life completely. The happiness of watching the child grow into girlhood he had denied himself. She at least would be safe. Only when she was safe in a far country would he dare tell her. He tried in vain to conjure up a picture of her; he always saw the mother whom he had loved and hated with all the ardor of his youth.

Many things happened the next day. There was a visit to the hangar of one William Orts, the aviator, famous for his daredevil exploits. There were two visitors, in fact, and the second visitor was knocked down for his pains. He had tried to bribe Orts.

There were several excited bankers, who protested against such large withdrawals without the usual formal announcement. But a check was a check, and they had to pay.

Hargreave covered a good deal of ground, but during all this time his right hand never left the automatic in his overcoat pocket, except at those moments when he was obliged to sign his checks. He would shoot and make inquiries afterward.

Far away a young girl and her companion got on the train which was to carry her to New York, the great dream city she was always longing to see.

And the spider wove his web.

Hargreave reached home at night. He put the money in the safe and was telephoning when Jones entered and handed his master an unstamped note.

"Where did you get this?"

"At the door, sir. I judge that the house is surrounded."

Hargreave read the note. It stated briefly that all his movements during the day had been noted. It was known that he had collected a million in paper money. If he surrendered this he would be allowed twenty-four hours before the real chase began. Otherwise he should die before midnight. Hargreave crushed the note in his hand. They might kill him; there was a chance of their accomplishing that; but never should they touch his daughter's fortune.

"Jones, you go to the rear door and I'll take a look out of the front. We have an hour. I know the breed. They'll wait till midnight and then force their way in."

Hargreave saw a dozen shadows in the front yard.

"Men all about the back yard," whispered Jones down the hall.

The master eyed the man.

"Very well, sir," replied the latter, with understanding. "I am ready."

The master went to the safe, emptied it of its contents, crossed the hall to the bedroom, and closed the door softly behind him. Jones having entered the same room through another door to befool any possible watcher. After a long while, perhaps an hour, the two men emerged from the room from the same doors they had entered. So whispered the watcher to his friends below.

"Hargreave is going upstairs."

"Let him go. Let him take a look at us from the upper windows. He will understand that nothing but wings will save him."

Silence. By and by a watcher reported that he heard the scuttle of the roof rattle.

"Look!" another cried, startled.

A bluish glare came from the roof.

"He's shooting off a Roman candle!"

They never saw the man-made bird till it alighted upon the roof. They never thought of shooting at it till it had taken wing! Then they rushed the doors of the house. They made short work of Jones, whom they tied up like a Christmas fowl and plumped roughly into a chair. They broke open the safe, to find it empty. And while the rogues were rummaging about the room, venting their spite upon many a treasure they could neither appreciate nor understand, a man from the outside burst in.

"The old man is dead and the money is at the bottom of the ocean! We punctured her. She's gone!"

A thin, inscrutable smile stirred the lips of the man bound in the chair.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

There are two ways of handling a car--the ECONOMICAL way, and the DESTRUCTIVE way. Compare them:

ECONOMICAL—Bring it to us occasionally and let us examine it, adjust it, and make slight repairs the moment they are needed. Keeps it in good shape and running smooth.

DESTRUCTIVE—Just to keep on "putting it off," regardless of its wheezings and groanings, until the final break comes and you have a big repair bill and weakened car.

We recommend the ECONOMICAL way. It is the safest, and by far the most inexpensive way.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

An Extract From Their Recommendations to the Legislative Body.

The condition of the convicts in the turpentine and lumber camps of the state is as bad if not worse than in the mines. They are made frequently to rise at four in the morning, day in and day out, walk five or six miles to work, toil all day long, with insufficient water and food, in the heat of the sun, until darkness comes, and then forced to walk into camp for their supper.

The system is wrong, it is indefinable. The more one studies it the greater the horror; but as dark as this phase of the picture is, it does not compare with the more dangerous feature of setting a prisoner to a task of this kind because of one mistake, and have him come out after years with a bitter enmity and hatred toward mankind. This is the class of man most dangerous to soctety. He cares for nothing now. He has undergone the most excruciting pain, the hardest toil, the deepest humiliation. He has been driven like the beasts of the field by heartless task masters. Instead of society in the form of laws having protected herself from one considered an offender, she has multiplied and turned loose upon her own head and dangers she is seeking to avoid.

It has been too much the policy of this state to look upon the commercial side of convict life. Each successive administration has done all in its power to increase the earnings of the convict department. The humanitarian side of the question has been entirely lost sight of. We believe however that the convict system now in vague in Alabama has not been a success for the state, even from a commercial standpoint. The last annual report of the board showed earnings of something over three hundred thousand dollars, but there are many items of expense which properly should be charged against the system which do not appear. The average life of a convict sentenced to work in the mines is seven years. The effect of the system is to make by the process of death, long-term convicts into short-term ones.

It is unfair competion to employers of free labor, and to free labor. It has been brought to our attention that the state of Alabama under recent leases receives sixty-five cents a ton for coal delivered on the cars exclusive of all washer charges and of all rock. In other words, sixty five cents a ton for a "lock and key job." It costs the employer of free labor, mining coal under the same conditions, from ninety cents to a dollar and five cents a ton. The result has been that at times of depression like the present the users of convict labor have been able to snap up the contracts for coal at a price less than the employers of free labor can mine the same for. We therefore find the convict coal mines operating on full time, at full capacity, with the convict driven to the task of from ten to twelve tons a day, while the mines of the free labor employers are operationg at a loss only two or three days a week.

It will probably be said that the state cannot afford to lose the income derived from the lease system; that we should attempt to remedy conditions, and thereby retaining this much needed revenue. It is not right to say that we cannot afford the financial loss. This has been the cause of the system long enough. It is a cancer that should be cut out of Alabama's politic.

SACRED HARP SINGING CONVENTION.

MR. W. H. MAHAN

On the 16th of August Mr. William H. Mahan, one of Randolph's old and respected citizens died at his country home in Beat 2. His remains were laid away in Randolph cemetery by the Masonic Fraternity. Burial service was conducted by Rev. Farris, attended by a large number of his friends. The casket was literally covered with flowers. His life was spent in and around Randolph, where he was engaged in the mercaetile business for many years.

The minister alluded to him as one of the broadest minded men he ever met, a great man recognized the good in all, One of his intimate neighbors described him as a good man. Alas, he is gone, he is sweetly sleeping in the grave, waiting the resurrection call to life, when in that bright day of the worlds judgment — the new dispensation— the grand Sabbatic year, when sorrow and sighing will flee away, when with all the dead billions Mr. Mahan will come back again, and we will know him happy tonight,

Give joy or peace, give ease or pain,
Take life or friends away;
But let me find them all again
In that eternal day.

STRIKING GAINS IN CHILD LABOR LAWS

Off Year For Legislation, but Children Not Neglected.

EDUCATION LAWS IN SOUTH.

A new compilation of child labor laws which will be issued shortly by the National Child Labor Committee contains the legislation enacted in 1915. Although this last year was a reactionary one for social welfare legislation, the National Child Labor Committee feels that there were some striking gains in child labor laws.

Two states which have hitherto defied all efforts to raise their standards—Pennsylvania and Alabama—have yielded to the pressure of public opinion. Alabama has a fourteen year limit for all gainful occupations, to go into effect in September, 1916, instead of her former twelve year limit for factories only. A sixteen year limit for dangerous occupations is included in the law, as well as a twelve year limit for boys and an eighteen year limit for girls in street work.

The striking feature of Pennsylvania's new law is the continuation school clause, which requires children of fourteen and fifteen who are regularly employed to attend continuation schools eight hours a week. Other important features are the twenty-one year limit for night messengers, physical examination and the completion of the sixth grade before a work permit can be secured, and the regulation of street work.

Michigan had an unusual experience. The age limit for common gainful occupations was raised from fourteen to fifteen AT THE REQUEST OF THE EMPLOYERS. The bill was drafted and the campaign directed by them. In addition to raising the age limit, it raises the grade which a child must complete before a work permit can be secured from the fourth to the sixth grade.

Compulsory education laws were passed by three southern states. The Florida and South Carolina laws are local option only, but the Texas law is state wide.

California and Iowa strengthened their laws by including provisions for the regulation of street work and the night messenger service. In addition to the street work clause Iowa passed an eight hour day for children under sixteen and strengthened her work permit provisions. A written statement from the employer, saying that he intends to employ the child, is now necessary before a child can secure a work permit. A similar clause was incorporated this year in the Rhode Island law and a street work provision enacted establishing a twelve year limit for boys and a sixteen year limit for girls engaged in selling newspapers or merchandise.

Nevada created the office of labor commissioner to enforce the child labor law, and Wyoming enacted a nine hour day for children under fourteen in all gainful occupations. In fact, there was a gain in every state but one of those which passed laws this year affecting children. Tennessee weakened its law by exempting canneries from practically all provisions of the law. But an attempt to repeal the Arkansas law was defeated, so that, on the whole, the National Child Labor Committee feels that the child labor legislation of 1915 represents steady progress.

What quarrel, what harshness, what unbelief in each other can subsist in the presence of a great calamity, when all the artificial vesture of our life is gone, and we are all one with each other in primitive mortal needs? —George Eliot.

A LETTER TO UNITY-CHILTON BAPTISTS

This is to call your attention to the advertisements of your school now appearing in our county papers.

Many of you have sons and daughters who will or ought to go to school the coming session, and you are now thinking of the place to send them. Since you are a Baptist, and a part of those two bodies which authorized a board of trustees to establish and run a school, there ought for you to be but one school besides your home school—the Unity-Chilton Baptist High School. If Baptists were as true to their schools as other denominations, this plea would not be necessary.

We are doing work second to no high school in the state, and we offer some subjects that not many of them offer, and some subjects that a majority of them cannot offer. In this statement we do not mean to depreciate the work of other schools, but to call attention to what you have in your own school. Our work is done under post graduate teachers of experiehce, and is accepted by the colleges and the universities without examination.

Your school offers a course in Bible and denominational doctrines and enterprizes not found anywhere else at all—a four year course five times a week. Thus the most important of all books becomes known along with the mathematics, latin, and science. When as good work is done in the regular course as is done anywhere, and is as cheap, we feel that this course, which looks so well after the moral and the spiritual nature, and our principles that cost the blood of the martyrs, ought to appeal to every true whole-hearted Baptist in the two associations, and even elsewhere in this great central section of the state.

Any progress for the Baptist cause of our section that doesn't include denominational education must prove a failure. One of the tasks that lies before us is to try to get Baptists to patronize Baptist schools. Just why it is so, in the light of Baptist history, we do not know; but it has been one of our hardest tasks to get Baptists to patronize their own schools.

I am sure I would not be far wrong when I say we have Baptists in this section, who would support our schools with a little of their means, and also give them their moral support; and yet, upon some kind of a plea, will send their boys and girls to state institutions. Better equipment is often given as the reason, but this is not often the real reason. That lies in seeking a better social, political, professional or commercial standing than can be formed inside a denominational atmosphere. They put these things before the invocal and spiritual life, and often pay dearly for it. The pupil comes back to spern the faith of father in the bible.

We appreciate and are cognizant of the efforts being made to safeguard and throw the protection of the churches and the Y. M. C. A. around the students of our state institutions, and we are thankful for them, but by right of necessity religion cannot be taught in them. The fact that this is true has given rise to our church schools. It is the privilege and business of all denominational schools to teach the bible,—of ours to teach it as Baptists interpret it, allowing the same privilege to others.

The graduates of our Baptist schools are to set forth in their manner of living and in their thing the great doctrines of our Baptist faith. Brethren, the greatest need of these two associations is an ever increasing stream of boys and girls going out from our school, who because of what they get here, will keep for us a safe and sound Baptist polity along with church efficiency and Christian citizenship,

Preachers need training for the great work of the gospel ministry, but the crying needs of the age is for laymen who know how, and feel their responsibility enough to deem to do. A great writer has said "The greatest service the Christian school can sender in the immediate future lies in the training of a new type of Christian laymen." This is the key note. Give us a band of trained laymen, Ghristian to the core, to hold up the hands of our leaders, and things will happen in our various denominations Shall your boy or girl be with us the coming session for the success of the great Baptist cause, for a better citizenship and a better world?

But one last word. If we cannot have them send them somewhere. You do not live in your fathers day, they will not live in yours, but just out yander where things undreamed of will take place in both church and state. Is it unfair to put them out there with no equipment in the midst of those who are armed for life's warfare?

REYNOLDS IS ELECTED BY THE MERCHANTS

As President of the Tri-States Association in Montgomery Last Week.

The Tri-States Merchants Association, composed of business men of Alabama, Georgia and Florida, was organized in Montgomery last week. The purpose of the new organization is to conserve the mutual interest of the business men of the three states.

"That we shall proceed here and now to organize ourselves into the Tri State Merchants Association by the election of a President, five vice-presidents, a secretary and treasurer.

"That the chairman of this meeting is hereby authorized to appoint a committee of not more than five, whose duty it shall be to prepare a constitution and by-laws for this association and submit to the next meeting.

Galveston, Tex. has witnessed another tropical storm which has done great damage.

The Arabic, sunk by another German submarine, shows very plainly the feeling of Germany toward this country.

Alabama merchants convened in Birmingham Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Over 2,000 merchants attended this meeting and Birmingham spared no pains or expense in making the occasion pleasant as well as profitable for the visitors.

The Cattle Men's Convention held in Birmingham was attended by over 2000 visitors and people interested in the cattle business. This is a good indication and it is to be hoped that these cattle raisers and dealers will continue the good work.

John H. Wallace was not abolished by the Senate. As this was the plea of some of the members of the Senate. It was argued that they were after the man and not the office. We suppose that Mr. Wallace is glad of a sentiment of this kind as it seemed to bring about the right campaigning in this case.

There is a move on foot in Birmingham to force the merchants to close their doors at nine o'clock on Saturday night, instead of 12 or 1; and the business men have opposed it. Why should the merchants work their emplovees till a late hour at night? The night is made for rest and repose.

The sinking of some of the ships with those big rich people on them, after warning is some worry to President Wilson and nearly causes war; but when the South's cotton is smuggled and the rights of the Southern people trampled under foot, that's not much.

Did anybody who knows anything about the Democratic party in Alabama ever dream of such a thing as John Purifoy being impeached?

Ex Governor O'Neal says that B. B. Comer spent more for traveling expenses, according to the time than he (O'Neal) did. So there you are.

Cole Blease of South Carolina says President Wilson is no Democrat. Whether Blease is right or wrong, it does look like Wilson would do some thing for the South, in its present state of affairs. The South is largely responsible for the election of Wilson, and we would thank some one to tell us what he has done for his constituents in Dixie.

It is suggested by some that the abolishment of the lease system be left to the people. That is a good suggestion, and when you do that it will be remedied, and that in the right way; and then the people will be satisfied. Leave everything of any importance to the people instead of a few politicians, and we will get better results. The people are ignored too much in matters like the convict sytem etc. If the so called representatives would act for the people, it would be a different thing, but that is not always the case. Let the people have a voice.

In the Ligislative probe committee's reports, it says one man on a trip to New York for the state spent $10.25 of the taxpayer's money for tips. In other words, this distinguished gentleman pitched this much of the states coin to the "four winds." He gave it to negro porters and boot blacks etc., and charged it to the state. Such a gentleman is considered a big potato. He is looked upon as a kind of sport, a big ike,—one of immense fortune etc., but the tax-burdened citizens of Alabama, with a debt of three million dollars hanging over them, paid the freight. How do the people of Alabama know but that such things have been imposed on them for the last 30 years?

The election of Judge L. H. Reynolds as President of the Merchants Tri-State Association in Montgomery last week is not only a deserving compliment to our fellow citizen and townsman, but it puts Clanton on the map as being one of the livliest and most progressive towns in this section of the state. Not only do the South Alabama merchants belong to this convention, but merchants of three states—Georgia, Alabama and Florida—are embodied in this organization. We are informed that the election of Reynolds as head of this body was without a descending vote. The election was made unanimous. In no wise did this body of intelligent merchants err in selecting their president. Judge Reynolds is among the most successful merchants of the state, and has many friends who will be glad to learn of this honor given him on this occasion. The Tri-State Association will never have cause to regret their reposed confidence.

Letters to The Editor.

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 20, 1915.—Editor of Union-Banner: Please allow me to say that I lam sorrow that some of our good citizens seem to so much misunderstand me as to the proposition of uniting politically in this county. I have not said one word about going into a democratic primary or uniting with the democratic party, but I have urged the people to unite in a primary, and suggested that the executive committees could devise a plan and now since some seem to misunderstand me, I wish to suggest the plan that I have in mind, which may or may not be the identical plan that would be best, but my idea is that to call a primary in which every voter is invited to participate without regard to the voters past political affiliations, a primary into which all white men may vote for the man of his choice as a candidate for county officers, making only one pledge that is to suppcrt the nominee for county officers. This will leave every Progressive, Republican, Democrat Socialist or any other man to retain his freedom in all other political matters—state or national, the only object being to shorten our campaignes in Chilton county, and to relieve our people from the bitterness engendered in our local campaigns. We are one people and are all vitally interested in each others welfare. That is best for one of us be he democrat, republican or progressive Socialist or what not, the greatest good to the greatest number is the doctrin, and if we con unite in the county, we would thereby have all the county to select the best men from for county officers, and it would matter but little to us as to other matters as each man could go his way into what ever party he may choose, in other words if the democrats hold a primary and the progessives a primary and the republicans a primary, to say nothing of a socialist primary, we will be engaged in politics all next year. And if we can have one primary in the spring, when that primary is over we will not have any more county politics until four years is passed, and surely any man can see that it will be better for the people. In my judgment if we can unite as to county matters, we will have a better chance to select better and more efficient men for the various county offices and as a majority will settle the matter in November 1916, why not allow the matter settled in the spring of that year, and save us from the long campaign of abuse of each other by so doing.

Yours truly
S. M. Adams.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

J. J. Brown
On Farmers' Union Invites Co-operation

Co-operation is a mighty word that is ringing from ocean to ocean, reverberating from field to factory and echoing down the corridors of business. It is the slogan of the Farmers' Union, the guiding star of progress and the corner-stone of a new civilization. No man or organization can prosper without co-operation. Mr. J. J. Brown, president of the Georgia Farmers' Union, in his annual address, extending to the business interests an invitation to co-operate, said in part:

"The time has come when it is absolutely necessary for the business men and the farmers of this country to get together and stand for the best interests of our country, in order that we may change the conditions that now exist in the handling and marketing of farm products. For that reason the Farmers' Union is holding public meetings throughout the country and we are cordially inviting the business interests to co-operate with us in our efforts to build up our agricultural interests.

"At the beginning of the government, from eighty to ninety per cent of all the wealth of this country was in the hands of the farmers. Since that time they have gradually lost in the great race of life until today the farmers of this country own less than thirty per cent of the wealth. And while the farmers of the United States produced last year ten billion dollars' worth of new wealth, they received, in round numbers, about forty per cent of this wealth, while those who manipulated and speculated in their product received sixty per cent.

"What would you think of the merchant who, knowing the cost of his goods, would allow a consumer to walk into his store and tell him at what price he must sell his calico? My friends, that is exactly what we farmers have been submitting to for the last half century. We do not blame the merchant, neither do we blame the man who takes advantage of the infamous system of marketing our products, thereby making millions of dollars in a business called legitimate, but we farmers are to blame for submitting to such outrages.

"I believe in scientific farming, intensive farming, diversified farming, and every kind of good farming. I swallow the hog and hominy proposition. But all these things are matters of putting the cart before the horse and the whole farming machine simply cannot get anywhere. We must meet the basic economic conditions first, then add to them these other things.

"We've had one palliative plan after another given us from every source under the sun, but until we organize and demand, as organized, enlightened citizens demand and obtain, we may expect the tidal wave of failure to engulf the entire South and the land of our inheritance may pass from us forever."

SMALL GRAINS FOR PASTURE

Advance of Boll Weevil and High Price of Winter Legume Seed Make it Advisable to Plant Larger Acreage to Small Grains.

By J. F. Duggar, Director of Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

All four of the small grains, rye, oats, wheat and barley make excellent winter and early spring pasturage. If grazed only when the ground is fairly dry and if the stock are removed in March, all these grains serve both for pasturage and for the production of grain.

The acreage planted this fall in these four small grains for pasturage should be larger than usual. This is because, with the advance of the boll weevil, our farmers need to greatly increase the acreage in pasture; and also because the high price of seed of crimson clover and vetch will reduce the amount of winter pasturage which would have been obtained from these two soil improving plants, necessitating the partial substitution of grain.

In general, grain sown chiefly for pasturage should be sown considerably earlier than if intended merely for seed production. For pasturage, it is also desirable to use more seed than for grain production, and to apply the nitrogen of the fertilizer earlier than otherwise, so that the growth of the plants in the early part of winter be hastened. Judicious grazing will prevent the plants, after this fertilization with nitrogen in the fall, from becoming so far advanced as to be in danger from the last winter freeze.

Rye is preferred as affording more pasturage and as being more resistent toward extreme cold. The amount of seed preferred for pasturage is about one and one-half bushels per acre.

Oats sown in September and October usually afford fair grazing during the dry periods in January, February and the early part of March, after which a grain crop may be produced.

The small grain to choose for pasture depends largely upon the cost of each kind of seed. Farmers who have seed oats on hand should rely chiefly on this grain. But wheat and barley sown as early as practicable in the fall are also satisfactorily for pasturage.

One may sow with any of these early sown grains from one-third to two-thirds the usual amount of seed of crimson clover, hairy vetch or rape.

DEVICES FOR CURING HAY

How to Use Inexpensive Material in Making Usable Racks.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Pieces of cordwood may be used in curing hay. As soon as the hay is raked in windrows, three pieces of the wood are stood on ends in such a way that they form a tripod and on them the hay is piled. They hold the hay open so that air can freely circulate through it and thus prevent molding.

Another cheap helpful device can be made by standing upright in the ground a six or eight-foot pole on which are securely nailed cross-boards about two feet apart. The hay is piled up around the pole and the cross boards hold the hay apart so that the air can circulate freely through the stack. In this way the hay is not exposed to sunshine and dew during its curing and preserves its rich pea-green color.

The Experiment Station Farm at Auburn has a very simple and inexpensive portable rack, the material of which costs about 12 cents. It consists of three pieces 1x3, five feet long that are loosely pinned together about two inches from the top by a 3-8x5 inch carriage bolt, forming a tripod. Fifteen inches from the foot of each leg is bored a small hole through which hangs a three-inch loop made of a piece of hay wire; similar holes with loops of wire are placed fifteen inches from the top of each leg. Through these looped wires are run three horizontal poles about the size of a hoe handle to form a bottom floor to the tripod, and through the upper loops are placed three other poles to form a second floor. The hay is pushed into the frame on the first floor until all the space is filled; then it is piled on the second floor and on top of the tripod until the frame is loaded with two or three hundred pounds of hay. The loose hay is raked down from the top and sides, and a cap made of an old ripped burlap sack is drawn tightly over the top of the hay and pinned or weighed at its four corners. When the hay on this form is properly capped, it may remain in the field for several weeks until it is fully cured.

Some Advantages of a Winter Cover Crop.

1st. The plant food which becomes soluble during our mild winter weather is leached out by heavy winter rains, if no cover crop is growing.

2nd. The roots of the cover crop hold the soil together and prevent washing.

3rd. A cover crop adds to the soil, humus, without which no soil is fertile.

4th. If the cover crop is a legume it adds atmospheric nitrogen to the soil.

5th. It furnishes pasturage or hay for livestock.

IMPOSITION

The present war in Europe proves that a nation which does not wish to be imposed upon must have the ability to defend itself.

By defending itself we do not mean mere force of arms, either offensive or defensive. The nation must not only be prepared in that respect, but it must have the power of public sentiment behind it, the knowledge of right on its side, that its people will rally loyally to the principles for which the nation goes to war.

This principle applies to individuals, to business enterprises, as well as to nations. No individual, no business enterprise, can hope to win success that is not working along right lines, and conserving a fair amount of material resources to be prepared.

The L. & N. is interested in this subject because it has been made the frequent object of unfair attacks. The L. & N. has tried to be prepared for these attacks, knowing full well that selfish, designing cliques would attempt to gain their ends at the sacrifice of the L. & N.

The L. & N. has therefore not only tried to conserve a reasonable surplus to make a successful defense against these attacks, but it has at all times tried to so conduct its business as to merit the favorable consideration of a vast majority of the people living in the territory served by the L. & N.

There have been gloomy times, as now exist in Europe, but the L. & N. went right ahead supplying unexcelled service, in freight and passenger departments, secure in the knowledge that its efforts in the interest of agricultural, industrial and commercial development would in the end be appreciated by an intelligent people.

The progress of the L. & N. has justified the faith the L. & N. has in the people. With the passing of time a more cordial spirit of co-operation as between the people and the L. & N. has been developed, until now a majority of the people are in a frame of mind to give the same consideration to the problems of the L. & N. that the L. & N. has always given to the problems of the people.

This spirit is what makes it not only possible, but a positive pleasure, for the L. & N. to supply to the shipper and the traveller the best railroad service obtainable in freight and passenger transportation.

CHAPTER II.

The Master's Man.

Vroon faced Hargreave's butler somberly. The one reason why Braine made this man his lieutenant was because Vroon always followed the letter of his instructions to the final period; he never sidestepped or added any frills or innovations of his own, and because of this very automatism he rarely blundered into a trap. If he failed it was for the simple fact that the master mind had overlooked some essential detail. The organization of the Black Hundred was almost totally unknown to either the public or the police. It is only when you fail that you are found out.

"The patrolman has been trussed up like you," began Vroon. "If they find him they will probably find you. But before that you will grow thirsty and hungry. Where did your master put that money?"

"He carried it with him."

"Why didn't you call for help?"

"The houses on either side are too far away. I might yell till doomsday without being heard. They will have heard the pistol shots; but Mr. Hargreaves was always practicing in the backyard."

"The people in those two houses have been called out of town. The servants are off for the night."

"Very interesting," replied Jones, staring at the rug.

"Your master is dead."

Jones' chin sank upon his breast. His heart was heavy, heavier than it had ever been before.

"Your master left a will?"

"Indeed, I could not say."

"We can say. He has still three or four millions in stocks and bonds. What he took to the bottom of the sea with him was his available cash."

"I know nothing about his finances. I was his butler and valet."

Vroon nodded. "Come, men; it is time we took ourselves off. Put things in order; close the safe. You poor jackals, I always have to watch you for outbreaks of vandalism. Off with you!"

He was the last to leave. He stared long and searchingly at Jones, who felt the burning gaze but refused to meet it lest the plotter see the fire in his. The door closed. For fully an hour Jones listened but did not stir. They were really gone. He pressed his feet to the floor and began to hitch the chair toward the table. Half way across the intervening space he crumpled in the chair, almost completely exhausted. He let a quarter of an hour pass, then made the final attack upon the remaining distance. He succeeded in reaching the desk, but he could not have stirred an inch farther. The hair on his head was damp with sweat and his hands were clammy.

When he felt strength returning he lifted the telephone off the hook with his teeth.

"Central, central! Call the police to come to this number at once; Hargreave's house, Riverdale. Tell them to break in."

After what seemed an age of waiting to the exhausted prisoner, with crashing and smashing of doors, the police appeared in the room.

"Where's your gag?" demanded the first officer to reach Jones' side.

"There wasn't any."

"Then why didn't you yell for help?"

"The thieves lured our neighbors away from town. The patrolman who walks this beat is bound and gagged and is probably reposing back of the billboard in the next block."

"Murphy, you watch this man while I make a call on the neighbors," said the officer who seemed to be in authority. When he returned he was frowning seriously. "We'd better telephone to the precinct to search for Dennison. There's nobody at home in either house and there's nobody back of the billboards. Untie the man." When this was done, the officer said: "Now, tell us what's happened; and don't forget any of the details."

Jones told a simple and convincing story; it was so simple and convincing that the police believed it without question.

"Well, if that ain't the limit! Did you hear any autos outside?"

"I don't recollect," said Jones, stretching his legs gratefully. "Why?"

"The auto bandits held up a bank messenger today and got away with twenty thousand. Whenever a man draws down a big sum they seem to know about it. And say, Murphy, call up and have the river police look out for a new-fangled airship. Your master may have been rescued," turning to Jones.

"If I were only sure of that, sir!"

When the police took themselves off Jones proceeded to act upon those plans laid down by Hargreave early that night. When this was done he sought his bed and fell asleep, the sleep of the exhausted. When Hargreave picked up Jones to share his fortunes, he had put his trust in no ordinary man.

A dozen reporters trooped out to the Hargreave home, only to find it deserted. And while they were ringing bells and tapping windows, the man they sought was tramping up and down the platform of the railway station.

Through all this time Norton, the reporter, Hargreave's only friend, slept the sleep of the just and unjust. He rarely opened his eyes before noon.

Group after group of passengers Jones eyed eagerly. Often, just as he was in the act of approaching a couple of young women, some man would hurry up, and there would be kisses or handshakes. At length the crowd thinned, and then it was that he discovered a young girl perhaps eighteen, accompanied by a young woman in the early thirties. They had the appearance of eagerly awaiting some one. Jones stepped forward with a good deal of diffidence.

"You are waiting for some one?"

"Yes," said the elder woman, coldly.

"A broken bracelet?"

The distrust on both faces vanished instantly. The young girl's face brightened, her eyes sparkled with suppressed excitement.

"You are . . . my father?"

"No, miss," very gravely. "I am the butler."

"Let me see your part of the bracelet," said the young girl's guardian, a teacher who had been assigned to this delicate task by Miss Farlow, who could not bring herself to say good-by to Florence anywhere except at the school gates.

The halves were produced and examined.

"I believe we may trust him, Florence."

"Let us hurry to the taxicab. We must not stand here."

"My mother?"

"She is dead. I believe she died shortly after your birth. I have been with your father but fourteen years. I know but little of his life prior to that."

"Why did he leave me all these years without ever coming to see me? Why?"

"It is not for me, Miss Florence, to inquire into your father's act. But I do know that whatever he did was meant for the best. Your welfare was everything to him."

"It is all very strange," said the girl, bewilderedly. "Why didn't he come to meet me instead of you?"

Jones stared at his hands, miserably.

"Why?" she demanded. "I have thought of him, thought of him. He has hurt me with all this neglect. I expected to see him at the station, to throw my arms around his neck and . . . forgive him!" Tears swam in her eyes as she spoke.

"Everything will be explained to you when we reach the house. But always remember this, Miss Florence: You were everything in this wide world to your father. You will never know the misery and loneliness he suffered that you might not have one hour of unrest. What are your plans?" he asked abruptly of the teacher from Miss Farlow's.

"That depends," she answered, laying her hand protectingly over the girl's.

"You could leave Miss Farlow's on the moment?"

"Yes."

"Then you will stay and be Miss Florence's companion?"

"Gladly."

"What is my father's name?"

"Hargreave, Stanley Hargreave."

The girl's eyes widened in terror. Suddenly she burst into a wild frenzy of sobbing, her head against the shoulder of her erstwhile teacher.

Jones appeared visibly shocked. "What is it?"

"We read the story in the newspaper," said the elder woman, her own eyes filling with tears. "The poor child! To have all her castles-in-air tumble down like this! But what authority have you to engage me?" sensibly.

Jones produced a document, duly signed by Hargreave, and witnessed and sealed by a notary, in which it was set forth that Henry Jones, butler and valet to Stanley Hargreave, had full powers of attorney in the event of his (Hargreave's) disappearance; in the event of his death, till Florence became of legal age.

Said Jones as he put the document back in his pocket: "What is your name?"

"Susan Wane."

"Do you love this child?"

"With all my heart, the poor unhappy babe!"

"Thank you!"

Inside the home he conducted them through the various rooms, at the same time telling them what had taken place during the preceding night.

"They have not found his body?" asked Florence. "My poor, poor father!"

"No."

"Then he may be alive!"

"Please God that he may!" said the butler, with genuine piety, for he had loved the man who had gone forth into the night so bravely and so strangely. "This is your room. Your father spent many happy hours here preparing it for you."

Tears came into the girl's eyes again, and discreetly Jones left the two alone.

"What shall I do, Susan? Whatever shall I do?"

"Be brave as you always are. I will never leave you till you find your father."

Florence kissed her fervently. "What is your opinion of the butler?"

"I think we may both trust him absolutely."

Then Florence began exploring the house. Susan followed her closely. Florence peered behind the mirrors, the pictures, in the drawers of the desk, in the bookcases.

"What are you hunting for, child?"

"A photograph of father." But she found none. More, there were no photographs of any kind to be found in Stanley Hargreave's home.

When Norton awoke, he naturally went to the door for the morning papers which were always placed in a neat pile before the sill. He yawned, gathered up the bundle, was about to climb back into bed, when a headline caught his dull eyes. Twenty-one years to be precise, he ran up the steps of the Hargreave home and rang the bell. He was admitted by the taciturn Jones, to whom the reporter had never paid any particular attention. Somehow Jones always managed to stand in shadows.

"I can add nothing to what has already appeared in the newspapers," replied Jones, as Norton opened his batteries of inquiries.

"Mr. Jones, I have known your master several years, as you will recollect. There never was a woman in this house, not even among the servants. There are two in the other room. Who are they? And what are they doing here?"

Jones shook his head.

"Well, I can easily find out."

Jones barred his path, and for the first time Norton gazed into the eyes of the man servant. They were as hard as gun metal.

"My dear Mr. Jones, you ought to know that sooner or later we reporters find out what we seek."

Jones appeared to reflect. "Mr. Norton, you claim to be a friend of Mr. Hargreave?"

"I do not claim. I am. More than that I do not believe he is dead. He was deep. He had some relentless enemies—I don't know where from or what kind—and he is pretending he's dead till this blows over and is forgotten."

"Here, Just Glance Over This."

"You are not going to say that in your newspaper?" Jones was visibly agitated.

"Not if I can prove it."

"If I tell you who those young ladies are, will you give me your word of honor not to write about them till I give my permission?"

Norton, having in mind the big story at the end of this mystery tangle, agreed.

"The elder is a teacher from a private school; the other is Stanley Hargreave's daughter."

"Good Lord!" gasped the astonished reporter. "He never mentioned the fact to me," and we've been together in some tight places."

"He never mentioned it to any one but me." Jones again seemed to reflect. At last he raised his glance to the reporter. "Are you willing to wait for a great story, the real story?"

"If there is one," answered Norton with his usual caution.

"On my word of honor, you shall have such a story as you never dreamt of, if you will promise not to divulge it till the appointed time."

"I agree."

"The peace and happiness of that child depends upon how you keep your word."

That was sufficient for Norton. "Your master knew me. He knew also that I am not a man who promises lightly. Now introduce me to the daughter."

With plain reluctance Jones went about the affair. Norton put a dozen perfunctory questions to the girl. What he was in search of was not news but the sound of her voice. In that quarter of an hour he felt his heart disturbed as he had never before been disturbed.

"Now, Mr. Norton," said Jones gloomily, "will you be so kind as to follow me?"

Norton was led to Jones' bedroom. The butler-valet closed the door and drew the window shade. Always seeking shadows. This did not impress the reporter at the time; he had no other thought but the story. Jones then sat down beside the reporter and talked in an undertone. When he had done he took Norton by the elbow and gently but forcibly led him down to the front door and ushered him forth. Norton jumped into his taxicab and returned to his rooms, which were at the top of the huge apartment hotel. He immedately called up his managing editor.

"Hello! This is Norton. Put Griffin on the Hargreave yarn. I'm off on another deal."

"But Hargreave was a friend of yours," protested the managing editor.

"I know it. But you know me well enough, Mr. Blair. I should not ask the transfer if it was not vitally important.

"O, very well."

"We sha'n't be scooped."

"If you can promise that, I don't care who works on the job. Will you be in the office tonight?"

"If nothing prevents me."

"Well, good-by."

Norton filled his pipe, drew his chair to the window, and stared at the great liner going down to sea.

"Lord, Lord!" he murmured. Then he smiled and chuckled. Some bright morning he would have all New York by the ears, the police running round in circles, and the chiefs of the rival sheets tearing their hair. What a story! Four columns on the first page, and two whole pages Sunday. . . . And all of a sudden he ceased to smile and chuckle.

In the living room of the Princess Olga Perigoff's apartment the mistress lay reading on the divan. There was no cigarette between her well shaped lips, for she was not the accepted type of adventuress. In fact, she was not an adventuress; she was really the Princess Perigoff. Her maiden name had been Olga Pushkin; but more of that later.

When Braine came in he found her dreaming with half closed eyes. He flourished an evening newspaper.

"Olga, even the best of us make mistakes. Here, just glance over this."

The Russian accepted the newspaper and read the heading indicated: "Aeronaut picked up far out at sea. Slips ashore from tramp steamer. Had five thousand in cash in his pockets."

"Hargreave escaped!"

"Not necessarily," she replied. "If it was Hargreave he would have had more than five thousand in hs pockets. My friend, I believe it an attempt to fool you; or it is another man entirely." She clicked her teeth with the tops of her polished nails.

"There are two young women in the house. What the deuce can that mean?"

"Two young women? O! then everything's as simple as daylight. Katrina Pushkin, my cousin, had a child."

"Child? Hargreave had a child? What do you mean by keeping this fact from me?" he stormed.

"It was useless till this moment. He probably sent for her yesterday; but in his effort to escape had to turn her over to his butler. We shall soon learn whether Hargreave is dead or alive. We can use the child to bring him back."

The anger went out of his eyes. "You're a wonder, Olga."

"But you should have gone with Vroon last night. He does everything just as you tell him. When they reported that Hargreave had visited Ort's hangar you ought to have prepared against such a coup as flight through the air."

"I admit it. But a daughter! Well, I can bring him back," with a sinister laugh. "By the Lord Harry, I have him in my hands this time, that is, if this girl turns out to be his daughter. A million? Two, three, all he has in the world. I want you to pay a visit right away. Watch the butler, Jones. He'll lie, of course; but note how he treats the girl; and if you get the chance look around the walls for a secret panel. He might not have carried away the cash at all, only enough for his immediate needs, which would account for that five thousand on the man picked up at sea. If I could only get inside that house for an hour!"

"I believe I'll call at once. Leo, was Hargreave the man's real name?"

Braine laughed. "That is of no vital consequence. He will be Hargreave till the end of the chapter, dead or alive. You can tell me the news at dinner tonight."

So, later, when the butler accepted her card at the door, loath as he might be, there was nothing for him to do but admit her.

"Whom do you wish to see, madam?" stepping back into the shadow.

"Miss Hargreave. I'm an old friend of her mother's."

"There is no such person here."

"To whom, then, does this hat belong?" she asked quietly. She waved her hand indolently toward the hall rack.

Jones' lips tightened. "That belongs to Miss Gray, a kind of protege of Mr. Hargreave's."

"Indeed! You have no objections to my seeing her? My maiden name was Olga Pushkin, cousin to Katrina, wife of Stanley Hargreave. I am, if you will weigh the matter carefully, a kind of aunt."

To Jones it was as if ice had suddenly come into contact with his heart's blood. But as he still stood in the shadow, she did not observe the pallor of his face.

"If you will state exactly why you wish to see her, madam."

"You seem to possess authority?"

"Yes, madam, absolute authority." Jones produced his document and presented it to her.

"There is no flaw in that," she agreed readily. "I wish to see the child. I have told you why."

"Very well, madam." Why had they not telegraphed the child, even on the train, to return to Farlow's. He knew nothing of this woman, whether she was an enemy or a friend. He conducted his unwelcome guest into the library.

"How did you know that she was here?" suddenly.

But she was ready. "I did not. But the death of Mr. Hargreave brought me. And that youthful hat in the hall was a story all its own. Later I shall show you some papers of my own. You will have no cause to doubt them. They have not the legal power of yours, but they would find standing in any court."

Jones turned and went in search of Florence.

The princess lost no time in beginning her investigations, but she wasted her time. There was no secret panel in evidence.

"Who is she?" asked Florence as she looked at the card. "Did my father know princesses?"

"Yes," said Jones briefly. "Be very careful what you say to her. Admit nothing. She claims to be a cousin of your mother. Perhaps."

"My mother?" Without waiting for any further advice from Jones, whom Florence in her young years thought presuming upon his authority, she ran downstairs to the library. Her mother, to learn some fact about the mother of whom she knew nothing!

"You knew my mother?" she cried without ceremony.

He heard the princess say: "I did, my child; and heaven is witness that you are the exact picture of her at your age. And I knew your father."

Jones straightened, his hands shut tightly.

"Tell me about my father!"

The princess smiled. It was Katrina Pushkin come to life, the same impulsiveness. "I knew him but slightly. I was a mere child myself when he used to pinch my cheeks. I met him again the other night, but he did not recognize me; and I could not find it in my heart to awaken his memory in a public restaurant."

Presently Jones came in to announce that two detectives requested to see Florence. The two men entered, informing her that they had been instructed to investigate the disappearance of Stanley Hargreave.

"Who are you, miss?"

"I am his daughter."

"Ah!"

One of the detectives questioned Florence minutely while the other wandered about the rooms, feeling the walls, using the magnifying glass, turning back the rugs. Even the girl's pretty room did not escape his scrutiny. By and by he returned to the library and beckoned to his companion. The two conferred for a moment. One chanced to look into the mirror. He saw the bright eyes of the princess gazing intelligently into his.

"I'm afraid we'll have to ask you to accompany us to the station, miss."

"Why?"

"Some technicalities. We must have some proof of your right to be in this house. So far as we have learned, Hargreave was unmarried. It will take but a few minutes."

"And I will accompany you," said the princess. "We'll be back within half an hour. I'll tell them what I know."

Jones, in the hall, caught sight of the reporter coming up the steps. Here was some one he could depend upon.

"Why, Mr. Norton!"

The reporter eyed the princess in amazement.

"You look surprised. Naturally. I am a cousin of Miss Florence's mother. You might say that I am her aunt. It's a small world, isn't it?" But if wishing could poison, the reporter would have died that moment.

"Who are you and what are you doing here?" one of the detectives demanded.

"I am going to ask that very question of you," said Norton urbanely.

"We are from headquarters," replied one, showing his badge.

"What headquarters? What are they asking you to do?" he said to Florence.

"They say I must go to the police station with them."

"Not the least in the world," laughed the reporter. "You two clear out of here as fast as your rascally legs can carry you. I don't know what your game is, but I do know every reputable detective in New York, and you don't belong."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the princess; "do you mean to say that these men are not real detectives?"

"This girl goes to the police station, young man. So much the worse for you if you meddle. Take yourself off!"

"All in good time."

"Here, Jenner, you take charge of the girl. I'll handle this guy. He shall go to the station, too."

What followed would always be vividly remembered by Florence, fresh from the peace and happiness of her school life. Norton knocked his opponent down. He rose and for a moment the room seemed full of legs and arms and panting men. A foot tripped up Norton and he went down under the bogus detective. He never suspected that the tripping foot was not accidental. He was too busy.

The other man dragged Florence toward the hall, but here the peaceful butler entered into the field of action with a very unattractive automatic. The detective threw up his hands.

"Tell Me About My Father."

The struggle went on in the library. A trick of jiu-jitsu brought about the downfall of Norton's man, and Norton ran out into the hall to aid Jones. He searched the detective's pockets and secured the revolver. The result of all this was that the two bogus detectives soon found themselves in charge of two policemen, and they were marched off to the station.

"Your advent was most providential, Mr. Norton," said Jones in his usual colorless tones.

"I rather believe so. Why don't you pack up and clear out for a while?"

"I am stronger in this house than elsewhere," answered the butler enigmatically.

"Well, you know best," said the reporter.

The princess was breathing rapidly. No, on second thought she had no wish to throw her arms about the reporter's neck and kiss him.

The following recommendations were passed by the county Farmers Union, and ordered published in the county papers:

1. Inasmuch as we learn that if cotton is held in the seed after it is picked it will increase in value one cent a pound for each 30 days, therefore we recommend that each farmer hold his cotton in the seed for at least 60 days if possible, and when it is ginned each bale be wrapped in cotton bagging, and we recommend that each Local instruct its business agent to make arrangements with the ginner at once to use cotton bagging.

2. Whereas, we view with alarm the growing danger of Roman Catholicism, because it is striving to destroy our public schools, and to stop the reading of the Bible among our people; and it is working to control the political affairs of our nation; therefore be it resolved that we put ourselves on record to study this evil, and to combat it with all our power; and we recommend that all our members inform themselves by subscribing for The Menace.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

Best Treatment for Catarrh S. S. S. Removes the Cause

Specialists in Catarrh troubles have agreed that it is an infection of the blood. The laboratories of the S. S. S. Co., at Atlanta, have proven it. Once you get your blood free from impurities—cleansed of the Catarrhal poisons, which it is now a prey to because of its unhealthy state—then you will be relieved of Catarrh—the dripping in the throat, hawking and spitting, raw sores in the nostrils, and the disagreeable bad breath. It was caused, in the first place, because your impoverished blood was easily infected. Possibly a slight cold or contact with someone who had a cold. But the point is—don't suffer with Catarrh—it is not necessary. The remedy S. S. S., discovered over fifty years ago, tested, true and tried, is always obtainable at any drug store. It has proven its value in thousands of cases. It will do so in your case. Get S. S. S. at once and begin treatment. If yours is a long standing case, be sure to write the S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga., for free expert medical advice. They will tell you how this purely vegetable blood tonic cleanses the impurities from the blood by literally washing it clean. They will prove to you that thousands of sufferers from Catarrh, after consistent treatment with S. S. S., have been freed from the trouble and all its disagreeable features and restored to perfect health and vigor. Don't delay the treatment. Take S. S. S. at once.

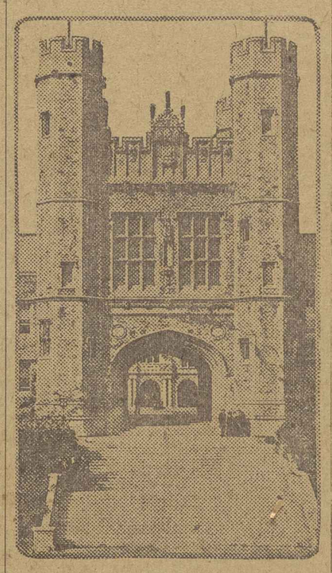
HOW WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY BEGAN

Chartered and Organized in the Fifties on Birthdays of "Father of Country."

BECAME "UNIVERSITY" IN 1857

Far-sighted Founders Gave School Great Name Into Which to Grow, and It Proved Equal to Its Opportunity.



WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY TOWERS.

"From what did Washington University derive its name?" is a question asked with increasing frequency since the great institution of learning at St. Louis commenced to attract world-wide attention.

Although most of the inquiries originate in other cities than St. Louis, many St. Louisans have inaccurate information on the matter.

The inquirer on the street in St. Louis is likely to be informed that the name Washington naturally settled itself upon the university as a result of its location, when a small school, on Washington avenue. That is the explanation received by the writer shortly after his arrival in St. Louis. But that does not explain truthfully.

True Story of Source of Name.

The real explanation may be found in an historical sketch which the university has issued and which in part follows:

On the 22nd of February, 1853, at the instance of Wayman Crow, Esq., member of the State Senate, the Legislature of Missouri granted a charter to an educational institution to be located in St. Louis, and to bear the name of Eliot Seminary, in honor of the Rev. William G. Eliot of St. Louis. The charter, a most liberal one, was to be perpetual, and no limitations were imposed, excepting those which forbade any sectarian or partisan instruction.

The first meeting of the corporation named in the charter was held on the 22nd of February, 1854. In deference to the wishes of Dr. Eliot, the name of the institution was changed. Since the charter had been granted on the 22nd of February, the birthday of Washington, and since the meeting of the corporation for organization had also occurred on this same anniversary, the name of the institution was changed from Eliot Seminary to Washington Institute, which in 1857 became, by a change in the charter, Washington University. It seemed to the founders that the name was significant of the character of the institution which they sought to found.

The first educational work done under the charter of 1853 was the opening of an evening school for boys, in a building on Sixth street, during the winter of 1854-55. This school was called the "O'Fallon Polytechnic Institute," in honor of Colonel John O'Fallon, for years one of the University Directors.

Real Beginning of University.

This evening school, and a day school which had been in operation for some time before this period, were carried on together until, in September, 1856, a building on Seventeenth street was completed and occupied by the day school. The evening school was sustained for several years by the University, until by special arrangement the entire care of this school was assumed by the Public School Board. This school on Seventeenth street, the forerunner of the present Smith Academy, now a secondary school of the University, was the real beginning of Washington University.

The formal inauguration of the University took place on the 23rd of April, 1857. Later in the year a building was erected for the chemical laboratory. In the next year the organization of the College was completed. The first College degrees were granted in 1862.

The east wing of the main building, of which the academic building formed the south wing, was erected in 1858 and used for College classes. The west wing was added in 1871 and devoted to the Polytechnic School.

In the meantime the University had been growing, adding new departments, and receiving additional endowments. The Law School was organized in 1867; the Polytechnic School, now known as the Schools of Engineering and Architecture, in 1870; the School of Fine Arts in 1879; the School of Botany in 1885. The St. Louis Medical College, founded in 1842, was admitted as a department of the University in 1891, and the Missouri Dental College in 1892. In 1899 the Missouri Medical College, founded in 1840, was united with the St. Louis Medical College to form the Medical School of

HIGH SCHOOL OPENS ON NEXT WEDNESDAY

Come Out at Eleven O'clock and Hear State Superintendent, W. F. Feagin.

Chilton County High School will open its first regular session on Wednesday, September 8th.

These are some of the things the management of the school wants to get definitely before the public:

In the first place, this school is a County High School, and not a city high school.

In the second place, this school is not a luxury, but meets a distinct and imperative demand.

In the third place, this school has the right to expect the support and sympathy due to the institution that answers to the call of distress.

Alabama, the state we all love so well, stands pre-eminently conspicuous in that we are away down at the bottom in literacy. What has put us there? We will not enter into a discussion of this phase of the question. What is keeping us there? Inattention to the education of those looking to us for their training. The men who have struggled up from adverse circumstances, and have gone forth in the world and made themselves felt—these bear testimony to us that Alabama boys are as capable as any that live. We do not have to look far from home to find men and women who have made themselves a necessity to success in the enterprises at home and abroad.

The significant statement was made recently by the superintendent of one of the great steel plants in the Birmingham district, in answer to the question as to why the high salaried positions in his company were held by men not native Alabamians, "It is because I cannot find Alabama men trained sufficiently to do the work."

Now, fathers and mothers, does that statement mean anything to you? Can you afford to let your sons and danghters stand by and see the sons and daughters of other states and other people come into your midst and bear away the recompense of trust and honor, while yours are only permitted to do the menial part and receive the hod carrier's reward?

Now this is placing the emphasis on the utilitarian side of education, which is not the "chiefest aim and end to be attained. There is that training of the sensibilities, that development of the perception, that tuning of the heart-strings to the anthems of the Divine that come alone with education directed along the right lines.

Chilton County High School wants Chilton County boys and girls on its roll. It is anxious to meet its obligations to them. With a higher resolve, and a holy ambition it invites them to come and learn.

Fathers and mothers cannot afford to send their sons and daughters to other counties and states and lend their moral and material support to building other homes and communities while their own is suffering for want of their support.

Give us your support, and we will give you a school right here in your midst that will make the boy who wants to farm, an efficient farmer. That will teach the boy who wants to be a mechanic, the use of tools and the principles of architecture. The girl who wants to be a home maker, the arts and services which go to make the home what it ought to be—the most delightful place on earth. The one who wants to teach, the principles of teaching and the text books necessary to the successful teacher, or to be plain and less tedious you will find the aim of this school to be to meet the demand of and render efficient service in Chilton County.

Now will you help us? We are your servants. We are here to help all and hinder none. With you for us, all things are possible. With you against us nothing worth while can be accomplished.

The plan is on the tressleboard. What shall we do with it? The answer is with you.

H. C. McDonald, Principal.

The Man Who Advertises.

There are two classes of merchants—those who advertise and those who do not.

The man who advertises has the best of the deal.

He keeps himself before the public—he keeps his wares before the public—and he keeps their quality and price uppermost in the public mind.

People talk about the man who advertises, because they know he has something worth advertising—or he wouldn't advertise.

Cobwebs never grow in the store of the man who advertises, because people buy his goods because he does advertise.

People read the advertisement—they look for them and expect to find them—and often end in forgetting the man who does not advertise.

Advertising pays.

Get the habit, and grow with your ads.

Letters to The Editor.

Jemison, Ala., August 31.
Editor Union-Banner:

Health of our community is fairly good.

Cotton picking has begun, but it won't be a very big job. I weighed the first new bale here on August 26, and it sold for 8c a pound. Isn't that a sight compared with Republican administrations? But the Demmies say the war is the cause of the low price; yet there was more cotton sold and used this year than last year. How is that?

I tell you this administration has allowed the money sharks to gobble up the wealth of the United States in the way of produce. Wilson may be a good school teacher, but he is no good in the President's chair.

Well boys, I don't blame Mr. Akams for pleading for a consolidation, and to have only one primary, and an obligation for each side to hold their peace and take their medicine without mentioning what has been in the past, and have union in the camp from the primary to the general election; for he knows this is the only hope for the Demmies in Chilton county. He knows just how bad they have done, and what is behind them, and he knows too that it will all be revealed and they will have to face it between the primary and the general election.

Say, Mr. Adams, if you can't subscribe to the doctrine of faith and be a Progressive, and can't stand the truth that will come out in the next campaign against the Democrats, you had better go back to Florida, for we will not go into your union plan primary to be done like they were over in Bibb county. The populists had that county at one time, and by their union primary they lost out, and have been sorry of it ever since. Anyway, I think it is so fixed that if a man don't resign his office or stop running they have to have him impeached to get him out of the way. We are not going to have that here.

Boys, stand to your post and let them cry unionism all they want to.

Can we go in with men who have the spirit to take the tax money and use it over the wishes of 95 per cent. of the people.

No! A hundred times no!

Respectfully,
J. N. SCOTT.

On the Seamen's Bill

The American plowmen are interested in sea commerce. It is expensive and likewise humiliating to have to salute a foreign flag every time a farmer wants to ship a bushel of wheat, a bale of cotton or a pound of farm products across the ocean. The American farmer is entitled to the protection of his flag in sending his products across the sea, and Congress should give such encouragement to shipping interests as is necessary to meet foreign competition in ocean commerce. A recent bill known as the Seaman's Bill became a law under the President's signature and Mr. R. P. Schwerin, vice-president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, when asked to define this law and outline its effect upon American steamship lines, said in part:

"The bill provides that no ship of any nationality 'shall be permitted to depart from any port of the United States unless she has on board a crew not less than seventy-five per centum of which, in each department thereof, is able to understand any order given by the officers of such vessel, nor unless forty per centum in the first year, forty-five per centum in the second year, fifty per centum in the third year, fifty-five per centum in the fourth year after the passage of this Act, and, thereafter sixty-five per centum of her deck crew, exclusive of licensed officers and apprentices, are of a rating not less than able seamen.'

"The oversea trade of the world is competitive, therefore the original cost of the ship and the operation of the ship have to be reckoned with in the keen competition of these rival nations with one another. The Oriental sailor is obedient and competent and is the cheapest sailor in the world. It is therefore manifestly clear that if this law applied to all nationalities in the transpacific traffic, all would be on the same economic basis, but it works a single hardship to all the ships of the world, except the Japanese and American ships, and with the latter it works two hardships. With the European, the cost of constructing a ship is no higher than the cost of constructing a Japanese ship, but if they had to provide European crews, while the Japanese operated with Japanese crews, the condition of competition would be such that they could not overcome the handicap and they would be driven off. But the American ship would have to contend not only with the tremendous increase of cost of wage in the substitution of the European crew for the Chinese crew, but also the greater initial cost of the ship. As the Japanese have now done away with their European officers and Japanese crews, all of whom speak a common language, there is no difficulty for them to comply with all the conditions of the bill and continue their Japanese crews, with Oriental wages.

"The law, therefore, instead of assisting the American ship, adds another heavy burden, while it places none whatever upon the Japanese ship, but, on the contrary, turns over to the Japanese the traffic of the Pacific Ocean, which the American ship is forced to forego by act of Congress of the United States."

NATIONAL WEALTH SHOWS BIG GAIN

Increase of 75 Per Cent Is Record Made in Eight Years.

FEDERAL DEBT ALSO GROWS

Interesting Facts Brought Out in Decennial Report of Wealth, Public Indebtedness and Taxation by the United States Census Bureau.

Washington, D. C.—The decennial report on wealth, debt and taxation, issued by Director Sam L. Rogers of the bureau of census, department of commerce, and compiled under the direction of Mr. Starke M. Grogan, chief statistician in charge of the inquiry, will show an increase in the national wealth of 75 per cent in eight years; in net federal indebtedness, of 6 per cent in 11 years; in net state indebtedness, of 44.5 per cent in 11 years; in net county indebtedness, of 89 per cent in 11 years; in net municipal indebtedness, of 114 per cent in 11 years; and in the general property tax levy, of 86 per cent in 10 years.

In this report are brought together in two bound volumes all the statistics pertaining to the general subject of wealth, debt and taxation which have been issued from time to time during the past year in a series of bulletins.

The National Wealth.

The bureau estimates the total value of all classes of property in the United States, exclusive of Alaska and the insular possessions, in 1912 at $187,739,000,000, or $1,965 per capita. This estimate is presented merely as the best approximation which can be made from the data available and as being fairly comparable with that published eight years ago. The increase between 1904 and 1912 was 75 per cent for the total amount and 49 per cent for the per capita. Real estate and improvements, including public property, alone constituted $110,677,000,000, or 59 per cent of the total, in 1912. The next greatest item, $16,149,000,000, was contributed by the railroads; and the third, $14,694,000,000, represented the value of manufactured products, other than clothing and personal adornment, furniture, vehicles and kindred property.

Public Indebtedness.

The net public indebtedness in 1913 amounted to $4,850,461,000. This amount was made up as follows: National debt, $1,028,564,000, or $10.59 per capita; state debt, $345,942,000, or $3.57 per capita; county debt, $371,528,000, or $4.33 per capita; and municipal debt, $2,884,883,000, or $54.27 per capita. Thus the average urban citizen's share of the net federal, state, county and municipal debt combined was $72.76; and the average rural citizen's share of the net federal, state and county debt combined was $18.49.

The total federal debt in 1910 was $2,916,205,000, of which amount $967,366,000 was represented by bonds, $375,682,000 by noninterest-bearing debt (principally United States notes or "greenbacks"), and $1,573,157,000 by certificates and notes issued on deposits of coin and bullion. Against this indebtedness there was in the treasury $1,887,641,000 in cash available for payment of debt, leaving the net national indebtedness at $1,028,564,000, or $10.59 per capita. The increase in the net indebtedness between 1902 and 1913 amounted to 6 per cent, but for the per capita figure there was a decrease of 13 per cent. The burden due to the national debt is thus very light in comparison with that imposed by the indebtedness of other great nations.

The state debt, however, rests still more easily on the shoulders of the average citizen, being only one-third as great as that of the nation. The total state indebtedness in 1913 was $422,797,000, and the net debt—that is, the total debt less sinking-fund assets—was $345,942,000, or $3.57 per capita. The net debt increased by 44.5 per cent between 1902 and 1913, and the per capital net debt by 18 per cent.

The only two states in which the per capita state debt in 1913 exceeded the per capita national debt were Massachusetts, with a net debt of $79,551,000, or $22.78 per capita, and Arizona, with $3,065,000, or $13.28 per capita. In these states, however, the large per capita debt is due principally not to the state debt proper but to the considerable amount of contingent debt assumed by the state in the name of the metropolitan districts in Massachusetts and the counties and municipalities in Arizona.

The total county debt in 1913 amounted to $393,207,000, of which amount $371,528,000, or $4.33 per capita, was net debt. The net indebtedness increased by 89 per cent between 1902 and 1913, and the per capita net indebtedness by 55 per cent.

By far the greatest item of indebtedness in this country is that of municipalities. This amounted in 1913 to an aggregate of $3,460,000,000, of which $2,884,883,000, or $54.27 per capita, represented net indebtedness. The rate of increase in net indebtedness between 1902 and 1913 was 114 per cent.

Taxation.

The total levies of taxes on real estate, personal property and other property subject to ad valorem taxation, by states, counties, municipalities, school districts, and other civil divisions, increased from $724,737,000, or $9.22 per capita, in 1902 to $1,349,841,000, or $13.91 per capita, in 1912, the percentages of increase being 86 for the total amount and 51 for the per capita.

Levies for state purposes increased from $80,402,000 in 1902 to $155,643,000 in 1912, or by 94 per cent. During the same period the levies by counties, municipalities, school districts, etc., increased from $644,335,000 to $1,184,253,000, or by 84 per cent. The county levies in 1912 were $288,932,000, and those of municipalities, school districts, and other minor civil divisions amounted to $895,321,000.

Thus it appears that an increase of 75 per cent in 8 years—indicating a gain of 115 per cent in 11 years—in national wealth has been accompanied by an increase, during 11 years, of 6 per cent in net federal indebtedness, 44.5 per cent in net state indebtedness, 89 per cent in net county indebtedness, and 114 per cent in net municipal indebtedness. In connection with the growth in municipal indebtedness, however, it should be borne in mind that the proportion which urban population represented of the total was materially greater in 1913 than in 1902. The net indebtedness of national, state, county and municipal governments combined increased by 71 per cent in 11 years.

A more significant comparison, however, can be made between the growth of the national wealth and the increase in tax levies. The national wealth, on the assumption that its average annual rate of growth from 1902 to 1912 was the same as that which prevailed from 1904 to 1912, increased by 101 per cent in 10 years, while the increase in tax levies during the period 1902 to 1912 amounted to 86 per cent.

Revenues and Expenditures.

The total revenue receipts of the national government during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, aggregated $953,597,000, and the expenditures for governmental costs were $952,601,000. The corresponding figures for 1903 were $657,232,000 and $616,739,000. The percentage of increase in governmental costs between 1903 and 1913 was 54. The nature and amounts of the leading items which made up the total revenue receipts in 1913 were: "Special property taxes" (principally receipts from customs and from tax on circulation of national banks), $313,953,000; earnings of public-service enterprises (principally postal receipts), $270,704,000; receipts from internal revenue taxes on manufacture and sale of liquor, $230,146,000; "business taxes" (internal revenue receipts from all sources except manufacture and sale of liquor, together with receipts from income tax), $113,385,000.

Of the expenditures for governmental costs, the leading items were: For protection to person and property (expenses of military, naval, lighthouse, steamboat inspection, revenue cutter, life-saving and immigration and naturalization services), $264,671,000; for expenses of postal service, $264,107,000; for pensions, maintenance of national soldiers' homes, etc., $182,313,000; for maintenance of legislative, executive and judicial establishments, and administration of executive departments, $61,784,000; for improvement and maintenance of waterways, $42,652,000; for construction of the Panama canal, $41,741,000; for interest on public indebtedness, $25,256,000; for outlays on public buildings and grounds, including military posts, and for the bureau of construction and repair, navy department, $22,639,000; for education (principally maintenance of military and naval academies, Indian schools, library of congress, agricultural experiment stations, and study of animal and plant industries), $17,243,000.

State revenues in 1913 aggregated $367,585,000; and the expenditures of the states for governmental costs during the same year amounted to $382,551,000, or nearly $15,000,000 more than their revenues. State revenues and governmental cost payments in 1903 were $189,165,000 and $185,764,000, respectively. The percentage of increase in state expenditures for governmental costs between 1903 and 1913 was 105.

The revenue receipts of counties in 1913 were $370,043,000, and their payments for governmental costs aggregated $385,182,000, or about $15,000,000 more than their revenue receipts. The governmental cost payments of the counties increased by 95 per cent between 1902 and 1913.

Public Properties.

The aggregate value of state properties (exclusive of those of Pennsylvania, for which no data were obtained) in 1913 was $695,499,000. The largest two items, $175,954,000 and $136,866,000, represented the value of lands, buildings and equipment of educational institutions and of state houses and departmental libraries, respectively.

The value of county properties in 1913 was $576,657,000, of which amount $293,295,000, or more than one-half, represented the value of courthouses.

The value of public properties in 1913 for incorporated places of 2,500 and over was $4,097,806,000. Of this amount, $1,507,133,000, or more than one-third, represented the value of lands, buildings and equipment of public-service enterprises. The remainder covered the value of lands, buildings and equipment of the various municipal departments, of which the leading items were: Property of schools and libraries, $1,018,528,000; parks and other property falling under the general head of "recreation," $967,488,000.

HASTENING GERMINATION OF SOUTHERN BUR CLOVER

Boiling Seed Secures Better Stand and Makes Later Planting Possible.

By H. B. Tisdale, Assistant in Agriculture.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Before the seed of Southern bur clover are planted they should be boiled for one minute. This is necessary in order to hasten germination and to secure a good stand.

Three vessels containing water, and a pot of boiling water, are necessary for the treatment. The bags of burs, in convenient quantities for handling, are first placed in vessel No. 1 containing cool water and rinsed in order to remove the bacteria for reinoculation. Then the seed are placed for a few minutes in vessel No. 2, containing hot water, to prevent sudden fall of temperature in the boiling water. The seed are then placed in the boiling water and boiled for one minute, after which they are placed in vessel No. 3, containing cold water.

When the burs are sufficiently cooled they are dipped again in vessel No. 1 for re-inocculation. The burs should then be spread out in a shady place to dry. If the weather is too damp for the burs to dry out rapidly, they should be sown in the field.

After this treatment the seed may be planted as late as crimson clover

BEST TIME TO SOW OATS

Early Fall Sowing is Recommended as Best Time.

By J. F. Duggan, Director of Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Many farmers are afraid to sow oats early lest the plants should reach the tender booting stage before the last freeze comes in February or the early part of March. But for every single instance where oats are sown too early, there are hundreds of cases where they are sown too late in the fall to afford the largest possible yield.

Speaking in a general way, we prefer for grain production to sow red rust proof varieties in October in central Alabama. The sowings made here in September are usually satisfactory, but such early sown grain may need to be judiciously grazed during dry periods in winter to prevent the plants reaching the booting stage before the last freeze of winter.

For grain production, but not for pasturage, the first few weeks in November constitute a satisfactory date for sowing oats in central Alabama, but oats sown late in November are more liable to be injured by cold in severe winters than October sown oats.

Our usual rule is to sow as soon as convenient in October and November, and to cease to sow oats on December 1st.

Oats sown even as late as Novem-

CURING COWPEA HAY

Time of Cutting is Important as Well as Method of Handling.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

To secure good cowpea hay, the cowpeas should be mowed when the earliest pods are straw-colored. The curing should be done in the shade as much as possible. If the mowing is delayed until all the pods are ripe, many of the leaves shed off and the stems become woody and less palatable; on the other hand, if the peas are mowed too early, the amount of juice is very great, curing is slow and difficult, and the quality of hay is not first class. Good peavine hay should be bright, free from dirt and weeds, thoroughly cured and have a good sprinkling of pods.

From five to ten days of favorable weather is required to make good cowpea hay—time depending upon rankness of growth, temperature and atmospheric conditions. After the dew has thoroughly dried off of the cowpeas in the morning, the mower should start to cutting. The hay should lie in the swath from 36 to 48 hours when it should be tedded if heavy; and if light, it may be cured sufficiently well to be raked into small long windrows. The curing in the windrow may be hastened by turning the hay over with the horse-rake at the end of the second day. At the end of the fourth day the peavines are usually ready to be thrown into cocks or on racks where its curing is finished.

The cock or racks should be carefully rounded up and capped over so that the tops will shed off water. A very convenient size cock is 200 pounds. The hay in the cock goes through a sweat which improves its quality. When you can run your hand into the rack or cock and find that the hay in the center is cool, dry and brittle like that on the surface, it is ready to be housed or baled.

Ponce de Leon Failed; His Prize Is Found

Ponce de Leon, the daring explorer, searched among the swamps of Florida for the Fountain of Youth, which the Indians said would restore power and make people young. He did not find it.

Thousands of chronic intestinal, bowel and stomach sufferers have written to Geo. H. Mayr, 154 Whiting St., Chicago, in quest of health. They have found it. His remedy, composed of healing vegetable oils from France, has indeed given them back the health of youth.

Why suffer from indigestion, gases on the stomach, fainting spells, torpid liver, constipation and all the evils of a disordered stomach when there is permanent relief here? Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

New Fishing Grounds.

Albacore and tunny, fish which until recently have been found only in the Mediterranean in sufficient quantities to form the basis of an industry, are said now to be caught in enormous quantities along the coast of southern California. At San Pedro a fleet of gasoline launches finds profitable employment during the season in catching these fish for the packers.

CHAPTER III.

The Safe In the Lonely Warehouse.

The princess did not remain long after the departure of the police with the bogus detectives. It had been a very difficult corner to wriggle out of, but because Braine had added to his plans after she had left the apartment. But for the advent of the meddling reporter the coup would have succeeded, herself apparently perfectly innocent of complicity. That must be the keynote of all her plans: to appear quite innocent and leave no trail behind her. She had gained the confidence of Florence and her companion. And she was rather certain that she had impressed this lazy-eyed reporter and the stolid butler. She had told nothing but the truth regarding her relationship. They would find that out. She was Katrina Pushkin's cousin. But blood with her counted as naught. She had room in her heart but for two things, Braine and money to spend on her caprices.

How long has your highness known Mr. Braine?" asked the reporter idly, as he smoothed away all signs of his recent conflict.

"O, the better part of a year. Mr. Hargreave did not recognize me the other night. That was quite excusable, for when he last saw me I was not more than twelve. My child," she said to Florence, "build no hopes regarding your mother. She is doubtless dead. Upon some trivial matter I do not know what it was—she was confined to the fortress. That was seventeen years ago. When you enter the fortress at St. Petersburg, you cease to be."

"That is true enough."

"I did not recall myself to your father. I did not care at that moment to shock him with the remembrance of the past. Is not Mr. Braine a remarkable man?" All this in her charming broken English.

"He is, indeed," affirmed Norton. "He's a superb linguist, knows everybody and has traveled everywhere. No matter what subject you bring up he seems well informed."

"Come often," urged Florence.

"I shall, my child. And any time you need me, call for me. After all, I am nearly your aunt. You will find life in the city far different from that which you have been accustomed to."

She limped down to her limousine. In tripping up Norton he had stepped upon her foot heavily.

"She is lovely!" cried Florence.

"Well, I must be on my way, also," said Norton. "I am a worldly-wise man, Miss Florence. So is Jones here. Never go any place without letting him know; not even to the corner drug store. I am going to find your father. Some one was rescued. I'm going to find out whether it was the aviator or Mr. Hargreave."

Jones drew in a deep breath and his eyes closed for a moment. At the door he spoke to the reporter.

"What do you think of that woman?"

"I believe that she told the truth. She is charming."

"She is. But for all her charm and truth I cannot help distrusting her. I have an idea. I shall call up your office at the end of each day. If a day comes without a call, you will know that something is wrong."

"A very good idea." Norton shook hands with everyone and departed.

"What a brave, pleasant young man!" murmured Susan.

"I like him, too; and I'd like him for a friend," said the guileless girl.

"It is very good to have a friend like Mr. Norton," added Jones; and passed out into the kitchen. All the help had been discharged and upon his shoulders lay the burden of the cooking till such time when he could reinstate the cook.

There was a stormy scene between Braine and the princess that night.

"Are you in your dotage?" she asked vehemently.

"There, there; bring your voice down a bit. Where's the girl?"

"In her home. Where did you suppose she would be, after that botch-work of letting me go to do one thing while you had in mind another? And an ordinary pair of cutthroats, at that!"

"The thought came to me after you left. I knew you'd recognize the men and understand. I see no reason why it didn't work."

It would have been all right if you had consulted a clairvoyant."

"What the deuce do you mean by that?" Braine demanded roughly.

"I mean that then you would have learned your friend the reporter was to arrive upon the scene at its most vital moment."

"What, Norton?"

"Yes. The trouble is with you, you have been so successful all these years that you have grown overconfident. I tell you that there is a desperately shrewd man somewhere back of all this. Mark me, I do not believe Hargreave is dead. He is in hiding. It may be near by. He may have dropped from the balloon before it left land. The man they picked up may be Orts, the aeronaut. The five thousand might have been his fee for rescuing Hargreave. Here is the greatest thing we've ever been up against; and you start in with every day methods!"

"Little woman, don't let your tongue run away with you too far."

"I'm not the least bit afraid of you, Leo. You need me, and it has never been more apparent than at this moment."

"All right. I fell by the wayside this trip. Truthfully, I realized it five minutes after the men were gone. The only clever thing I did was to keep the mask on my face. They can't come back at me. But the thing looked so easy; and it would have worked but for Norton's appearance."

"You all but compromised me. That butler worries me a little." Her expression lost its anger and grew thoughtful. "He's always about, somewhere. Do you think Hargreave took him into his confidence?"

"Can't tell. He's been watched straight for 40 hours. He hasn't mailed a letter or telephoned to any place but the grocery. There have been no telegrams. Some one in that house knows where the money is, and it's ten to one that it will be the girl."

"She lookes enough like Katrina to be her ghost."

Braine went over to the window and stared up at the stars.

"You have made a good impression on the girl?" with his back still toward her.

"I had her in my arms."

"Olga, my hat is off to you," turning, now that his face was again in repose. "Your very frankness regarding your relationship will pull the wool over their eyes. Of course they'll make inquiries and they'll find out that you haven't lied. It's perfect. Not even that newspaper weasel will see anything wrong. Toward you they will eventually ease up and you can act without their even dreaming your part in the business. We must not be seen in public any more. This butler may know where I stand even though he cannot prove it. Now, I'm going to tell you something. Perhaps you've long since guessed it. Katrina was mine till Hargreave—never mind what his name was then—till Hargreave came into the fold. So sure of her was I that I used her as a lure to bring him to us. She fell in love with him, but too late to warn him. I had the satisfaction of seeing him cast her aside, curse her, and leave her. In one thing she fooled us all. I never knew of the child till you told me."

He paused to light a cigarette.

"Hargreave was madly in love with her. He cursed her, but he came back to the house to forgive her, to find that she had been seized by the secret police and entombed in the fortress. I had my revenge. It was I who sent in the information, practically bogus. But in Russia they never question; they act and forget. So he had a daughter!"

He began pacing the floor, his hands behind his back; and the woman watched him, oscillating between love and fear. He came to a halt abruptly and looked down at her.

"Don't worry. You have no rival. I'll leave the daughter to your tender mercies."

"The butler," she said, "has full powers of attorney to act for Hargreave while absent, up to the day the girl becomes of legal age."

"I'll keep an eye on our friend Jones. From now on, day and night, there will be a cat at the knothole, and 'ware mouse! Could you make up anything like this girl?" suddenly.

"A fair likeness."

"Do it. Go to the ship which picked up the man at sea and quiz the captain. Either the aviator or Hargreave is alive. It is important to learn which at once. Be very careful; play the game only as you know how to play it. And if Hargreave is alive, we win. Tomorrow morning, early. Tears of anguish, and all that. Sailors are easy when a woman weeps. No color, remember; just the yellow wig and the salient features. Now, by-by!"

"Aren't you going to kiss me, Leo?"

He caught her hands. "There is a species of Delilah about you, Olga. A kiss tonight from your lips would snip my locks; and I need a clear head. Whether we fail or win, when this game is played you shall be my wife." He kissed the hands and strode out into the hall.

The woman gazed down at her small white hands and smiled tenderly. (The tigress has her tender moments!) He meant it!

She went into her dressing room and for an hour or more worked over her face and hair, till she was certain that if the captain of the ship described her to anyone else he could not fail to give a fair description of Florence Hargreave.

But Norton reached the captain first. Other reporters had besieged him, but they had succeeded in gathering the vaguest kind of information. They had no description of Hargreave, while Norton had. Before going down to the boat, however, he had delved into the past of the Princess Olga Perigoff. It cost him a pocketful of money, but the end justified the means. The princess had no past worth mentioning. By piecing this and that together he became assured that she had told the simple truth regarding the relationship to Florence's mother. A cablegram had given him all the facts in her history; there were no gaps or discrepancies. It read clear and frank. Trust a Russian secret agent to know what he was talking about.

So Norton's suspicions—and he had entertained some—were completely lulled to sleep. And he wouldn't have doubted her at all except for the fact that Braine had been with her when he had introduced Hargreave. Hargreave had feared Braine; that much the reporter had elicited from the butler. But there wasn't the slightest evidence. Braine had been in New York for nearly six years. The princess had arrived in the city but a year gone. And Braine was a member of several fashionable clubs, never touched cards, and seldom drank. He was an expert chess player and a wonderful amateur billiardist. Perhaps Jones, the taciturn and inscrutable, had not told him all he knew regarding his master's past. Well, well; he had in his time untangled worse snarls. The office had turned him loose, a free lance, to handle the case as he saw fit, to turn in the story when it was complete.

But what a story it was going to be when he cleared it up! The more mystifying it was, the greater the zest and sport for him. Norton was like a gambler who played for big stakes, and only big stakes stirred his cravings.

"I Am Not Afraid of You, Leo."

The captain of the tramp steamer Orient told him the same tale he had told the other reporters; he had picked up a man at sea. The man had been brought aboard totally exhausted.

"Was there another body any where?"

"No."

"What became of him?"

"I sent a wireless and that seemed to bother him. It looked so that he did not want anybody to learn that he had been rescued. The moment the boat touched the pier he lost himself in the crowd. Fifty reporters came aboard, but he was gone. And I could but tell them just what I'm telling you."

"He had money."

"About five thousand."

"Please describe him."

The captain did so. It was the same description he had given to all the reporters. Norton looked over the rail at the big warehouse.

"Was it an ordinary balloon?"

"There you've got me. My Marconi man says the balloon part was like any other balloon; but the passenger car was a new business to him. It could be driven against the wind."

"Driven against the wind. Did you tell this to the other chaps?"

"Don't think I did. Just remembered it. Probably some new invention; and now it's at the bottom of the sea. Two men, as I understand it, went off in this contraption. One is gone for good."

"For good," echoed the reporter gravely. Gone for good, indeed, poor devil! Norton took out a roll of bills. "There's two hundred in this roll."

"Well?" said the captain, vastly astonished.

"It's yours if you will do me a small favor."

"If it doesn't get me mixed up with the police. I'm only captain of a tramp; and some of the harbor police have taken a dislike to me. What do you want me to do?"

"The police will not bother you. This man Hargreave had some enemies; they want either his life or his money; maybe both. It is a peculiar case, with Russia in the background. He might have laid the whole business before the police, but he chose to fight it out himself. And to tell the truth, I don't believe the police would have done any good."

"Heave her over; what do you want me to do for that handsome roll of money?"

"If any man or woman who is not a reporter comes to pump you tell them the man went ashore with a packet under his arm."

"Tie a knot in that."

"Say that the man was gray haired, clean shaven, straight, with a scar high up on his forehead, generally covered up by his hair."

"That's battened down, my lad. Go on."

"Say that you saw him enter yonder warehouse, and later depart without his packet."

"Easy as dropping my mudhook."

"That's all." Norton gave the captain the money. "Good-by and many thanks."

"Don't mention it."

Norton left the slip and proceeded to the office of the warehouse. He approached the manager's desk.

"Hello, Grannis, old top!"

The man looked up from his work surlily. Then his face brightened.

"Norton? What's brought you here? O, yes; that balloon business. Sit down."

"What kind of a man is the captain of that old hooker in the slip?"

"Shifty in gun running, but otherwise as square as a die. Looks funny to see an old tub like that fixed up with wireless; but that has saved his neck a dozen times when he was running it into a noose. Not going to interview me, are you?"

"No. I'm going to ask you to do me a little favor."

"They always say that. But spin her out. If it doesn't cost me my job, it's yours."

"Well, there will be a person making inquiries about the mysterious aeronaut. All I want you to say is, that he left a packet with you, that you've put it in that safe till he calls to claim it."

Grannis nibbled the end of his pen. "Suppose some one should come and demand that I open the safe and deliver?"

"All you've got to do is to tell them to show the receipt signed by you."

The warehouse manager laughed. "Got a lot of sense in that ivory dome of yours. All right. But if anything happens you've got to come around and back me up. What's it about?"

"That I dare not tell you. This much, I'm laying a trap and I want some one I don't know to fall into it."

"On your way, James. But if you don't send me some prize fight tickets next week for this, I'll never do you another favor."

In reply Norton took from his pocket two bits of pasteboard and laid them on the desk. "I knew you'd be wanting something like this."

"Ringside!" cried Grannis. "You reporters are lucky devils!"

"I'd go myself if there was any earthly chance of a real scrap. You make me laugh, Gran. You're always going, always hoping the next one will be a real one. But it's all bunk. The pugs are the biggest fakers on top the sod. They've got us newspaper men done to a frazzle."

"I guess you're right. Well, count on me regarding that mysterious bundle in the safe."

"At three o'clock this afternoon I want you to call me up. If no one has called, why the game is up. But if some one does come around and make inquiries, don't fail to let me know."

"I'll be here till five. I'd better call you up then."

Then Norton returned home and idled about till afternoon. He went over to Riverdale. Five times he walked up and down the front of the Hargreave place, finally plucked up his courage and walked to the door. After all, he was a lucky mortal. He had a good excuse to visit this house every day in the week. And there was something tantalizing in the risk he took. Besides, he wanted to prove to himself whether it was a passing fancy or something deeper. That's the way with humans; we never see a sign "Fresh Paint" that we don't have to prove it.

He chatted with Florence for a while and found that, for all she might be guileless to the world, she was a good linguist, a fine musician, and talked with remarkable keenness about books and arts. But unless he roused her, the sadness of her position always lay written in her face. It was not difficult for him to conjure up her dreams in coming to the city and the blow which, like a bolt of lightning from a clear sky, had shattered them ruthlessly.

"You must come every day and tell me how you have progressed," she said.

"I'll obey that order gladly, whenever I can possibly do it. My visits will always be short."

"That is not necessary."

"No," said Norton in his heart, "but it is wise."

Always he found Jones waiting for him at the door, always in the shadow.

"Well?" the butler whispered.

"I have laid a neat trap. Whether this balloon was the one that left the top of this house I don't know. But if there were two men in it, one of them lies at the bottom of the sea."

"And the man found?" The butler's voice was tense.

"It was not Hargreave. I met Orts but once, and as he wore a beard then, the captain's description did not tally with your recollection."

"Thank God! But what is this trap?"

"I propose to find out by it who is back of all this, who Hargreave's real enemies are."

Norton returned to his rooms, there to await the call from Grannis. He was sorry, but if Jones would not take him into his fullest confidence, he must hold himself to blame for any blunder he (Norton) made. Of course, he could readily understand Jones' angle of vision. He knew nothing of the general run of reporters; he had heard of them by rumor and distrusted them. He was not aware of the fact that the average reporter carries more secrets in his head than a prime minister. It was, then, up to him to set about to allay this distrust and gain the man's complete confidence.

Meanwhile that same morning a pretty young woman boarded the Orient and asked to be led to the captain. Her eyes were red; she had balling the handkerchief she held in her hand.

"Yes, miss. What can I do for you?" He put his hands embarrassedly into his pockets—and felt the crisp bills. But for that magic touch he would have forgotten his lines. He squared his shoulders.

"I have every assurance that the man you picked up at sea is my father. I am Florence Hargreave. Tell me everything."

The captain's very blundering deceived her. "And then he hustled down the gang-plank and headed for that warehouse. He had a package which he was as tender of as if it had been dynamite."

"Thank you!" impulsively.

"A man has to do his duty, miss. A sailor's always glad to rescue a man at sea," awkwardly.

When she finally went down the gangplank the sigh the captain heaved was almost as loud as the exhaust from the donkey engines which were working out the crates of lemons from the hold.

"Maybe she is his daughter; but two hundred is two hundred, and I'm a poor sailor man."

Then Grannis came in for his troubles. What was a chap to do when a pretty girl appealed to him?

"I am sorry, miss, but I can't give you that package. I gave the man a receipt and till it is presented to me the package must remain in yonder safe. You understand enough about the business to realize that. I did not solicit the job. It was thrust upon me. I'd give a hundred dollars if the blame thing was out of my safe. You say it is your fortune. That hasn't been proved. It may be gunpowder, dynamite. I'm sorry, but you will have to find your father and bring the receipt."

The young woman left the warehouse, dabbing her eyes with the sodden handkerchief.

"I wonder," mused Grannis, as he watched her from the window, "I wonder what the deuce that chap Norton is up to. The girl might have been the man's daughter. . . . Good Lord, what an ass I am! There wasn't any man!" And so he reached over for the telephone.

Immediately upon receipt of the message the reporter set his machinery in motion. Some time before dawn he would know who the arch-conspirator was. He questioned Grannis thoroughly, and Grannis' description tallied amazingly with that of Florence Hargreave. But a call over the wire proved to him conclusively that Florence had not been out of the house that morning.

On the morrow the newspapers had scare-heads about an attempt to rob the Duffy warehouse. It appeared that the police had been tipped beforehand and were on the grounds in time to gather in several notorious gunmen, who, under pressure of the third degree, vowed that they had been hired and paid by a man in a mask and had not the slightest idea what he wanted them to raid. Nothing further could be gotten out of the gunmen. That they were lying the police had no doubt, but they were up against a stout wall and all they could do was to hold the men for the grand jury.

"You Must Come Every Day and Tell Me How You Have Progressed."

Norton was in a fine temper. After all his careful planning he had gained nothing — absolutely nothing. But wait; he had gained something—the bitter enmity of a cunning and desperate man, who had been forced to remain hidden under the pier till almost dawn.

GREAT UNIVERSITY WAS HOUSTON PLAN

Noted Educator Believed Southwest Entitled to School of First Rank.

ADDRESSED MEN OF MONEY

And Washington University, Already of Considerable Scope, Proceeded to Become Institution of World Importance.

Strauss Portrait.

CHANCELLOR DAVID F. HOUSTON.

The world-famous Washington University medical group, at St. Louis, is shown by reference to an address delivered between six and seven years ago by Chancellor David Franklin Houston, now on leave of absence to serve as Secretary of Agriculture in President Wilson's Cabinet, to be a realization, in part, of a vast plan outlined in that address, which, although delivered before the Commercial Club of St. Louis, was really in the nature of an inaugural.

"A University for the Southwest" was the subject of the address, the date of the delivery of which was October 31, 1908, and the hearers of which included most of the city's ultra-wealthy men, from among whom obviously must come the bulk of the money for whatever extraordinary extensions Washington University might make.

Dr. Houston pointed out courageously how those men of millions seated about him could help to produce for this section of the country a "real university"—something which many of them supposed St. Louis already to possess, but which Dr. Houston insisted no Southwestern city, St. Louis included, had yet acquired. Said he:

No great university can be built up and sustained unless the university can secure and keep a fair number of the strongest, greatest, most creative and inspiring of the world's teachers and investigators.

Much Money Needed.

To do this requires much money, high salaries, not because any great man in this, any more than in any other sphere, works for money, but simply because money means relief from worry and command over necessary implements; in short, means efficiency.

Men of real creative genius are rare and difficult to get, and really cannot be paid, but when you get them—when you secure a Huxley, a Pasteur, a Tyndall and a Koch—you have a university; the problem is solved.

But much more is required. There is need of great laboratories and libraries and money for operating expenses. An eminent German scientist, when asked for his idea of a university, replied that it was a laboratory and a bank account, and another said that if he were going to build a university and had large funds he would first equip a laboratory, and then if his money held out he might erect a building, and then if he had a surplus he might employ some professors, if he were sure of their capacity.

St. Louis the Logical Location.

Regarding the Pritchett report to the Carnegie Foundation, Dr. Houston said:

I would not agree with Dr. Pritchett as to the necessity for the elimination of the undergraduate college. Such colleges will continue for a long time to come to be a characteristic feature of American universities, distinguishing them especially from the German. It is requisite only that these colleges be so organized as to prevent them ultimately from crowding out the professional and graduate schools and preventing the development of a true university spirit.

But I do agree unreservedly with Dr. Pritchett that it would be of immense value to the educational system of the country if a few more institutions doing effectively strong work of real university grade were developed, and I would, with equal confidence, express the opinion that it would be of more value to the educational interests of the country if one were developed here on existing foundations than anywhere else in the nation, and that it is not probable that any institution elsewhere in the Southwest will satisfy the need.

Oval Water Pipes Best.

Oval water pipes are less liable to burst when they freeze than round ones. The reason is that repeated freezings and thawings cause a round lead water pipe to stretch at the weakest points and form bulges, which finally split; but a pipe that starts life as oval may be frozen a number of times without cracking because each time it gets a little rounder, and not until the strain can no longer be relieved in that way does it form bulges and burst.

Daily Thought.

The cure of heartache is to be found in occupations which take us away from our petty self-regardings, our self-pityings, our morbid broodings, and which connect our life with other lives and with other affairs, or merge our individual interest in the larger whole.—C. C. Ames.

Passing of Youth.

To me the passing of youth was escaping from torment of passion, strife and trouble into a placid content. My griefs and joys grew less violent. I ceased hunting those who had wronged me, and, in lesser degree, grew calmer in my attachments. Undisturbed by passions I found I could think more clearly, be more liberal and understand better.—American Magazine.

Nature's Remedy For Blood Troubles.

The purifying and curative properties of Nature's great remedy have made "S. S. S. for the Blood" a household saying. Thousands today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood purifier. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, which possess cleansing and healing ingredients. You cannot be well when your blood is impure; you lack strength and energy natural with health; your complexion becomes pale and sallow; your vitality is weakened. When waste or refuse matter, which Nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system, it is absorbed into the blood and boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin appear.

S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood taint or poison of every character. All skin diseases and eruptions pass away, and the smooth clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, all are deep-seated blood disorders, and for their treatment, nothing equals S. S. S. Get S. S. S. at any drug store. The Splendid Chilton County High School Building.

Great indications for Education in Chilton, are revealed in the opening of her High Schools during this week.

Last Wednesday the 1915-16 session of the Chilton County High School opened under most flattering circumstances. A large concourse of people interested in the welfare and progress of the school attended the opening exercises. Speechrs were made by Supt. W. T. Bean, W. I. Mullins, Prof. Pickens and H. C. McDonald, Principal.

The large commodious auditorium was filled to its capacity with men, women and children interested in the cause of education.

The speakers made able talks along the line of High school education and the air about the building was that of a strong pull together for the betterment of the school and the education of the boys and girls of Chilton County.

Many out of town students were present to enter the school.

The faculty for the school is among the best in the state and the various departments of the school is headed by able, well trained teachers, The patrons and frienes of the Institution are very enthusiastic, and the present session bids fair to be the best in the history of the school.

The faculsy is composed of the following; H. C. McDonald, Mr. C. R. Wood, Mrs. C. R. Wood, Miss Harris, Prof. Tinsley and Miss Rilla Smith.

Thorsby Institute opened for its tenth year on Tuesday of this week. The opening chapel exercises were held at 10:00 a. m., at which time, in addition to the students present for enrollment, a number of the Trustees of the school and other visitors were present. In addition to the regular chapel exercises, Rev. J. M. Graham of Ashland spoke at length to the students, making a strong plea that Alabama young people fit themselves for the largest possible usefulness, and then remain in Alabama in order that their native state may not have to call on other states to supply teachers, business men, and leaders in all walks of life. The address was listened to with much interest.

Principal Herbert announced that the school would have at its disposal each year a scholarship in Piedmont College to be granted to a graduate of Thorsby Institute and, in all probability, other scholarships. He urged the students to bear this in mind and to strive to make themselves worthy of such honors.

The enrollment for the first day showed students present from seven different counties of Alabama, with students from other counties expected within a few days.

In addition to the Faculty as announced in the summer Bulletin, the Trustees have made arrangements whereby they expect to secure the services of an additional teacher, Miss Leonora Mull, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Miss Mull is a graduate of the University of Chattanooga. and has attended Wellesley College. This addition to the Faculty gives Thorsby Institute the largest Faculty of teachers and the best equipment of any High School in this part of the state.

The Jemison High School began its work for the year 1915 16 on last Monday morning. The public was well represented as to numbers and enthusiasm. Several parties made speeches in behalf of the school, bespeaking for themselves and their town a hearty co operation with the teachers in their efforts to make this school the best Jemison has had for years.

One of the cheaf features of the occasion was a recitation by the Expreision teacher, Miss Sarah Moody.

The school and patrons at this meeting passed the following resolution:

Whereas Mr. R. H. Gaines (deceased) has always been present at a gathering of this kind to speak a word of encouragement to all, and:

Whereas this auspicious occasion is saddened by his absence today, be it resolved, that we extend to his family and relatives our sympathy in their bereavement and express to them our deep appreciation of his services while with us.

MONEY TALKS

20 thousand dollars worth of new goods received.

This is the time of year when money talks at this store. We have the goods and we want to get rid of them, and your money counts here to-day more than it ever did before. It makes no difference what you want, your money will get it at a mighty low price.

How about a suit of clothes at a very low price—ridiculously low, in fact? We have a number of suits on hand which must go. Come in and let us fit you, and we will fit the price as well as you.

A pair of shoes are always useful—a necessity. We are more than pleased with the grades we are selling this year. We have sold a great many shoes to the people of this community, but never before have we been so fortunate in our selections. They combine all the elements of appearance, durability, comfort, and the price remains the same as for ordinary shoes.

Ladies will find our shelves loaded with everything they may wish—dress goods, fancy goods, and many other things—and they are just what the feminine heart does crave. We are especially prepared to cater to your wants.

Our grocery department is complete. We are careful what we buy. We get the best. We do not try to sell a customer something we would not use on our own table. We buy very closely, and we apply the same principle in selling.

It is a certainty you cannot do better elsewhere, no matter where you go or from whom you buy. It is extremely doubtful if you can do anything like as well. Small profits and many sales is our rule.

JACKSON HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION TO MEET

In Big Convention at Nashville September 23 and 24.

The final plans for the coming Jackson Highway Convention which will be held in Nashville September 23-24, have about been completed, and the committees are ready to show the visiting delegates that Nashville is not only the real "City of Opportunity," but is the most hospitable burg on the whole map.

The delegates will be given an opportunity to visit the Hermitage, the Tennessee State Fair, and Nashville's numerous beauty spots. But chief of all, the visitors will have a chance to participate in the greatest automobile parade ever pulled off in a southern city. Thousands of cars from Nashville and other cities will participate and thereby boost the Jackson Highway.

Practically the sume number of cars will make the trip to the Hermitage, the old home of Andrew Jackson, the last afternoon of the convention. The delegates will assemble beneath the famous cedars planted by "Old Hickory" himself, and hear speeches by prominent good roads enthusiasts.

Alford Collins and wife visited their daughter, Mrs. Robinson, Sunday.

W. H. Foshee and family of Mt. Pleasant, and Mack Oden [illegible] of near Clanton visited at Mrs. Oden's Sunday.

Misses Myrle and Bertha Pate, and J. D. Gentry and Ed Kennedy visited Miss Lizzie Oden Sunday night.

Robert Scott visited his daughter, Mrs. Driver, Sunday afternoon.

There will be singing here on next Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. All singers especially invited to come and bring their Gospel Glory books.

Teacher's Duty to Pupil.

It is the teacher's duty to furnish inspiration and enthusiasm, to set the pupil thinking along right lines, to put him in the way of finding out things for himself. If you can do this, much of the definite, practical working out of problems may be left for the home.—Normal Instruction.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS CONFERENCE

The first officers conference of the Chilton county Sunday school Association was held at the Methodist church at Clanton on August 31, 1915. The meeting was quite a success, and we were glad to have so many officers present and so much interest manifested.

But the interest in the Sunday school work in our county is not what it should be, as statistics show. In Chilton county we have 18,428 white people, and only 1,936 in Sunday school. 16,492 out of Sunday school.

The purpose of this meeting was to plan how we may help every Sunday school in the county to reach these people and to do more efficient Sunday school work than we have ever done. If we could make every school in the county a banner school, then we would have almost every man, woman and child in Sunday school.

We have six districts, and the district president will appreciate an invitation to visit your school and help you build it up; and your district secretary is ready to holp you. Your county officers will be glad to assist you in the upbuilding of your school.

We have planned to hold a district convention in the county every two weeks. There will be one held within reach of every school, and there will be methods introduced that will help every individual interested in Sunday school work.

Also we are to have a Sunday school campaign over the county, beginning October 15, 1915. The first convention will be held in Maplesville district; second in Mulberry district; third, Jemison; fourth, Thorsby; fifth, Clanton; sixth, Verbena. One of the best speakers in the state will be with us, and we hope to have every school in the county represented at these conventions. Every superintendent who has the interest of his school, the men and women, boys and girls of his community at heart, shall attend, for by so doing you will be helped, and be a help to your school and community. The opportunity is yours; won't you accept?

We, the officers and visitors, who attended this meeting, wish to thank the good people of Clanton for their hospitality and kindness shown us while in Clanton.

Dr. W. H. Bell, President.
Della Williams, Secretary.

The first matches of which we have any account were thin splinters of wood about four inches long, tipped with sulphur. Fire was first communicated to the tinder by sparks of burning metal struck from the steel by the flint.

AN OPEN LETTER TO BAPTIST PEOPLE

By Dr. John A. Pool, President Unity Chilton Baptist High School

We trust each Baptist, father and mother, young man or young lady, boy or girl, will consider this a personal letter to him or her, as it is impossible for us to see each one individually. This week is our time of opening and you may not have made up your mind as to what you are going to do. You are now at a crises. Which road will you take? You may now be on the verge of deciding to work with dull tools all your life. Isn't it strange that some people are willing to cut from day to day with a dull axe, when there is a good grind-stone in the yard? That is just about what some of our good Baptist are about deciding to do. Right here in their own county and in their own and contiguous associations is their own Baptist educational plant, where board is cheap, tuition cheap, moral and Christian surroundings excellent, and all the regular and special courses taught under post-graduate teachers of experience. Yet you are about to miss what it could do for you. You have decided to stay at home because times are hard. Times will always be hard for him who does not prepare to put into, and get the most out of, the coming times. Besides what authority have you, in the Book or out of it, to begin your economizing on the preperation of the child God gave you to take your place in the world, a different world from yours? We want good stock and well trained dogs, but for the boys and girls, well just any old thing will do; and if you could wake up out of your grave fifty years hence, you would find it, for them, still just any old way.

But on this will fall the eyes of some Baptist who are going to send to school, but have decided to send to some other school. That is like going off to your neighbors to grind your axe, when you have a good grindstone in your own yard. What do you hope to get out of other schools that your own Baptist school does not offer you? Then think of that course of ours you do not get elsewhere—a course Bible and those doctrines and practices dear to the heart of every good, true-hearted Baptist.

I close by again saying you are at a crises with that boy or girl. May you be wise to your opportunity before it is too late. And for the true, loyal-hearted Baptists of these two associations, who dare hand down their dear-bought principles to their sons and daughters after them, there can be but one school—our own Unity-Chilton Baptist High School of Thorsby. Come to our opening Sept. 8th. and bring us that boy and girl.

Yours sincerely,
John A. Pool.

Birmingham is a convention city alright, alright.

Two things characterize the democratic administration—tramps and soup houses.

The amount of booze and beer seized in Mobile last Monday is valued at $4,000, Good big haul at one whack.

Labor day was appropiately and fittingly celebrated in Birmingham last Monday.

In Calhoun County, it is said, the Sheriff has arrested 53 murderers out of 54 wanted.

Governor Henderson is begging the Legislature to get through and give the people a rest.

To let some of 'em tell it this country has had only two prosperity administrations—Cleveland's and Woodsow's. Oh my!

There are oodles of people throughout this country who had rather see a republican President than a democratic President but just haven't got the nerve to say so.

If the democratic administration in four years couldn't do any thing but keep us out of war and send Harding down to make a speech, it is a weak sister.

Cole Blease of South Carolina will be a candidate for Governor of that state. Some things about him are not to be admired but one thing certain he will wake things up.

Read the reproduction of the democratic probe committees report as it appears in the Banner each week. Now this is democrats talking sbout democrats—not democrats roasting republicans.

Washington it is said has about lost patience with Carranza's delay in reply to proposals for peace and settlement of the Mixican situation. Wonder if Carranza will salute the U. S. flag? He hasen't yet.

The, Democratic probe committee said the present convict system is a specie of barbarism, yet it looks as if the legislature is going to pass it up, and let the barbarism continue in Alabama.

The Press says Pres. Wilson has done more for the South than any President since the cival war, and then it goes on to enumerate the many things the Pres. has done and what is it? He has kept us out of war and sent W. P. G. Harding down to Birmingham, to make a speech. The Press should add that he put business on the bum and the laboring class of people on the eve of starvation.

Does any body in this part of the woods remember when Grover Cleveland was president of the United States? We bet a dollar to a ginger cake that these present times bring back some recollections.

It now looks like the G. O. P. elephant and the Bull Moose will lie down in peace and harmony and kiss and make up. If they do its "Good night Isom" for Mr Wilson and Mr. Underwood's fsee trede bill.—Collinsville Courier.

Henry Ford has set aside a million dollars for anti-war propaganda. It is said he will start an educational campaign against preparedness which he thinks is the cause of all the wars in the world.

The Alabama Power Company's earnings a year is $1,152,680 yet some of the members of the Alabama Legislature want to exempt it from taxation and make the farmers and other citizens pay heavy taxes. Consistency thou art a jewel.

The Alabama Power Company in net earnings wallets one million one hundred and fifty two thousand six hundred and eighty dollars a year and some people don't want the Company to pay its legal, lawful taxes. Is that fair to the citizenship of the country?

August the 14 and 15, of each year have been designated as "Good Roads Days" by a bill recently passed in the Legislature and signed by Governor Henderson. The new bill simply makes these days legal holidays upon which the citizens may turn their attention to good roads in their community.

According to the Press, the Democratic administration has done two things for the south: It has kept us out of war, and sent W. P. G. Harding down to Birmingham to make a speech. It doesn't tell us that the laboring people of the south have slmost been on starvation for the last two years.

It is barbarism to keep the Prisoners of this State in the mines, but the extravagance and mismanaged government of the state in the past years has gotten the financial affairs in such a condition these poor creatures must continue to suffer this torture and cruel abuse.

It is said that if the world's supply of cotton were suddenly cut off, the war in Europe would cease automatically.

Well from this we can see that it is not the non consumption of cotton affecting the price. Then what is the matter with Hannah?

The north and East is flooded with money and the administration advocates say there is plenty in the South, but where is it? If the merchant or business man want to borrow a few dollars to tide him over the rough places, he can't do it. What good is plenty money when it can't be had?

Is the record of the democratic party in Alabama something to be held up as a criterion and something to be proud of? With only a few rare exceptions charges of fraud and corruption has marked the foreheads of State officials in the democratic probe committees report.

Can any of you remember back just two years ago when we were living under a "robber tariff" when all the storage tracks on the A. G. S. between Fort Payne and Chattanooga were full of loaded cars because the roads north of Chattanooga could not handle them? Now these same tracks, under Wilsons "prosperity" are full of empty box cars, with the grass and bushes growing up around the wheels.—Collinsville Courier.

The genial Reuben F. Kolb who held the office of commissioner of agriculture during the O'neal regime at the capitol has been exhonorated by the probe committee. It will be remembered that Mr. Kolb is not presumed to be one of the true blues—it can safely be predicted that he was straight in his accounts.

Don't forget that the coming year will probably again be one of high-priced feedstuffs. Let's prepare now to meet the situation with an immense crop of fall grain, both for fall, winter and spring pasturage and for feed next year. And while we are about it, it is well to remember that in nearly all parts of the South the sooner these crops are sown after Septemder first, the earlier and better the grain will be. Don't wait until winter to plant, and then report that "small grains don't pay in the South"—The Progressive Farmer.

The Clanton Press says we remind it of a fellow who once wouldn't see.

Well you are mistaken brother, we can see alright. We can see that you dodged the question and you do not tell the people what the democratic administration has done for the South—and we see further that during the present admidistration over a million people of the United States have been out of work and on the eve of starvation, that a great whirlablew was kicked up last year over the cotton situation and the fleecy staple remained at a very low price, that the farmers of the South, and the laboring people are the ones who have suffered; that the promise to reduce the high cost of living has utterly fallen to the ground; that the democratic party is the party for the rich; that the cost of living has not been reduced, but is higher now than ever before in this country. Does not the Press see some of those things? If not then the joke is on it.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

Community Clubs May Receive Suggestive Programs and References Prepared by Experts.

By D. J. Burleson, Extension Agriculturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

It is the purpose of the Office of Markets and Rural Organization of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, co-operating with the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station, the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the State Department of Education, the State Health Department, and other organizations, to furnish suggested programs for community meetings in any locality in the State.

These community meetings are not to interfere with any organizations already in your community. If you have a Farmers' Union Local, a Boys' Corn Club, a Girls' Canning Club, a Marketing Association, or other organizations, the members doubtless will be glad to co-operate in such discussions as will be given in the community meeting. It should furnish common ground on which all the men, women, boys and girls may met for the discussion of topics of interest to the community.

Programs, accompanied by outlines written by experts, will be sent out every two weeks to those communities that desire them. These community meetings should be placed in general charge of a committee representing the different local interests, including the school, the churches, and various other organizations. When a program has been made out, the paragraphs and references should be turned over to the persons who are to discuss the topic. They should have access to bulletins, yearbooks, papers, etc., for reference, and the agencies already mentioned will be very glad to supply such material as may be available.

The social side of such meetings should not be neglected. Some kind of entertainment should be arranged for each meeting, following the more formal discussion.

Communities using these programs are requested to fill out the enclosed blanks after the meeting and return them to us. Our object in requesting this is that we may know what is being done in each community and may be able to help you with suggestions or otherwise. Report blanks and franked envelopes which require no postage, will be sent out with each suggested program.

If further information is desired, write D. J. Burleson, Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

SOUTHERN BUR CLOVER FOR PERMANENT PASTURES

Bermuda and Bur Clover Make Excellent Combination.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In the formation of a permanent pasture, a farmer desires grasses and legumes that are perennial or that re-seed themselves, thereby avoiding the expense of repeated seedings. Southern bur clover readily reseeds itself under almost every pasture condition, also it fits well with most of our grasses, especially Bermuda.

Bermuda begins to grow when the warm spring weather sets in and forms an excellent grazing turf until the winter frost kills it. The bur clover begins its growth when the fall rains set in and continues until it matures seed in the spring; thus by combining Bermuda grass and Southern bur clover, the farmer may have some grazing throughout the year. This clover fits with other summer grasses and even some winter grasses like arctic and Italian rye, etc.

The planting of bur clover seed on permanent sod may be done in several ways. A very easy way is to streak off the sod in five or six foot rows with a small scooter plow and sow broadcast two or three bushels of burs (unhulled seed) per acre. An ordinary brush or drag harrow may be drawn across the rows to fill up the furrows and cover such seed as fall in the furrow or low places. The seed should not be covered over two inches deep. Those seed that are not covered with soil will germinate when the burs become soft and damp.

Bur clover seed are too expensive to buy enough to make a good sod the first year. However, if there is one plant to the square yard from the first seeding, it will produce seed enough to make a heavy sod the second year.

Southern bur clover is not greatly relished by stock because of its bitterness, but in the absence of other green crops, they graze it in the winter and early spring. Being a legume it adds atmospheric nitrogen to the soil and greatly improves the summer grass.

Some farmers have the mistaken idea that a chemical analysis of a given soil will show just how much of each fertilizing element is required in the fertilizer. A soil analysis will indeed reveal the exact amount of each element in the soil, but does not show how much of this is in an available form. Hence an analysis of his soil is usually of little or no use to the farmer.

Friendship.

If a friend of mine gave a feast and did not invite me to it, I should not mind a bit. But if a friend of mine had a sorrow and refused to allow me to share it, I should feel it most bitterly.—Oscar Wilde.

Where We Stand

The duty of a railroad is to construct, equip and maintain a safe and rapid means of freight and passenger transportation.

The officials and those composing the office force should be conscientious, capable, courteous and economical in the administration of the railroad company's affairs.

Those in charge of operating the trains should be courteous, prompt, careful and fully informed not only of the myriad of details involved in the operation of a railroad, but of the needs and requirements of the people the railroad serves.

The charge for prompt, safe and satisfactory service should be as reasonable as possible consistent with good business.

And over and above the actual operation of the railroad should be a broad, liberal, constructive policy of co-operation for the development of the natural resources of the territory served by the railroad.

The officials, the office force, and those in charge of operation should unite in carrying out this policy.

Lived up to, a policy of this character will result in earnings for the railroad.

That is where the L. & N. stands in its relation to the stockholders on the one hand and the people it serves on the other hand.

The L. & N. is quite sure that the right thinking people of the territory would not earn money at the sacrifice of the service supplied by the L. & N.

The L. & N. is positive that it would not tolerate imposition on the people of the territory, no matter how seemingly profitable, because a short sighted business policy of that character could not be enduringly profitable.

Prompt service, reasonable rates, liberal co-operation are the foundation stones of L. & N. success.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Peter Radford
On Church and State

The recent action of one of the leading churches of this nation, in annual convention, demanding that the laymen vote only for candidates for office whose views coincide with those of the clergy on one of the leading political issues, and direct and indirect efforts of other church organizations to interfere with the freedom of the ballot, make one of the greatest perils of this age, and present a problem that should receive thoughtful consideration of both laymen and citizens.

Suckling babes may well squirm in their cradles when ministers in convention assembled release the hearts of men and grab them by the throat, for Christianity has broken down, religion has become a farce and the pulpit a failure. When the church substitutes force for persuasion, command for conviction and coercion for reason, the sheriff had as well pass the sacrament, plain-clothes men take charge of the altar and policemen bury the dead, for why a church?

It is as dastardly a crime against government for a minister to undertake to deliver the votes of his parishioners to a candidate, as it is for a ward heeler to deliver a block of votes to a political boss, and both ought to be prosecuted, for the law should be no respecter of persons.

It is as objectionable for a convention of ministers to seek by canonical law to control the votes of church members as it would be for a convention of manufacturers to issue orders for their employees to vote for a certain candidate. Such conduct is offensive to decency, business morals and a crime against society. Any convention, whether composed of saints or sinners, rich or poor, white or black, that seeks to prostitute power and coerce conscience ought to be broken up by the police and its leaders arrested for treason.

A crime by any other name is a crime just the same. An ecclesiastical robe cannot sanctify treason, authority to preach does not carry with it license to become a political ringster, or the right to teach us how to pray give a permit to tell us how to vote. No man in joining the church should sacrifice his citizenship, forfeit his constitutional liberties or subordinate his duty to the state. The earth many times has been drenched with the blood of our forefathers fighting to throw off the ecclesiastical yoke from the state, and the suggestion of a return to these medieval conditions with their horror and their torture should not be tolerated for a moment.

Laws should be passed prohibiting any preacher, or combination of preachers, from delivering or attempting to deliver their membership or congregation to any candidate for office, and suitable legislation should be passed preserving the sanctity of the pulpit from political vandalism. It is as much a menace to church and state for a politician to occupy the pulpit as for a minister to preach a political sermon. He has no more right to preach his politics from the pulpit than a teacher has to teach his politics to his pupils. A preacher cannot make political trickery righteous by usage any more than he can make profanity respectable by practice. It is one of the ironies of fate that a preacher may become a scandal as well as a glory to civilization.

CHAPTER IV.

The Flat on the Top Floor.

Braine crawled from his uncomfortable hiding place. His clothes were soiled and damp, his hat gone. By a hair's breadth he had escaped the clever trap laid for him. Hargreave was alive, he had escaped; Braine was as certain of this fact as he was of his own breathing. He now knew how to account for the flickering light in the upper story of the warehouse. His ancient enemy had been watching him all the time. More than this, Hargreave and the meddling reporter were in collusion. In the flare of lights at the end of the gun-play he had caught the profile of the reporter. Here was a dangerous man, who must be watched with the utmost care.

He, Braine, had been lured to commit an overt act, and by the rarest good luck had escaped with nothing more serious than a cold chill and a galling disappointment.

He crawled along the top of the pier, listening, sending his dark-accustomed glance hither and thither. The sky in the east was growing paler and paler. In and out among the bales of wool, bags of coffee and lemon crates he slowly and cautiously wormed his way. A watchman patrolled the office side of the warehouse, and Braine found it possible to creep around the other way, thence into the street. After that he straightened up, sought a second-hand shop and purchased a soft hat, which he pulled down over his eyes.

He had half a dozen rooms which he always kept in readiness for such adventures as this. He rented them furnished in small hotels which never asked questions of their patrons. To one of these he went as fast as his weary legs could carry him. He always carried the key. Once in his room he donned fresh wearing apparel, linen, shoes, and shaved. Then he proceeded downstairs, the second-hand hat shading his eyes and the upper part of his face.

At half past twelve Norton entered the Knickerbocker cafe-restaurant, and the first person he noticed was Braine, reading the morning's paper, propped up against the water carafe. Evidently he had just ordered, for there was nothing on his plate. Norton walked over and laid his hand upon Braine's shoulder. The man looked up with mild curiosity.

"Why, Norton, sit down, sit down! Have you had lunch? No? Join me."

"Thanks. Came in for my breakfast," said Norton, drawing out the chair. Braine was sitting with his back to the wall on the lounge-seat.

"I wonder if you newspaper men ever eat a real, true enough breakfast. I should think the hours you lead would kill you off. Anything new on the Hargreave story?"

"I'm not handling that," the reporter lied cheerfully. "Didn't want to. I knew him rather intimately. I've a horror of dead people, and don't want to be called upon to identify the body when they find it."

"Then you think they will find it?"

"I don't know. It's a strange mixup. I'm not on the story, mind you; but I was in the locality of Duffy's warehouse late last night and fell into a gunman rumpus."

"Yes, I read about that. What were they after?"

"You've got me there. No one seems to know. Some cock and bull story about there being something valuable. There was."

"What was it? The report in this paper does not say."

"Ten thousand bags of coffee."

Braine lay back in his chair and laughed.

"If you want my opinion," said Norton, "I believe the gunmen were out to shoot up another gang, and the police got wind of it,"

"Don't you think it about time the police called a halt in this gunman matter?"

"Oh, so long as they pot each other the police look the other way. It saves a long trial and passage up the river. Besides, whenever they are nabbed some big politician manages to open the door for them. Great is the American voter."

"Take Mr. Norton's order, Luigi," said Braine.

"A German pancake, buttered toast and coffee," ordered the reporter.

"Man, eat something!"

"It's enough for me."

"And you'll go all the rest of the day on tobacco. I know something of [illegible] don't see how you manage to do it."

"Food is the least of our troubles. By the way, may I ask you a few questions? Nothing for print, unless you've got a new book coming."

"Fire away."

"What do you know about the Princess Perigoff?"

"Let me see. H'm. Met her first about a year ago at a reception given to Nasimova. A very attractive woman. I see quite a lot of her. Why?"

"Well, she claims to be a sort of aunt to Hargreave's daughter."

"She said something to me about that the other night. You never know where you're at in this world, do you?"

The German pancake, the toast, the coffee disappeared, and the reporter passed his cigars.

"The president visits town today and I'm off to watch the show. I suppose I'll have to interview him about the tariff and all that rot. When you start on a new book let me know and I'll be your press agent."

"That's a bargain."

"Thanks for the breakfast."

Braine picked up his newspaper, smoked and read. He smoked, yes, but he only pretended to read. The young fool was clever, but no man is infallible. He had not the least suspicion; he saw only the newspaper story. Still, in some manner he might stumble upon the truth, and it would be just as well to tie the reporter's hands effectually.

The rancor of early morning had been subdued; anger and quick temper never paid in the long run, and no one appreciated this fact better than Braine. To put Norton out of the way temporarily was only a wise precaution: it was not a matter of spite or reprisal.

He paid the reckoning, left the restaurant, and dropped into one of his clubs for a game of billiards. He drew quite a gallery about the table. He won easily, racked his cue and sought the apartments of the princess.

What a piece of luck it was that Olga had really married that old dotard, Perigoff! He had left her a titled widow six months after her marriage. But she had had hardly a kopeck to call her own.

"Olga, Hargreave is alive. He was there last night. But somehow he anticipated the raid and had the police in waiting. The question is, has he fooled us? Did he take that million or did he hide it? There is one thing left—to get that girl. No matter where Hargreave is hidden, the knowledge that she is in my hands will bring him out into the open."

"No more blind alleys."

"What's on your mind?"

"She has never seen her father. She confessed to me that she has not even seen a photograph of him."

There was a long pause.

"Do you understand me?" she asked.

"By the Lord Harry, I do! You've a head on you worth two of mine. The very simplicity of the idea will win out for us. Some one to pose as her father; a message handed to her in secret; dire misfortune if she whispers a word to anyone; that her father's life hangs upon the secrecy; she must confide in no one, least of all Jones, the butler. It all depends upon how the letter gets to her. Bred in the country, she probably sleeps with her window open. A pebble attached to a note, tossed into the window. I'll trust this to no one; I'll do it myself. With the girl in our control the rest will be easy. If she really does not know where the money is Hargreave will tell us. Great head, little woman, great head. She does not know her father's handwriting?"

"She has never seen a scrap of it. All that Miss Farlow ever received was money. The original note left on the doorstep with Florence has been lost. Trust me to make all these inquiries."

"Tomorrow night, then, immediately after dinner, a taxicab will await her just around the corner. Grange is the best man I can think of. He's an artist when it comes to playing the old-man parts."

"Not too old, remember. Hargreave isn't over forty-five."

"Another good point. I'm going to stretch out here on the divan and snooze for a while. Had a devil of a time last night."

"When shall I wake you?"

"At six. We'll have an early dinner sent in. I want to keep out of everybody's way. By-by!"

In less than three minutes he was sound asleep. The woman gazed down at him in wonder and envy. If only she could drop to sleep like that. Very softly she pressed her lips to his hair.

At eleven o'clock the following night the hall light in the Hargreave house was turned off and the whole interior became dark. A shadow crept through the lilac bushes without any more sound that a cat would have made. Florence's window was open, as the arch-conspirator had expected it would be. With a small string and stone as a sling he sent the letter whirling skillfully through the air. It sailed into the girl's room. The man below heard no sound of the stone hitting anything and concluded that it had struck the bed.

He waited patiently. Presently a wavering light could be distinguished over the sill of the window. The girl was awake and had lit the candle. This knowledge was sufficient for his need. The tragic letter would do the rest, that is, if the girl came from the same pattern as her father and mother—strong willed and adventurous.

He tiptoed back to the lilacs, when a noise sent him close to the ground. Half a dozen feet away he saw a shadow creeping along toward the front door. Presently the shadow stood up as if listening. He stooped again and ran lightly to the steps, up these to the door, which he hugged.

Who was this? wondered Braine. Patiently he waited, arranging his posture so that he could keep a lookout at the door. By and by the door opened cautiously. A man holding a candle appeared. Braine vaguely recognized Olga's description of the butler. The man on the veranda suddenly blew out the light.

Braine could hear the low murmur of voices, but nothing more. The conversation lasted scarcely a minute. The door closed and the man ran down the steps, across the lawn, with Braine close at his heels.

"Just a moment, Mr. Hargreave," he called ironically; "just a moment!"

The man he addressed as Hargreave turned with lightning rapidity and struck. The blow caught Braine above the ear, knocking him flat. When he regained his feet the rumble of a motor told him the rest of the story.

* * * * * * *

By the dim light of her bedroom candle Florence read the note which had found entrance so strangely and mysteriously into her room. Her father! He lived, he needed her! Alive but in dread peril, and only she could save him! She longed to fly to him at once, then and there. How could she wait till tomorrow night at eight? Immediately she began to plan how to circumvent the watchful Jones and the careful Susan. Her father! She slept no more that night.

"My Darling Daughter: I must see you. Come at eight o'clock tomorrow night to 78 Grove street, third floor. Confide in no one, or you seal my death warrant.

"Your unhappy FATHER."

What child would refuse to obey a summons like this?

A light tap on the door started her.

"Is anything the matter?" asked the mild voice of Jones.

"No. I got up to get a drink of water."

She heard his footsteps die away down the corridor. She thrust the letter into the pocket of her dress, which lay neatly folded on the chair at the foot of the bed, then climbed back into the bed itself. She must not tell even Mr. Norton.

Was the child spinning a romance over the first young man she had ever met? In her heart of hearts the girl did not know.

Her father!

It was all so terribly and tragically simple, to match a woman's mind against that of a child. Both Norton and the sober Jones had explicitly warned her never to go anywhere, receive telephone calls or letters, without first consulting one or the other of them. And now she had planned to deceive them, with all the cunning of her sex.

The next morning at breakfast there was nothing unusual either in her appearance or manners. Under the shrewd scrutiny of Jones she was just her everyday self, a fine bit of acting for one who had yet to see the stage. But it is born in woman to act, as it is born in man to fight, and Florence was no exception to the rule.

She was going to save her father.

She read with Susan, played the piano, sewed a little, laughed, hummed and did a thousand and one things young girls do when they have the deception of their elders in view.

All day long Jones went about like an old hound with his nose to the wind. There was something in the air, but he could not tell what it was. Somehow or other, no matter which room Florence went into, there was Jones within earshot. And she dared not show the least impatience or restiveness. It was a large order for so young a girl, but she filled it.

She rather expected that the reporter would appear some time during the afternoon; and sure enough he did. He could no more resist the desire to see and talk to her than he could resist breathing. There was no use denying it; the world had suddenly turned at a new angle, presenting a new face, a roseate vision. It rather subdued his easy banter.

"What news?" she asked.

"None," rather despondingly. "I'm sorry. I had hoped by this time to get somewhere. But it happens that I can get any further than this house."

She Tried the Doors. They Were Locked.

She did not ask him what he meant by that.

"Shall I play something for you?" she said.

"Please."

He drew a chair beside the piano and watched her fingers, white as the ivory keys, flutter up and down the board. She played Chopin for him, Mendelssohn, Grieg and Chaminade; and she played them in a surprisingly scholarly fashion. He had expected the usual schoolgirl choice and execution; "Titania," the "Moonlight Sonata" (which not half a dozen great pianists have ever played correctly), "Monastery Bells," and the like. He had prepared to make a martyr of himself; instead, he was distinctly and delightfully entertained.

"You don't," he said whimsically, when she finally stopped, "you don't, by any chance, know 'The Maiden's Prayer'?"

She laughed. This piece was a standing joke at school.

"I have never played it. It may, however, be in the music cabinet. Would you like to hear it?" mischievously.

"Heaven forfend!" he murmured, raising his hands.

All the while the letter burned against her heart, and the smile on her face and the gayety on her tongue were forced. "Confide in no one," she repeated mentally, "or you seal my death warrant."

"Why do you shake your head like that?" he asked.

"Did I shake my head?" Her heart fluttered wildly. "I was not conscious of it."

"Are you going to keep your promise?"

"What promise?"

"Never to leave this house without Jones or myself being with you."

"I couldn't if I wanted to. I'll wager Jones is out there in the hall this minute. I know; it is all for my sake. But it bothers me."

Jones was indeed in the hall, and when he sensed the petulance in her voice his shoulders sank despondently and he sighed deeply if silently.

At a quarter to eight Florence, being alone for a minute, set fire to a veil and stuffed it down the register.

"Jones," she called excitedly, "I smell something burning!"

Jones dashed into the room, sniffed, and dashed out again, heading for the cellar door. His first thought was naturally that the devils incarnate had set fire to the house. When he returned, having, of course, discovered no fire, he found Florence gone. He rushed into the hall. Her hat was missing. He made for the hall door with a speed which seemed incredible to the bewildered Susan's eyes. Out into the street, up and down which he looked. Far away he discovered a dwindling taxicab. The child was gone.

In the house Susan was answering the telephone, talking incoherently.

"Who is it?" Jones whispered, his lips white and dry.

"The princess. . . ." began Susan.

He took the receiver from her roughly.

"Hello, who is it?"

"This is Olga Perigoff. Is Florence there?"

"No, madam. She has just stepped out for a moment. Shall I tell her to call you when she returns?"

"Yes, please. I want her and Susan and Mr. Norton to come to tea tomorrow. Good-by."

Jones hung up the receiver, sank into a chair near by and buried his face in his hands.

"What is it?" cried Susan, terrified by the haggardness of his face.

"She's gone! My God, those wretches have got her! They've got her!"

Florence was whirled away at top speed. Her father! She was actually on the way to her father, whom she had always loved in dreams, yet never seen.

Number 78 Grove street was not an attractive place, but when she arrived she was too highly keyed to take note of its sordidness. She was rather out of breath when she reached the door of the third flat. She knocked timidly. The door was instantly opened by a man who wore a black mask. She would have turned then and there and flown but for the swift picture she had of a well-dressed man at a table. He lay with his head upon his arms.

"Father!" she whispered.

The man raised his careworn face, so very well done that only the closest scrutiny would have betrayed the paste of the theater. He arose and staggered toward her with outstretched arms. At the moment they closed about her Florence experienced a peculiar shiver.

"My child!" murmured the broken man. "They caught me when I was about to come to you. I have given up the fight." A sob choked him.

What was it? wondered the child, her heart burning with the misery of the thought that she was sad instead of glad. Over his shoulder she sent a glance about the room. There was a sofa, a table, some chairs and an enormous clock, the face of which was dented and the hands hopelessly tangled. Why, at such a moment, she should note such details disturbed her. Then she chanced to look into the cracked mirror. In it she saw several faces, all masked. These men were peering at her through the half-closed door behind her.

"You must return home and bring me the money," went on the wretch who dared to perpetrate such a mockery. "It is all that stands between me and death."

Then she knew! The insistent daily warnings came home to her. She understood now. She had deliberately walked into the spider's net. But instead of terror an extraordinary calm fell upon her.

"Very well, father, I will go and get it." Gently she released herself from those horrible arms.

"Wait, my child, till I see if they will let you go. They may wish to hold you as hostage."

When he was gone she tried the doors. They were locked. Then she crossed over to the window and looked out. A leap from there would kill her. She turned her gaze toward the lamp, [illegible]

[illegible] father returned, dejected [illegible] They insist upon sending some one. Write down the directions I gave to you. I am very weak!"

"Write down the directions yourself, father; you know them better than I." Since she saw no escape, she was determined to keep up the tragic farce no longer.

"I am not your father."

"So I see," she replied, still with the amazing calm.

Braine, in the other room, shook his head savagely. Father and daughter; the same steel in the nerves. Could they bend her? Would they break her? He did not wish to injure her bodily, but a million was always a million, and there was revenge which was worth more to him than the money itself. He listened, motioning to the others to be silent.

"Write the directions," commanded the scoundrel, who discarded the broken man style.

"I know of no hidden money."

"Then your father dies this night. Grange put a whistle to his lips. "Sign, write!"

"I refuse!"

"Once more. The moment I blow this whistle the men in the other room will understand that your father is to die. Be wise. Money is nothing—life is everything."

"I refuse!" Even as she had known this vile creature to be an impostor so she knew that he lied, that her father was still free,

Grange blew the whistle. Instantly the room became filled with masked men. But Florence was ready. She seized the lamp and hurled it to the floor, quite indifferent whether it exploded or went out. Happily for her, it was extinguished. At the same moment she cast the lamp she caught hold of a chair, remembering the direction of the window. She was superhumanly strong in this moment. The chair went true. A crash followed.

"She has thrown herself out of the window!" yelled a voice.

Some one groped for the lamp, lit it, and turned in time to see Florence pass out of the room into that from which they had come. The door slammed. The surprised men heard the key click.

She was free. But she was no longer a child.

Oil Treatment for Stomach Troubles

A simple prescription made up of a combination of pure vegetable oils is producing wonderful results for sufferers from stomach, liver and intestinal troubles. The remedy, which is said to have originated in France, where it has been used for years by the peasantry, was introduced into this country by George H. Mayr, a leading Chicago druggist, who cured himself of severe stomach, liver and intestinal troubles by its use. Those who have used it say the first dose is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable merit, and that within twenty-four hours the sufferer feels like a new person. This medicine, which has become known as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

The habit of never being whipped, of always keeping up the fight—that is the quality of the great leader. The man who never admits defeat is the man the world has to take into account. Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines which are spaced varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

An Extract From Their Recommendations to the Legislative Body.

The committee recommends that the convicts be removed from the lease system; first, by the termination January 1, 1918, of all contracts; second, by making it unlawful thereafter for any prisoner in Alabama to be leased or hired to any person, firm or corporation.

The termination of the present system will make it necessary for some other disposition to be made of the convicts. In considering this question we have examined carefully conditions of other states. In many of them the same satisfactory results have been obtained from working the convicts on public roads, and on convict farms, and at other kinds of labor, not inherently dangerous. In the state of Georgia, where economic conditions are similar to those existing in this state, the working of the convicts on the roads exists. Under the system in operation there the convict are distributed to the counties on a population basis. No county is forced to take convicts. Each county is informed of its quota of convicts allowed and has the opportunity of working them on the roads, the county being under the duty of furnishins housing, maintenance and medical attention, the direction and supervision being under the control of the state. We recommend a like system for Alabama. We realize that this is a great question. It involves such a change as Alabama has not experinced in a long while.

It may be said that the counties may not care to work the convicts, that it will be too expensive. In the state of Georgia, where they have twice the number of convicts we have, as well as a large number of counties, every convict was taken in a few months after the system was placed in operation. Every county in Georgia except four, three of them being small, mountanious counties, are now working convicts with results undreamed of by the most ardent supporters of this system.

We have an example nearer home in our great county of Jefferson. Its convicts are being successfully worked upon its roads. Every one reports the conditions better. A close analysis recently made by an experienced and honest occountant shows that the expense in Jefferson County of building roads with the convicts is materially less than building them under contract.

The large benefit to the people of the state in the way of public roads, the great increase in property values, the cheapening of transportation, which follows good roads, to say nothing of the humanitarian side of the question, justifies the change in the present system.

In order to better carry out these recommendations, and to better handle this great question, we further recommend the abolition of the State Board of Convict Inspectors and the creation of a Prison Commission, consisting of three men, one business man, one a physician, and one an expert engineer and road builder, to be elected for two, four and six years, respectively, each member of said commission to have equal responsibility and equal authority with the other: and to have complete authority in reference to all matters affecting the convict department, and to devote thereto his entire time; that the department of prison and jail inspector be transferred to the prison commission; that the State Highway Commission be abolished, and that its authority and duties be conferred upon the prison commission; that the motor vehicle department and the puoceeds therefrom be transferred to the prison eommission to be applied to the unkeep of convicts. We submit herewith bills embodying these recommendation.

The committee condems certasn transactions which have occured between R. L. Johnson, the warden at Wetumpka, and Ed DeBardelenben, a citizen of EImore County. These transactions referred to are contracts negotiated by Jonnson as a representative of the state and DeBardeleben, under the terms of which several hundred acres of land belonging to the latter were leased to the state for a period of four or five years with the understanding that the state was to clean up the land for the wood, and ditch it under the supervision and direction of Mr. DeBardeleben, who had complete control of the working of the convicts. The evidence showed conclusively that the contract was entirely one-sided and to the advantage uf Mr. DeBardeleben. Shortly following the execution of the contract DeBardeleben made a deed of gift of eighty acres of land, of the value of $800, to Johnson's twelve year old son.

We condemn the practice heretofore obtaining of carrying convicts to the homes of the wardens, guards and the members of the convict board as servants, In this connection, we note the recent executive order that all convicts must be returned to the penitentiary by the officers of the state who are using them, the order announcing that it is improper and inexcusible; but we find that this order has not been obeyed. A striking instance of this practice is shown in the case of J. M. Kyser, a member of the convict board. Upon being appointed to office he took a convict to serve him at his home, one hundred miles or more from the penitentiary. Mr. Kyser states that he based his action on the custom.

BUCKNER DECLARED SHERIFF OF BLOUNT

Famous Blount County Contest Is Finally Decided With Republican Winning

ONEONTA, Ala., Sept. 11—After seven weeks of taking of testimony in which the qualifications of every voter in Blount County were examined and in which several hundred witnesses testified, the noted Graves-Buckner Sheriff's contest was settled late Saturday afternoon and R. W. Bucknet, Republican, declared Sheriff.

Costs in the case amount to more than $6,000, which will be assessed against the losing candidate, W. E. Graves, Democrat.

Buckner has been acting as Sheriff since the present term began last January. Immediately after the election Graves gave notice of contest and the trial was presided over by Circuit Judge J. E. Blackwood.

Result of the trial showed Buckner to have 916 legal votes and graves 849. At the conclusion of the trial Graves made no other statement than that he was disappointed.

A Republican also won in the contest for one of the Commissioner's places, W. M- Nunn, Republican, being declared winner with 864 votes over W. G. Dutton, Democrat, with 844.

MONEY TALKS

20 thousand dollars worth of new goods received.

This is the time of year when money talks at this store. We have the goods and we want to get rid of them, and your money counts here to-day more than it ever did before. It makes no difference what you want, your money will get it at a mighty low price.

How about a suit of clothes at a very low price—ridiculously low, in fact? We have a number of suits on hand which must go. Come in and let us fit you, and we will fit the price as well as you.

A pair of shoes are always useful—a necessity. We are more than pleased with the grades we are selling this year. We have sold a great many shoes to the people of this community, but never before have we been so fortunate in our selections. They combine all the elements of appearance, durability, comfort, and the price remains the same as for ordinary shoes.

Ladies will find our shelves loaded with everything they may wish—dress goods, fancy goods, and many other things—and they are just what the feminine heart does crave. We are especially prepared to cater to your wants.

Our grocery department is complete. We are careful what we buy. We get the best. We do not try to sell a customer something we would not use on our own table. We buy very closely, and we apply the same principle in selling.

It is a certainty you cannot do better elsewhere, no matter where you go or from whom you buy. It is extremely doubtful if you can do anything like as well. Small profits and many sales is our rule.

COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

The Chilton County Singing Convention at Beth-Salem Sept. 4th and 5th, was a fine success.

The weather on the first day was very inclement still the attendance was large.

The body was called to order by President Hayes, Prayer by Rev. Deason.

Committee on Program was composed of Rev. J. N. Scott, T. J. Jackson and E. Popwell.

Dinner was rich and abundant.

In the business session it was moved and carried to elect officers by ballot, Prof. T. J. Jackson was chosen President, Prof. T. C. Jackson Vice President, Z. J. Jones, Secretary.

Several new members were received. The second day was beautiful and lovely.

Promptly at 9 a. m, the convention assembled, President Hayes presiding, Prayer by Rev. Jowers. The great audience soon filled the large church, the music was enthusiastic.

The memorial service was quite impressive.

We noted the following Directors being present, the President and Vice President, Rev. Dobbs, Jackson Brothers, Rev. Scott, Davis Brothers and Sister, Profs. Teel, Morris, Williams, Driver, Blankenship, Culver of Coosa, and the Secretary.

It was inspiring to hear such fine Poetry sang as Reverential anthem,—"Let the Heavens rejoice, Let the earth be glad, For He cometh to Judge the world in righteousness,".what a note of Joy in that Just the opposite of sadness and dread.

Adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, that we most heartily thank our retiring President, Mr. John W. Hayes, for his faithful service as President of this body, that we ever regard him as one of our most devoted workers for the songs of Zion and that we lean on him as one of our sure helpers.

Resolved that we thank the people at Beth Salem for their great kindness to the convention during the present session.

Next session goes to Union Springs Chapel on the Selma and Montevallo road near the line between Beats 2 and 14 North-east of Randolph.

MONTEVALLO TOWN MARSHALL DEAD

Nothing cheap about J. M. Dunn's Furniture but the price.

AN APPRECIATION OF REV. H. W. FANCHER

Whereas, our beloved pastor has resigned the care of our church, we, the Deacons of the Clanton Baptist church, desire to express our appreciation of him as a man, and as a minister in our midst.

The following facts tell something of his achievements, and speak more eloquently than we can speak:

Since Rev. Fancher became our pastor about 100 have united with our church; the increase in attendance upon the services of the church has been marked, for at the least estimate, the attendance is twice what it was when he took charge of the church; there has been also a decided increase in the financial phase of our church life, as the books will show that the offerings to current expenses alone have increased about $400 per year. These results are most gratifying, and reflect great credit upon him as an effective and efficient leader.

We desire to commend Rev. Fancher as a man, and minister of the gospel of Christ. He is a man of strong convictions, dauntless courage, and a tireless worker. He is in every sense, a progressive preacher of righteousness. He is a clear thinker, a ripe scholar, and one of the most logical preachers and teachers in the country. Our church has been honored and blessed by the plain practical and strong gospel messages he has brought us from time to time.

But perhaps Bro. Fancher's strongest point is as an evangelist. In our meeting in the spring which he conducted, he demonstrated his ability as an evangelist and we would like to say he profoundly impressed, not only the people of our church, but also of the whole town, by his strong, clear-cut and deadly denunciation of sin, and his mighty appeals to men to forsake sin and turn to God. There were about forty additions to our church during this meeting, and every phase of our church life was strengthened.

He intends to engage in evangelistic work and he will make Clanton his headquarters for the present. We heartily commend him as an evangelist of great force and power, and cheerfully affirm that his work as an evangelist is safe, sane, sound and satisfactory.

Our love and prayers shall follow him.

Cordially,

There is yet a prospect of a special session of the legislature.

Don't forget the county fair to be at Clanton.

Last week the legislature passed the last of the prohibition bills.

Those greasers in Mexico are still batting each other.

The peace plan has been rejected by Carranza, as everybody expected.

An explosion in the Banner Mines at Birmingham on Sept. 11th killed one convict and seriously injured 9 others.

It was reported that Villa had been killed, but it is now confirmed by Villa that he had Urbina executed,

Large quantities of pig iron will be sold this week in the Birmingham district.

Governor Henderson has shown himself to be a man of courage and convictions more than once.

The legislators, it seems, hate to turn loose, but the Governor is urging them to go home.

The Panama-Pacific International exposition is a success, and "out of debt" day has been celebrated.

Representative Holmes of Baldwin county has introduced a bill in the legislature to allow beer and wine to be sold in that county.

The Montevallo school for girls opened up this session with larger attendance than any former session in the history of the school.

It is said Governor Henderson will sign the educational bill compelling children to go to school seven weeks in the year.

The state printing bill has lost out in the legislature. If a numberof the legislators were printers it would have gone to sleep long ago.

If some of the members of the legislature are honest and manly enough to condemn the action of that body, why shouldn't the people do so at the polls?

The present legislature has cost the state $150,000.00 and some of its own members say they have just wasted their time.

Convicts are still losing their lives in the mines of the state. Is it right to put a prisoner where he has to suffer punishment, and then perhaps lose his life?

Secretary McAdoo makes the statement that no country on the face of the globe is better able to pay more taxes than the United States. Yes, but he must mean when the people have money to pay taxes with. That is what they haven't got now.

By a recent bill passed in the legislature, Bessemer gets a court house and jail, and branches of all county offices of Jefferson county. This gives Bessemer all that county seats have except the name of a county seat.

The legislature has been in session six months, and is just now getting down to business. Some of the members say this body has whittled away its time, and the people distrust it. That's right. The people don't believe in a set of men who will work two days in a week and draw pay for six days.

Heretofore the appropriation for the holding of the sessions of the legislature has been only $50,000.00. There is a bill now in the present legislature to appropriate $100,000.00 for the holding of the next session. A greater outrage has never been upon the people of the state.

If there were two parties in Alabama, is there anyone who believes the present legislature would spend six months whittling away its time and drawing the peoples money? No. These gentlemen would be held to account before the people for their acts, and for that reason would make better records.

"Why Don't We Know It?"

The New York Evening World, a newspaper which never shows any leaning toward Protection, seems to be doubtful about the great quickening of American business, outside of the industries that are profiting from the export of war supplies. After quoting the statement of the president of the American Bankers' Association that an "almost unbelievable prosperity" is upon us, the Evening World editor remarks:

The fact remains, however, that business generally does not share this state of mind. Signs of expansion are few. The average business man talks economy. It may be that prosperity is indeed with us. But why don't we know it?

Yes; why don't we know it? The answer is easy: Because it is not true that prosperity is with us. The Evening World is understood to be the most profitable of the Pulitzer properties. If average business was good the advertising columns would show it, and the Evening World would know it. But average business is not good. It was reduced far below the normal of protection prosperity by the free-trade tariff law of October 3, 1913.

Here is a summary of a part of a speech of Senator Lewis of Macon county, which appeared in the Advertiser, and is here taken from the Birmingham News:

"Senator Lewis declared that this legislature had been given plenty of time, but had wasted it; that it had convened in January and was still in session; that thirty of its members had been in continuous session since January and drawing $4 per diem.

"'If you go back to the people,' he said, 'and tell them you haven't had enough time, they will laugh at you. You have whittled away your time. Bill after bill has come before the committees which must have been conceived from spite to punish somebody.

'Fifty days? Why that part of the constitution has been emasculated. And you talked of another recess until you heard the rumbles of the people, and were afraid to have it. Talk about political graves. The hand-picked will not be here four years from now. The people distrust this legislature. They do not want it to be in session when they can prevent it.'"

The above comes from one who is connected with the higher branch of the legislature, and knows the inside workings of the two bodies. The fact that the present legislature is supposed to be economical and is judiciously guarding and saving the people's money is not borne out by Senator Lewis's remarks. He is right indeed when he says they have wasted their time, and that the people distrust the legislature. The people know that the law makers could have dispensed with their duties in one-third the time it has been in session.

In commenting on Senator Lewis's remarks in the Senate a few days ago, the Birmingham News says:

"Undoubtedly, however, it would have looked better, and would have been far more acceptable to the people, if the legislature had not taken full pay for all the idle days the majority of its members have spent in Montgomery, while waiting on committees to try to harmonize and get together on legislation that should have been easily matured. There has been so much antagonism in this legislatnre, between its own factions, and between cliques and leaders within factions, and towards the Governor as the titular party leader, that a vast deal of time has been unnecessarily wasted. It has not been used always for maturing wholesome bills, but for reconciling conflicting leadership.

Senator Lewis, therefore, is not wide of the mark in asserting that the legislature has "whittled away" much of its time; the average member may not really have indulged in the engaging pastime of sitting on dry goods boxes at village street corners and shaving off soft pine sticks, but undoubtedly many a one has wasted the state's time in hotel corridors, or in picture shows, while the state was footing the bill.

Split session legislatcrs are not consistent. Why pass a radical prohibition law, and then refuse to pass a cigarette law? We've always had an idea that it was wrong for little boys to smoke cigarettes.—Andalusia Star.

If you are going to ask the whys and wherefores of the present legislature, you've got a big job.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store,

and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, restful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief.

Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted healthful influence imparted to the coming baby.

One very important thing to remember about "Mother's Friend," it can not exercise any other influence than to simply lubricate the parts, make them more firm to naturally withstand the constantly increasing pressure. And as the muscles continue to expand, the nerves become accustomed to this new condition and adjust themselves without undue pain. "Mother's Friend" is entirely free of any drug influence whatsoever and may be used freely at all times.

Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Then write Bradfield Regulator Co., 704 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers.

"Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it. And you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

PREPARING HOGS FOR MARKET

Peanut Fed Hogs Make Excellent Meat When Finished on Feed For Hardening Off.

By J. T. Watt,
State Agent for Alabama.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

I believe all the farmers in Alabama would grow hogs for sale if they understood how to market them. As a general rule, the mistake made in pork producing is in the marketing of the hog. The first mistake the farmer makes is in not putting his hog in condition for market at the right age. The hog that is intended for the slaughter house should never see his birthday. In other words, taxes should not be paid on hogs. They should be farrowed after taxes have been assessed and slaughtered before tax-paying time. Of course, we need a packing house to market these hogs through; but, in the absence of a packing house, the farmer can butcher the hog and pack the meat on his farm and sell the cured product at a premium over western packing house meat. This is being done successfully in several sections of the South, and can be done in Alabama. To do this successfully you must have co-operation and organization. By having co-operation you establish a uniform type in a county, and a standard grade for your hams, bacon and lard. Put only the best grade of hams and bacon on the market—and you can make the best in the world—put your county brand on the product, advertise it, sell it under a guarantee until your trade is established; and when the consumer finds out what fine flavored bacon, and magnificent, juicy hams can be produced in Alabama, they will buy only Alabama-raised hams.

A combination of rape, peanuts and sweet potatoes, with corn added two weeks before butchering, makes the finest flavored bacon and hams in the world. "They always taste like more." If the packing house will not pay you the market price for your hogs, because they are peanut-fed, butcher them yourself, and advertise your meat as peanut-fed, and it will command a premium over corn-fed packing house hogs.

The hog crop in Alabama is the best cash crop as a substitute for cotton, and is as quick as cotton. Conditions are such that we can produce pork in Alabama cheaper than in any other place in the world. In every section of the United States where there is an abundance of hogs farmers are prosperous, money is plentiful and land mortgages are not on record.

STATE'S NEW DRAINAGE LAW

How to Organize Drainage Districts Under New State Law.

By Lewis A. Jones, Drainage Engineer, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In February, 1915, the State Legislature of Alabama passed a Drainage Law, providing for the organization of drainage districts for the purpose of draining wet, swamp and overflowed lands, and authorizing the sale of bonds to be used in paying for such improvement. The bonds become a first lien on the land in the district, and are to be paid in ten equal installments, the first payment on the principal to be made five years after the sale of the bonds. By this method the landowners pay only the interest on the bonds during the first five years, thus having sufficient time to clear and improve their land so that it will be producing an income before pay ments on the principal begin.

To organize a drainage district it is necessary for a majority of the landowners, or the owners of more than one-half of the land, to sign a petition addressed to the probate judge, praying for the formation of such a district. It should be clearly understood in organizing a district that only the lands benefited by the proposed improvements will be assessed for the cost of the work. If one piece of land is benefited more than another, the land receiving the greatest benefit will be assessed more than the other. The methods of procedure are carefully described in the law, and ample provisions are made for protecting the interests of those who are not interested in drainage, or who believe that they will not be benefited by the work.

It should be noted that the law declares that drainage is beneficial and is conducive to public health, convenience and welfare. Nothing is more plain than that the drainage of malaria-breeding swamps would be conducive to public health, and of public benefit.

The swamp lands of Alabama are among the richest lands in the State agriculturally speaking, and it is to be hoped that advantage will be taken of this new drainage law provided by the Legislature.

Save the Manure.

One great advantage of growing livestock on the farm is that most of the fertilizing material contained in the feed may be returned to the soil in the manure; thus keeping the soil productive.

This advantage is often lost by failing to collect the manure, or by allowing the rain to leach out much of the fertilizing value. Every farmer should save all the manure he can, and either spread it on the land as collected or keep it under shelter.

1915 SESSION COSTS ALABAMA ABOUT $150,000

According to estimates furnished members of the Senate Committee on Finance and Taxation, the present session of the Alabama Legislature has cost the State upwards of $125,000 and the amount may run close to $150,000 before final adjournment has been taken.

This Legislature has cost the State more than any previous Legislature according to several statisticians. If an extra session of the body is held it is claimed that all records made in the past will be broken.

The Senate Committee on Finance and Taxation will recommend that an appropriation of $100,000 be made in the general appropriation bill for the expenses of the next Legislature. Hitherto the appropriation for the Legislature has been $50,000.

CHAPTER V.

The Problem of the Sealed Box.

"Gone!"

Jones kept saying to himself that he must strive to be calm, to think, think. Despite all his warnings, the warnings of Norton, she had tricked them and run away. It was maddening. He wanted to rave, tear his hair, break things. He tramped the hall. It would be wasting time to send for the police. They would only putter about fruitlessly. The Black Hundred knew how to arrange these abductions.

How had they succeeded in doing it? No one had entered the house that day without his being present. There had been no telephone call he had not heard the gist of, nor any letters he had not first glanced over. How had they done it? Suddenly into his mind flashed the remembrance of the candlelight under Florence's door the night before. In a dozen bounds he was in her room, searching drawers, paper boxes, baskets. He found nothing. He returned in despair to Susan, who, during all this turmoil, had sat as if frozen in her chair.

"Speak!" he cried. "For God's sake, say something, think something! Those devils are likely to torture her, hurt her!" He leaned against the wall, his head on his arm.

When he turned again he was calm. He walked with bent head toward the door, opened it and stood upon the threshold for a space. Across the street a shadow stirred, but Jones did not see it. His gaze was attracted by something which shone dimly white on the walk just beyond the steps. He ran to it. A crumpled letter, unaddressed. He carried it back to the house, smoothed it out and read its contents. Florence in her haste had dropped the letter.

He clutched at his hat, put it on and ran to Susan.

"Here!" he cried, holding out an automatic. "If anyone comes in that you don't know, shoot! Don't ask questions, shoot!"

"I'm afraid!" She breathed with difficulty.

"Afraid?" he roared at her. He put the weapon in her hand. It slipped and thudded to the floor. He stooped for it and slammed it into her lap. "You love your life and honor. You'll know how to shoot when the time comes. Now, attend to me. If I'm not back here by ten o'clock, turn this note over to the police. If you can't do that, then God help us all!" And with that he ran from the house.

Susan eyed the revolver with growing terror. For what had she left the peace and quiet of Miss Farlow's; assassination, robbery, thieves and kidnapers? She wanted to shriek, but her throat was as dry as paper. Gingerly she touched the pistol. The cold steel sent a thrill of fear over her. He hadn't told her how to shoot it!

Two blocks down the street, up an alley, was the garage wherein Hargreave had been wont to keep his car. Toward this Jones ran with the speed of a track athlete. There might be half a dozen taxicabs about, but he would not run the risk of engaging any one of them. The Black Hundred was capable of anticipating his every movement.

The shadow across the street stood undecided. At length he concluded to give Jones ten minutes in which to return. If he did not return within that time, the watcher would go up to the drug store and telephone for instructions.

But Jones did not come back.

"Where's Howard?" he demanded.

"Hello, Jones; what's up?"

"Howard, get that car out at once."

"Out she comes. Wait till I give her radiator a bucket of water. Gee!" whispered Howard, whom Hargreave often used as his chauffeur, "get on to his nibs! First time I ever saw him awake. I wonder what's doing? You never know what's back of those mummy-faced headwaiters. . . . All right, Jones!"

The chauffeur jumped into the car and Jones took the seat beside him.

"Where to?"

"Number 78 . . ." and the rest of it trailed away, smothered in the violent thunder of the big six's engines.

During the car's flight several policemen hailed it without success. Down this street, up that, round this corner, 50 miles an hour; and all the while Jones shouted: "Faster, faster!"

Within twelve minutes from the time it left the garage, the car stopped opposite No. 78 Grove street, and Jones got out.

"Wait here, Howard. If several men come rushing out, or I don't appear within ten minutes, fire your gun a couple of times for the police. I don't want them if we can manage without. They'd only bungle."

"All right, Mr. Jones," said the chauffeur. He had, in the past quarter of an hour, acquired a deep and lasting respect for the butler chap. He was a regular fellow, for all his brass buttons.

As Jones reached the curb, Florence came forth as if on invisible wings. Jones caught her by the arm. She flung him aside with a strength he had not dreamed existed in her slim body.

"Florence, I am Jones!"

She stopped, recognized him, and without a word ran across the street to the automobile and climbed into the tonneau. Jones followed immediately.

"Home!"

The car shot up the dimly lighted street, shone palely for a second under the corner lamp, and vanished.

"Ah, child, child!" groaned the man at her side, all the tenseness gone from his body. He was Jones again.

Still she did not speak but stared ahead with unseeing eyes.

No further reproach fell from the butler's lips. It was enough that God had guided him to her at the appointed moment. He felt assured that never again would she be drawn into any trap. Poor child! What had they said to her, done to her? How, in God's name, had she escaped from them who never let anybody escape? Presently she would become normal, and then she would tell him.

"I found the lying note. You dropped it."

"Horrible, horrible!" she said almost inaudibly.

"What did they do to you?"

"He said he was my father. . . . He put his arms around me. . . . And I knew!"

"Knew what?"

"That he lied. I can't explain."

"Don't try!"

Suddenly she laid her head against the butler's shoulder and cried. It was terrible to hear youth weep in this fashion. Jones put his arm about her, and tried to console her.

"Horrible!" she murmured between the violent hiccoughs. "I was wrong, wrong! Forgive me!"

Unconsciously the arm sustaining her drew her closer.

"Never mind," he consoled. "Tell no one what has happened. Go about as usual. Don't let even Susan know. Whatever your poor father did was for your sake. He wanted you to be happy, without a care in the world."

"I promise." And gradually the sobs ceased. "But I feel so old, Jones, so very old. I threw over the lamp. I threw a chair through the window. They thought that it was I who had jumped out. That gave me the necessary time. I don't understand how I did it. I wasn't frightened at all till I gained the street."

They found Susan still seated in the chair, the automatic in her lap. She had not moved in all this time!

* * * * * * *

Braine paced the apartment of the Princess Perigoff. From the living room to the boudoir and back, fully twenty times. From the divan Olga watched him nervously. He was like a tiger, fresh in captivity. All at once he paused in front of her.

"Do you realize what that mere chit did?"

"I do."

"Planned to the minute. We had her; seven of us; doors locked, and all that. No weeping, no wailing; I could not understand then, but I do now. It's in the blood. Hargreave was as peaceful as a St. Bernard dog, till you cornered him, and then he was a lion, O, the devil! Slipped out of our fingers like an eel. And across the street, Jones in a racer! I never paid any particular attention to Jones, but from now on I shall. The girl may or may not know where the money is, but Jones does, Jones does! Two men shall watch. Felton on the street and Orloff from the windows of the deserted house. With opera glasses he will be able to take note of all that happens in the house during the day. He will be able to see the girl's room. And that's the important point. It was a good plan, little woman; and it would have been plain sailing if only we had remembered that the girl was Hargreave's daughter. Be very careful hereafter when you call on her. A night like this will have made her suspicious of every one. Our hope lies with you. Anything on your mind?"

"Yes. Why not insert a personal in the Herald?" She drew some writing paper toward her and scribbled a few words.

He read: "Florence—the hiding place is discovered. Remove it to a more secret spot at once. S. H."—He laughed and shook his head. "I'm afraid that will never do."

"If she reads it, Jones will. The man with the opera glasses may see something. There's a chance Jones might become worried."

"Well, we'll give it a chance."

It was midnight when he made his departure. As he stepped into the street, he glanced about cautiously. On the corner he saw a policeman swinging his night stick. Otherwise the street was deserted. Braine proceeded jauntily down the street.

And yet, from the darkened doors of the house across the way, the figure of a man emerged and stood contemplating the windows of the Perigoff apartment. Suddenly the lights went out. The watcher made no effort to follow Braine. The knowledge he was after did not necessitate any such procedure.

Of course, Florence read the "personal." She took the newspaper at once to Jones, who smiled grimly.

"You see, I trust you."

"And so long as you continue to trust me no harm will befall you. You were left in my care by your father. I am to guard you at the expense of my life. Last night's affair was a miracle. The next time you will not find it so easy to escape."

Nor did she.

"There will be no next time," gravely. "But I am going to ask you a direct question. Is my father alive?"

The butler's brow puckered. "I have promised to say nothing, one way or the other."

She laughed.

"Why do you laugh?"

"I laugh because if he were dead there would be no earthly reason for your not saying so at once. But I hate money, the name of it, the sound of it, the sight of it. It is at the bottom of all wars and crimes. I despise it!"

"The root of all evil. Yet it performs many noble deeds. But never mind the money. Let us give our attention to this personal. Doubtless it originated in the same mind which conceived the letter. Your father would never have inserted such a personal. What! Give his enemies a chance to learn his secret? No. On the other hand I want you to show this personal to all you meet today, Susan, the reporter, to everybody. Talk about it. Say that you wonder what you shall do. Trust no one with your real thoughts."

"Not even you, Mr. Jones," thought the girl as she nodded.

"And tell them that you showed it to me and that I appeared worried."

That night there was a meeting of the organization called the Black Hundred. Braine asked if anyone knew what the Hargreave butler looked like.

"I had a glimpse of him the other night; but being unprepared, I might not recognize him again."

Vroon described Jones minutely. Braine could almost see the portrait.

"Vroon, that memory of yours is worth a lot of money," was his only comment.

"I hope it will be worth more soon."

"I believe I'll be able to recognize Mr. Jones if I see him. Who is he and what is he?"

"He has been with Hargreave for 14 years. There was a homicidal case in which Jones was active. Hargreave saved him. He is faithful and uncommunicative. Money will not touch him. If he does know where that million is, hot irons could not make him own up to it. The only way is to watch him, follow him, wait for the moment when he'll grow careless. No man is always on his mettle; he lets up sooner or later."

"He is being watched, as you know."

Vroon nodded approvingly. "The captain of the tramp steamer Orient, by the way, was seen with a roll of money. He was in one of the water front saloons, bragging how he had hoodwinked some one."

"Did he say where he'd got the cash?" asked Braine.

"They tried to pump him on that, but he shut up. Well, we have agreed that Felton shall watch from the street and Orloff from the window. Orloff will whistle if he sees Jones removing anything from any of the rooms. The rest will be left to Felton."

"And, Felton, my friend," said Braine softly—he always spoke softly when he was in a deadly humor—"Felton, you slept on duty the other night. Hargreave stole up, consulted Jones, and got away after knocking me down. The next failure will mean short shift. Be warned!"

"I saw only you, sir. So help me. I was not asleep. I saw you run down the street after the taxicab. I did not see anyone else."

Braine shrugged. "Remember what I said."

Felton bowed respectfully and made his exit. He wished in his soul that he might some day catch the master mind free of his eternal mask. It was an iron hand which ruled them and there were friends of his (Felton's) who had mysteriously vanished after a brief period of rebellion. The boss was a swell; probably belonged to clubs and society which he adroitly pilfered. The organization always had money. Whenever there was a desperate job to be undertaken, Vroon simply poured out the money necessary to promote it. Whenever Braine and Vroon became engaged in earnest conversation they talked Slav. Braine was never called by name here; the boss, simply that.

Well, ten per cent of a million was a hundred thousand. This would be equally divided between the second ten of the Black Hundred. Another ten per cent would go to 80 members; the balance would be divided between Vroon and the boss. But his soul rebelled at being ordered about like so much dirt under another man's feet. He would take his ten thousand and make the grand getaway.

The next afternoon the princess called upon Florence. Nothing was said about the adventure, and this fact created a vague unrest in the scheming woman's mind. She realized that she must play her cards more carefully than ever. Not the least distrust must be permitted to enter the child's head. Once that happened good-by to the wonderful emeralds. Was it that she really craved the stone? Was it not rather a venom acquired from the knowledge that this child's mother had won what she herself, with all her cleverness, was not sure of—Braine's love? Did he really care for her or was she only the catspaw to pluck his hot chestnuts from the fire?

When Florence showed her the "personal," her vague doubts become instantly dissipated. The child would not have shown her the newspaper had there been any distrust on her part.

"My child, your father is alive then?" animatedly.

"We don't know," sadly.

"Why, I should say that this proves it."

"On the contrary, it proves nothing of the sort, since I have yet to discover a treasure in this house. I have hunted in every nook, drawer; I've searched for panels, looked in trunks for false bottoms. Nothing, nothing! Ah, if I could only find it!"

Florence Gray.

"And what would you do with it?"

"Take it at once to some bank and offer the whole of it for the safe return of my father, every penny of it. I don't know what to do, which way to turn," tears gathering in her eyes and they were genuine tears, too. "There are millions in stocks and bonds and I cannot touch a penny of it because the legal documents have not been found. I can't even prove that I am his daughter, except for half an old bracelet, and my father's lawyers say that that would not hold in any court."

"You were born in St. Petersburg, my dear. Have the embassy there look up the birth registers."

"That would not put me into possession. Nothing but the return of my father will avail me. And there's a horrible thought always of my not being his real daughter."

"There's no doubt in my mind. I have only to recall Katrina's face to know whose child you are. But what will you live on?" Here was a far greater mixup than she had calculated upon. Supposing after all it was only a resemblance, that the child was not Hargreave's, a substitute just to blind the Black Hundred? To keep them away from the true daughter? Her mind grew bewildered over such possibilities. The single and only way to settle all doubts was to make this

SOME PEANUT STAND, THIS

Sixty Dollars a Day Pour Into Coffers of Goober Vender in Detroit.

Detroit.—To the shrill whistle of a peanut roaster money pours into the coffers of Eli J. Clifford at the rate of $60 a day, according to the testimony of his wife, Amelia, in Judge Mandell's court.

"He runs a peanut and popcorn stand at Field and Jefferson avenues," testified Mrs. Clifford, who wanted temporary alimony. "He averages $60 a day income from the stand that isn't very much bigger than your honor's bench, and last Sunday he took in $130. I have an interest in the stand and I think he ought to pay me alimony."

Judge Mandell allowed her $5 a week when it was shown she had an income independent of the peanut and popcorn business.

"I hope the peanut business continues so prosperous," remarked Judge Mandell.

WAR BOOMS CHESTER, PA.

Baldwin Locomotive and Remington Arms Companies Employ Many Men.

Chester, Pa.—Within two months this city expects to have a boom as spectacular as those which transformed frontier hamlets into cities during the gold rush to the West. This condition became evident when at a meeting of real estate brokers, financiers and builders representatives of the Remington Arms company and the Baldwin Locomotive works appeared and stated that by November the former would employ 15,000 men here and the latter 8,000. Big orders for arms and ammunition from the countries at war in Europe are primarily responsible for the prosperity.

WAR ENDS ERA OF TRAMPS

Big Decrease in Vagrancy Observed Throughout the United Kingdom of Great Britain.

London.—The war has brought what might be described as a trampless era to England. There is not a workhouse in the United Kingdom that has not reported a great decrease in the number of vagrants during the last few months. Those who still use the "casual wards" are men of sixty years or over. Officials say there are practically no young or middle-aged vagrants left.

QUAKERS IN BRITISH ARMY

Traditional Peaceful Persons Aid in Fight Against the Teutonic Allies.

London.—The Quakers, notwithstanding their peaceful tradition, have contributed 215 men to the British army and navy and forty-three to the army medical corps. In addition forty-three have joined the home guards and fifteen are serving on recruiting committees.

These figures are taken from the annual meeting of the Society of Friends. The society's book of discipline declares its members must maintain an "unequivocal testimony against war." This is a vital principle of Quakerism. Accordingly about fifty of those enlisting sent in their resignations, but only thirty of these were accepted.

Besides the soldiers, the parents of the soldiers openly sympathize with the war. These may all be properly expelled, but the feeling among the members is against taking severe measures.

Pimples and Skin Eruptions Danger Signs of Bad Blood

It May Mean Eczema, Scrofula—The First Sign of Inherited Blood Disease

Pimples, scaly itching skin, rashes, burning sensations and Scrofula denote with unfailing certainty a debilitated, weakened and impure state of the blood. The trouble may have been in your blood from birth, but no matter how you were infected, you must treat it through the blood. It is a blood disease. You must use S. S. S., the standard blood tonic for 50 years, if you expect certain relief. For purifying the system, nothing is equal to it. The action of S. S. S. is to cleanse the blood. It soaks through the system direct to the seat of the trouble—acting as an antidote to neutralize the blood poisons. It revitalizes the red blood corpuscles, increases the flow so that the blood can properly perform its physical work. The dull sluggish feeling leaves you—the complexion clears up. Even long standing cases respond promptly. But you must take S. S. S. Drugs and substitutes won't do. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. If yours is a special case and you need expert advice, write to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

REPORT OF THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING PROBE COMMITTEE

Our investigation discloses that the work of the convicts on the farms has not been efficient. Those in charge of this work seem to be lacking in experience and good results are not being obtained. Some of the appointees charged with the duty of superintending farm work have been taken from other avocations. If experienced farmers were placed in charge of the convict farms, better results would be secured, and the maintenance bills heretofore paid by the state greatly reduced.

In instances contracts have been made with private individuals near the state farm at Spigeners to have their farms and crops worked out by convict labor for a small stipulated price, when the crops of the state were in grass and sadly in need of cultivation. Such practices cannot be of benefit to the state.

We condemn the acts of some of the transfer agents purchasing mileage books for transportation and charging the state with straight fare. We find no necessity for transfer agents, and submit herewith a bill abolishing these offices and entrusting the duties to the sheriffs of the counties and wardens.

We find that in some manner convicts have been able, with little difficulty, to obtain cocaine and morphine. The proper care should prevent this.

The committee has examined the tuberculosis hospital at Wetumpka. It is doing a great work. The premises are thoroughly modern and sanitary in every way. A severance of the management of the hospital from the penitentiary will be of much benefit to the hospital, and would not in any way harm the work of the penitentiary. There is sufficient work at the hospital to engage the time of one physician and surgeon.

CORRECTION.

Mr. Editor:—I find in my report of the county singing convention in last week's Union-Banner the names of five prominent directors were omitted, due I presume, to an oversight on the part of the printer. They were Prof. Langston, Prof. Scott and Sister, and Prof. Sanders and sister. They were present at the convention doing fine work, adding much to the interest of the occasion. Secretary.

FARMER KILLED HIMSELF AND HIS WIFE AND CHILD

Children Killed While Asleep, After Their Mother Had Been Shot.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Sept. 17—After killing his wife Annie, 27. with a shot gun, and almost severing the heads of his two young daughters, Monroe Lee, 35, a farmer residing near here, placed the muzzle of the gun in his mouth, and blew the top of his head off. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict that while mentally deranged Lee had killed his wife and children and then took his own life.

The children, aged 2 and 4 had been killed while they slept. The throats were cut with a pocket knife. Mrs. Lee evidently had struggled with her husband, as one hand was severed at the wrist by the load of shot which took effect in her breast. Lee apparently killed himself by firing the gun with his toe.

Ill health was the cause of the unbalanced mental condition of the man.

FREE SPRINGS.

All are doing well in this community at present.

Cotton picking is progressing, but the drouth and boll weevil have taken their toll.

Some say the corn crop is cut badly, but I think we will make more than we will use.

The singing at J. C. Prim's on Saturday night was well attended. The Cofer boys, Misses Sallie and Lula Brantley, Miss Mattie Cofer, Linton Brown, Willie Compton and Grady Brantley, all of Siluria, were ot the singing, and are all good singers.

Messrs. Garrett and Sessions of Shelby, and Misses Laura and Bessie Glass of Bibb, and Prof. H. H. Mullins of Union Springs were at the singing.

Many others came, and all expressed great pleasure. We old people enjoyed it, and give them our sincere thanks.

J. B. Collum and wife and Ed Kennedy of New Salem were present and met many old friends whom they had not seen in several years. These occasions bring back to us many memories, some of sadness and some of pleasure. But we have more pleasure than sadness in this life if we would only count our blessings and think about them instead of worrying over troubles. I know it is hard to always be cheerful. Still a bright face is always attractive and everyone loves a cheerful happy person. So let's try to see our blessings each day. This will make us a brighter life here, and help to fit us for the heavenly life that awaits the true servant of God.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE JEMISON LODGE

In Honor of the Late Richard H. Gaines.

The following resolutions were adopted by Jemison Lodge No. 411, A. F. & A. M., upon the death of Brother R. H. Gaines:

Whereas, it has pleased almighty God in His omniscience, to call from time to eternity our beloved brother, Richard H. Gaines who has been a faithful and devoted member of this lodge for many years, a man of veracity and integrity, strictly devoted to the principles taught in Masonry; and,

Whereas, in this dispensation of the Grand Master of the universe in calling our brother from labor on earth to refreshment above, we have sustained a great loss, our community has been bereft of an exemplary christian gentleman and citizen, and another link has been taken from the chain of our fraternal and social happiness, which is never again to be replaced; therefore be it

Resolved, first, that while we, as a brotherhood, a community, and as individuals, mourn the loss of Brother Gaines, we rejoice to contemplate that our loss is his gain, and bow in humble submission to the will of God who giveth and taketh whomsoever He will; and we rejoice too, in thinking of our brother as having been crowned in the bright mansions of glory, and that tho he is never permitted to meet with us here again, we must all sooner or later follow him to his eternal home.

Second, that in the death of our brother, his family has sustained an irreparable and deep affliction.

Third, that we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, and claim the privilege of mingling our tears of sorrow with theirs, and commending them to the tender mercies of God.

Fourth, that we will strive to imitate the many virtues of our brother that we, like him, may die in calmness and serenity, and with him enjoy the unspeakable blessings of heaven.

Fifth, that we give expression of our grief by wearing the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Sixth, that these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of the Lodge, on a page set apart for that purpose; also that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased brother; and that they be published in the county papers.

DEAD MAN IS NOMINATED FOR OFFICE IN MARYLAND

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 17.—A curious complication has arisen in Wicomico county as a result of Tuesday's democratic primary.

For the first time, probably, in the history of the state, a dead man was nominated for office. Earnest T. Toadvine, who died snddenly Monday, was returned as nominated over J. Clayton Kelley for clerk of the circuit court.

As Mr Toadvine died on the day preceding the primary, his name could not be removed from the ticket. Although the fact of his death was known generally throughout the county, his name received two hundred more votes than his apponent in the party, and the judges of election were compelled to declare him nominated.

It is said that Kelley will claim the nomination and will fight out the question in court.

DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

The Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county met at the court house on the 18 inst., pursuant to a call from the Chairman. Each precinct was represented in person or proxy.

Mr. B. M. Roberts resigned as secretary of the committee, and G. C. Walker was unanimously elected as his successor. After the adoption of the resolutions as follows, offered by former Senator Thos. A. Curry, the committee adjourned subject to the call of the chairman:

The Secretary immediately forwarded instructions to Senator Wallace at Montgomery to withdraw the bills in accordance with the resolutions above named.

Nothing but praise and congratulation of the Probate Judge and commissioners was heard for their efforts and success in road building, and other satisfactory management of the county affairs. E. M. Pinckard,
G. C. Walker, Chairman.
Secretary.

Whereas, during the last campaign for the election of county commissioners, a strong sentiment against the building and improvement of the county roads was developed in some quarters, and the effort of the Probate Judge and those former commissioners who were in favor of, and who did during their term of office, build and improve many of the public roads of the county, were bitterly denounced for their enterprising spirit and their efforts to subserve the public good, not only in the building and improvement of the public roads, but in otherwise substantially contributing to the general good; and

Whereas, the public spirited and progressive element of our citizenship were fearful that the incoming members of the commissioners court would be influenced against the further improvement of our public roads and the upbuilding of the material interest of the county; and

Whereas, said public spirited citizens had reason to fear that the best interest of the county would not be subserved by said incoming members of said commissioners court, they placed in the hands of state Senator Wallace a Bill which provided for the abolishment of said commissioners court, and the creation of a county board of revenue, the members of which were to be appointed by the Governor of Alabama, with the request that said Bill be introduced and passed by the Legislature of Alabama: Therefore, be it

Resolved, that inasmuch as the present commissioners court is continuing to build and improve the public roads of the county, and are otherwise proving themselves worthy servants of the people in every respect, the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county in meeting assembled, hereby request our state Senator to withdraw the Bill, above referred to, and make no further effort to secure its passage.

Resolved further, that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this committee, and that a copy be handed to each of the county papers with a request that the same be published.

E. M. PINCKARD
Chairman Chilton Co. Democratic Executive Committee.
G. C. WALKER, Secretary.

METHODIST ORPHANAGE

The Alabama Methoaist Orphanage is owned by the Alabama and the North Alabama Conferenses, It was established in 1890, and located at Summerfield, Ala., where it remained until four years ago, at which time it was removed to Selma, Ala., where it is located at present. Since its organization the Orphanage has cared for 764 children. There are at present 97 children in the home.

We are trying to do four things for our children. First, we are trying to make them healtny and strong, This is done by giving proper food, clothing, medical attention, and sanitary restrictions. Secondly, we are training them to work. The girls are taught sewing, laundering, cooking and housekeeping. The boys are taught farming, dairying, and stock raising. Thirdly, we are trying to educate them.

We have full advantage of the splendid system of Public Schools of Selma. They are kept in school the entire scholastic year, if not prevented by sickness. With diligence on the part of che child they can complete the high school course while with us. Fourthly, we are trying to train them religiously. This is done in the daily chapel service, in Sunday School, in the Epworth League, and by exemplifying the Christian life before them in our lives.

The 2nd. day of October is work day for the Orphanage. On this day every one is asked to lay aside the value of that day's work or income for the Orphanage. Sunday the 3rd. of October is the day for the Sunday School exercises. Every one is expected to attend and give to the collection which will be taken, the amount made on the preceding day. Since we take children irrespective of religious views we feel free to ask every one to contribute on that day to the value of one days work. We are compelled to have success on work day or our Orphan children will suffer. Please help us to the value of one days work or income.

Thanking you in advance for what you do for the children, I am,

Truly yours,
J. C. CRAIG, Supt. and Agt.

MONEY TALKS
20 thousand dollars worth of new goods received.

This is the time of ear when money talks at this store. We have the goods and we want to get rid of them, and your money counts here to-day more than it ever did before. It makes no difference what you want, your money will get it at a mighty low price.

How about a suit of clothes at a very low price—ridiculously low, in fact? We have a number of suits on hand which must go. Come in and let us fit you, and we will fit the price as well as you.

A pair of shoes are always useful—a necessity. We are more than pleased with the grades we are selling this year. We have sold a great many shoes to the people of this community, but never before have we been so fortunate in our selections. They combine all the elements of appearance, durability, comfort, and the price remains the same as for ordinary shoes.

Ladies will find our shelves loaded with everything they may wish—dress goods, fancy goods, and many other things—and they are just what the feminine heart does crave. We are especially prepared to cater to your wants.

Our grocery department is complete. We are careful what we buy. We get the best. We do not try to sell a customer something we would not use on our own table. We buy very closely, and we apply the same principle in selling.

It is a certainty you cannot do better elsewhere, no matter where you go or from whom you buy. It is extremely doubtful if you can do anything like as well. Small profits and many sales is our rule.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

W. J, Bryan is going to Europe to talk peace.

The demscratic low tariff shot the American busidess to pieces.

The democratic party told us that under its administration the cost of living would be reduced. But has it been?

Bryan against preparedness, and the democratic administration for it makes somewhat of a breach in the ranks of the party.

The democratic platform had a one-term plank in it. But does anybody believe that will be carried out?

If Wilson don't mind, Bryan will call his attention to the one-term plank in his platform.

Bryan isn't the biggest "bill" in the democratic party; the tariff bill is a "whoppor."

Instead of reducing the cost of feeding the prisoners from 30 to 20 cents a day, why not make the legislotors work for their pay, and thereby curtail the expenses.

The Jackson Highway meeting at Nashville is being largely attended by Alabama enthusiasts this week. Alabama is making a big effort to get the highway, and it is hoped it will be landed.

The democrats of Maryland at an election a few days ago, elected a dead man to office. In the south the democratic party is charged with voting dead men, but we never heard of an actual corpse being elected.

Governor Henderson thinks prisoners ought to live on twenty cents worth of grub a day at the existing high prices. But the legislators can work two days a week and draw a salary for six. The Governor is right in trying to reduce the expenses of the state, but it seems to us that he is on the wrong trail. At the existing high prices it doesn't seem like twenty cents per day would be very high living. No use to starve the poor prisoners and let the big bugs lavish on the peoples money.

The Clanton Press is so destitute of argument that it already has to fall back on the old times of reconstruction and says that when we comment upon the present legislature we should read of those horrible days.

This is purely an appeal to prejudice, and only shows that the Press has no defense for the present misguided almost unworthy legislature, which is working two days in a week and drawing pay for six. Will the Press tell the people whether it indorses the action of the present legislature or not?

Will the Press tell the people whether it indorses the probe committee's report or whether it is on the other end of the dilemma; or whether it just swallows it all, good bad and indifferent.

The Clanton Press answers the question as to what the democratic administration has done for the south, by asking what Roosevelt did.

That is easy. Everyone knows that when Teddy Roosevelt was President of the United States, the south, as well as the whole country was alive and prosperous, and the cost of living was below zero, compared with these times.

The Press should come across and tell the people what its administration has done. But it virtually acknowledges the corn by trying to make it appear that Roosevelt's administration was like that of Woodrow.

Now just come along and tell the people why the democrats did not carry out the first plank in their platform—to reduce the high cost of living. Don't say it was the war.

The Clanton Press asks: What caused the price of cotton to go to nearly eleven cents on Sept. 13th?

This is a stunner.

Why not say the war? They say the war caused the price to go down, and that the war is the cause of no business, no money, high prices and the general stagnation. But of course the advance in cotton is caused by the Democratic administration. Yep!

The real fact is if the war was not on the price of cotton would be about six or seven cents, and the north, east and west would have suffered the same as the south.

The war has proven disastrous and destructive to some countries, but it has helped out the democratic administration wonderfully, in many ways.

Trying To Shift Responsibility

In this issue we publish, by request, a recent report of a meeting of the democratic executive committee of Chilton county, as will be seen this committee is trying to make amends to the people of Chilton county for past acts which the committee knows has placed the democratic party of the county in bad repute for all time to come.

The matter does not need much comment from our hands. Every intelligent voter of Chilton chunty knows the purpose of this timely meettng. Every intelligent man of the county knows that the attempted legislation spoken of in the report was a direct slap at the free citizenship of this county—that the will of the people and the free right to vote for a county officer would have been taken from the people and placed in the hands of an appointive power, had the legislation become a law. The people know that the good roads being projected into the matter is only done so as a scape goat to cover the intention and purpose of the proposed legislation. The people know that at the time the executive committee met and withdrew (by what authority?) this bill, that only three days remained of the legislature and that the bill was before the Senate committee and couldn't be withdrawn, neither could it have been passed by the support and efforts of every Senator and Representative in the State house.

And the committee in withdrawing the county commissioners court bill very cleverly failed to mention the proposed county court bill which was introduced at the same instance as that of the commissioners bill, taking from the incoming Judge of Probate his criminal jurisdiction and having the Governor to appoint a special Judge in his stead—and giving that special Judge the right and power to appoint a clerk of said court; also giving that Judge the right to appoint two deputy Sheriffs to attend said court thereby taking the authority from the Sheriff whom the people had elected and placing it in the hands of an appointive power. Is that bill still pending or has it become a law, or what has become of it?

The people are wise to this kind of political schemes and we imagine the people of Chilton county will not be unwise when the time comes to cast their vote.

After a lapse of nearly a year a case of human plague occured in the city of New Orleans on the 27th of August. This case was confirmed as true bubonic plague on Sept. 8th. The epidemiological investigations as to the exact source of the infection have not yet been completed but it is believed that it was probably received in the city of New Orleans. Up to date over 91,000 buildings in that city have been ratproofed and over 435,000 rodents have been captured in traps alone. The occurence of this case demonstrates the difficulties surrounding the eradication of the disease and indicate that had it not been for the active co-operative efforts of the United States Public Health Service and of the Departments of Health of the State of Louisiana and the city of New Orleans, the outbreak would have reached greater proportions and would have been longer continued. It also points out to other cities the necessity for ridding themselves of the rodent carriers of the disease and of thoroughly rat-proofing all of their buildings. No fear is felt that this case will be follwed by an outbreak. Officers and men of the Public Health Service, well trained in the control of the disease, are on the ground and with the health authorities of the city of New Orleans are taking every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease from the city and within it.

The democrats are looking around already trying to find how to raise revenue to run this government. At the rate things are going now, this country will be in the middle of a bad fix by the end of the present administration.

All Babies Destined to Great Achievement

To be born is to be great. For there are possibilities in every tiny human infant. And for this reason every one should remember that whatever is done to aid the mother, to relieve her of distresses during her trying months, will surely be of marked benefit to the child.

Among the sterling aids is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend." It is what is called an embrocation. It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in by your own hand guided by your own mind. It makes the muscles pliant, they expand quite naturally and the effect upon the nerves is such that they adjust themselves to the process of expansion so that pain from this source is almost eliminated. Women who use "Mother's Friend" refer to the absence of morning sickness, they are relieved of a great many minor distresses, all apprehension disappears and those peculiar nervous "fidgets" no longer disturb the nights. It is well named "Mother's Friend." Get a bottle today of any druggist. Then at once write for a most entertaining and instructive book for all prospective mothers. Address Bradfield Regulator Co., 705 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

This book explains the physical action of "Mother's Friend," tells why it enforces strength to the muscles and relieves undue strain. It also contains letters of experience from many happy mothers. It is just such a handy little book as every woman will at once recognize as just what she had always wished to read—plain facts about herself. The book is mailed free to any address. WHY HAVE FIRELESS COOKER?

This Device Saves Labor, Time, Cooks Food Better.

By Nellie Tappan, Extension Service, Alabama Girls' Industrial Institute, Montevallo, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

1. Saves Time.—Food cooks with no fear of burning, while the housekeeper is free to attend to other duties.

2. Saves Fuel.—The breakfast fire may start the vegetables and meats cooking in the fireless for dinner. Fire started at 11:30 a. m. finishes up dinner, and starts hominy or other food for supper in the fireless. This same fire, or supper fire, may start the hominy or rice, or oat meal, for breakfast, and also a roast, ham, tough fowl, stew or soup stock for tomorrow's dinner.

3. Saves Muscular Work.—Unnecessary handling of fuel makes unnecessary motions in cutting, breaking, hauling and lifting. The consequent soiled hands and kitchen cloths must be washed, the consequent extra dist and dirt brought into the kitchen must be cleaned out.

4. Saves watching the pot, and keeping the tea kettle boiling.

5. Saves fretfulness and worry.

6. Gives some relief from heat over stove in summer. Cooking can be done on back porch with oil stove and fireless cooker.

7. Keeps food cold when packed with ice. Fine for baby's milk.

8. Gives Better Food.—Long, slow cooking means thorough cooking, tenders the fiber, and develops extra flavor in cereals, beans, peas, tough meats and other foods; aids digestion. It is one of the best means of cooking food for infants and small children.

All this is true or not, according to the housekeeper's management. She must think ahead to keep the fireless cooker constantly at work; she must practice and experiment to find out all the good qualities and all the limitations of a fireless cooker.

THE DEHORNING OF CATTLE

Not a Dangerous Operation if Proper Precautions Are Taken.

By R. S. Parker, Demonstration Agent, Chambers County

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The dehorning of cattle is a practice which rapidly grows in favor wherever introduced, and there is every reason for putting it out of their power to turn their horns against their owners and against each other.

A good job can be done with an ordinary hand-saw. It is very slow, however, compared to the shears, greatly prolonging the pain of the animal. In using the saw, the animal must be rigidly secured, which increases the danger of injury from its struggles, especially with cows heavy with calf.

There are several types of dehorning shears on the market. The best has two V-shaped knives, which sever the horn by sliding past each other, cutting on four sides at once. In dehorning something over a thousand cattle of all ages with an instrument of this type, I have never yet crushed a horn.

Some cattle, however, have an intricate system of slender braces of bone extending in all directions across the hollow core of the horn. Sometimes one of these little braces is splintered and left loose or slightly attached. If these loose splinters are pulled off before the wound is dressed, no bad results will follow.

After the horn is removed, a small patch of clean cotton flannel is stuck over the wound, with the nap side in. Clean pine tar is then smeared over the cloth and on the hair around the wound, and if possible some of the long hair on the top of the head is drawn over the cloth and stuck there with the tar. This makes the cloth stay on better. Some of the animals will knock the dressings off. They should be caught again as soon as the bleeding stops, and the dressing renewed. Scrub the base of the horn and the instrument used thoroughly with an antiseptic solution before the operation. In most cases the wound will heal perfectly in a short time, as cattle are less susceptible to the pus-forming germs than most animals.

If maggots enter a wound, they should be killed with a few drops of chloroform, and the wound treated with peroxide to boil out the pus, and then syringed out with an antiseptic solution every day or so until healing takes place.

If dehorning is done soon after pleasant weather sets in in the spring, or just after the first frost in autumn, there will be little danger from flies and all other conditions are most favorable for rapid recovery.

Flies are almost certain to get in in mid-summer, and if the work is done in very cold windy weather, there is danger of serious inflamation which may prove fatal.

At the age of two or three weeks, dehorning is a very slight and almost painless operation. The method consists in slightly moistening the horn button and then rubbing round and round with a stick of caustic potash or caustic soda until the skin is noticed to scruf up a little. The stick should be wrapped in paper to protect the fingers. Common concentrated lye will do the work if applied with a very short and stubby stick toothbrush.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY REMEDY
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

MRS. B. L. ALLEN GAINS 23 POUNDS

She Fell Off Until She Only Weighed 105 Pounds-Now Weighs 128 Pounds

"My wife has taken three bottles of Tanlac and has gained twenty-three pounds," was the remarkable statement made to the Tanlac man a few days ago by B. L. Allen, the well known barber in Sheffield, Alabama. "For more than three years Mrs. Allen suffered with stomach, liver, and kidney trouble," continued Mr. Allen, "she fell off until she only weighed 105 pounds; now she weighs 128 pounds. She was badly constipated and the pains in her side and back almost drove her wild. She scarcely ate anything at all and suffered terribly with gas on her stomach.

"At times she would get so bad and so weak that she would take to her bed, and for weeks would suffer agony. She was terribly nervous and suffered with sick headaches. She would have dizzy spells and complained of shortness of breath. She would get up of mornings feeling as when she went to bed and would have a bad taste in her mouth.

"She tried every kind of medicine, and nothing prescribed gave her any relief in fact, my house was so full of empty bottles it looked like a young drug store. Her condition was something terrible, and I worried a great deal about her. During the time she has been ill I have spent more than $500.00 for medicine.

"Nothing reached her trouble, and the medicine she took did no more good than so much water. I read in the Tri. Cities Daily about this Tanlac, and although I was just almost distracted, I concluded to give it a trial, and, sir, it was the very thing her system needed. Right from the start she began to improve and now she looks like a different person.

"She gets up of mornings feeling cheerful, bright and refreshed, and does all of her own housework. She is the happiest woman in Sheffield, and has a right to feel that way. To say that I am happy is putting it mildly, because I have a chance now to save a dollar."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co.

"Nobody Home."

The judge did not seem to appreciate the remarks of the lawyer for the defense. (Several years before they had had a fight over the question of religion.) At last the judge interrupted the lawyer and said: "Do you not know that everything you are saying is going in one ear and out the other?" The lawyer turned to him and replied: "Your honor, what is to prevent?"—Burr.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

CHAPTER VI.

"Did you get the range?" asked the countess, when late that night Braine recounted his adventure.

"Range!" he snarled. "My girl, haven't I just told you that I had to fight for my life? My boat was in flames. We had to swim for it till we were picked up by a Long Island barge tug. I don't know what became of the motorman. He must have headed straight for shore. And I'm glad he did. Otherwise he'd be howling for the price of another boat. Oh, for the first time I've had to let one of the boys have a look at my face. Doesn't know the name; but one of these days he'll stumble across it, and the result will be blackmail, unless I push him off into the dark. It was accidental."

The countess leaned forward, her hands tightly clinched.

"But the box!"

Braine made a gesture of despair.

"Leo, are you using any drug these days?"

"Don't make fun of me, Olga," impatiently. "Did you ever see me drink more than a pint of wine or smoke more than two cigars in an evening? Poor fools! What! let my brain go into the wastebasket for the sake of an hour or so of exhilaration? No, and never will I! I'm keen about the gray matter I've got, and by the Lord Harry, I'm going to keep it. There's only one dope fiend in the Hundred, and he's one of the best decoys we have; so we let him have his coke whenever he really needs it. But this man Felton has seen my face. Some day he'll see it again, ask questions, and then . . ."

"Then what?"

"A burial at sea," he laughed. The laughter died swiftly as it came. "Threw it into eight hundred feet of water, on a bar where the sands are always shifting. He'll never find it, even if he took the range. He could not have got a decent one. The sun was dropping and the shadows were long. He threw the chest into the water and then began pegging away at us, cool as you please, and fired our tank."

"It looks to me as if he had wasted his time."

"That depends. Between you and me and the gate-post, I've a sneaking idea that this man Jones, whom nobody has given any particular attention, is a deep, clever man. He may have been honestly attempting to find a new hiding place; the advertisement in the newspaper may have drawn him. He may have thrown the box over in pure rage at seeing himself checkmated. Again, the whole thing may have been worked up for our benefit, a blind. But if that's the case, Jones has us on the hip, for we can't tell. But we can do what in all probability he expects we'll cease to do—watch him just as shrewdly as before."

Olga caught his hand and drew him down beside her. "I wasn't going to bother you tonight, but it may mean something vital."

"What?" alertly.

For reply she rose and walked over to the light button. She pressed it and the apartment became dark.

"Come over to the window, quick!" She dragged him across the room. "Over the way, the house with the marble frontage."

A man emerged, lit a cigarette, and walked leisurely down the street.

"No!" she cried, as Blaine turned to make for the door, doubtless with the intention of finding out who this man was. "Every night after you leave he appears."

"Does he follow me?"

"No. And that's what bothered me at first. I believed he was watching some apartment above. But regularly when I turn out the lights he comes forth. So there's no doubt that he watches you enter and takes note of your departure."

"But doesn't follow me. That's odd. What the devil is his idea?"

"I'd give a good deal to learn."

The shadow and the glowing cigarette disappeared around the corner, and the lights in the apartment were turned on again.

"He's gone. You really think he's watching me?"

"He is watching this apartment, I know that much."

And even at that moment the watcher was watching from his vantage behind the corner.

"Suspicious!" he murmured, tossing the cigarette into the gutter. "They're watching me for a change. I'll drop out. I know what I know. It's a great world. It's fine to be alive and kicking on top of it." He went on without haste and took the subway train for downtown.

"Is there any way I could get near him?" asked Braine.

"Tomorrow night you might leave by the janitor's entrance. I'll keep the lights on till you're outside. Then I'll turn them off and you can follow and learn who he is."

"It's mighty important."

"Don't scowl. At your age a wrinkle is apt to remain if you once get it started."

He laughed. "Wrinkles!" She could talk of wrinkles!

"They are more important than you think. Every morning I rub out the wrinkle I go to bed with."

"I wish you could rub out the general stupidity which is wrinkling my brain. I've made three moves and failed in each. What's come over me?"

"Perhaps you've had too many successes. The wheel of chance is always turning around."

"May I smoke?"

"Thanks. At least it proves you still have some consideration for me. You would smoke whether it was agreeable or not. But I like the odor of a good cigar. And it always helps you to think."

Braine lit the cigar and began his customary pacing. At length he paused.

"Suppose we have a real old-fashioned coaching party out to the old mansion we know about?"

"And what shall we do there?"

"Make the mansion an enchanted castle where sometimes people who enter can't get out. Do you think you could get her to go?"

"I can try."

"Olga, I must have that girl; and I must have her soon. Sometimes I find myself mightily puzzled over the whole thing. If Hargreave is alive, why doesn't he turn up now that it's practically known that his daughter presides over his household? I might understand it if I didn't know that Hargreave is really afraid of nothing. Where is the man with the five thousand, picked up at sea? What was the reason for Jones carrying that box out in broad daylight? Who is the chap watching across the street? Sometimes I believe in my soul—if I have one!—that Hargreave is playing with us, playing! Well," flinging the half consumed cigar into the grate, "the Black Hundred always goes forward, win or lose, and never forgets."

"We are a fine pair!" said the woman bitterly.

"We are exactly what fate intended us to be. They wrote you down in the book as a beautiful body with a crooked mind. They wrote me down as the devil, doomed to roam earth's top till I'm killed."

"Killed?"

"Why, yes. I'm not the kind of chap who dies in bed, surrounded by the weeping members of the family, doctor, nurse, and priest. I'm a scoundrel; but it has this saving grace, I enjoy being a scoundrel. Now, I'm going up to the club. There's nothing like a game of billiards or chess to smooth that wrinkle which seems to worry you."

In the great newspaper office there was a mighty racket. Midnight always means pandemonium in the city room of a metropolitan daily. Copy boys were rushing to and fro, messengers and printers with sticky galleys in their hands; reporters were banging away at their typewriters, and intermingling you could hear the ceaseless clickety-click from the telegraph room.

The managing editor came out of his office and approached the desk of the night city editor.

"Editorial page gone down?"

"Twenty minutes ago," said the night city editor.

"I wanted a stick on that Panama rumpus."

"Too late."

"Where's Jim Norton?"

"At the chamber of commerce banquet. The major is going to throw a bomb into the enemy's camp."

"Nothing on the Hargreave stuff?"

"No. Guess I'd better put that in the cubbyhole. He's dead."

"No will found yet?"

"Not a piece as big as a postage stamp."

"That will leave the girl in a tough place. No will, no birth certificate; and, worst of all, no photograph of the old man himself. I don't see why Jim sidestepped this affair. He the only man in town who knew anything about Hargreave."

"He hasn't given it up; but he wants to cover it on his own, turn the yarn over when he's got it, no false alarms."

"Ah! So that's the game?"

"Yes; and Jim is the sort every paper needs. When the time comes the story turns up, if there is one. Here he is now. Looks like an actor in the fourth act of a drama. Good-looking chap, though."

Norton came in through the outer gates. He was in evening clothes, top hat. A dead cigarette dangled between his lips.

"How much do you want?" asked the night city editor.

"Column and a half."

"Off with your glad rags!"

"Anything good?" asked the managing editor.

"The lid has been jammed on tight. No wine in any restaurant after one o'clock. There'll be a roundup of every gunman in town."

"Good work! Go to it."

It was one o'clock when Norton turned in his last sheet of copy and started for home. Just outside the entrance to the building a man with a slouch hat drawn down over his eyes stepped forward.

"Mr. Norton?"

"Yes." Norton stepped back suspiciously.

The other chuckled, raised and lowered his hat swiftly.

prised the elevator boy by going out. Norton proceeded downtown to the national bank, where he deposited $5,000 in bills of large denominations. The teller had some difficulty in counting them. They stuck together and retained the sodden appearance of money recently submerged in water.

* * * * * * *

Florence was delighted at the idea of a coaching party. Often during her schoolgirl days she had seen the fashionable coaches go careening along the road, with the sharp, clear note of the bugle rising about the thunder of hoofs and rattling of wheels. Jones was not enthusiastic; neither was he a killjoy.

"But you are to go along, too," said Florence.

"I, Miss Florence?"

"The countess invited you especially. You will go with a hamper."

"Ah, in my capacity as butler; very good, Miss Florence." To her he gave no sign of his secret satisfaction.

The hour arrived, and the gay party bowled away. They wound in and out of the streets toward the country to the crack of the whip and the blare of the horn. Florence's enjoyment would have been perfect had it not been for the absence of Norton. Why hadn't he been invited? She did not ask because she did not care to disclose to the countess her interest in the reporter. They were nearing the limits of the city, when the coach was forced to take a sharp turn to avoid an automobile in trouble. The man puttering at the engine raised his head. It was Norton, and Florence waved her hand vigorously.

"A coaching party," he murmured; "and your Uncle James was not invited! Oh, very well!" He laughed, and suddenly grew serious. It would not hurt to find out where that coach was going.

He set to work savagely, located the trouble, righted it, and set off for the Hargreave home. He found Susan and bombarded her with questions which to Susan came with the rapidity of rain upon the roof.

"So Jones went along?"

"In his capacity of butler only."

Norton smiled. "Well, I'll take a jaunt out there myself. You are sure of the location?"

"Yes."

"Well, good-by. I'll go as a waiter, since they wouldn't invite me. I'm one of the best little waiters you ever heard of; and all things come to him who waits."

What a pleasant, affable young man he was! thought Susan as she watched him jump into the car and go flying up the street.

Jones was a good deal surprised when Norton turned up at the old Chilton manor.

"What made you come here dressed like this?" the butler demanded.

"I'm a suspicious duffer; maybe that's the reason."

"Do you know anything?"

"Well, no; I can't say that I do. But, hang it, I just had to come out here."

"Maybe it's just as well you did," said Jones moodily.

"I know this place. The housekeeper used to be my nurse, and if she is still on the job she may be of service to us. You don't think they'll question or recognize me?"

"Hardly. I'll put in a word for you. I'll say I sent for you, not knowing if we had enough servants to take care of the luncheon."

"And now I'll go and hunt up Meg."

Sure enough, his old nurse was still in charge of the house; and when her "baby" disclosed his identity she all but fell upon his neck.

"But what are you doing here, dressed up as a waiter?"

"It's a little secret, Meg. I wasn't invited, and the truth is I'm very desperately in love with the young lady in whose honor this coaching party is being given. And . . . maybe she's in danger."

"Danger? What about?"

"The Lord only knows. But show me about the house. I've not been here in so long I've forgotten the run of it. I remember one room with the secret panel and another with a painting that turned. Have they changed them?"

"Good Lord!" murmured the reporter.

"Will you take a ride with me in a taxi?"

"All the way to Syracuse, if you say so. Well, I'll be tinker d—d!"

"No names, please!"

What took place in that taxicab was never generally known. But at ten o'clock the next morning Norton sur-

"No; it is just the same here as it used to be. Come along and I'll show you."

Norton inspected the rooms carefully, stowing away in his mind every detail. He might be worrying about nothing; but so many strange things had happened that it was better to be on the side of caution than on the side of carelessness. He left the house and ran across Jones carrying a basket of wine.

"Here, Norton; take this to the party. I want to reconnoiter."

"All right, m'lud! Say, Jones, how much do you think I'd earn at this job?" comically.

"Get along with you, Mr. Norton. It may be the time to laugh, and then it may not."

"I'm going back into the house and hide behind a secret panel. I've got my revolver. You go to the stables and take a try at my car; see if she works smoothly. We may have to do some hiking. Where is the countess in this?"

"Leave that to me, Mr. Norton," said the butler with his grim smile. "Be off; they are moving back toward the house."

So Norton carried the basket around to the lawn, where it was taken from his hands by the regular servant. He sighed as he saw Florence, laughing and chatting with a man who was a stranger and whom he heard addressed as count. Some friend of the countess, no doubt. Where was all this tangle going to end? He wished he knew. And what a yarn he was going to write some day! It would be read like one of Gaboriau's tales. He turned away to wander idly about the grounds, when beyond a clump of cedars he saw three or four men conversing slowly. He got as near as possible, for when three or four men put their heads together and whisper animatedly, it usually means a poker game or something worse. He caught a phrase or two as it came down the wind, and then he knew that the vague suspicion that had brought him out here had been set in motion by fate. He heard "Florence" and "the old drawing room;" and that was enough.

He scurried about for Jones. It was pure luck that he had had old Meg show him through the house, otherwise he would have forgotten all about the secret panel in the wall and the painting. Jones shrugged resignedly. Were these men of the countess' party? Norton couldn't say.

Norton made his hiding place in safety; and by and by he could hear the guests moving about in the room. Then all sounds ceased for a while. A door closed sharply.

"No; here you must stay, young lady," said a man's voice.

"What do you mean, sir?" demanded the beloved voice.

"It means that no one will return to this room and that you will not be missed until it is too late."

The sound of voices stopped abruptly, and something like scuffling ensued. Later Norton heard the back of a chair strike the panel and someone sat heavily upon it. He waited perhaps five minutes; then he gently slid back the panel. Florence sat bound and gagged under his very eyes. It was but the work of a moment to liberate her.

"It is I, Jim. Do not speak or make the least noise. Follow me."

Greatly astonished, Florence obeyed; and the panel slipped back into place. The room behind the secret panel had barred windows. To Florence it appeared to be a real prison.

"How did you get here?" she asked breathlessly.

"Something told me to follow you. And something is always going to tell me to follow you, Florence."

She pressed his hand. It was to her as if one of those book heroes had stepped out of a book; only book heroes always had tremendous fortunes and did not have to work for a living. Oddly enough, she was not afraid.

"Who was the man?" he asked.

"The Count Norfeldt. Some one has imposed upon the countess."

"Do you think so?" with a strange look in his eyes.

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing just now. The idea is to get out of here just as quickly as we can. See this painting?" He touched a spot in the wall and the painting slowly swung out like a door. "Come; we make our escape to the side lawn from here."

At the stable they were confronted with the knowledge that Norton's car was out of commission; Jones could do nothing with it. Then Norton suggested that he make a effort to commandeer the limousine of the countess; but there were men about, so the limousine was out of the question.

"Horses!" whispered Jones. "There are several saddle horses, already saddled. How about these people, the owners?"

"Oh, they are beyond reproach. They have doubtless been imposed upon. But let us get aboard first. There will be time to talk later. I'll have to do some explaining, taking these nags off like this. We won't have to ride out in front where the picknickers are. There's a lane back of the stable, and a slight detour brings us back into the main road."

The three mounted and clattered away. To Florence it had the air of a prank. She was beginning to have such confidence in these two inventive men that she felt as if she was never going to be afraid any more.

When the Countess Olga saw the three horses it was an effort not to fly into a rage. But secretly she warned her people, who presently gave chase in the limousine, while she prattled and jested and laughed with her company, who were quite unaware that a drama was being enacted right under their very noses. The countess, while she acted superbly, tore her handkerchief into shreds. There was something sinister in the way all their plans fell through at the very moment of consummation; and that night she determined to ask Braine to withdraw from this warfare, which gradually decimated their numbers without getting anywhere toward the goal.

Jones shouted that the limousine was tearing down the road. Something must be done to stop it. He suggested that he drop behind, leave his horse, and take a chance at potting a tire from the shrubbery at the roadside.

"Keep going. Don't stop, Norton, till you are back in town. I'll manage to take good care of myself."

CAMPAIGN FOR FIGHTING THE BOLL WEEVIL

By Cotton Stalk Destruction and Wintes Cover Crops.

The boll weevil is making an unusual advance this season. They now occur in at least 55 counties in Alabama, and in between 25 and 30 counties in south western Georgia. The infested area now includes Colbert, Cullman, Blount, St. Clair, Talladega, Clay and Chambers counties, and all counties southwest of these.

The short crop of 1915 and its unusually early maturity gives an unprecedented opportunity to make a strong campaign for the early destruction of the cotton stalks and for the planting of cover crops this fall.

A campaign along the preceding line is being organized by the Extension Service to reach nearly all of the weevil infested counties in Alabama. This campaign will be led in each county by the demonstration agent. It is desired that the demonstration agent should cooperate where possible with some leading banker and some farmer in making local arrangements and advertising the meetings, a schedule of which will be sent you in a few days from Auburn.

The campaingn plan calls for three parties, each including at least four speakers. The central meeting and the only meeting that this party will probably be able to attend will usually be at the county seat or probably at some other place where more effective work might be done or where it might be more convenient to hold such a meeting. After this general county meeting it is hoped that each county agent will arrange a series of six to eight meetings in the most promising districts in his couaty, in which the county agent may be the principal speaker. He may also arrange for talks by local business men and farmers as he sees fit.

The speaking campaign will probably start with a meeting in Montgomery on Sept. 28 and in the other counties as soon thereafter as a schedule of continous dates for the speakers from the Extension Service can be arranged.

Your cooperation will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,
J. F. Dugger
Director of Extension Service, A. P. I. and U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained —ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

JACKSON HIGHWAY ROUTE TO BE CHOSEN ON NOVEMBER TENTH

Nashville Convention After Stormy Session Decides to Delay Choice

Nashville, Sept. 23.—It was definitely decided today that the present convention of the Jackson Highway association will not fix the route of the proposed road through the south to be built in memory of the great Tennesseean. Instead the routes advocated by the various factions of Tennesseeans. Alabamians and Mississippians will be traced by a path finding committee of three and a government highway engineer. They will submit seperate reports to the board of directors of the association, who will meet on November 10 to select the route of the great eorth and south highway which is expected to link Chicago and New Orleans by way of Indianapolis. Louisville, Nashville and other points to the south.

In securing this action the temporary organization of the convention under the leadership of Peter Lee Atherton of Kentucky as prisident held the whip hand over the turbulent deligations which several times threatened to participate trouble. An effort to bind the temporary officers to the recommendations of the nominating committee, which will report tomorrow, was defeated after a heated debate and it was decided not to hold a night session, so that state delegations would have opportunity to caucus on their candidates for permanent officers of the organization.

After adopting the report of the temporary officers providing for the method of electing permanent officers, as well as fixing the permanent route of the Jackson highway the afternoon was devoted to addresses. Oscar Underwood, senator-elect from Alabama, who was in the city but did not attend the opening session of the convention, was the principal speaker. Because he was unable to be present tomorrow, the plan to have the various delegations present their claimes for highway recognition was shifted and Mr. Underwood invited to deliver an address.

Although speaking as a representative from Alabama, Mr. Underwood announced that he was not advocating any one route for the proposed highway. He urged the building of good roads as an uplifting influence on the sections traversed. Transportation is the key to commerce, he declared, and the commerce of the future will not be guided solely by steel rails, but will follow the highway's of the nation. He delivered an eulogy on General Andrew Jackson and said it was not the south alone that was interested in a highway to bear his name, but the entire nation.

"Build the highway where it will be most successful and most generally traveled," he concluded.

J. N. McCoud of Lewisburg, Tenn., who also was called away by the pressure of other business, followed Mr. Underwood and presented the claims of Marshall county, Tennessee. David M. Boyle of Lafayette, Ind., described the Chicago-Indianapolis link of the proposed route, and Edgar D. Bush of Salem, Ind., represented the lakes to the gulf highway in Indiana, told of that portion extending from Indianapolis to Louisville.

An effort to get federal assistance in the Jackson highway enterprise was launched when Mrs. Oscar Hundley of Birmingham presented a resolution asking the association to call upon senators and representatives from the states to be traversed by the road to urge Congress to pass a bill for aypropriations to supplement those made by the states.

In an effort to complete the work of the convention tomorrow the big deligations from Birmingham, Montgomery, Mobile and other Alabama cities held a caucus tonight to decide on the claims they will present to the convention tomorrow. A similar meeting was held by the Mississippians, embracing the cities of West Point, Columbus, Macon Meredian, Laurel and also Florence, representatives of which are acting with the Mississippians in urging the Jackson military road as opposed to the route favored by the other Alabama cities.

The Alabama delegation tonight selected L. P. Irvine of Mobile, R. E. Spragins of Huntsville and W. P. Sanders of Athens as the committee to represent the state on the board of directors. One of the three will be chosen as a vice president of the Jackson highway convention, while the other two will serve as executive committeemen.

At the caucus of the Alabama delegates tonight representatives of the tier of tive counties in the northwest portion of the state through which the Jackson military road would pass, withdrew from the meeting, charging they would not be alloyed representation in the Alabama portion of the permanent officers of the association.

The meeting at times was stormy. Judge Nathan and R. F. Simpson opposed the pleas of W. T. Sanders and others for harmony.

The action, it was declared, probably would result in the temporary organization of the conuention tomorrow naming at least a portion of the permanent officers without the recommendation of their respective state delegates.

THE FLOWER OF YOUTH OF CLANTON CALLED ON

By Heaven's Garden For its Contribution.

In the death of young Oliver Mullins, the oldest son of the late Tipton Mullins and Mrs. Roberta Mullins, Clanton and Chilton county has lost a boy of much promise and usefulness. This young man was of a disposition and temperament as to stamp its character and its influence for good upon the youth of the community, in a manner everlasting. A loving, affectionate, dutiful son and brother in his home; polite, courtly, and even tempered, yet firm when occasion required in his relations to the outside world, the precept, practice and example of this boy will have an everlasting imprint upon the youth and young manhood of Chilton county and Clanton.

The conscription of young Mullins into the Heavenly hosts for everlasting duty, is but the beckoning of the dear beloved ones who have preceded him to the other shore. Truly has it been writ:

"Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting;
The soul that rises with us, our life's star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting
And cometh from afar;
Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home;
Heaven lies about us in our infancy.
Shades of the prison-house begin to close
Upon the growing boy,
But he beholds the light, and whence it flows,
He sees it in his joy;
The youth, who daily farther from the East
Must travel, still is nature's priest,
And by the vision splendid
Is on his way attended;
At length the man perceives it die away,
And fade into the light of common day."

Fondly dedicated to the memory of Father and Son, by An Appreciative Friend.

BOB MELTON KILLED BY BOB GLASS AT VERBENA

Two Negro Men Have Disastrous Affray Sunday Night.

On last Sunday night when Bob Glass, colored, went to a church about a mile east of Verbena, some kind of strange motive caused him to take a trusty shot gun along.

On the way back home about eleven o'clock, Glass discharged the contents of the gun into the person of Bob Melton, another negro, entailing instantly fatal results. As is often the case in such a fracas, the cause of the trouble was readily traced back to a negro woman.

The Sheriff's authorities were notified of the matter, and at once began work on the case. Several suspects were arrested, but all indications pointed to the negro Glass, whom the Sheriff had found secluded in a cotton house.

At the inquest before Dr. Caffey the evidence was positive against Glass, and he was placed in jail to await further action of the courts.

It is said that Glass acknowledged the killing to the officers.

MONSTER MOCCASIN IS KILLED BY FOUR MEN

Kelly, Ala., Sept. 19—Four men battled with a moccasin for forty-five minutes Saturday afternoon before finally subduing and killing it. The snake weighed 38 pounds and was 6 feet long. It is declared to be one of the largest and most dangerous snakes that have been seen here in recent years. The skin will be preserved as a memento. Those who participated in the fight which resulted in the death of the reptile were M. C. McDade, J. H. Lewis, Pat Winn and Frank Evans of Montgomery.

Had a fine singing here on the 3rd Sunday. Prof. Jackson of Thorsby was President, attendance was large.

The recent advance in the price of cottop makes us feel like the Republicans were in power.

Prof. and Mrs. Blankenship of Thorsby attended the singing here.

Last year the war was the cause of the great decline in cotton, the war still rages, but cotton is advancing. How can we reconcile that?

J. P. Barrett and daughter, Mrs. Hayes of Thorsby, were at the singing here.

Among other visitors here T. C. Jackson and wife, and Roy Jackson of Thorsby, M. V. Lawley of Dogwood, J. A. Rogers of Oak Hill, Rev. Scott of Mars Hill.

Several of our people attended the singing at Dogwood last Sunday. Books used were Harp and Harmony. Leaders were Simmons of Helena, Vandiver and Lawley of Dogwood, Hodgens of Union Springs, Martin of Providence and Scott of Mars Hill.

One of the great features of the singing was the singing of Miss Wallace of Enon. It was a great time.

Educational Rally next Saturday at the new school house near Union Springs, several distinguished speakers expected. Everybody come and bring dinner.

JUDGE REYNOLDS MAKES ADDRESS

Last Saturday Judge Reynolds, on invitation, made a short address to quite a number of Chilton county's citizens at Midway. Midway is a fast growing little burg situated on the L. & N. rail road between Verbena and Mountain Creek. On last Saturday perhaps the last picnic of the season was pulled off at that place at which time Judge Reynolds and other speakers were invited to make addresses.

Mr. Chas. Cooper who is one of the progressive citizens of that community was a great factor in making the occasion a successful one. Mr. Cooper is one of the most progressive and hustling citizens of the county and deserves credit for his push energy and enterprifing spirit in the community of Midway.

Judge Reynolds in his remarks, which were confined to general topics, gave many interesting illustrations which were well received and enjoyed by those present.

A good crowd was on hand and the day passed pleasantly.

MT. PLEASANT.

As everybody expected, the recognition of the Carranza forces in Mexico would mean anarchy in that already dilapidated and depraved country.

W. J. Bryan called on President Wilson last week, the first time he has been back to the White House since he resigned as Secretary. It is supposed the two great men talked over their breach in affairs generally.

Governor Henderson says the legisature has signally failed to reduce the expenses of the state government. This set of high-minded law-makers has done nothing but feather their own caps.

The Mobile Tribune, a weekly publication which has been owned and operated by Sidney Berrey for five years, has been taken over by John C. O'Connell, and will be conducted as an independent paper.

The Jackson Highway meeting in Nashville last week appointed a committee of three from each state along the proposed road to make a survey and report by Nov. 10th, These committees are accompanied by government engineers.

We heard a man say the other day that if cotton should reach fifteen cents there was no power on earth to keep Wilson from being re-elected. He seemed to forget that should the G. O. P. and Bull Moose consolidate, they have over a million more votes than the Democrats. What are you going to do with them? They saw cotton 15 cents under a Republican adminlstration with a fifteen million bale crop!—Collinsville Courier.

Jhe Jackson Highway meeting up in Nashville last week was one of the largest and most distinguished gatherings of its kind ever held in the south. Men of all walks of life participated at the meeting. Laymen, senators and officials were all there defending and working for their claims upon the great highway which is soon to traverse this country from the Lakes to the Gulf. The highway, when completed, will be one of the greatest accomplishments which could come to these United States of ours. The question now is, and the object of this meeting in Nashville was, which way will it go? Thru Mississlppi or Alabama. The indications now point to the Alabama route, and it is to be hoped that in the end Alabama will get it.

Henderson Acts Courageously.

The wise and courageous action of Governor Henderson in rebuking the legislature for failing to do that for which it was elected will meet with the approval of every Alabama voter who has followed the course of that body during the two half sessions.

The legislature was elected to bring the expenditures of the state within the receipts. Instead of doing this it has made additional appropriations, but has failed to increase, even proportionately, the income of the state.

Governor Henderson has been sorely tried by the failure of the legislators to live up to their promises, and he has preached economy to them since the beginning of the session,

That they have failed to heed the wise protests of the governor on the raids on the state treasury shows them as erratic in fiscal as in sumptuary legislation.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Hge-Herald is telling 'em just as it is. Instead of serving the people, this crowd of "Elics" down there have done things to suit themselves.

Forty-four of the eighty Mississippi counties are now free of the cattle tick, which is a far greater proportion than any other of our neighboring states. Cattle in these tick-free counties are worth from five to ten dollars more per head than in those not tick-free says the Neshoba Democrat. To prove this assertion ask any man who owns cattle in a tick-free county, adds the newspapar. The fact is that the tick-free cattle mean a fortune; and the possible use of land where but a bare living could be obtained before. The progress of the south will be greatly aided by success in the cattle raising industry.—Mobile Register.

Why not Alabama get interested along that line. The tick eradication would prove much more beneficial to the farmers than some of the bills being passed by the present crowd down at Montgomery.

Continuing, Mr. O'Bannon said: "Ever since the war I have suffered with a bad form of stomach trouble, and some twenty years ago contracted catarrh. Between the two complaints I have never enjoyed a well day. All my surplus earnings went for medicine, and I would be safe in saying that I have spent more than $1,000 in an effort to get back my health, but nothing prescribed for me did any good.

I had little appetite, and what I forced down me would ferment, producing gas on my stomach. I would have dizzy spells, and was always nervous. I didn't sleep well, and I just felt out of joint all the time. Life seemed a burden, and I had little energy for work.

"I would have to pull myself together of mornings, and during the day just drag around trying to find energy enough to look after my business interests. I would feel weak in my limbs and would have to rest a great deal. I read in the Tri-Cities Daily about this Tanlac. I had no faith in the medicine, but as I had tried everything else, I thought I might strike it just right, and went to the Palace Pharmacy and got me a bottle. Well, sir, it seemed to be the very thing my system needed, and went direct to the spot. I began to improve at once. I just strngthened right up. I have taken nine bottles of the mecicine, and feel like a new man. I can do a good days work now, and what a pleasure it is to be able to eat dishes that I had dot partaken of for years. I never believe that any medicine could be made that would give me relief, but Tonlac did, and I am so grateful to Mr. Cooper that I want you to publish what I have told you."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co.

Sewing Circle With Much Whispering

Before the stork arrives there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic. And there is sure to be someone who has used or knows of that splendid external help, "Mother's Friend." It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in and has a most pronounced effect as a lubricant. It soothes the network of nerves, enables the muscles to expand naturally, relieves strain on the ligaments and thus sets at ease any undue strain on the organs involved. And it does this with perfect safety. Expectant mothers thus go through the ordeal with comparative ease and comfort. Knowing mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" speak in glowing terms of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and a freedom from many other distresses.

One of the most important symptoms to be relieved by "Mother's Friend" is the imagination that so often disturbs repose. Pains, even though natural, may so distort the mind that undue apprehension will sometimes follow. The gentle, soothing influence of "Mother's Friend" gives the mind substantial aid to become conscious of strength and there is a real, physical sensibility of muscular vigor as evidenced by freedom from undue strain.

You can get "Mother's Friend" at any drug store or they will gladly get it for you. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 701 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book of great value to all expectant mothers. It contains a valuable expectancy chart, rules on diet and is brimful of suggestions that all women will appreciate.

CHAPTER VII.

When all three finally met at the Hargreave home Florence suddenly took Jones by the shoulders and kissed him lightly on the cheek. Jones started back, pale and disturbed.

Norton laughed. He did not feel the slightest twinge of jealousy, but he was eaten up with envy, as the old wives say.

"You are wondering if I suspect the Princess Perigoff?" said Jones.

"I am." This man Jones was developing into a very remarkable character. The reporter found himself side glancing at the thin, keen face of this resourceful butler. The lobe of the man's left ear came within range. Norton reached for a cigarette, but his hands shook as he lit it. There was a peculiar little scar in the center of the lobe.

"Well," said Jones, "I can find no evidence that she has been concerned in any of these affairs."

"You are suspicious?"

"Of everybody," looking boldly into the reporter's eyes.

"Of me?" smiling.

"Even of myself sometimes."

Conversation dropped entirely after this declaration.

"You're a taciturn sort of chap."

"Am I?"

"You are. But an agreement is an agreement, and while I'd like to print this story, I'll not. We newspaper men seldom break our word."

Jones held out his hand.

"Sometimes I wish I'd started life right," said the reporter gloomily. "A newspaper man is generally improvident. He never looks ahead for to morrow. What with my special articles to the magazines, I earn between four and five thousand the year; and I've never been able to save a cent."

"Perhaps you've never really tried," replied Jones, with a glance at his companion. It was a good face, strong in outline; a little careworn, perhaps but free from any indications of dissipation. "If I had begun life as you did, I'd have made real and solid use of the great men I met. I'd have made financiers help me to invest my earnings, or savings, little as they might be. And today I'd be living on the income."

"Do Not Speak or Make the Least Noise."

"You never can tell. Perhaps a woman might have made you think of those things; but if you had remained unattached up to thirty-one, as I have, the thought of saving might never have entered your head. A man in my present condition, financially, has no right to think of matrimony."

"It might be the saving of you if you met and married the right woman."

"But the right woman might be heiress to millions. And a poor devil like me could not marry a girl with money and hang on to his self-respect."

"True. But there are always exceptions to all rules in life, except those regarding health. A healthy man is a normal man, and a normal man has no right to remain single. You proved yourself a man this afternoon, considering that you did not know I occupied the wheel seat. Come to think it over, you really saved the day. You gave me the opportunity of steering straight for the police station. Well, good-by."

"Queer duck!" mused the reporter as, after telephoning, he headed for his office. Queer duck, indeed! What a game it was going to be! And this man Jones was playing it like a master. It did not matter that some one else laid down the rules; it was the way in which they were interpreted.

Braine heard of the failure. The Black Hundred was finding its stock far below par value. Four valuable men locked up in the Tombs awaiting trial, to say nothing of the seven gunmen gathered in at the old warehouse. Braine began to suspect that his failures were less due to chance than to calculation, that at last he had encountered a mind which anticipated his every move. He would have recognized this fact earlier had it not been that revenge had temporarily blinded him. The spirit of revenge ever makes for mental clarity.

There was a meeting that night of the Black Hundred. Four men were told off, and they drew their chairs up to Vroon's table for instructions. Braine sat at Vroon's elbow. These four men composed the most dangerous quartet in New York city. They were as daring as they were desperate. They were the men who held up bank messengers and got away with thousands. They had learned to swoop down upon their victims as the hawk swoops down upon the heron. The newspapers referred to them as the "auto bandits," and the men took a deal of pride in the furore they had created

Vroon went over the Hargreave case minutely; he left no detail unexplained. Bluntly and frankly, the daughter of Stanley Hargreave must be caught and turned over to the care of the Black Hundred. It must be quick action. Four valuable members were in the Tombs. They might or might not weaken under pressure. For the first time in its American career the organization stood facing actual peril; and its one possible chance of salvation lay in the fact that no one's face was known to his neighbor. He, Vroon, and the boss alone knew who and what each man was. But the plans, the ramifications of the organization might become public property; and that would mean an end to an exceedingly profitable business.

The Daughter of Hargreave Rode Horseback Every Morning.

The daughter of Hargreave rode horseback early every morning. She sought the country road. She was invariably attended by the riding master of a school near by.

"You four will make your own plans.'

"If she should be injured?"

"Avoid it if possible."

"We have a free hand?"

"Absolutely."

"We risk a bad fall from her horse if it's a spirited one."

"Pretend a breakdown in the road," interpolated Braine. "As they approach, draw and order them to dismount. That method will prevent any accident."

"We'll plan it somehow. It looks easy."

"Nothing is easy where that girl is concerned. A thousand eyes seem to be watching her slightest move."

"We shan't leave anything to chance. How many days will you give us?"

"Seven. A failure, mind you, will prove unhealthy to all concerned," with a menace which made the four stir uneasily.

The telephone rang. Braine reached for the receiver.

"A man just entered the Hargreave house at the rear. Come at once," was the message.

"Is your car outside?" Braine asked.

"We are never without it."

"Then let us be off. No one will stop us for speeding on a side street."

Fourteen minutes by the clock brought the car to a stand at the curb a few houses below the Hargreave home. The men got out. The watcher ran up.

"He is still inside," he whispered.

"Good! Spread out. If anyone leaves that house, catch him. If he runs too fast, shoot. We can beat the police."

The man obeyed, and the watcher ran back to his post. He was desperately hoping the affair would terminate tonight. He was growing weary of this eternal vigilance; and it was only his fear of the man known as the boss that kept him at his post. He wanted a night to carouse in, to be with the boys.

The man for whom they were lying in wait was seen presently to creep cautiously round the side of the house. He hugged a corner and paused. They could see the dim outline of his body. The light in the street back of the grounds almost made a silhouette of him. By and by, as if assured that the coast was clear, he stole down to the street.

"Halt!"

Instantly the prowler took to his heels. Two shots rang out. The man was seen to stop, stagger, and then go on desperately.

"He's hit!"

By the time the men reached the corner they heard the rumble of a motor. One dashed back to the car they had left standing at the curb. He made quick work of the job, but he was not quick enough. Still, they gave chase. They saw the car turn toward the city. But, unfortunately for the success of the chase, several automobiles passed, going into town and leaving it. Checkmate.

Braine was keen enough tonight.

"He is hit; whether badly or not remains to be seen. We can find that out. Drive to the nearest drug store and get a list of hospitals. It's a ten to one shot that we land him somewhere among the hospitals."

But they searched the hospitals in vain. None of them had that night received a shooting case, nor had they heard one reported. The man had been unmistakably hit. He would not have dared risk the loss of time for a bit of play-acting. Evidently he had kept his head and sought his lodgings. To call up doctors would be utter folly; for it would take a week for a thorough combing. This was the second time the man had got away.

"Perhaps I'm to blame," admitted Braine. "I should have advised Miles to stalk him and pot him if he got the chance. There's a master mind working somewhere back of all this, and it's time I woke up to the fact. But you," turning to the auto bandits, "you men have your instructions. More than that, you have been given a free rein. See that you make good, or by the Lord Harry! I'll break the four of you like pipestems."

"We haven't had a failure yet," spoke up one of the men, more courageous than his companions.

"You are not holding up a bank messenger this trip. Remember that. Drive me as far as Columbus circle. Leave me on the side street, between the lights, so I can take off this mask."

Later Braine sauntered into Pabst and ordered a light supper. This night's work, more than anything else, brought home to him the fact that his luck was changing. For years he had proceeded with his shady occupations without encountering any memorable failure. He moved in the high world, quite unsuspected. He had written books, given lectures, been made a lion of, all the while laughing in his sleeve at the gullibility of human nature. But within the last two weeks he had received serious checks. From now on he must move with the utmost caution. Some one was playing his own game, waging warfare unseen. A battle of wits? So be it; but Braine intended to play with rough wits, and he wasn't going to care which way the sword cut.

He hated Stanley Hargreave with all the hatred of his soul; the hatred of a man balked in love. And the man was alive, defying him; alive somewhere in this city this very night, with a bullet under his skin.

"Is everything satisfactory, sir?" he heard the head waiter say.

"Satisfactory?" Braine repeated blankly.

"Yes, sir. You struck the table as though displeased."

"O!" Then Braine laughed relievedly. "If I struck the table, it was done unconsciously. I was thinking."

"Beg pardon, sir! Anything else, sir?"

"No. Bring me the check."

* * * * * * *

"Your master gives riding lessons?"

The groom who had led the horse back from Hargreave's eyed his questioner rather superciliously.

"Yes." The groom fondled the animal's legs.

"How much is it?"

"Twenty dollars for a ticket of five rides. The master is the fashion u here. He doesn't cater to any but th best families."

"Pretty steep. Who was that young lady riding this morning with your master?"

"That's the girl all the newspapers have been talking about," answered the groom importantly.

"Actress?"

"Actress! I should say not. That young woman is the daughter of Stanley Hargreave, the millionaire who was lost at sea. And it won't be long before she puts her finger in a pie of four or five millions. If you want any rides, you'll have to talk it over with the boss. He may or may not take any more rides. You'd probably have to ride in the afternoon, anyhow, as every nag is out in the morning."

"Where's the most popular road?"

"Toward the park; but Miss Hargreave always goes along the riverside road. She doesn't like strangers about."

"O, I see. Well, I'll drop in this afternoon and see your master. They say that riding is good for a torpid liver. Have a cigar?"

"Thanks."

The groom proceeded into the stables and the affable stranger took himself off.

A free rein; they could work it to suit themselves. There wasn't the least obstacle in the way. On the face of it, it appeared to be the simplest job they had yet undertaken. To get rid of the riding master in some natural way after he and the girl had started. It was like falling off a log.

"Susan," said Florence as she came into breakfast after her exhilarating ride, "did you hear pistol shots last night?"

"I heard some noise, but I was so sleepy I didn't try to figure out what it was."

"Did you, Jones?"

"Yes, Miss Florence. The shots came from the street. A policeman came running up later and said he saw two automobiles on the run. But evidently there wasn't anybody hurt. One has to be careful at night nowadays. There are pretty bad men abroad. Did you enjoy the ride?"

"Very much. But there were spots of blood on the walk near the corner."

"Blood?" Jones caught the back of a chair to steady himself.

"Yes. So some one was hurt. Oh, let's leave this place!" impulsively. "Let us go back to Miss Farlow's. You could find a place in the village, Jones. But if I stay here much longer in this state of unrest I shall lose faith in everything and everybody. Whoever my father's enemies are, they do not lack persistence. They have made two attempts against my liberty, and sooner or later they will succeed. I keep looking over my shoulder all the time. If I hear a noise I jump."

"Miss Florence, if I thought it wise, you should be packed off to Miss Farlow's this minute. But not an hour of the day or night passes without this house being watched. I seldom see anybody about. I can only sense the presence of a watcher. At Miss Farlow's you would be far more like a prisoner than here. I could not accompany you. I am forbidden to desert this house."

"My father's orders?"

Jones signified neither one way nor the other. He merely gazed stolidly at the rug.

"That blood!" She sprang from her chair, horrified. "It was his! He was here last night, and they shot him! O!"

"There, there, Miss Florence! The man was only slightly wounded. He's where they never will look for him." Then Jones continued, as with an effort: "Trust me, Miss Florence. It would not pay to run away. The whole affair would be repeated elsewhere. We might go to the other end of the world, but it would not serve us in the least. It is not a question of escape, but of who shall vanquish the other. There is nothing to do but remain here and fight, fight, fight. We have put four of them in the Tombs, to say nothing of the gunmen. That is what we must do—put them in a safe place, one by one, till we reach the master. Then only may we breathe in safety. But if they watch, so do we. There is never a moment when help is not within reach no matter where you go. So long as you do not deceive me, no real harm shall befall you. Don't cry. Be your father's daughter, as I am his servant."

"I am very unhappy!" And Florence threw her arms around Susan and laid her head upon her friend's shoulder.

"Poor child!" Susan, however, recognized the wisdom of Jones' statements. They were safest here.

The morning rides continued. To the girl, who loved the open, it was glorious fun. Those mad gallops along the roads, the smell of earth and sea, the tingle in the blood, were the second best moments of her day. The first? She invariably blushed when she considered what these first best moments were. He was a brave young man, good to look at, witty, and always cheerful. Why shouldn't she like him? Even Jones liked him—Jones, who didn't seem to like anybody. It did not matter whether he was wise or not; a worldly point of view was farthest from her youthful thoughts. It was her own affair; her own heart.

"Better Be Sensible," He Said.

Five days later, as she and the riding master were cantering along the road, enjoying every bit of it, they heard the beat of hoofs behind. They drew up and turned. A rider was approaching them at a run. It was the head groom. The man stopped his horse in a cloud of dust.

"Sir, the stables are on fire!"

"Fire?"

All the riding master's savings were invested in the stables. The fact that he had solemnly promised never to leave Florence alone, and that he had accepted a generous bonus slipped from his mind at the thought of fire, a terrible word to any horseman. He wheeled and started off at breakneck speed, his head groom clattering behind him.

Florence naturally wondered which of two courses to pursue: follow them, when she would be perfectly helpless to aid them, or continue the ride and save at least one horse from the terror of seeing flames. She chose the latter. But she did not ride with the earlier zest. She felt depressed. She loved horses, and the thought of them dying in those wooden stables was horrifying.

The fire, however, proved to be incipient. But it was plainly incendiary. Some one had set fire to it with a purpose in view. Norton recognized this fact almost as soon as the firemen. He had come this morning with the idea of surprising Florence. He was going out on horseback to join her.

His spine grew suddenly cold. A trap! She had been left alone on the road! He ran over to the garage, secured a car, and went humming out toward the river road. A trap, and only by the sheerest luck had he turned up in time.

Meantime Florence was walking her mount slowly. For once the scenery passed unobserved. She was deeply engrossed with thoughts, some of which were happy and some of which were sad. If only her father could be with her she would be the happiest girl alive.

She was brought out of her revery by the sight of a man staggering along the road ahead of her. Finally he plunged upon his face in the road Like the tender hearted girl she was, she stopped, dismounted, and ran to the fallen man to give him aid She suddenly found her wrists clasped in two hands like iron. The man rose to his feet, smiling evilly. She struggled wildly but futilely.

"Better be sensible," he said "I am stronger than you are. And I don't wish to hurt you. Walk on ahead of me. It will be utterly useless to scream or cry out. You can see for yourself that we are in a deserted part of the road. If you will promise to act sensibly I shan't lay a hand on you. Do you see that hut yonder, near the fork in the road? We'll stop there. Now, march!"

"She dropped her handkerchief, later her bracelet, and finally her crop, in hope that these slight clues might bring her help. She knew that Jones would hear of the fire, and, finding that she had not returned with the riding master, would immediately start out in pursuit. She was beginning to grow very fond of Jones, who never spoke unless spoken to, who was always at hand, faithful and loyal.

From afar came the low rumble of a motor. She wondered if her captor heard it. He did, but his ears tricked him into believing that it came from another direction. Eventually they arrived at the hut, and Florence was forced to enter. The man locked the door and waited outside for the automobile which he was expecting. He was rather dumfounded when he saw that it was coming from the city, not going toward it.

It was Norton. The riderless horse told him enough; the handkerchief and bracelet and crop led him straight for the hut.

The man before the hut realized by this time that he had made a mistake. He attempted to re-enter the hut and prepare to defend it till his companions hove in sight. But Florence, recognizing Norton, held the door with all her strength. The man snarled and turned upon Norton, only to receive a smashing blow on the jaw.

Norton flung open the door. "Into the car, Florence! There's another car coming up the road. Hurry!"

It was not a long chase. The car of the auto bandits, looking like an ordinary taxicab, was a high-power machine, and it gained swiftly on Norton's four-cylinder. The reporter waited grimly.

"Keep your head down!" he warned Florence. "I'm going to take a pot at their tires when they get within range. If I miss I'm afraid we'll have trouble. Under no circumstances attempt to leave this car. Here they come!"

He suddenly leaned back and fired. It was only chance. The manner in which the cars were lurching made a poor target for a marksman even of the first order. Chance directed Norton's first bullet into the right forward tire, which exploded. Going at sixty-odd miles an hour, they could not stop the car in time to avoid fatality. The car careened wildly and plunged down the embankment into the river.

Florence covered her eyes with her hands, and, quite unconscious of what he was doing, Norton put his arms around her.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

A LETTER FROM MR. J. N. SCOTT

Editor Union-Banner—I want to say a few words, and yet the action of the Democratic executive committee was so silly I hate to mention it, but the Press seems to think their action was patriotic I want to ask them a few words.

The committee says that the bill to abolish the Court of County Commissioners was introduced in the legislature because they were afraid the Commissioners would not build roads. Who are they? Is it a few court house bosses? Who gave them the authority to say what the Commissioners should do?

Has it come to the pass that when twelve hundred men elect men to office that a few constituted bosses say to them you must do just as we say or we will have you legislated out of office and have men appointed in your place? This is the position the Democratic Executive Committee takes in that famous resolution.

But they overlooked two bills the same crowd introduced in the legislature and pushed with all their might to get them through. One to take from the Probate certain powers and to have a judge appointed by the Governor, to have two deputy sheriffs appointed to take the work and fees from Sheriff Harris and to have a clerk appointed. Will the Press be so kind as to tell us why these bills were introduced. Was it to make the Commissioners do as two or three bosses said? The Democratic Committee overlooked in that wonderful resolution to tell us about these bills.

What are the facts in the case? The bill to abolish the Commissioners Court and take from the next Judge of Probate certain powers and to appoint two deputy sheriffs and a clerk of said court was introduced by Mr. Wallace the Democratic Senator from this district at the request of the democratic leader of this county, and he went down to push the bills and in the presence of a large number of citizens of this county proceeded to tell the legislature why the few bosses from Chilton wanted the Commissioners court abolished, and why they wanted a new court established and two deputy sheriffs appointed.

The chairman of the Democratic Executive com. was down together with several other Democratic bosses to see that the bills were passed, but they got a cold shoulder.

Lets see the Democratic executive committee met on Saturday and the legislature had only three more working days and the bills could not have been passed under no condition at thio time because it takes six days to pass any bill and there were only three days left.

I hope the Press will tell the people of Chilton county how the bills could have been passed after the committee met.

Dont you know that when the bills were asked to be withdrawn it was so late they could not be passed?

Please tell us who it was that had authority to say to the Commissioners if you do not do certain things we will abolish your court?

I ask the people of this county if a few bosses had full control of this county where would your liberties be? My God where are we drifting when a few constitute themselves the authority to say to men elected by over five hundred majority if you do not do as we say we will abolish your court and have the Governor appoint men in your place.

Is this the reason our county is paying three prices for sand on the road? Is this the reason the county is hauling sand sixteen miles? Is this the reason our county is being bankrupted? Is this the reason the voice of the people is not heard?

The Czar of Russia or the Emperor of Germany never ruled their people with an iron rod as much as the people of this county are being ruled today.

I ask the people is there no remedy? Can't this extravagence be stopped? It is an awful thing to see our county pay the price it is for sand to put on a road.

Respectfully,
J. N. Scott.

EVERGREEN NEWS

We have had a nice rain. It did not catch much cotton in the field for it is just about one-third of a crop. We have just any amount of boll weevils and we dont know just what the result will be another year with cotton. I think it will be just a complete failure. Last week I walked over several cotton crops in Elmore county, the boll weevil has done more damage there than they have done in Chilton; they struck earlier and got nearly all of the bottom crop, that is all we have is just a part of a bottom crop.

Next Monday the delegates leaves for the association at Plantersville. E. B. Prickett and A. A. Beard are our messengers to the association.

NEWS OF THORSBY

The many friends of Mr. M. J. Barrett of Thorsby, owner of a model dairy and breeder of registered Jersey cattle, will regret to learn that he has sustained quite serious injuries in a mix-up with the sire of his herd. Owing to the arrival of help armed with a pitchfork a seperation was effected and Mr. Barrette escaped with only broken ribs and severe bruises which will confine him to the house for some time.

Mr. John L. Winslow, who for several years was known as the Sweet Potato man of Thorsby, but who for the past four years has been in charge of the Agricultural Department and Demonstration work of Piedmont College at Demorest, Georgia, visited Thorsby for a few days in search of a suitable location for carrying on much more extensively a business he has successfully conducted in connection with his demonstration work, in the growing of sweet potato plants for the market. He stated before he left that he had found at Thorsby a place admirably adapted to his business and would probably locate here in the near future. A man of Mr. Winslow's attainments and experience in Agricultural matters is a valuable acquisition to any farming community.

Mr. J. P. Busenlehur of Birmingham has recently purcoased the home of C. E. Northup and opened up the Thorsby bakery with a full line of goods usually produced by a first class bakery, in charge of a man thoroughly familiar with the various branches of the business.

A matter of interest to the farmers of Chilton county, and other good citizens is the building of the Thorsby Flour and Feed Mill by Mr. F. E. Gronquist a man thoroughly conversant with the milling business through many years of actual experience in large mills Our farmers should recognize the value of such an enterptise and plant wheat and other grains liberally this fall.

Another desirable industry recently started in Thorsby is the manufacture of Confection Specialties by Mr. S. E. Norton, who for several years has been developing new and better methods of growing Spanish Peanuts, which he uses in a variety of products in connection with Candy and Popcorn. A notable feature of Mr. Norton's business is the fact that nearly all the labor emsloyed in his establishment are young men and women students at Thorsby Institute who by this means are enabled to earn a good portion of their school expenses.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

The Clanton Press defends the action of the last Legislature and by so doing disregards the people.

Every time Gov. Henderson takes up his pen he hits a hard blow against the action of the past Legislature.

The Press is gloating over 12 cents cotton but last year when cotton was below zero, the democratic administration had nothing to do with the price of cotton. Now Woodrow done it.

Gov. Henderson has used his veto again on some of the smart measures passed by the last Legislature in killing the circuit redistricting bill and the Governor says he saves the State $44,800 a year which this crowd ruthlessly gave away.

Last year when cotton was five and six cents per pound the democratic administration advocates said the administration had nothing to do with the price at all. Now cotton is 11 1-2 cents per pound and the Press says the democratic administration "is the cause of it all." Can the Press tell the people why just last year the administration had nothing to do with the price of cotton and this year it has—the same President holds the reigns.

"From the editorial of The Union-Banner last week, it is to be concluded that it would advocate feeding prisoners on the same diet as is given to aged women in a charity hospital. I suppose you do. Do you?"—Clanton Press

The Union-Banner believes the prisoners who work hard on the State Farms and in the Coal Mines should receive good wholesome food and at the present democratic high prices we did not feel that the Sheriff of the State would receive fair compensation at 20 cents per day for buying grub and feeding the prisoners.

The Clanton Press says: "The farmer is getting his just dues under the Wilson administration."

How does this strike the farmers and laboring people of this country. Is this not the real feeling of the democratic party towards the laboring people. Everybody knows the farmer and the daily workmen are the ones who have suffered from this unprecedented panic yet, the Press says they are receiving their just dues. We do not believe that the many honest working men of this country who have been deprived of making a living for their families feel that they have received their just dues under the present state of affairs.

"The Democratic Executive Committee's action is a just recognition of the right of the people to pass upon all questions of local legislation, the Union-Banner to the contrary notwithstanding."—Clanton Press.

Will the Press tell us where the rights of the people come in the action of the democratic ex-committee of a few days ago. What did the people have to do with the transaction. Did the people foster and champion the rights of those bills referred to by the committee and will the Press be kind enough to tell the people what become of the bill which, if it had become a law, would have disfranchised every citizen in the county. We note that the distinguished gentlemen is as mum as an oyster on that question."

The Clanton Press says: "The Legislature worked six days in a week either on divided Committee work or on work of the Committee of the whole."

The Press is one of the very few democratic papers in the state which is making or has made any attempt to defend this conglomeration called the Legislature, which was pursuaded to adjourn a few days ago. The people know that the Legislature's own members said that they were there only whittling away their time and spending the peoples money. We were anxious to see if the Clanton Press sanctioned such imposition on the tax payers and were surprised that it undertakes to defend these fellows before the people. The Press doubtless shuts its eyes to the vetoes and condemnations of Governor Henderson. It doubtless shuts its eyes to the $150,000 expenses incurred on the tax payers when all other Legislatures only cost $50,000. It shuts its eyes to the fact that some of its own members hated to take the peoples money without giving value received, etc. In fact the Press may just shut its eyes and back its ears and defy the people, but we believe it will be a long time before it can convince some of its own party along that line.

"TELL THEM TO SEE ME," HE SAYS

If Anybody Wants to Know What I Think of Tanlac

If anybody wants to know what I think of Tanlac, just tell them to write me or see me in person—I am right here at home," said W. H. Andison, a well-to-do Madison county farmer, residing near Jackson, Tenn. Continuing, Mr. Adison said:

"I suffered for years with chronic stomach trouble. I could not eat anything without great discomfort. I had sour stomach and heart burn almost continually. Gas would form which would often make my suffering intense, and these spells would sometimes last two, three and four days.

"I decided to take Tanlac, which is talked of so much now, and after taking the first bottle, I can truthfully say that I have been greatly benefited. My general condition has been greatly improved, I can eat anything I wish. I feel like a new man. I have been made over again.

"I expect to continue this treatment until I have taken several bottles. I do not see why anyboby wants to suffer for this trouble when they can get this medicine for it will certainly help anyone suffering as I was, and it does it right now."

(Signed) W. H. Andison,
R. F D No. 2, Mercer, Tenn

The above statement was made by Mr. Andison in person, to Mr. E. W. Hughes, managing partner of the O. J. Nance Drug Co., Jackson, Tenn, the leading druggists in that section of the state, and appeared in a recent issue of the Jackson Sun. Referring to the remarkable demand for Tanlac in aceson, Mr. Hughes writes as follows:

"Tanlac continues to give the best of satisfaction, and the demand for it is constantly increasing. I thought we reached the limit when we sold 50 bottles of it on last Saturday but that record could have been broken today if we had only had the goods. I feel safe in saying that our sales today would have reached 60 bottles, but we only had 48 bottles on hand, and they were sold out before 4 o'clock.

"Although we have only had the agency for a few weeks, we have already sold over 700 bottles. If the demand for Tanlac continues at the present rate, we will soon be averaging over a 1000 bottles a month."

What is true of Jackson, is true of practically every other city and town in the state."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. Adv.

MONEY TALKS

$20,000.00 WORTH OF NEW GOODS RECEIVED

This is the time of year when money talks at this store. We have the goods and we want to get rid of them, and your money counts here to-day more than it ever did before. It makes no difference what you want, your money will get it at a mighty low price.

How about a suit of clothes at a very low price—ridiculously low, in fact? We have a number of suits on hand which must go. Come in and let us fit you, and we will fit the price as well as you.

A pair of shoes are always useful—a necessity. We are more than pleased with the grades we are selling this year. We have sold a great many shoes to the people of this community, but never before have we been so fortunate in our selections. They combine all the elements of appearance, durability, comfort, and the price remains the same as for ordinary shoes.

Ladies will find our shelves loaded with everything they may wish—dress goods, fancy goods, and many other things—and they are just what the feminine heart does crave. We are especially prepared to cater to your wants.

Our grocery department is complete. We are careful what we buy. We get the best. We do not try to sell a customer something we would not use on our own table. We buy very closely, and we apply the same principle in selling.

It is a certainty you cannot do better elsewhere, no matter where you go or from whom you buy. It is extremely doubtful if you can do anything like as well. Small profits and many sales is our rule.

Momentous Future In Woman's Mind

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought. There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve all strain on nerves, cords, ligaments and all parts involved. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand naturally. And at the same time they are invigorated by the absence of harassing pains so apt to distress the mind. Whatever will add to the comfort of the expectant mother is a great and helpful influence since a calm and peaceful period must have a wonderfully beneficial impress upon the coming child. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" of any druggist and you will realize why so many women declare it to be the most helpful remedy they know of. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 702 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a splendid book of great interest and value to every expectant mother.

Among the letters of interest in this book one says, in part, "Seven years ago I suffered from Wednesday to Saturday and had to have instruments. This time I was sick only three hours. I want to tell all that I can not praise 'Mother's Friend' high enough for the good it did me, as I had an easy time and the baby was perfect. I will always speak a good word for it."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Wiles of a Woman.

After the affair of the auto bandits—three of whom were killed—a lull followed. If you're a sailor you know what kind of a lull I mean—blue-black clouds down the southwest horizon, the water crinkly, the booms wabbling. Suddenly a series of "accidents" began to happen to Norton. At first he did not give the matter much thought. The safe which fell almost at his feet and crashed through the sidewalk merely induced him to believe he was lucky. At another time an automobile came furiously around a corner while he was crossing the street, and only amazing agility saved him from bodily hurt. The car was out of sight when he thought to recall the number.

Then came the jolt in the subway. Only a desperate grab by one of the guards saved him from being crushed to death. Even then he thought nothing. But when a new box of cigarettes arrived and he tried one and found it strangely perfumed, and, upon further analysis, found it to contain a Javanese narcotic, a slow but sure death, he became wide awake enough. They were after him. He began to walk carefully, to keep in public places as often as he possibly could.

He was not really afraid of death, but he did abhor the thought of its coming up from behind. Except for the cigarettes they were all "accidents;" he could not have proved anything before a jury of his intimate friends.

He never entered an elevator without scrupulous care. He never passed under coverings over the sidewalks where construction was going on. Still, careful as he was, death confronted him once more. It was his habit to have his coffee and rolls—he rarely ate anything more for his breakfast—set down outside his door every morning. The coffee, being in a silver thermos bottle, kept its heat for hours. When he took the stopper out and poured forth a cup it looked oddly black, discolored. It is quite probable that had there been no series of "accidents" he would have drunk a cup—and died in mortal agony. It contained bichloride of mercury.

Very quietly he set about to make inquiries. This was really becoming serious. In the kitchens downstairs nothing could be learned. The maid had set the thermos bottle before the door at 10:30. Norton had opened the door at 1:30—three hours after. The outlook was not the cheerfulest. He knew perfectly well why all these things "happened;" he had interfered with the plans of the scoundrels who were making every possible move to kidnap Florence Hargreave.

One afternoon he paid Florence a visit. Of course he told her nothing. They had become secretly engaged the day after he had rescued her from the auto bandits. They were secretly engaged because Florence wanted it so. For once Jones suspected nothing. Why should he? He had troubles enough. As a matter of fact, Norton was afraid of him in the same sense as a boy is afraid of a policeman.

But on this day, when the time came, he accosted the butler and drew him into the pantry.

"Jones, they are after me now."

"You? Explain."

Norton briefly recounted the deliberate attempts against his life.

"You see, I'm not liar enough to say that I'm not worried. I am, devilishly worried. I'm not worth any ransom. I'm in the way, and they seem determined to put me out of it."

"To any other man I would say travel. But to you I say when you leave your rooms don't go where you first thought you would—that is, some usual haunt. They'll be everywhere, near your restaurants, your clubs, your office. You're a methodical young man; become erratic. Keep away from here for at least three days, but always call me up by telephone some time during the day. Never under any circumstance, unless I send for you, come here at night. Only one man now watches the house during the day, but five are prowling around after dark. They might have instructions to shoot you on sight. I can't spare you just at present, Mr. Norton. You've been a godsend; and if it seems that sometimes I did not trust you fully it was because I did not care to drag you in too deep."

Deep? Norton thought of Florence and smiled inwardly. Could anybody be in deeper than he was? Once it was on the tip of his tongue to confess his love for Florence, but the gravity of Jones' countenance was an obstacle to such move; it did not invite it.

To be sure, Jones had no real authority to say what Florence should or should not do with her heart. Still, from all points of view, it was better to keep the affair under the rose till there came a more propitious hour in which to make the disclosure.

Love, in the midst of all these alarms! Sharp, desperate rogues on one side, millions on the other, and yet love could enter the scene serenely, like an actor who had missed his cue and came on too soon.

Oddly enough, there was no real love-making such as you often read about. A pressure of the hand, a glance from the eye, there was seldom anything more. Only once—that memorable day on the river road—had he kissed her. No word of love had been spoken on either side. In that wild moment all conventionalities had disappeared like smoke in the wind. There had been neither past nor future, only the present in which they knew that they loved. With her he was happy, for he had no time to plan over the future. Away from her he saw the inevitable barriers providing against the marriage between a poor young man and a very rich young woman. A man who has any respect for himself wants always to be on equal terms with his wife. It's the way this peculiar organization called society has written down its rules. Doubtless a relic of the stone age, when Ab went out with his club to seek a wife and drag her by the hair to his den, there to care for her and to guard her with his life's blood. It is one of the few primitive sensations that remain to us, this wanting the female dependent upon the male. Perhaps this accounts for man's lack of interest on the suffragette question.

Only Susan suspected the true state of affairs, being a woman. Having had no real romance herself, she delighted in having a second-hand one, as you might say. She intercepted many a glance and pretended not to see the stolen hand pressures. The wedding was already full drawn in her mind's eye. These two young people should be married at Susan Farlow's when the roses were climbing up the sides of the house and the young robins were boldly trying their fuzzy wings. It struck her as rather strange, but she could not conjure up (at this wedding) more than two men besides the minister, the bridegroom, and the butler.

By forsaking his accustomed haunts, under the advice of Jones, the hidden warfare ceased temporarily. You can't very well kill a man when you don't know where to find him. He ate his breakfasts haphazardly, now here, now there. He received most of his assignments by telephone and wrote his stories and articles in his club, in the writing rooms of hotels, and invariably dispatched them to the office by messenger. The managing editor wanted to know what all this meant; but Norton declined to tell him.

It irked him to be forced to rearrange his daily life—his habits. It was a revolution against his ease, for he loved ease when he was not at work. He had the sensation of having been suddenly robbed of his home, of having been cast out into the streets. And on top of all this he had to go and fall in love!

There was no longer a shadow opposite the apartments of the Princess Perigoff. Braine came and went nightly without discovering any one. This rather worried him. It gave him the impression that the shadow had found out what he had been seeking and no longer needed to watch the coming and going of either himself or the Countess Perigoff.

"Olga, it looks as if we were at the end of our rope," he said discouragedly. "We have failed in all attempts so far. The devil watches over that girl."

"Or God," replied the countess gloomily. "In nearly every instance their success has been due to chance. Somehow I'm convinced that we began wrong. We should have let Hargreav escape quietly, followed him, and made him fast when the right opportunity came. After a month or so his vigilance would have relaxed; he would have arrived at the belief that he had eluded us."

"Indeed!" ironically. "He wasn't vigilant all these years in which he did elude us. How about the child he never sought but guarded? Vigilance! He never was anything else all these seventeen years. The truth is, success has developed a coarseness in our methods. And now it is too late for finesse. We have tried every device we can think of; and there they are—the girl free, Norton unharmed, and the father as secure in his retreat as though he wore an invisible cloak. My head aches. I have ceased to be inventive."

"The two are in love with each other."

"Are you sure of that?"

"I have my eyes. But I begin to wonder."

"About what?"

"Whether or not Jones suspects me and is giving me rope to hang myself with. Not once have the police been called in and told what has really happened. They are totally at sea. And what has become of the man over the way?"

"By the Lord Harry!" exclaimed Braine, clapping his hands. "I believe I've solved that. We shot a man coming out of Hargreave's. Since then there's been no one across the way. One and the same man!"

"But that knowledge doesn't get us anywhere."

"No. You say they are in love?"

"Secretly. I don't believe the butler has an inkling of it. It is possible, however, that Susan has caught the trend of affairs. But, being rather romantic, she will in no wise interfere."

Braine smoked in silence. Presently a smile twisted his lips.

"You have thought of something?" she asked.

"You might try it," he said. "They have accepted your friendship; whether with ulterior purpose remains to be learned. She has been to your apartments two or three times to tea and always got home safely."

"No," she said determinedly. "Nothing shall happen here. I will not take the risk."

"Wait till I'm through. Break up the romance in such a way that the girl will bar Norton from the house. That's what we've been aiming at; to get rid of that meddling reporter. We've tried poisons. Try your kind."

"What do you mean?"

"Lies."

"Ah! I understand. You want me to win him away from her. It cannot be done."

"Pshaw! You have a bag full of tricks. You can easily manage to put him into an equivocal position out of which he cannot possibly squirm so far as the girl is concerned. A little melodrama, arranged for the benefit of Florence. Fall into Norton's arms at the right moment, or something like that."

"I suppose I could. But if I failed . . ."

"You're too damnably clever to fail in your own particular work. Something has got to be done to keep those two apart. I've often thought of raiding the house boldly and carrying off the whole family, Susan and all. But a wholesale affair like that would be too noisy. Think it over, Olga; we have gone too far to back down now. There's always Russia; and while I'm the boss over here they never cease to watch me. They'll make me answer for a failure like this."

She eyed him speculatively. "You have money."

"O, the money doesn't matter. It's the game. It's the game of playing fast and loose with society, of pilfering with it with one hand and making it kow-tow with the other. It's the sport of the thing. What was your thought?"

"We could go away together, to South America."

"And tire of each other within a month," he retorted shrewdly. "No; we are in the same boat. We could not live but for this never ending excitement. And, more than that, we never could get far enough away from the long arm of the First Ten. We'll have to stick it out here. Can't you see?"

"Yes, I can see."

But in her heart she knew that she would have lived in a hut with this man till the end of her days. She abhorred the life, though she never, by the slighest word, let him become aware of it. There was always that abiding fear that at the first sign of weakness he would desert her. And she was wise in her deductions. Braine was loyal to her because she held his interest. Once that failed, he would be off and away.

The next afternoon the countess, having matured her plans against the happiness of the young girl who trusted her, drew up before the Hargreave place and alighted. Her welcome was the same as ever, and this strengthened her confidence.

The countess was always gesticulating. Her hands fluttered to emphasize her words. And the beautiful diamond solitaire caught the girl's eye. She seized the hand. Having an affair of her own, it was natural that she should be interested in that of her friend.

"I never saw that ring before."

"A gift of yesterday." The countess assumed a shy air which would have deceived St. Anthony. She twisted the ring on her finger.

"Tell me!" cried Florence. "You are engaged?"

"Mercy, no!"

"Is he rich?"

"No. Money should not matter when your heart is involved."

As this thought was in accord with her own, Florence nodded her head sagely.

"It is nothing serious. Just a fancy I shall never marry again. Men are gay deceivers; they always have been and always will be. Perhaps I'm a bit wicked; but I rather like to prove my theory that all men are weak. If I had a daughter I'd rather have her be an old man's darling than a young man's drudge. I distrust every man I know. I came to ask you and Susan to go to the opera with me tonight. You will come to my apartments first. You will come?"

A Little Melodrama Arranged for the Benefit of Florence.

"To be sure we will!"

"Simple little fool!" thought the Russian on the way home. "She shall see."

"I believe the countess is engaged to be married," said Florence to Jones.

"Indeed, miss?"

"Yes. I couldn't get anything definite out of her, but she had a beautiful ring on her finger. She wants Susan and me to go to the opera with her tonight. Will that be all right?"

Jones gazed abstractedly at the rug. Whenever a problem bothered him he seemed to find the solution in the delicate patterns of the Persian rugs. Finally he nodded. "I see no reason why you should not go. Only, watch out."

"Jones, there is one thing that will make me brave and happy. Will you tell me if you are in direct communication with my father?"

"Yes, Miss Florence," he answered promptly. "But do not breathe this to a single soul, neither Susan nor Norton."

"I promise that. But, ah! hasten the day when he can come to me without fear."

"That is my wish also."

"You need not call me miss. Why should you?"

"It might not be wise to have any one hear me call you thus familiarly," he objected gravely.

"Please yourself about that. Now I must telephone Jim."

"Jim?" the butler murmured.

He caught the word which was not intended for his ears. But for once Jones had been startled out of himself.

"Is it wrong for me to call Mr. Norton Jim?" she asked with a bit of banter.

"It is not considered quite the proper thing, Miss Florence, to call a young man by his first name unless you are engaged to marry him, or grew up with him from childhood."

"Well, supposing I were engaged to him?" haughtily.

"That would be a very grave affair. What have you to prove that he may not wish to marry you for your money?"

"Why, Jones, you know that I haven't a penny in the world I can call my own! There is nothing to prove, except your word, that I am Stanley Hargreave's daughter."

"No, there is nothing to prove that you are his daughter. But hasn't it ever occurred to you that there might be a purpose back of this? Might it not be of inestimable value that your father's enemies should be left in doubt? Might it not be a means of holding them on the leash? There is proof, ample proof, my child; and when the time comes these will be shown you. But meantime put all thought of marrying Mr. Norton out of your mind."

"That I refuse to do," quietly. "I am at least mistress of my heart; and no one shall dictate to me whom I shall or shall not marry. I love Mr. Norton and he loves me, knowing that I may not be an heiress after all. And some day I shall marry him."

Jones bowed. This seemed to appear final to him, and nothing more was to be said.

Norton did not return to his rooms till seven. He found the telephone call and also a note in a handwriting unfamiliar. He tore off the envelope and found the contents to be from the Countess Perigoff.

"Call at eight tonight," he read. "I have an important news story for you. Tell no one, as I cannot be involved in the case. Cordially, Olga, Countess Perigoff."

Humph! Norton twiddled the note in his fingers and at length rolled it into a ball and threw it into the waste basket. He, too, made a mistake; he should have kept that note. He dressed, dined, and hurried off to the apartments of the countess.

He arrived ten minutes before Florence and Susan.

And Jones did some rapid telephoning.

"How long, how long!" the butler murmured. How long would this strange combat last? The strain was terrible. He slept but little during the nights, for his ears were always waiting for sounds. He had cast the chest into the sea, and it would take a dozen expert divers to locate it. And now, atop of all these worries, the child must fall in love with the first comer! It was heartbreaking. Norton, so far as he had learned, was cool and brave, honest and reliable in a pinch; but as the husband of Stanley Hargreave's daughter, that was altogether a different matter. And he must devise some means of putting a stop to it, but—

But he was saved that trouble.

Mongoose and cobra, that was the game being played; the cunning of the one against the deadly venom of the other. If he forced matters he would only lay himself open to the strike of the snake. He must have patience. Gradually they were breaking the organization, lopping off a branch here and there, but the peace of the future depended upon getting a grip on the spine of the cobra himself.

The trick was simple. The countess had news; trust her for that. She exhibited a cablegram, dated at Gibraltar, in which the British authorities stated definitely that no such a person as William Orts, aviator, had arrived at Gibraltar. And then, as he rose, she rose also and gently precipitated herself into his arms, just at the moment Florence appeared in the doorway.

Very simple, indeed. When a woman falls toward a man there is nothing for him to do but extend his arms to prevent her from falling. Outwardly, however, to the eye which saw only the picture and comprehended not the cause, it had all the hallmarks of an affectionate embrace.

Florence stood perfectly still for a moment, then turned away.

"I beg your pardon," said the countess, "but a sudden fainting spell seize me. My heart is a bit weak."

"Don't mention it," replied the gallant Norton. He was as innocent as a babe as to what had really taken place.

Florence went back home. She wrote a brief note to Norton and inclosed the ring which she had secretly worn attached to a little chain around her neck.

When Norton came the next day she refused to see him. It was all over. She never wished to see him again.

"He says there has been some cruel mistake," said Jones.

"I saw him with the countess in his arms. I do not see any cruel mistake in that. I saw him. Tell him so. And add that I never wish to see him again."

Then she ran swiftly to her room, where she broke down and cried bitterly and would not be comforted by Susan.

"In heaven's name, what has happened?" demanded the frantic lover, "what has happened?"

The comedy of the whole affair lay in the fact that neither of the two suspected the countess, who consoled them both.

Yes; S. S. S. Is Purely Vegetable Nature's Safe Blood Treatment

Known for 50 Years As the Best Remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Diseases.

Scientists have discovered that the forest and the field, are abundantly supplied with vegetation of various kinds, that furnish the ingredients for making a remedy, for practically every ill and ailment of mankind. Medicines made from roots, herbs, and barks which Nature has placed at the disposal of man, are better than strong mineral mixtures and concoctions. Mineral medicines work dangerously on the delicate parts of the system, especially the stomach and bowels, by eating out the lining membrane, producing chronic dyspepsia and often entirely ruining the health.

S. S. S. is guaranteed to be a purely vegetable remedy. It is made entirely of gentle-acting, healing, purifying roots, herbs and barks, possessing properties that build up all parts of the system, in addition to removing all impurities and poisons from the blood. S. S. S. is a safe treatment for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all disorders of the blood. It cleanses the entire system and it's permanent. Get S. S. S. at any drug store. S. S. S. is a standard remedy recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case write to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta. Ga.

UNION SPRINGS

The Educational Palley here on the 2nd. inst. was a fine success from every view point. Dinner was fine, attendance good. Addresses by Supt. Bean and Profs. Herbert, Johnson and McDonald were among the finest we ever heard. The great underlying thought in the trend of their addresses all pointed unmistakably to man's uplift and perfect happiness in the future, so beautifully portrayed in the plan of the ages, for the consumation of which, man is being prepared in Education, in social costums, agriculture, churchianity and all other relations of life. Some years ago such addresses were not dreamed of and such progressive thoughts would have been violently opposed even from the Pul Pit. But people are ripening for great things temporally and spiritually the light is shining. All honor to the pioneers of progress and defenders of truth Educationally, Religiously and other wise, they are daily seeing the fruition of their hope. Greater heights will yet be ascended along those lines. Even the awful Eastern war has been conducive to good along Prohibition lines. Those little narrow contracted ideas must yield to the Broadmindness of the good and great.

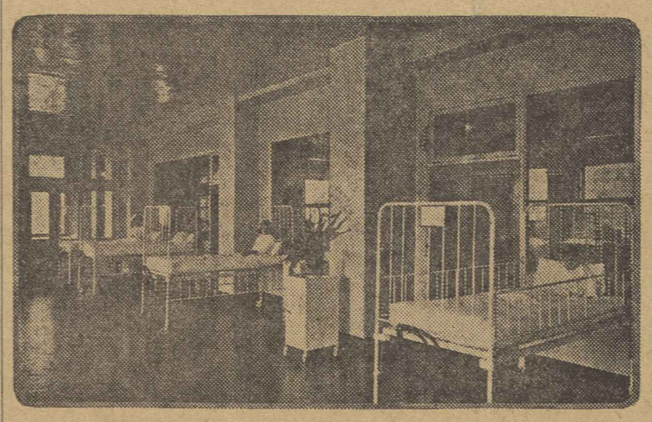
THE WEST NOW HAS A WORLD MEDICAL CENTER

Instructors, Buildings and Equipment of Washington University Medical School and Affiliated Hospitals Unsurpassed in the East.



CORNER OF A WARD IN THE NEW BUILDING OF THE ST. LOUIS CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, AFFILIATED WITH WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY.

The West at last has become, in the fullest sense, the equal of the East in the teaching of medicine. What is regarded by many critics as the best balanced group of medical buildings in the world has risen at St. Louis. The great work is finished, with the exception of the students' dormitory, on Forest Park boulevard, due to be ready for occupancy in December, and the Nurses' Home, the exterior brick work on which already is about complete, although supplementary buildings may be erected later on.

Backed by millions of dollars for buildings and equipment and endowments totaling millions of dollars more, all given by loyal friends of Washington University, who recognized an opportunity to render humanity a great, enduring service and at the same time advance that university to the front rank of the world's institutions of learning, the Corporation of Washington University wisely began its work in beha. of a greater medical school by acquiring not buildings but men.

One of America's Big Three.

The buildings, which, with their modern equipment and the distinguished medical scientists presiding over them, have lifted the Washington University Medical School into a class the only other American members of which, strictly speaking, are the Johns Hopkins Medical School and the Harvard Medical School, both of the East, were planned in consultation with a group of the world's foremost authorities on medicine and allied sciences.

These same great men, whom the mighty school of medicine that has sprung up in the West was so fortunate as to secure as members of its faculty, also decided, of course, what should and should not constitute the equipment of these buildings. Long before the completion of the buildings, visitors began arriving in St. Louis for the sole purpose of inspecting this equipment, which is said to be the most nearly perfect of any in existence.

St. Louis Becomes a World Center.

The metropolis of the American Southwest thus takes its place as a world center of that noblest, perhaps, of all forms of education—the education that has for its chief purposes the saving of human life and the lessening of human suffering.

A general statement issued by the Medical School in connection with the completion of the buildings and including a brief history of the school is in part as follows:

The Medical Department of Washington University, known since 1909 as the Washington University Medical School, continues the work of the St. Louis Medical College and the Missouri Medical College, the two oldest medical schools west of the Mississippi River.

The Medical Department of Kemper College of St. Louis was organized in 1840. In 1845 it became the Medical Department of the University of the State of Missouri. By change of its charter in 1855, it was made an independent institution known as the Missouri Medical College. The work of the School was discontinued in 1862, but resumed in 1865, at the end of the Civil War.

The Medical Department of St. Louis University, founded in 1842, was chartered as an independent institution in 1855 under the name of the St. Louis Medical College.

The Medical Department of Washington University was created by the corporation in 1891, when the St. Louis Medical College became a part of the Washington University. In 1899 the Missouri Medical College was merged with this department.

Graduates of the St. Louis Medical College number 2,125; of the Missouri Medical College, 2,836; and of the Medical Department of Washington University, 704.

In 1910 the corporation of the University, appreciating the value of the service which a medical school can give to the community, with the co-operation of the Medical Faculty, reorganized the school in all departments and appointed heads of departments and instructors in anatomy, physiology, biological chemistry, pathology, preventive medicine, medicine, surgery, and pediatrics, who devote themselves to teaching and research, and associated with this staff clinical instructors chosen from the medical profession of St. Louis. These changes were made with the aid of funds donated by philanthropic citizens of St. Louis.

An affiliation has been established between the Barnes Hospital and the St. Louis Children's Hospital and Washington University, by which the University agrees to provide the medical staffs of the hospitals, and the hospitals agree to permit the University to use the hospitals for purposes of teaching and research. These hospitals have erected buildings on Kingshighway, overlooking Forest Park, which became available for use in the autumn of 1914. Adjacent to the hospitals buildings, large, thoroughly equipped laboratories have just been completed. With this equipment and with the use of other hospitals in the city, the teaching staff of the University will be able to give laboratory and clinical instruction, and to conduct and direct research in all branches of medicine.

School Occupies Three Buildings.

The Medical School occupies three buildings, in which the greater part of the work of the school is conducted. It has exclusive use of the teaching privileges of three hospitals, readily accessible from the Medical School, and has clinical privileges in the various City Institutions.

On November 1, 1914, Washington University, at the invitation of the authorities of the City Hospital, assumed control and became responsible for the medical care of one-third of the patients in the City and Infectious Hospitals, and agreed further to render such professional service in the other municipal institutions as the Hospital Commissioner might request.

The relationship of the hospitals and the Medical School, the changing conditions in the medical world calling for such affiliations and the advantages of such affiliations to the sick as well as to society at large, were explained by Robert S. Brookings, president of the Corporation of Washington University, on the occasion of the dedication of Barnes Hospital, as follows:

Germ Theory Revolutionizes Medicine.

The recent development of the germ theory of disease has brought medicine for the first time into the realm of what are known as the exact sciences, and has placed enormous emphasis on the laboratory service, both in diagnosis and treatment. Coupled with this is the great advance made in the use of apparatus, such as you will find in the X-ray department, the department of metabolism, the heart station and other departments of the hospital.

While there are certain simple laboratory tests which can be made by practically any young graduate student of modern medicine, the maximum laboratory service can only be secured through such extensive laboratories and elaborate staffs as are maintained by the highest class medical schools where the service is given to research and hospital work, as well as to teaching.

Then, again, the training of nurses must necessarily keep pace with the advance in medicine and the development of hospital social service work, so that the university or medical school for nurses becomes an important factor in such training.

In summing up the entire situation, we find that such successful and well-known hospitals as Johns Hopkins of Baltimore, the Massachusetts General of Boston, and the Presbyterian Hospital of New York, have adopted practically the same affiliation or association with some high-class medical school as exists today between the Washington University Medical School and the Barnes Hospital, which provides that the medical school train the nurses, and through the nomination of the hospital staff assume all responsibility for the care of the sick. It uses the patients in the wards for teaching and research purposes in such manner as proves not only of enormous benefit to the public in the training of its doctors and in adding through research, to the sum of the world's knowledge of medicine, but also unquestionably of the greatest advantage to the patient.

With an intimate, personal knowledge of medical schools and hospitals on both sides of the water, I feel justified in saying that the Barnes Hospital and the Washington University Medical School, taken in their entirety—buildings, equipment and scientific staffs—offer facilities for research, the teaching of medicine and the diagnosis and treatment of disease unsurpassed in this or any other country.

REPORT OF MRS. JONES SECRETARY CIVIC CLUB

Covering the Period Extending From October 1914 to October 1915.

In making this my first annual report to the officers and members of the Civic Improvement Club I wish to announce in the beginning that it gives me very great pleasure and pride to say that the work has progressed and expanded notwithstanding the financial depression and many difficulties which we have had to encounter. Our funds have been very meagre indeed, but our encouragement from many sources, has been so wonderful that we have pushed on, and now it is generally believed that our organization is a permanent affair. We have had the Skeptical and the Interested to deal with, in another year we hope to have the Skeptical as members and the Interested will interest others and the work will continue to grow.

We wish to thank each and every one for their generous help but especially do we wish to thank Mr. Clyde Davis for the manifold courtesy extended us through his paper. He has cooperated with us throughout the entire year and offered us many helpful suggestions. We wish also to thank Mr. Bird for his courtesy. It is almost impossito make a comprehension report of all the work we have accomplished. Many things are too small to be recorded, yet show up to the benefit of the town. In the beginning of last year we were over whelmed with the amount of work to be done, and no means for the carrying on of same except the 10 cents monthly dues of our seventy five members.

The first work of importance was the school house which later burned. Over $30.00 was spent on improvement. A correct estimate cannot be made as only a small amount of that was actual cash, spent on having desks, windows and floors scrubbed. The rest such as three garbage cans at $3.50 each, window shades for the building, flowers, grass and several loads of manure for the yards were donations. Some of the ladies lent their hired help and others gave their own assistance, Prof. Rogers and his boys kindly lent their efforts.

Another matter of importance is the Cemetery, which was in a deplorable condition. The Treasurer's report will show the amount here spent, which as in the case of the school cannot be really estimated because the members lent their own efforts to save funds. Some help was hired; grave markers were purchased; $3.50 donated for paint, the sunken graves were mounded, and dead trees removed, with all other litter and rubbish. Disbursements are made at intervals to keep walk cleaned.

Among the many minor details not noticable to the casual observer, which are due to the efforts of the Civic, are a number of vacant lots which with other clean up work were made sanitary and in some instances beautified, the Kicker property stood as a "Spot Beautiful" during the Summer. Back alleys were cleaned, hitching grounds were moved to remote streets, trees trimmed and dead ones removed and a Highway sign erected to aid the tourist.

Every charity call responded to with donations from our members. Expenses paid for noted Speakers to deliver addresses on Illiteracy Day. Also a Speaker secured for Americanization Day.

Letter witten to Medical Board requesting the appointment of City Health Officr. Literature gotten out at club's expense for clean up campaign, and many such details, some still unfinished, but we are in anticipation of their completion in the near future.

Our members tendered a Domestic Science Shower to the High School, opening week, and realized a neat little line of articles suitable to that Department, a list of which will be published later. This shower was made possible by the gracious ladies who responded, though the three burner oil stove, with two ovens was effected by the generosity of the men whose names have been published, and by the courtesy of Mr. Ruffin making such a close margin for the benefit of the School.

A Debate was given for the benefit of the Grammar School and $30.00 realized, together with $5.00 voted from the Treasurer making the total turned over to the School Board $35.00. Another play for the same cause is on foot. We also hope to obtain a play ground for the children.

Our Club became affiliated in May, thereby making it the first Federated Club in the city, bringing the Club women of Clanton in touch with all the Club life of the state.

Let our Slogan for another year be better Schools, better conditions and a better Town, which will make for us a more solid South and a better nation. All join us.

Following report shows the actual figures of the Secretary.

Total dues collected $70.85.
Total paid out $70.85.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT

There will be a meeting of the High School Improvement Association in the library of the high school building on next Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 19th., at 2:30. All women patrons especially are urged to attend, and friends of the school will be cordially welcomed.

COUNTY HOSPITALS FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Alabama has made a good beginning. She is late, but she is on the way to conquer Tuberculosis. Approximately 5000 persons died last year of this preventable disease, about 233 per 100.000 of the population. The law provides for a Commission (unpaid) of 9 persons, of whom 4 must be physicians, the State Health officers, ex-officio, the others appointed by the Governer. These will elect an executive Secretary. The purpose of the Commission is chiefly to promote and supervise tuberculosis hospitals, in Counties or County groups. Boards of Revenue or County Commissioners may be required to establish such hospitals when a majority of voters petition them to do so. Management of each hospital will be by a local Hospital Board and Superintendent, under the supervision of the State Commission.

"Among all the Bills signed by Governor Henderson, it is doubtful whether one has a further reach for food than this", said Dr. B. L. Wyman, President of the Alabama Anti-Tuberculosis League.

No appropriation was made. To enable the Commission to employ a Secretary, the League proroses to dedicate proceeds of its Seals Sale. The Secretary will devote himself to promoting county hospitals by awakening each county to its opportunity.

The legislature was in session the greater portion of the year, and now they say it will take a special session to get the state out of the mnddle. Where do the people of the state get any good from this body?

The letter of Mr. J, N. Scott in our last issue is one which our people ought to read and think about. Boss rule is a thing of the past, and the people of the county feel that the whole people should have a say in public matters—not a few to dictate. The democratic party in Chilton county is in a bad predicament in trying to shift the responsibility of the past acts of its party in trying to get those bills passed by the legislature, disfranchising every citizen of the county. It would have been better to have come clean and said, "Yes, we tried it and failed. We were whipped at our own game."

DeWITT'S CARBOLIZED WITCH HAZEL SALVE For Piles, Burns, Sores.

Southern States Need Two Strong White Parties.

That the Southern states need two strong white parties in its political make-up, was the statement of Herbert L. Anderson, Florida National Committeeman ef the Progressive party, on the eve of his departure for the mountains of North Carolina, where he will spend his vacation.

"Can President Wilson be re-elected next year?" he wos asked.

"You have asked a difficult question. Prophecy is a lost art. It would require a modern Jeremiah to say at this time whether the Democratic party can nominate Mr. Wilson, hampered as he is by the que-term bridle Mr. Bryan haltered him with in 1912, and second, whether he can be elected if nominated." Continuing he stated, "The European war is making history in this country in a rush. No man can predict what may happen in our international relations, and, in my opinion, Mr. Wilson's political fate depends on the out-turn of events which shall occur between this date and November, 1916."

Continuing, he declared: If there had been no war in Europe Democracy would, in all probability, have been disastrously defeated next year. The administration tariff bill is grounded on false economic principles and without a doubt, precipitated our business troubles. Business halted before August, 1914.

"Uncertainty and apprehension were apparent long before the war began. Fact is democratic tariff notions are not in harmony with the opinion of a majority in America. More men believe in adequate schedules than in low tariff, and, although we are all saying that Mr. Wilson is beset with great difficulties, the truth is the foreign war is a godsend to him. It has had the effect to obscure the otherwise obvious breakdown of the economic policies of the Wilson regime. The war has brought sympathy for the President among all classes. and in a measure has lined up the country to his support for patriotic reasons. As the case stood in August 1914, Democracy was doomed. Since then its psychological position has been advanced.

"But we must not overlook the fact that Mr. Wilson was elected by a minority vote in 1912. In that memorable year Mr. Wilson received 6,298,019 votes, Mr. Taft polled 3,484,956 and Mr. Roosevelt had 4,119,507, meaning that on a total vote of 13,897,482 that year, Mr. Wilson had 1,411,444 less than one-half the full vote.

"In 1914 ihe Democrats lacked nearly one million of polling one-half the total vote. Can Mr. Wilson add 16 to 20 per cent. to the Democratic vote of 1914?

"It is clear that to do this some disposition must be made of the 2,000,000 votes cast for Progressive candidates in 1914. Here we come to the crux of the matter. How will the 2,000,000 Progressives vote in 1916? On the face of the record in hand the Progressives hold the balance.

"I have letters from every Progressive national committeeman, excepting two, one in Nevada, and the other in a southern state. These men say the Progressives will hold a national convention and nominate a national ticket in 1916. If ihis is done Mr. Wilson can be and probably will be nominated and elected, but if a stray ray of intelligence should by a chance penetrate the brains of the Republican leaders, and they should forget how much they hate Theodore Roosevelt and rise to a sense of patriotic duty to the country at large, and nominate said Theodore, Mr. Wilson and all his generntion of theorists and dreamers of dreams will be overwhelmingly defeated.—Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.

Next year the attention of our farmers will be largely directed toward the institution of some practicable means of overcoming the devastations of the cotton boll weevil. The first step toward this end is to plant an early variety of cotton. Many farmers are already on the lookout for cotton seed of those varieties which are favorable in the boll weevil fight; and those who have them to sell could readily dispose of their surplus by a bit of advertising.

MONEY TALKS

$20,000.00 WORTH OF NEW GOODS RECEIVED

This is the time of year when money talks at this store. We have the goods and we want to get rid of them, and your money counts here to-day more than it ever did before. It makes no difference what you want, your money will get it at a mighty low price.

How about a suit of clothes at a very low price—ridiculously low, in fact? We have a number of suits on hand which must go. Come in and let us fit you, and we will fit the price as well as you.

A pair of shoes are always useful—a necessity. We are more than pleased with the grades we are selling this year. We have sold a great many shoes to the people of this community, but never before have we been so fortunate in our selections. They combine all the elements of appearance, durability, comfort, and the price remains the same as for ordinary shoes.

Ladies will find our shelves loaded with everything they may wish—dress goods, fancy goods, and many other things—and they are just what the feminine heart does crave. We are especially prepared to cater to your wants.

Our grocery department is complete. We are careful what we buy. We get the best. We do not try to sell a customer something we would not use on our own table. We buy very closely, and we apply the same principle in selling.

It is a certainty you cannot do better elsewhere, no matter where you go or from whom you buy. It is extremely doubtful if you can do anything like as well. Small profits and many sales is our rule.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store,

and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, restful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief.

Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted healthful influence imparted to the coming baby.

One very important thing to remember about "Mother's Friend," it can not exercise any other influence than to simply lubricate the parts, make them more firm to naturally withstand the constantly increasing pressure. And as the muscles continue to expand, the nerves become accustomed to this new condition and adjust themselves without undue pain. "Mother's Friend" is entirely free of any drug influence whatsoever and may be used freely at all times.

Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Then write Bradfield Regulator Co., 704 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers.

"Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it. And you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

Fern Was Peeved.

According to an eminent botanist, plants are so sensitive that they resent neglect and are susceptible to kind treatment, showing their gratitude in charming ways. We are therefore the more ready to believe a story told us a day or two ago by a lover of nature. He was watering a fern on a cold morning. He forgot to temper the water. The fern, incensed by the shock, leaped from the pot and bit him savagely in the leg.—Philip Hale, in Boston Herald.

CHAPTER IX.

The Leap in the Dark.

So far as Jones was concerned, he was rather pleased with the turn of affairs. This was no time for love-making; no time for silly, innocuous quarrels and bickerings, in which love must indulge or die. Florence no longer rode horseback, and Norton returned to his accustomed haunts, where no one made the slightest attempt upon his life. In his present state of mind he would have welcomed it.

"I Never Saw That Ring Before."

"What's the matter with Jim?" asked the night city editor, raising his eye shade.

"I don't know," answered the copy reader.

"Goes around as if he'd been eating dope; bumped into the boss a while ago and never stopped to apologize."

"Perhaps he's mapping out the front page for that Hargreave stuff," laughed the copy reader. "Between you and me and the gate post, I don't believe there ever was a man by the name of Hargreave."

"Oh, there was a chap by that name, all right. He's dead. A man can't swim 300 miles in rough water, life buoy or no. They ought to have funeral services, and let it go at that."

"But what was the reason for that fake cable from Gibraltar saying that Orts was alive? I don't see any sense in that."

"The man who pulled it off did. I think, for my part, that both Orts and Hargreave are dead, and that the man picked up by the tramp steamer Orient was riding some other balloon."

"You're wrong there. The description of it proved that it was Orts' machine. Oh, Jim probably has got a man's size yarn up his sleeve, but he's a long time in delivering the goods. He's beginning to mope a good deal. Woman back of it somewhere. Haven't held down this copy job for twelve years without being able to make some tolerable guesses. Jim's a star man. When he gets started nothing can stop him. He covered the Chinese Boxer rebellion better than any other correspondent there. I wonder how old he is?"

"O, I should say about thirty-one or two. Here he comes now. 'Lo, Jim!"

"Hello! Where's Ford? He gave me a ticket to the theater tonight, and I want to punch his head. What's drama coming to, anyhow? Cigarettes and booze and mismated couples. Can't they find good enough things out of doors? Oh, I know. They cater to a lot of fools who believe that what they see is an expression of high life in New York and London. And it's rot, plain rot. It's merely the scum on the boiling pot. And any old housewife would skim it off and chuck it into the slops. Life? Piffle!"

"What's the grouch?"

"Looking for the dramatic job?"

"No. I've just been wondering how far these theatrical managers can go without slitting the golden goose."

Norton sought his desk and began rummaging the drawers. He was not hunting for anything; he was merely passing away the time. By and by, when the pastime no longer served, he pulled his chair over to the window and sat down, staring at stars such as Copernicus never dreamed of. Ships going down to sea, ferries swooping diagonally hither and thither, the clockwork signs; but he took no note of these marvels of light.

"Not at home!" he muttered.

He had called, written, telephoned. No use. The door remained shut, Jones answered the telephone, and the letters came back. He began to think very deeply concerning the Perigoff woman. Had she played a trick? Had that fainting spell been buncombe for his benefit as well as Florence's? But he had not a shadow of a proof. The thing that puzzled him equally with this was that all attempts against his life had miraculously ceased; no safes thundered down in front of him, and no autos tried to carve him in two. The only thing that kept him active was the daily call of Jones by wire. Miss Florence was well; that was all Jones was permitted to say.

Restlessly Norton spurned his chair and walked over to the telephone booth. It was midnight. He might or might not be able to get Jones. But almost instantly a voice said, "What is it?"

"Jones?"

"Yes. Who is it?"

"Norton."

"Why, you called me up not ten minutes ago."

"Not I!"

"It was your voice, as plain as day."

"What did I want?" keen all at once.

The reply did not come immediately.

"You are certain it was not you?"

"Wait a moment and I'll call the editor. He will prove to you that I've been here for an hour, and that this is the first call I've made. Some one has been imposing on you. What did they ask you to do?"

"You asked me to come down to the office at once, and I requested you to come to the house, and you said you could not. I declined to stir."

"What did you think?"

"Exactly what you're thinking—that they have come to life again."

"Jones, is Miss Florence awake?"

"No."

"Do you think there is any hope of having her understand what really happened?"

"I am here only to guard her. I cannot undertake to read her thoughts."

"You're not quite in favor of a reconciliation?"

"Oh, yes, if it went no further. Young people are young people the world over."

"What does that mean?"

"That they would not create imaginative heartaches if they were not young. Better let things remain exactly as they are. When all these troubles are settled finally, the lesser trouble may be talked over sensibly. But this is not the time. There is no news. Good-night."

Norton returned to his chair, gloomier than ever. With his feet upon the window sill he stared and stared and dreamed and dreamed till a hand fell upon his shoulder. It belonged to one of the office boys.

"Note f'r you, sir."

Norton read it and tore it into little pieces. Then he rose and distributed the pieces in the several yawning waste baskets which strewed the aisle leading to the city desk.

"I'm not wanted for anything?" he asked.

"No. Clear out!" laughed the night city editor. "The sight of you is putting everybody in the gloom ward."

Norton went down to the street. At the left of the entrance he was quietly joined by a man whose arm was carried in a sling. He motioned Norton to get into the taxicab. They were dropped in a deserted spot in Riverdale. On foot they went forward to their destination, which proved to be the deserted hangar of the aviator, William Orts.

"I want you to tell Jones that a tug and several divers are at work on the spot where he threw the chest. That's all. Now, doctor, rewind this arm of mine."

The amateur surgeon made a very good job of it; not for nothing had he followed fighting armies to the front.

"Did they find anything?"

"Not up to date. But we might if we cared to. They have left a buoy over the spot they're exploring. But just now it floats a quarter of a mile to the east of the spot."

"Who were the men in the motor boat that chased Jones."

"Only Jones can tell you. Queer old codger, eh?"

"A bit stubborn. He wants to handle it without police assistance."

"And he's right. We are not aiming to arrest anyone," sinisterly. "There can't be any draw to this game. Here, no smoking. Too much gas afloat."

Norton put the cigarettes back into his pocket. "What's the real news?" he demanded. "You would not bring me out here just to rebandage that arm. It really did not need it. Come, out with it."

"You're sharp."

"I'm paid to be sharp."

"I've found where the Black Hundred holds its sessions."

"By George, that's news!"

"The room above is vacant. A little hole in the ceiling, and who knows what might happen?"

"What do you want me to do?"

"Tell Jones. When the next meeting come around I'll advise you. I've stumbled upon a dissatisfied member. So, buck up, as they say. We've got two ends of the net down, and with a little care we'll have them all. Now let me have a hundred."

Norton drew out a packet of bills and counted off five twenties.

"Why don't you draw the cash yourself?"

"It happens to be in your name, son."

"I forgot," said Norton. "But what a chance for me! Nearly five thousand, all mine for a ticket to Algiers!"

A grunt was the only reply.

"I want you to tell me about the Perigoff woman."

"I know only one thing—that Braine is there every night."

"No!"

"The orders are for you to play the game just as you are playing it. When we strike, it must be the last blow. All this hide-and-seek business may look foolish to you. It's like that Japanese game called 'jo.' It looks simple, but chess is a tyro's game beside it. Can you find your way back all right?"

"I can."

"Well, you'd better be going. That's all the light I have, in this torch here. Got a lot to do tomorrow and need sleep."

Norton stole away with great caution. His first intention was to proceed straight to the city, but despite his resolution he found himself within a quarter of an hour gazing up at the windows of the Hargreave house. "Not at home!"

Quite unconscious of the fact, he was as close to death as any mortal man might care to be. The policeman suddenly looming up under the arc lamp proved to be his savior.

* * * * * * *

The lull made Jones doubly alert. He was positive that they were preparing to strike again. But from what direction and in what manner? He had not met the gift of clairvoyance, so he had to wait; and waiting is a terrible game when perhaps death is balancing the scales. It is always easier to make an assault than to await it; and it is a good general who always finds himself prepared.

But it made his heart ache to watch the child. She went about cheerfully—when any one was in the room with her. Many a time, however, he had stolen to the door of her bedroom and heard the heart-rending sobs, a vain attempt being made to stifle them among the pillows. She was only eighteen; it was first love; and first loves are pale, evanescent attachments. It hurt now; but she would get over it presently. Youth forgets. Time, like water, smooths away the ragged places.

The countess called regularly. She was, of course, dreadfully sorry over what had happened. She had heard something about his character; newspaper men weren't always the best. This one was a mere fortune hunter; a two faced one, at that. She was never more surprised in her life when he threw his arms around her. And so on, and so forth, half lies and half truths, till the patient Jones felt like wringing her neck.

From his vantage point the butler smiled ironically. He could read the heart of this Perigoff woman as he could read the page of a book. The effrontery! And all the while he must gravely admit her and pretend when the blood rioted in his veins at the sight of her. But he dared not swerve a single inch from the plans laid down. It was a cup of bitter gall, and there was no way of avoiding the putting of it to his lips. She emanated poison as nightshade emanates it, the upas tree. And he must bow when she entered and bow when she left! Still, she had done him an indirect favor in breaking up this love business.

One afternoon Braine summoned his runabout and called up two physicians. When he was ushered into the desert ed office of the first he sent his card in. The doctor replied in person. His face was pale and his hands shook.

It Had All the Hallmarks of an Affectionate Embrace.

"Good afternoon," said Braine, smiling affably.

The doctor eyed him like a man hypnotized. "You . . . you wished to see me on some particular business?"

"Very particular," dryly. "My car is outside. Will you be so good as to accompany me?"

The doctor slowly went into the hall for his hat and coat. He left the house and got into the car with never a word of protest.

"Thinking?" said Braine.

"I am always thinking whenever I see your evil face. What devilment do you require of me this time?"

"A mere stroke of the pen."

"Where are we going?"

"To call on another physician of your standing," significantly. "It is a great thing to have friends like you two. Always ready to serve us, for the mere love of it."

"There's no need of using that kind of talk to me. You have me in the hollow of your hand. Why should I bother to deny it? I have broken the law. I broke it because I was starving."

"It is better to starve in freedom than to eat fat joints up the river. Today it is a question of sanity."

"And you want me to assist in signing away the liberty of some person who is perfectly sane?"

"The nail on the head," urbanely.

"You're a fine scoundrel!"

"Not so loud!" warningly.

"As loud as I please. I am not forgetting that you need me. I'm no coward. I recognize that you hold the whip hand. But you can send me to the chair before I'll crawl to you. Now, leave me alone for a while."

The other physician had no such qualms of conscience. He was ready at all times for the generous emoluments which accrued from his dealings with the man Braine.

The Countess Perigoff was indisposed; so it was quite in the order of things that she should summon physicians.

There is a law in the state of New York—just or unjust, whichever you please—that reads that any person may be adjudged insane if the signatures of two registered physicians are affixed to the document. It does not say that these physicians shall have been proved reputable.

Florence and Susan Went Shopping.

There were, besides the physicians, a motherly looking woman and a man of benign countenance. Their faces were valuable assets. To gain another person's confidence is, perhaps among the greatest human achievements. A confidence man and woman in the real sense of the word. In your mind's eye you could see this man carrying the contribution plate down the aisle on Sunday mornings, and his wife Kate putting her mite on the plate for the benefit of some poor, untidy Hottentot.

On Tuesday of the following week Florence and Susan went shopping. The chauffeur was a strong young fellow whom Jones relied upon. If you pay a man well and hold out fine promises, you generally can trust him. As their car left the corner another followed leisurely. This second automobile contained Thomas Wendt and his wife Kate. The two young women stopped at the great dry goods shop near the public library, and for the time being naturally forgot everything but the marvels which had come from all parts of the world. It is as natural for a woman to buy as it is for a man to sell.

In some manner or other Florence became separated from Susan. She hunted through aisle after aisle, but could not find her; for the simple reason that Susan was hunting for her. It occurred to the girl that Susan might have wisely concluded the best place to wait would be in the taxicab. And so Florence hurried out into the street, into the arms of the Wendt family, who were patiently awaiting her.

The trusted chauffeur had been sent around to the side entrance by the major domo. The young lady had so requested, so he said.

Florence struggled and called for the policeman, who came running up, followed by the usual idle, curious crowd.

"The poor young woman is insane," said the motherly Kate, tears in her eyes. The benign Thomas looked at heaven. 'We are her keepers."

"It is not true!" cried Florence desperately.

"She has the hallucination that she is the daughter of the millionaire Stanley Hargreave." And Thomas exhibited his document, which was perfectly legal, so far as appearances went.

"Hurry up and get her off the walk. I can't have the crowd growing any larger," said the policeman, convinced.

So, despite her cries and protestations, Florence was hustled into the automobile, even the policeman lending a hand.

"Poor young thing!" he said to the crowd. "Come, now, move on. I can't have the walk blocked up. Get a gait on you."

He was congratulating himself upon the orderliness of the affair when a keen-eyed young man in the garb of a chauffeur touched his shoulder.

"What's this I hear about an insane woman?" he demanded.

"She was insane, all right. They had papers to prove it. She kept crying that she was Stanley Hargreave's daughter."

"My God!" The young man struck his forehead in despair. "You ass, she was Stanley Hargreave's daughter, and they've kidnaped her right under your nose! What was the number of that car?"

"Cut out that line of talk, young fellah; I know my business. They had the proper documents."

"But you hadn't brains enough to inquire whether they were genuine or not! You wait!" shrilled the chauffeur. "I'll have you broken for this work." He wheeled and ran back to his car, to find Susan and the countess in a great state of agitation. "They got her, they got her! And I swore on the book that they never should, so long as I drove the car."

Susan wept, and the countess tried in vain to console her.

And when Jones was informed he frightened even the countess with the snarl of rage which burned across his lips. He tore into the hall, seized his hat, and was gone. Not a word of reproach did he offer to the chauffeur.

Braine and the Countess.

He understood that no one is infallible. He found the blundering policeman, who now realized that he stood in for a whiff of the commissioner's carpet. All he could do was to give a good description of the man and woman. Word was sent broadcast through the city. The police had to be informed this time.

Late in the day an officer whose beat included the ferry landing at Hoboken said he had seen the three. Everything had looked all right to him. It was the motherly face of the one and the benign countenance of the other that had blinded him.

At midnight Jones, haggard and with the air of one beaten, returned home.

"No wireless yet?" asked Norton.

"The George Washington of the North German Lloyd does not answer. Something has happened to her wires; tampered with, possibly."

"So long as we know they are at sea, we can remedy the evil. They will not be able to land at a single port. I have sent ten cables. They can't get away from the wire. If I could only get hold of the names of those damnable doctors who signed that document! Twenty years."

Jones bent his head in his hands, and Norton tramped the floor till the sound of his footsteps threatened to drive the moaning Susan into hysterics.

"It is only a matter of a few days."

"But can the child stand the terrors?" questioned Jones. "Who knows that they may not really drive her insane?"

On board the George Washington every one felt extremely sorry for this beautiful girl. It was a frightful misfortune to be so stricken at her age.

"She is certainly insane," said one of the passengers, who had known Hargreave slightly through some banking business. "Hargreave wasn't married. He lived alone."

After the second day out Florence was permitted to wander about the ship as she pleased.

A good many of the passengers were mightily worried when they learned that the wireless had in some mysterious way been tampered with after the boat had made the open sea. It was impossible to put about. The apparatus must be fixed at sea.

And when finally Norton's wireless caught the wires of the George Washington he was gravely informed that the young lady referred to had leaped the rail off the Banks at night and had been drowned. She had not been missed till the following morning.

Rheumatism Easily Relieved By Cleansing the Blood

S. S. S. Gives Quick Relief by Toning Up the Blood

Yes, but how? A natural question. The answer is that you must cleanse your blood by stimulating it to healthy, vigorous action, so that it will throw off the germs and impurities that cause Rheumatism. The action of the wonderful blood purifier, S. S. S. is to practically renew the life blood, give it vigor, stimulate the flow making it throw out the germs and the poison impurities. The excruciating pains of Rheumatism, whether it is the shooting, stabbing Sciatica, the gripping agony of muscular Rheumatism, or aching arms and legs that break up sleep will be entirely relieved by S. S. S. Don't use nostrums and drugs. Take the blood bath—Nature's blood tonic, S. S. S. Get it at any druggist, but insist upon S. S. S. Let us tell you about blood diseases. Land Always in Motion.

We are apt to think of the sea as something that is constantly shifting and the land as something quite stable. In reality the land is always moving, and science now believes that quite possibly it is moving even faster than the surface of the ocean.

OBTAINS FIRST RELIEF IN YEARS

"No One But Myself Knows HoW I Suffered," Says Mrs. Briggs in Ststement

"I have gotten more real benefit from one bottle of Tanlac than all the other medicines that I have taken in the last six years put together," was the remarkable statement made by Mrs. Aattie Briggs, reeiding at No 5 South 40th street, StElmo, Tenn. a suburb of Chatanooga.

"No one but myself knows how I have suffered all this time. I tried doctor after doctor, and used all kinds of medicines, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and I suppose I would be suffering yet if it had not been for Tanlac.

"I have just finished my first bottle and I am back today for two more bottles, and expect to keep on taking it. I do not know just what my trouble was but I had dreadful pains in my side and back. I was troubled with my stomach and kidneys. I had no energy and was in a sick and rundown condition. I was very depressed because I felt at times that nothing would help me.

I began reading about Tanlac when Mr. Cooper first came here, and heared so much about the mhdicine, decided to give it a trial. I had no idea at the time that the medicine could possibly do me so much good in such a short time. It seemed to be just the thing I needed for my trouble, as it just suited my case. I would not take anything for what it has done for me and I am going to keep on taking it until I am perfectly well and strong. The pains in my side and back no longer bother me, and I feel better and stronger in every way. I also sleep well and have a good appetite. I hope every woman suffering as I was, will take this medicine for it certainly does everything that you claim for it."

In refeering to Mrs. Briggs' statement, Mr. G. F. Willis, Southern distributer of Tanlac, said:

Mrs. Briggs was evidently suffering from catarrh of the stomach and kidneys. This trouble is one of the most frequent causes of dyspepsia and Brights disease. The mental and physical state of chronic catarrh sufferers is indeed, very unfortunate and the condition is best distinguished by such symptoms as as pains in the pit of the stomach, sides and kidney regions, lost appetite, no ambition, depression of the spirits, nervousness and etc.

"Trnlac, the preperation that I am personally introducing, I believe to be the best medicine of the kind on the American market today. This fact has been conclusively proven time and time again by the statements of prominent men and women from all over the South, who have been actually benefitted by its use."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. Advt.

PAY DAY

Pay Day has been a matter of public discussion and of proposed legislation in the State of Alabama. Pay Day is a very important subject, one worthy of careful consideration before definite action is taken.

Daily, weekly, semi-monthly and monthly pay periods have been tried by industrial and commercial concerns all over the world.

In making experiments and computing results the first and most important consideration was the convenience, prosperity and moral uplift of the "laborer worthy of his hire".

Large business enterprises have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in an effort to arrive at the greatest good for the greatest number of employes.

The reason is obvious: Business must have well paid, contented, loyal, enthusiastic employes. The employes must be prosperous and as nearly free from outside annoyances as possible in order that they will devote their brains and energy to the employer. It is a simple business proposition.

Savings bankers report a noticeable decrease in bank deposits where frequent pay days exist. This indicates a lack of thrift. Large sums of money are more likely to be saved or invested than are small sums.

Real estate dealers report more consistent purchases of lots and the construction of homes where monthly pay days exist. In fact the average real estate dealer had rather not worry with frequent payments, as the expense of clercial help would make the transaction unprofitable.

Saloon keepers and pool room operators report a better business where frequent pay days exist. A man with a little more money in his pocket than his daily wants require will frequently take a drink he would not otherwise take if he knew he would be without money until next pay day a month off.

Usurers and loan sharks report large losses and larger profits among the daily and weekly wage earners.

These facts are in behalf of the wage earner.

The employer finds frequent pay days a greatly increased expense, of detriment to employe, and an added financial burden to the people, who must pay the cost.

The L. & N. writes of these things because the L. & N. has thousands of employes in whose welfare it is interested. Also the L. & N. does not want to incur any unnecessary expense for its patrons to bear, because the L. & N. shall endeavor to at all times maintain the high standard of freight and passenger service with which the people have become familiar and now expect, supplying this service at the lowest possible cost to the people.

FROM JEMISON
ODD-FELLOWS

A meeting was held by George R. Ward Lodge No. 164, I. O. O. F., at the Hall in Jemison on last Saturday night and a large crowd was present and the work was dispensed with as fast as possible until we reached the degree work, then the lodge closed down to the second degree, and there being three candidates in waiting they were brought in and given the second degree in an impressive manner. And after the general routine of business was gone over and we reached the good of the order, several interesting talks were made for the good of the order by the different members present which was inspiring and uplifting. We are always glad to hear our members talk on the good of the order; it shows that we are taking some interest in the work of Odd-fellowship. We are glad to say that our lodge is on the up grade now and not only in our lodge but all over the State Odd-fellowship seems to be taking on new life. So the outlook generally seems encouraging at this time. So come on boys and let's put our shoulders to the wheel and push the good work on, and whatsoever our hands find to do let's do it with our might.

Yours in F. L. & T.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The students and faculty of the High School re-assembled on Monday morning with renewed strength and vigor, anxious to resume their daily work. Although much good work has been done during the six weeks of this session, the classes are just now enterlng into the rigid working spirit. There are over a hundred pupils enrolled, all of whom are displaying acute interest in the progress of the institution.

The boys athletic association, organized the second week of school, is progressing wonderfully. Much work is being done through it, toward the physical development of the boys interested in that important phase of the school work. The association could be nothing else but a success under the supervision of the following officers: President, Frank Palmer; Vice-President, Arden Allen; Secretary, Omar Reynolds; Treosurer, Joe Kanjutzky. The arrangement of the foot-ball team is to be formed in a few days. The team has practiced six times, and has acquired much skill in the minor parts of the game.

On the 11th inst. the girls athletic association was organized. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Nettie Weaver; Vice-President, Miss Izora Callen; Secretary, Miss Annie Gragg; Treasurer, Miss Beverly Hester. The basket ball team will be organized in the near future, and the C C. H. S. expects to have a line-up, of which we will feel proud.

The Senior Class met on its regular meeting day, last Thursday, and discussed the matter of selecting the class name, motto, colors and flower. On account of the lack of sufficient time, the matter was carried over to the next regular meeting.

The boys literary society which was temporarily organized last Wednesday, met in regular session Monday and organized permanently, with the following officets: President, Jean Wyatt; Vice-President, Clyde Williams; Secretary-Treasurer, Joe Kanjutzky. Much interest is being taken in this society, which is one of the most important adjuncts of the high school.

The athletic boys thank Mr. McDonald very much for his plan of having the campus packed—so long as none of them are asked to take part in the process.

Guy DeShazo, through the assistance of the Principal and the first assistant, has at last found sufficient work to occupy all his spare time.

Wallace Jones has become aware of the fact that the only things necessary for studying "The Lady of the Lake," are, just a common boy with two eyes, a good light, and a book. It was for some time he didn't know how to study that classic.

Miss Harris is to be commended for the excellent biological museum which she and her class are collecting. It seems that a good deal of work is being done by that class in science.

Miss Annie Gragg, secretary of the girls athletic association, has been designated special correspondent of the girls athletic department. The news of the boys athletics is to be gotten up by Omar Reynolds.

Mrs. T. A. Curry is doing some work in the interest of the school which shows her splendid spirit toward school work. She is due the help of every boy and girl in school, besides all the citizens of Clanton.

DISPERSION OF THE COTTON BOLL WEEVIL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18—The unusual storms af August, and the very rapid multiplication of the boll weevil in Texas have resulted in a tremendous movement into northwestern Texas and Oklahoma. This movement is probably not yet completed, nor has it been entirely mapped out. The indications are that over half of the state of Oklahoma, is now infested. Information has just been received that the boll weevil is at Vernon in Wilbarger county, Texas, and at Cache in Comanch county and Minco in the extreme northern part of Grady county, Oklahoma. Unless immediate mearures are taken by the planters throughout Oklahoma and northwest Texas it can be expected that the boll weevil will do some damage next year.

The Bureau of Entomology advises that the planters throughout Oklahoma and the supposedlp infested sections of Texas begin immediately to pick their cotton and destroy the plants. By destroying the plants the developing weevils will be killed. Two methods of destruction are available. If the plants can be plowed under to 4 or 5 inches this is the most desirable method of procedure, otherwise, they should be stacked in windrows and burned as soon as dry.

After destroying the plants preparation should be made for a winter cover crop and for a rotation of crops next year.

The weevil has maintained its position in Arkansas and has probably extended its area a little further north in the western portions. The entire state of Mississippi is infested, and the weevil is now known to be in McNairy and Hardin counties, Tenn. Tennessee planters along the southern border should take the same precautions that have been recommended to the Oklahoma planters.

Probably only four or five of the counties in the mountainous section of northeast Alabama will escape infestation by the boll weevil this year.

Over thirty counties in western Georgia are already known to be infested and there is no doubt but that five more will be recorded soon. Planters in Georgia and Alabama, whether in the infested counties or not, should take immediate measures to destroy the cotton stalks, and prepare the fields for winter cover crops.

UNION GROVE

The Sunday school at this place is moving along nicely at present under the management of Mr. W. H. Conway as Supt.

We are glad to note that the people of this community are becoming more interested in the Sunday school work.

Our literary school opened Monday, Oct. 11th, with Prof. R. A. Smith of Clanton. principal, and Miss Ruth DeVore of Jemison, assistant.

We are glad to have Prof. Smith with us again this year. He was principal of the school last year and was unanimously re-elected for another session.

Prof. Smith is one of the leading teachhrs of the county, and while we had a most successful school last year, we predict for him and Miss DeVore a far better one this year.

Our school has a basket ball and tennis court and is planning to install a "6 in 1" apparatus for the smaller pupils.

We have arranged coolers, buckets, washpans, towels, combs and mirrors for the school and each pupil is required to make use of these; while each pupil furnishes his own towel and comb.

Our basket ball team played the Jemison team last Saturday on the latter's court. The score was 6 to 4 in favor Union Grove.

MARRIAGE OF MR. WELLS AND MISS PARRISH

It might scarcely ever be thought that it would become the good fortune af a printer to attain matrimonial prominence; but whoever might have been of such incredibility must have had the props knocked from under them last Sunday whenit became known that Mr. Brock Wells, a member of the Union-Banner force, had eluded the suspicion of his friends, and stole away to the home of a lovely young lady and claimed her as his bride.

Mr. Wells is a model young man with a wide circle of friends in this, his home community. He has for some time been connected with the mechanical department of the Union-Banner, and which position he is yet holding.

His lovely young bride, Miss Louella Parrish, is the daughter of Mr. W. H. Parrish, of Falakto and a more deserving and worthy lady could not be found.

The Tnion-Banner, together with many interested friends, extend hearty congratulations to the young couple, and many a good wish for their happiness as shipmates in the voyage of life.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

Remember the Chilton County Fair November 1st to 6th.

One hundred and fifty thousand paid their way into the Fair grounds at the Birmingham State Fair this year.

We will disfranchise the people—appoint us a judge—let our judge appoint us a clerk and two deputies and it will be our'n—the people be d—.

We are informed that the Chilton County Exhibit, at the State Fair in Birmingham was good and reflected credit on the citizens of the county. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce are to be congratulated on manner which Chilton showed up.

In some sections of the State cotton seed are selling at $44.00 per ton. J. T. Heflin, Congressman from Alabama predicts that cotton will bring $100.00 per bale and seed $44.00 per ton on account of war consumption.

The proposed Constitution amendment for the Legislature to convene every two years will be snowed under world without end, if the people are allowed a say. Every ten years is often enough for a Legislature like the one just been pursuaded to adjourn.

Will the Press tell the voters of Chilton county what became of the measure presented to the Legislature which if it had become a law would have disfranchised every citizen in Chilton Co. Did the Ex. Committee of the Democratic party withdraw that bill in its legerdemain performance a few days ago?

It is said that Champ Clark, the speaker of democratic house is openly advocating the repeal of the high tariff, and he is not alone in his advocacy. The democratic party is sore and sick over its experiment and the people are more so. It's too late now "Champie." The Republicans will revise the tariff.

Mr. Bryan says: When we are prepared for war we will holler for the blood of others. The same spirit in which prepardness is asked will cause us to grapple with enemies. President Wilson is rushing preparedness to a finish and there you are. The two big guns of the democratic party are miserably divided.

In one breath the Clanton Press says that the war caused the price of cotton to go down and in another it says that the democratic administration is the cause of the present high price. Will the Press explain to the people why it is that the war caused the decrease in price and the administration is causing the increase. The Press has gotten its wires crossed and is seeing things.

The election last Monday of Arlie Barber independent candidate for City Commissioner over the present Democratic incumbent A. O. Lane in Birmingham is one of the greatest victories for the people of Alabama in recent years. It shows the trend which is fast sweeping the entire country. People are leaving the old ruts and turning their backs on bossism and are thinking for themselves.

The Press has got a big job on its hands trying to explain to the people about the Legislators working two days a week and drawing pay for six and the bad part of it is some of the Legislators themselves were "agin" such dishonesty. The tax payers of the state have that fact under their hand bound and regardless of the pleadings of the press they are going to remember these fellows when it comes time to vote again.

Don't you worry about the Union-Banner endorsing Governor Henderson's administration. This paper is not so narrow, however, that is not willing to commend a good deed in any oue whether of our faith politically or not. Governor Henderson has slapped rebuked and restrained, the Press's Legislature, and that at least, is commendable. The Press is about the only democraiic paper in the State who is trying to defend that crowd and it is getting its wires mixed and is having delusions.

The County Fair at Clanton is now getting near at hand. It will begin on November 1st, lasting six full days and nights. Our County Supt. W. T. Bean, who is Secretary of the Fair organization has left nothing undone which goes to make this fair a great success this year and no doubt the entire citizenship of the County will visit Clanton during the week the fair is on. Among the many Alabama counties which are holding County Fairs' Chilton ranks high in that line, and our citizens are full of push energy, and interest in matters of that kind. We expect to see men, women and children from every nook and corner of old Chilton here in Clanton during Fair week. Come and enjoy the fun and pleasure and see the wide stride your county is making in way of progress and prosperity.

The Clanton Press talks about reading the year book etc., to find out the difference in the times between a democratic and republican administration. The peopls of this country know without reference to the Congressman's year book the difference between the two administrations. They have felt and are realizing the difference every day. The laboring people have felt the difference by sad cold experience, notwithstanding the Press's year book, and that is what will tell at the polls next year. The Press may go stone blind in its efforts to disprove the hard times under the high tariff democratic administration, but the business stagnation and the almost starvation of the laboring people of this country is prima facie evidence against you.

The letter in this issue from Judge L. H. Reynolds is a timely document and should be read and considered by every citizen of the county. As set out in his letter the time has arrived when farmers must turn their minds to raising something besides cotton. The boll weevil which is now with us sounds the death nell to cotton everywhere they strike. Grain and other products are in greater demand than ever before and in the face of the European war the prices will naturally go higher. This country is adapted in every way to grain raising and we believe the farmers will find that a greater profit can be sustained by grain raising than from cotton. Less work and less time to raise and market grain is not disputed.

The L. & N. Depot at Clanton is the subject of much comment for the citizens of our town and is also a thing of much comment and amusement for the comers and goers and the traveling public generally. In the first place Clanton is the livest most thorough going little city in this section of Alabama. The traffic which comes to this place is immense. The Depot as it stands is not a credit to the town but is rather a draw back in its appearance and its accommodations. Its location as everyone knows down behind some of our business houses is anything else but inviting. The accommodations there so far as the depot is concerned, are the poorest of any town of the size of Clanton between Louisville, Ky. and Mobile, Ala. This of course does not apply to our efficient and trustworthy agents who are always clever and accommodating as far as their opportunities allow them, but the depot is sorely lacking when it comes to comparison of other buildings and the progress of Clanton. This paper is not knocking and has no inclination to criticize the railroad without a just cause but our civic pride suggests that the L. & N. ought to get busy and get abreast with the times at Clanton and give its customers and patrons and the public generally a better and more servicable depot.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS OF FIRST MEETING.

In the matter of Oliver D. Bone, Bankrupt, Post Office Clanton, County Chilton, Alabama.

The aforesaid party having been adjudged a Bankrupt, under the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to Establish a Uniform System of Bankruptcy Throughout the United States," approved July 1st, 1898, meeting of the Creditors of said Bankrupt is called at the office of the undersigned Referee, in the United States Court House, Montgomery, Alabama, on the 25th day of Oct. next, at 10 o'clock, a.m., to make proof of debts, and for the election of a Trustee, and such other matters as are necessary and required by the Act of Congress aforesaid.

M. S. CARMICHÆL, Referee.
Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 13th, 1915.

No Hurry About the Tariff.

Speaker Champ Clark is already beginning to talk about possible changes in the tariff law of the United States.

Like the poor we have the tariff question with us always. We find it impossible to get rid of it. At each recurring session of Congress it bobs up an unbidden guest, but one we must entertain.

There is no hurry about the tariff. It can just as well rock along for a while. There are other issues of far more importance.

Besides, it is better that we should dispose of Mexico and the president's wedding before taking up such a serious and perplexing problem as the tariff.

When the time arrives, the proper time, Democratic leaders will begin the work of platform building.

There is no question but that certain changes in the tariff will be necessary, especially as soon as the war is over, for economic conditions will arise in Europe which will demand these changes.

But the war is not yet over and there are small prospects that it will be over until after another presidential election, so why hurry tariff debates?

Democrats over the country are so satisfied that Woodrow Wilson will be renominated without opposition that they have eliminated the subject of candidates from their weekly interviews. They must talk about something, and for this reason Speaker Clark no doubt felt that it was up to him to predict certain changes in the tariff.

Possibly Senator Underwood is one of the best advised tariff members of Congress. He has made a study of the question.

He knows, if anyone knows, just in what respects the present law has failed to meet expectations. He will no doubt be the active factor in suggesting the changes that it will be advisable to make when Congress convenes.

In the meantime President Wilson in view of the coming event in the White House family should be permitted a few days of rest from diplomatic discussions in order that he and Dan Cupid may have a little heart to heart conference.

The tariff will wait but the presidential wedding will not.—Commercial Appeal.

The above from the Commercial Appeal shows which way the wind is blowing. The democrats themselves are dissatisfied with the tariff as it now stands and Champ Clark, the man who was swindled out of the last Democratic nomination is not going behind the door to say what he thinks. The proposition is they all know that the tariff as it is won't do for this country and the democratic party knows changes must come. It has only been an experiment anyway and they find that the experiment won't do. The people have been almost deprived of a living under the democratic experiment administration and they too want a change.

Considering Grain Growing.

Clanton, Ala., 10-18-15.

Editor Union-Banner:

I thought I would write just a short letter on grain raising in this County. I was in Nashville, Tenn. at their State Fair and I spent one whole day looking at grain, and talking to grain raisers.

I believe we have the greatest country on earth, if we will only avail ourselves of our opportunity. Raising grain will make this one of the richest Counties in Alabama. Up to this time people here could plant cotton and buy flour and corn, or any other thing they needed, but a sensible man will not attempt this when the boll weevil is right here in our midst. It is no longer a matter of choice, but a necessity. The man that expects to buy flour next year on time and pay for it in cotton is going to have a hard time in finding the flour for sale. Let's compare one acre of wheat to cotton; any farmer can prepare and plant and gather one acre of wheat as cheap as he can plant one acre of cotton, then you have to work the cotton about four months, and then gather two, and wheat will make on an average in this County nearly as much to the acre as cotton with less than one fourth the work The land planted in wheat will improve all the time. This is not all; the land can be planted in peas after the wheat or oats, which is a valuable crop, adding from two to four dollars worth of fertilizer to the land, while cotton impovishes the land.

The farmers have an opportunity now that they have not had in a long time. The war in Europe has created a great demand for everything they have to sell. We can count on all eatables being high as long as this war lasts, and cotton will be a good price also, if there is not too much raised next year.

I see Mr. Heflin said through the papers a few days ago that this country had imported over nine million bales in the last year, more than ever in the history of the country.

If the war lasts for one year longer, this will be the richest country on earth. Our money is today King of the earth so far as value is concerned. The world will come here to borrow from us.

Now remember when we raise corn, oats, peas, and wheat, we will be sure to have a market for the same, but cotton we have to depend on selling.

I wish some farmer from every beat in this county could have seen and heard what I saw in Nashville on growing grain. Grain crops mean good stock of all kinds.

Now I want some party to put up a good first class wheat and corn mill at Clanton, some already have machinery here, and I am sure if the grain is planted there will be a first class mill put up.

In conclusion, I want to insist that every farmer in this County plant enough wheat to do them. Plant rye patches, oat fields; some will grow on this land all the time. Fertilize your wheat when you plant it, like you do your cotton, and I am sure you will get better results. Be sure and plant one acre to each head of stock for winter pasturage, and plant now, do not wait too late. Break your land deep' and if you have not got seeders, harrow your wheat in with your fertilizer. By all means prepare your land well before planting. Planting grain is the best way to kill the boll weevil.

Respectfully,
L. H. Reynolds.

HORTON MULLINS DEAD.

As we go to press news of the death of Horton Mullins near Dadeville, Ala., reached Clanton. Reports are meager and we have been unable to get details. Young Mr. Mullins is the son of Mr. Reese Mullins of this place and is well known here. Mr. and Mrs. Mullins have the sympathy of the entire town and and community.

MONEY TALKS

$20,000.00 WORTH OF NEW GOODS RECEIVED

This is the time of year when money talks at this store. We have the goods and we want to get rid of them, and your money counts here to-day more than it ever did before. It makes no difference what you want, your money will get it at a mighty low price.

How about a suit of clothes at a very low price—ridiculously low, in fact? We have a number of suits on hand which must go. Come in and let us fit you, and we will fit the price as well as you.

A pair of shoes are always useful—a necessity. We are more than pleased with the grades we are selling this year. We have sold a great many shoes to the people of this community, but never before have we been so fortunate in our selections. They combine all the elements of appearance, durability, comfort, and the price remains the same as for ordinary shoes.

Ladies will find our shelves loaded with everything they may wish—dress goods, fancy goods, and many other things—and they are just what the feminine heart does crave. We are especially prepared to cater to your wants.

Our grocery department is complete. We are careful what we buy. We get the best. We do not try to sell a customer something we would not use on our own table. We buy very closely, and we apply the same principle in selling.

It is a certainty you cannot do better elsewhere, no matter where you go or from whom you buy. It is extremely doubtful if you can do anything like as well. Small profits and many sales is our rule.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store,

and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, restful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief.

Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted healthful influence imparted to the coming baby.

One very important thing to remember about "Mother's Friend," it can not exercise any other influence than to simply lubricate the parts, make them more firm to naturally withstand the constantly increasing pressure. And as the muscles continue to expand, the nerves become accustomed to this new condition and adjust themselves without undue pain. "Mother's Friend" is entirely free of any drug influence whatsoever and may be used freely at all times.

Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Then write Bradfield Regulator Co., 704 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers.

"Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it. And you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

Modern science has proven that boils and carbuncles, pimples and unsightly skin blotches, are the danger signals of diseased blood. Scaly skin and itching of Eczema, Scrofula, rashes—all skin diseases are aggravated by bad blood—it's the infected blood that's dangerous. Don't wait for the boils. If you have pimples and blotches, take instant action. Pimples tell you that your blood is filled with impurities. You must wash out your blood, strengthen and stimulate it to healthy action with Nature's own blood tonic, S. S. S. It is the standard blood purifier of the world. Don't use any drugs, don't use ointments and salves. S. S. S. reaches the blood, drives out the impurities. It makes healthy perspiration—the poison is literally sweated out through the skin. Boils, blotches, Eczema and the Scrofula indications disappear. It does what salves and lotions can never do—it goes to the very root of the trouble by reaching the blood. Your skin becomes clear and you soon feel the vigor of the return of perfect health. S. S. S. is purely vegetable. You can get it at any druggist's, but you must take S. S. S. Let us tell you about blood diseases. Write for book of facts, "What the Mirror Tells." If yours is a long standing case, write for expert advice to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

MIDWAY.

Everything at Midway is moving along quite well at this time.

So far we have not experienced very much of the Democrat prosperity, but however we are expecting something great to happen at most any day.

We are now told that the Democrats are responsible for cotton being a fair price. Last fall the Demmies told us that the war caused the low price of cotton. Since the war is still raging we are at a loss to fully understand them, it seems to be an other case of blowing hot and cold with the same mouth.

Surely we must have some good Democrats in our county, as we have been informed that some of them are now willing to break down every party line, cast out every foe, and all get in the same boat and float serenely down the stream of time. I suppose the most of us catch their drift.

At the request of some of our farmer friends we take this method of announcing that there will be another traders convention at Midway next Saturday the 23rd of October. This will be the third convention of the season. The Midway Refreshment Co. has no trading stock whatever, but if we can be of any assistance to the farmers of Chilton county we are at all times pleased to serve them.

With best wishes and kindest regards, I am,

Yours very truly,
Chas. Cooper.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

The show windows of the Clanaon Hardware Co. are worthy of praise and it pleases us to see that this good firm knows the value of advertising by attractive window display and a nice ad in the Union-Banner. The mechanical display of Edison Mazda Lamps showing how small the current consumption of this Lamp, as compared to the old style Lamp, is clearly demonstated. The red hand represents the Edison MazdaLamp and the black hand the Carbon Lamp. The revolution of the black hand is much more greater than the red hand and according to this demostration it is cheaper to use the Edison Mazda Lamp.

In this issue of the Banner appears the ad of J. C. Brown. He is offering you protection by accident insurance, which will safe guard your home in times of adversity. Everyone should give this some consideration.

Ponce de Leon Failed; His Prize Is Found

Ponce de Leon, the daring explorer, searched among the swamps of Florida for the Fountain of Youth, which the Indians said would restore power and make people young. He did not find it.

Thousands of chronic intestinal, bowel and stomach sufferers have written to Geo. H. Mayr, 154 Whiting St., Chicago, in quest of health. They have found it. His remedy, composed of healing vegetable oils from France, has indeed given them back the health of youth.

Why suffer from indigestion, gases on the stomach, fainting spells, torpid liver, constipation and all the evils of a disordered stomach when there is permanent relief here? Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

TANLAC SALE IS ENORMOUS

Over Million Bottles of "Master Medicine" Sold in First Nine Months.

Never before, perhaps, in all history has the demand for a proprietary medicine ever approached the wonderful record that is now being made by Tanlac.

Through the Nashville office alone approximately 75,000 bottles have been sold and distributed since its introduction there a few months ago. In Knoxville the Kuhlman-Chambliss Company sold over 40,000 bottles in six months. In Louisville, Ky., the Taylor-Isaacs Drug Co., who operate eight stores in that city, have sold 30,000 bottles in ninety days. As a matter of fact the demand for it has not only been phenomenal, but unprecedented, and the amazing success the preparation has achieved is almost incredible. The demand for Tanlac in the Birmingham district has likewise been wonderful, and while it has been on sale in that city only about two months, over 10,000 bottles have been sold there.

What is true in Tennessee, in Kentucky and Alabama is also true in 25 other states in the union, and the fame of the medicine is rapidly becoming nation-wide in its scope. No matter where you go, you will find the people singing its praises, and it is unquestionably the most talked of medicine in the world today. As a matter of fact, the wonderful success of Tanlac is the real romance of the business world.

When asked to explain this record breaking demand for Tanlac, G. F. Willis, Mr. Cooper's southern representative, said: "There can be only one possible explanation, and it can be told in one word—merit—that tells the whole story. No preparation, no matter how extensively advertised, can possibly meet with such phenomenal success unless it possesses extraordinary curative powers."

Over a million bottles of Tanlac have been sold in the past nine months!

Among the many who have recently been benefitted by Tanlac is Mr. J. A. Graves, a well-to-do farmer of near Elljoy, Tenn., who said:

"I have been a constant sufferer from stomach and kidney troubles for the past seven years. During that time I have had several doctors study my case, but they only gave me temporary relief. I also tried various kinds of medicines recommended for such troubles, but nothing I took did me any good. In fact, I was in very poor health and was a great sufferer from indigestion and constipation. My blood was thin snd impoverished and I had a bad color in my face. I also suffered from headache a great deal, and was so nervous I could hardly sleep. I seldom had any appetite, and what little I ate disagreed with me. Frequently gas would form in my stomach so I could hardly get my breath. When I had these spells my pulse would become weak, and I would have a smothering sensation. I almost despaired of getting well until I read in the newspapers of the wonderful results experienced by those who were taking Tanlac. I was still in doubt about what to do until some of my neighbors insisted on my taking Tanlac. I decided to take their advice and after the first few doses I noticed a remarkable change in my condition. I have now taken three bottles of the medicine and have gained fourteen pounds. It beats anything I have ever seen. Some of my friends hardly know me, and everybody is talking about the wonderful change in my condition."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co.

L. H. Reynolds, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your letter, and will ship the Blue Stem Wheat at once.

We wish to write in regard to the Blue Stem Wheat, and will say that we have handled this wheat for a number of years, and there is no wheat grown that we can recall, which is as profitable to the producer as this particular wheat. It has a very strong stalk, stands well, has large head and small plump grain, which is very desirable for milling purposes, from the fact that the wheat weighs very heavy, when carried to mill. and millers claim better results from this wheat than any other. We cannot recommend it too highly. In most every case where people have tried this wheat and given it some little attention they find it very desirable, and in most every case they resowed.

Yours truly,
McKAY, REECE & CO.

ALLEDGED MURDERERS OF HORTON MULLINS

Held at Dadeville. Coroner's Jury Investigate Death

Dadeville, Ala., Oct. 22.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Horton Mullins adjourned tonight until tomorrow and will probably be in session all day tomorrow. Ben Starr, the white man, who was with Mullins at the time of his death and the negro, Son Burns, at whose house the parties were on the night of the tragedy were both arrested this afternoon charged with murder and are now in jail.

The woman who was with Mullins and Starr is still in jail. She was examined by the coroner's jury for several hours this afternoon. The sessions of the jury are held in secret, but it is reported on the street that this woman changed her testimony today. It is also stated that the post mortem examination of the body made at Birmingham early yesterday morning showed two fractures of the dead man's skull.

Relatives of the dead man from Clanton and Birmingham here assisting in the inquest.

C. E. DIRIMEYER AND WIFE BADLY INJURED

On Way Home to Montgomery From "Highway" Trip When Car Overturns at Thorsby.

Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 25.—C. E. Dirimeyer and his wife were injured here tonight, when the automobile in which they were riding from Birmingham to Montgomery turned over about a quarter of a mile south of this place.

Mr. Dirimeyer sustained a broken arm and other minor injuries, while Mrs. Dirimeyer is suffering from bruises on her head and possible internal injuries.

It is said that the accident occurred while traveling at a low rate of speed, the machine becoming unmanageable when the steering gear gout out of order. It is said the machine was not traveling at a higher rate of speed than ten miles an hour at the time, and it is thought that had it been traveling at a high rate of speed, the accident would have been much more serious. The machine was badly wrecked.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

John Chalker says he has been permanently healed of the "quizz fever."

Libbie Mckee stayed away from school Monday to look over the things she got at Kresses while in Birmingham Saturday.

The girls have not done much in their athletics for the past week, on account of the disagreeable weather and the grounds not having been in readiness.

The zoology class has succeeded in collecting a number of specimens for the museum, such as snakes, grasshoppers, mosquito doctors, crickets etc. Arden Allen has proved to be somewhat of a snake charmer.

Each grade has named the following pupils as correspondents to the "High School News" for their respective classes: Freshmen, Tom Chalker and Sybel McDonald; Sophomore, Clyde Williams and Fannie Vance; Junior, Arden Allen and Madge Cooper.

The Boys Literary Society had a very promising meeting Monday evening. A name was selected for the club viz. "The Websterean Society." The choosing of the motto was carried over till next meeting. The committee for that purpose submitted a written constitution and By-laws before the meeting which was adopted. Mr. McDonald and Mr. Wood were at the meeting and gave some very inspiring advice concerning the management of the club.

The boys thank Mr. Wood very much for postponing his foot ball practice until the society was over.

It is hoped that before long The Websterian will be able to deliver a nice program in the auditorium, when its friends will be invited out.

Miss Bibb's art class is doing some very nice work in that line. They expect to have a fine exhibit at the fair next week.

Prof. Tinsley has begun the practice of a Japanese operetta, by Paul Bliss, which will be given between now and Xmas.

The girls have been trying their hand at biscuit making in the Domestic Science department.

Cecil Smith of First Year rendered very valuable assistance for an hour Friday evening packing the campus.

The foot ball boys have just received their new uniforms and are practicing every evening. They expect to be ready to challenge the boys of some neighboring high school to a game with them in the near future.

Tom Sessions upon being asked to give the English to a certain tense of "moneo," for some internal cause began to recite the principal parts of "amo." Nothing can serve as a reason for this other than that Tom is in "love".

The entire school was filled with delightful anxiety last Friday evening when it was announced that Dr. J. S. Thomas was going to speak to them the last period. Although the school had not had an opportunity of hearing this gifted speaker but once before, every one knew that he had something to say that would not only entertain but would also be of incalculable help to those desiring advancement in knowledge. In his usual manner Dr. Thomas held the attention of everyone so perfectly that they did not realize that anything else was happening.

Just before the lecture Mr. Tinsley displayed some of his musical genius by delivering a very artistic piano solo.

HIGHWAY PATHFINDERS TRAVERSE CHILTON ROAD

Praise is Given to Chilton's Part of Great Highway

The Highway scouting party traveling from Montgomery to Birmingham, over the Highway, passed through this county on Monday.

At Verbena the pathfinders receivedone of the biggist ovations of the trip. Men, women and children welcomed them. The streets were lined with an enthusiastic crowd.

At Midway the demonstration was also pronounced. All along the routh groups of children at schoolhouses cheered the men in the autos.

The party found the roads principally good from Montgomery to Clanton. The only part of the route that has not been graded and modernly improved is five miles through the corner of Autauga. That county has made arrangements to grade her part of the road some time soon.

The Montgomery party was met at Midway by local good roads men in autos from Clanton, and escorted here for luncheon. They arrived about 12:45 o'clock and after spending an hour sped on their way, accompanied by some Clanton autos along the route through Chilton

Thorsby certainly greeted the Jackson Highway pathfinders with open arms.

Both high schools as well as the large public school turned out and welcomed the scouts.

All the stores were decorated and banners were flying from lots of private houses. and last but not least Prof. J. O. Johnson had his band boys out and gave the pathfinders some fine music.

Thorsby should feel proud of her up-to-date Brass Band, as the scouts claim that Thorsby was the only place between Montgomery and Birmingham that could show a band and produce "Big City" music.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

My connection with the Union-Banner has ceased and Mr. W. M. Wyatt has assumed charge. My best wishes are for the success of the paper and its cause.

OSCE O. BIRD.

In assuming the editorship and management of The Union-Banner, I do not feel that it is necessary to make any long introductory announcement to the people and readers of the paper. I only wish to say that I am glad to be at the head of the paper again, and want to appeal to the people of Clanton and Chilton county to give us the best support possible, and help us to continue to improve the paper, and make it a just and sufficient chronicle to the outside world of the resources and great advantages of our beloved County.

W. M. WYATT.

If you happen to get a few days of good weather, you ought to sow your wheat and oats. Right now is the time.

The late warm weather, and the consequent continued growth of cotton plants is producing a good crop of boll weevils in some sections of the county.

The official compilation of the new Alabama Laws passed by the recent legislature, which appeared in last Saturday's Age-Herald, is a valuable document, and should be preserved by every person who was fortunate enough to obtain a copy.

There are quite a number of subscribers to The Union-Banner, who are in arrears with their subscription to the paper. Are you one of those? If so, we give you an urgent invitation to come around and pay up when you come to the County Fair next week.

Arlie Barber was running for city commissioner of Birmingham and the Birmingham News accused him of voting for Roosevelt in 1912 and of being a Bull Mooser and Mr. Barber beat his opponent, Judge Lane almost two to one. That Roosevelt vote seemed to turn the trick for Barber. Better leave that alone hereafter, Mr. News.—Collinsville Courier.

Has Solid Foundation.

While the South attributes much of the prosperity of the present to the gratifying advance in the price of cotton, and to the increased activity in industrial lines, there are other factors that have a vital bearing upon the situation, not the least of these being the enormous increase in grain production —an increase in which the South shares to an extraordinary extent.

This year the five principal grain crops amount to about 5,827,000,000 bushels, compared to 4,943,000,000 bushels a year ago. This shows an increase approaching a billion bushels, and it is an item of tremendous importance. In handling crops of such magnitude the facilities of the railroads will be taxed, and, at the prevailing prices, which may go higher, the returns to the American farmers will be beyond anything hoped for or dreamed of until now.

It will be seen from this that the prosperity which is becoming so pronounced is based upon a foundation that is as solid as the rock of Gibraltar. Enormous crops selling at maximum prices can mean nothing but prosperity, and when one considers the facts as they present themselves at this time, there can be but one answer, and this is continued improvement in business conditions along all lines.—Birmingham News.

The Press is trying to make the people believe the present little spirit of prosperity is due to the democratic administration. The above from the Birmingham News does not seem to bear the distinguished Press man out in his argument, and The News is a great big democratic paper. We would like for the Press to peruse the above clipping and then tell us wherein The News says anything about Wilson making prosperous times. No, the News knows better.

ESTATE OF MRS. ANNIE OLSON, DECEASED

Deason, Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Ala., notice is hereby given, that all persons having claims against said estate will be required to present the same within the time required by law, or same will be barred.

DEAD ANIMALS MUST BE BURNED OR BURIED

At the recent session of the Alabama legislature, a law was passed requiring the bodies of dead animals to be buried or burned.

The official text of the law is as follows:

"That it shall be the duty of all owners or custodians of animals which die or are killed in their possession or custody, other than such as are slaughtered for food, within 24 hours to cause the bodies of such animals to be burned or buried at least two feet below the surface of the ground, provided that hogs dying with cholera shall be burned. No such burning shall be sufficiently near a residence as to create a nusiance.

"Any person violating this act, either by failure to burn or bury an animal, dying or being killed in his possession or by causing the same to be burned in such proximity to a dwelling, or in such other way as to become a nusiance, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars.

UNION SPRINGS

Rev. Champion filled his appointment here Sunday. He also conducted a Baptismal service Sunday morning, the solemn import of which is emphasized by the poet:

"Crucified to earth forever,
Hence alone to God I live."

Some of our people went up in Dry Valley Sunday to the all day singing at Enon; it was one of the best singings we have attended in quite a while; Miles V. Lawley was chairman. Crowd was large; day lovely. The charming Miss Wallace of Enon directed one lesson. She seems calculated to make a fine director in the songs of Zion. Interest in the songs of Zion in that part is increasing. Had some good talks on music by Messrs. Sessions, Milstead and Rev. Reynolds. The growing interest in music, the abiding love for the truly spiritual side, the growing attachment among people for each other, the progress along so many lines, all point to the approaching beautiful day, when man will know his Creator better, and by knowing Him better will love him.

ALL DAY SINGING.

There will be an all day singing at Mt. Moriah church on the highway one mile west of Wessington the first Sunday in November. All are invited to come and bring your books and well filled baskets. The books to be used are Class Choir. We want good old union singing, those that have books please drop me a card, A. E. Glass, Calera, Ala.

MT. PLEASANT

Our school opened the eighteenth with a fairly good attendance with Prof. G. R. Lewis as principal and Miss Leila Lewis assistant teacher. Every boy and girl everywhere should be in school. They are given minds which need to be trained. They have places in life which they must fill. They may, if you now prepare them, choose the places which they are to fill. If you neglect their education and training some one else will make the selection for them. Let no man tell your boy what he must do, you equip him and let him place himself.

We are sorry to say that Mr. D. W. Lowery's little girl is no better. We hope she will soon begin to improve.

W. A. Blalock spent part of last week with his brother who is in an infirmary in Montgomery

Ed Martin and family were visitors at Marshal Wesson's last week.

Mr. Guy of Marble Valley spent Saturday night and Sunday at D. W. Lowery's.

J. W. Cooper was a visitor at J. A. Lewis' one day last week.

Mrs. B. H. Jones of Mulberry spent Saturday and Sunday with her mother, Mrs. J. J. Culp, who is on the sick list.

Zack Lowery and family, and Robert Littlejohn and family spent Sunday at D. W. Lowery's.

Miss Ella Barrett visited Miss Gracie Duncan Sunday.

The singing at this place Sunday evening was well attended. There will be singing at this place hereafter every second and fourth Sunday afternoon.

CAN BEAT HANDS SHUCKING CORN

At Least He Would Bet So After Being Relieved By Tanlac

"My wife and myself have had stomach trouble, and have both been nervous and all run down. We could not eat anything, and could not sleep at night—regular nervous dyspeptics. We tried many remedies without permanent benefit until we heard of Mr. Cooper and his Tanlac. I got the medicine and we began taking it. We noticed immediate results. We are both greatly improved by Tanlac. We give all credit for our change of health to Tanlac. It is a remarkable medicine.

"I, personally, feel so good that I told my hands a day or two ago that I could beat any of them shucking corn. I meant it, and believe I could have beat 'em all."

The above statement was made by J. A. White, residing on the Leestown Pike, R. F. D. No. 6, near Lexington, Ky.

"Of all the maladies that afflict humanity, chronic dyspepsia, such as Mr. and Mrs. White evidently suffered, is probably the most prevalent", declared G. F. Willis, southern distributer of Tanlac, in commenting upon Mr. White,s statement. Its causes and characteristics" continued Mr. Willis, "are diverse. The most skilled physicians have been unable to cope successfully with this almost universal malady; but mother nature, herself from great naturforests, aided by what I deem the best skill in chemistry, has compounded in her wonderful laboratory the most beneficial remedy ever discovered for this ailment. Hours might be consumed in describing the sufferings, mental and bodily, of the victims of chronic dyspepsia, and their absolute failure heretofore to get relief. A morbid, unreal, whimsical and melancholy condition of mind, aside from the nervous physical sufferings, is the usual state of the average dyspeptic, and life seems scarcely worth the living. Tanlac was designed for the purpose of overcoming this destressing condition, in order that people suffering from this trouble might become like old time people—strong, sturdy and well!".

Over a million bottles of Tanlac have been sold in the last nine months!

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. adv.

All Babies Destined to Great Achievement

To be born is to be great. For there are possibilities in every tiny human infant. And for this reason every one should remember that whatever is done to aid the mother, to relieve her of distresses during her trying months, will surely be of marked benefit to the child.

Among the sterling aids is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend." It is what is called an embrocation. It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in by your own hand guided by your own mind. It makes the muscles pliant, they expand quite naturally and the effect upon the nerves is such that they adjust themselves to the process of expansion so that pain from this source is almost eliminated. Women who use "Mother's Friend" refer to the absence of morning sickness, they are relieved of a great many minor distresses, all apprehension disappears and those peculiar nervous "fidgets" no longer disturb the nights. It is well named "Mother's Friend." Get a bottle today of any druggist. Then at once write for a most entertaining and instructive book for all prospective mothers. Address Bradfield Regulator Co., 705 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

This book explains the physical action of "Mother's Friend," tells why it enforces strength to the muscles and relieves undue strain. It also contains letters of experience from many happy mothers. It is just such a handy little book as every woman will at once recognize as just what she had always wished to read—plain facts about herself. The book is mailed free to any address. Write for it today.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained —ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

Catarrh a Blood Disease S.S.S. Drives It From Your System

Because Catarrh affects the nose and throat, causing sores in the nostrils, stoppage of air-passages and gathering in the throat, it has been common practice to treat Catarrh by lotions, washes and sprays applied to these parts. This mode of treatment is entirely wrong. It cannot give permanent relief, and it is liable to irritate and aggravate the trouble. Catarrh cannot be trifled with. If allowed to run on it will disease the bronchial tubes, settle on the lungs, the stomach—indeed it is a very serious disease. Don't treat it locally. The fact that it causes headaches is proof that it is caused by impure and diseased blood. The one treatment that has proved effective in the treatment of Catarrh is S. S. S., it is the greatest blood purifier and blood tonic known. It relieves the cause of Catarrh by the process of renourishing the blood, renewing its strength and vigor, giving new life to the red blood corpuscles and stimulating the flow so that it has the vitality to throw off the poison and germs from the system. It is literally a blood bath. You quickly feel results. Headaches disappear, the gathering in the throat stops, the nostrils heal—before you hardly realize it you are well. S. S. S. is a natural blood tonic and has proven effective in the treatment of all blood affections. Eczema, tetters, rash, Scrofula. Get S. S. S. at your druggist's. If you need special advice write the S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

EVER SALIVATED BY CALOMEL? HORRIBLE!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe. adv.

WILLIAM M. McDANIEL

The death of this good citizen of Clanton came as a distinct surprise to his many friends on last Wednesday night.

At the time of his death, and for some years past, Mr. McDaniel had lived with his son-in law, Mr. H. M. Simpson. He was a well known and honored citizen, having lived in Chilton county for many years.

Burial services were hnld at the Clanton cemetery on Thursday afternoon in the presence of a large number of mourning relatives and friends.

The Civic Improvement Club will serve lunches for schoool at the Fair grounds next week. We want your patronage—everybody.

Railway Mail Pay

As indicated once before in one of the articles directing attention to the thousands of details involved in the operation of a railroad, the L. & N. must comply with the laws of the United States, the laws of the several States through which it operates, the laws of the several counties of each State, and the laws of the several towns in each county.

Many of the laws which the L. & N. must obey are in conflict with each other. If the L. & N. obeys one law it may disobey another law.

However, conflict of law is not the only difficulty. There are rules and classifications, in freight and passenger service, promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and by the Railroad Commissions of the several States. These rules and classifications relate to every known commodity and character of transportation, from a paper of needles hauled by freight to individual drinking cups in Pullman cars.

One of the most stringent and unfair is the rule relating to Railway Mail Pay promulgated by the Postoffice Department of the Federal Government.

The Department requires the railroads to haul the mails, specifies all the terms and conditions, the number of employes the detail of transfer from one station to another, the time allowed for the various operations, and the compensation for the service.

The expense to the railroads, the earning on the capital invested, the causes for delay, the inability of the railroads to realize on the service—none of these things is taken into consideration.

Not only that, the fluctuation of the volume of mail is not considered. For instance the railroads were not allowed any additional compensation when the Postal Department inaugurated Parcel Post.

That in spite of the fact that Parcel Post served the double purpose of greatly increased expense and reduced revenue for the Railroads. The expenses were increased because of the increased facilities required to handle the increased volume of business, and revenue was reduced in proportion to the reduction made in the Express Business.

The subject is a big one, of vital interest to the people, and to the Railroads. Therefore, a carefully prepared statement has been printed under the caption "WHAT THE RAILWAY MAIL PAY PROBLEM MEANS TO THE RAILROADS", a copy of which will be mailed free of charge to any one interested who will address our Louisville office.

Oil Treatment for Stomach Troubles

A simple prescription made up of a combination of pure vegetable oils is producing wonderful results for sufferers from stomach, liver and intestinal troubles. The remedy, which is said to have originated in France, where it has been used for years by the peasantry, was introduced into this country by George H. Mayr, a leading Chicago druggist, who cured himself of severe stomach, liver and intestinal troubles by its use. Those who have used it say the first dose is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable merit, and that within twenty-four hours the sufferer feels like a new person. This medicine, which has become known as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your letter, and will ship the Blue Stem Wheat at once.

We wish to write in regard to the Blue Stem Wheat, and will say that we have handled this wheat for a number of years, and there is no wheat grown that we can recall, which is as profitable to the producer as this particular wheat. It has a very strong stalk, stands well, has large head and small plump grain, which is very desirable for milling purposes, from the fact that the wheat weighs very heavy, when carried to mill, and millers claim better results from this wheat than any other. We cannot recommend it too highly. In most every case where people have tried this wheat and given it some little attention they find it very desirable, and in most every case they resowed.

Yours truly,

ITEMS OF INTEREST ABOUT THE FAIR

Many Things You will Like to Know About Exhibits on Display.

In telling the story of what a great County Fair we are having here this week, it is meet to give the first and best place of mention to the Agricultural hall. The first point of attraction about this department is its splendid arrangement, the best ever seen at a Fair here before. The next point of interest is the high quality of excellence in the things on exhibit.

The scope takes in all the things which are known to farm life in Chilton County. It is useless to enumerate them All things are represented, and in the very best fashion.

Corn, oats, peas, beans, peanuts, all kinds of vegetables, sugar cane, meats, and hams cured, hay and grains of all kinds, cotton. All these things and many more are to be seen in general and individual exhibits.

Never before has there been seen a finer exhibit of sweet potatoes than are displayed there this time.

The general agricultural exhibits of D. B. Lowe, Mrs. S. E. Bruce, and Oscar Durbin, represent many products of the farm, and are arranged in the most tasty manner.

The exhibits of community fairs of Mineral Springs, Evergreen, and Clanton are a new feature at the big Fair, and deserve special attention.

A thing of especial interest is the pea huller and steam engine which was made on the farm by W. T. Morris of Evergreen community. It is a real working huller, and a real running engine which turns out the work at the rate of 7 bushels per hour.

This agricultural department is a splendid index to Chilton's advancement, and points to the great glad day when our farmers soon shall be feeding themselves at home, and not worrying about the price of cotron.

There are many articles and relics of much interest in the ladies department, which we would like to give special mention, but it is impossible to say it all here. Following are a few items:

A Revolutionary quilt made in 1776 by Mrs. Tom Smith; willed to Mrs. Mary Ray, and she gave it to her daughter, Mrs. John M. Robinson, who now has it in her possession.

A general display of canned fruit by girls up to 15 years old is to be seen, and is of special interest. The booth also contains specimens of needle work by the young girls.

Among the old ladies work we might mention exhibits of Mrs. Frances Allen of Coopers, and Mrs. Maria Littleton. They are different articles of sewing and needle work.

The booth of Miss John Lee Thacker, age 12 years, is remark ably good. It represents splendid accomplishments in sewing, needle work, drawing, etc.

The exhibits of a number of family relics by Mrs. John A. Pool of Thorsby are very unique and interesting. She has a vanity box made in imitation of a book, by her father 30 years ago. A couple of cut glass bottles over a hundred years in her family. A small bottle filled with water 15 years ago.

Splendid work of art is displayed in the exhibits of hand painted china by Miss Annie Hall Bibb.

Mrs. VanDerveer has on exhibit a quilt which is 102 years old.

A show case of needle work and sewing by Mrs. Earle Gowan is to be most highly complimented.

The exhibit of Mrs. W. H. Goodgame, containing sewing specimens, and various kinds of ladies work is very good indeed.

A number of exhibits of pot flowers and boquets have been arranged in the hall of the ladies department, which give fine taste to the scene. Among these about the most remarkable is the extra large fern belonging to Mrs. Joe Gore.

The specimens of art work on display by Miss Bibb's art class of the High School shows splendid advancement by her students fn the art of drawing. A number of pieces are in the exhibit, bearing the names of the pupils who painted them.

MOUNTAIN CREEK MERCHANTS MOVING

Recently there has been so many changes of location as to the business places of Mountain Creek, merchants that it kept the average resident busy to keep up with the busy men. It seemed as if every day was "Moving day" with them.

Mr. Colley fixes up a building on his premises for store purposes and then quietly moves his stock there, so as to be right on the street through which the Western people enter the town. They cannot well pass him.

Then Brady Sims moves down to the stand formerly occupied by Mr. Colley, and Mr. Shipts "steps up" higher and enters the building that Brady vacated.

Next to this stand William Cobern was doing business, he sells out to Mr. Baird and lights out for Birmingham.

Then Mr. Culver who was recently burned out secures some "Washington influence" crowds Mr. Ben Gray at the post office. Grandpa reads the "handwriting on the wall," and then leases the biggest building in the town and bills it chuck full of merchandise and is there bright and early catching customers either going or coming. Two young ladies from Florida rent the old Browning stand and open up with millinery fixings after Mr. Baxley moves into the Shipp building where he sells goods cheap, even if he has to make a shave to bring about trade.

Mr. T. J. Henderson gets the mercantile fever and opens up with a good stock in his building adjoining the post office where he, after making a sale, rewards the purchaser with a prize package. Tom knows how to draw trade and if a purchaser gets away from him without doing business he or she are proof against earnest entreaties.

And, so there you are, if you owe either of these concerns, hunt them up, settle and be the recipient of kind words.

The operators made their escape and have not been located.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The Websterian Society was entertained last Monday evening with a very thrilling debate. The subject discussed was, "The present European war has benefitted the American people." The affirmative was ably discussed by Joe Kanjutzky and Oscar Jones, while those defending the negative were, Omar Reynolds and Arden Allen. Although the affirmative speakers delivered some good thoughts, the negatives won by one point. The speakers on both sides are certainly to be commended for their faithful efforts to win.

Rev. Crumpton, the new pastor of the baptist church, conducted the chapel exercises Monday morning. As is expressed by his preaching, Rev. Crumpton is not only a minister in its full sense, but he also is a man who believes that amusement and sport are essential to the development of a real religious spirit.

The senior class was greatly strengthened this week by the enrollment of Felston Mullins of Stumps Hills. Felston was a member of this class last year and the entire school gladly welcomes him back again.

The high school was represented at the Halloween parties on Friday and Saturday nights.

Tom Sessions says that Woolman's Journal is an advising rather than a loving book.

Miss Lillian Payne has been compelled to discontinue school on account of bad health.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood attended the Alabama-Sewanee foot ball game at Birmingham Saturday.

Felston Mullins says he is going to learn everything that everybody else does not. Felts may find that that will be a good deal to learn.

The principal attended the Evergreen Community Fair last Friday. Mr. McDonald reports that he was greatly amused at the various exhibits at that reception.

Miss Harris went to Montgomery Saturday and stayed over Saturday night to see "The Light that Never Failed" played.

Mr. McDonald has been warning some of the boys not to work too hard this week just on account of the fair being in town.

Reuben Lowe is back in school again after being absent for a week on account of sickness. Some say that Rube got sick on singing the other Sunday at Cooper.

The seniors met last Thursday evening and selected their motto, colors and flower. The following was decided upon:—motto, "Astra Castra, Numen Lumen"; colors, black and gold; flower, yellow rose.

Wilburt Hayes was among the campus packers last Friday.

The enrollment of the high school now is 135 in the literary department. Taking into account all who take the various secondary tranings, the total is 150. Practically all the districts of the county are represented.

Mary—"I wonder where Mr. Tinsley is this morning? He is always present at chapel time every day."

Tommie—"Do you see the chrysanthemun on the stage next to the piano? Well, he's behind that."

Miss Annie Gragg has made the modern geometricians ashamed of themselves. She has discovered geometrical process that has never before been thought of, namely:—abstracting the square root of a triangle.

Come on out to the county fair the rest of this week and lend your help to a nood cause. The maeagement is doing a freat deal toward the advancement of agricultural conditions in our county, and you should lend your help by coming.

Read the proclamation of the Governor published in this issue. The special election will be held on Dec. 27th, and you should inform yourself in regard to the mafter.

Quite a jest has been made of Mr. Conway's hog exhibit at the fair. It is a couple of old fashioned razor back piney woods rooters. But in it we see a valuable comparison, and in spite of the joke there is some good to be gotten from it.

Those razor backs are scarce now, and it is good to have them on hand to compare with the for better breeds which are now so numerous, and note the progress that has been made. The day of the piney woods rooters in Chilton is past. His place is taken by the finest breeds of Berkshires, Duroc Jersey, Poland China etc.

Live Stock at the County Fair.

There are dozens of splendid and creditable exhibits of cattle and horses.

The registered Aberdeen-Angus bull belonging to J. N. Dennis is on exhibition, and a finer specimen of his kind is not easily found.

Johnnie Mims's registered Jersey bull, weighing 1360 pounds, is the finest specimen of Jerseys ever seen in our Fair.

The registered Holstein bull belonging to W. D. Spigener will in all probability be a prize winner.

J. G. Wood has a fine Jersey heifer on exhibition.

N. J. Calloway has a splendid colt and mare which will bid high for the honors.

The young stallion belonging to Job Mims will push well toward the top rank for a prize.

Others who have fine exhibits of cattle and live stock are J. D. Collins, colt; W. T. Pearson, Percheron stallion; W. M. Pool, mare and colt; Mr. Leeper of Thorsby, W. C. Burnett, stallion; J. L. Hayes, mare and colt; W. M. Price, mare and colt; a fine percheron stallion from Montevallo, weighing 1600 lbs.

The department of poultry this time is exceptionally good and above the average.

A curiosity in this section is the big red rooster, with a double set of spurs and twelve toes.

An exhibit of fox squirrels is placed to the credit of Theodore Gore of the Mineral Springs school.

All kinds of fine poultry is represented here, and it is useless to go into details in mentioning them.

The department which is devoted to the colored people, under direction of Isaiah Smith and Ben Brown, is really creditable. The arrangement is all that could be desired, and the quality of the of the exhibits ranks in the class with the other things at the fair.

All the products of the farm are in display.

The individual exhibit of womens work by Mollie Price is splendid.

Exhibits of cooking, canned fruits, cured meats, vegetables, fruits and many other things are to be seen in the nogro department.

Our colored people should not feel ashamed of their department at the fair this time; it is indeed good and creditable, and it is to be hoped that this department will inspire them toward better farming, better living, and useful lives in general.

The judges for the different departments are as follows:

Agricultural—S. L. Chesnutt of Montevallo.

Live Stock—T. J. Watt, of Auburn, assisted by the demonstration agent of Autauga county.

Ladies Department—Miss Sarah Conway of Lafaytte; Miss Charlie Conway of Birmingham.

Poultry—Dr. Halsted of Birmingham.

PROCLAMATION

By the Governor

NOTICE OF ELECTION ON AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION.

Notice is hereby given that under and by authority of an Act of the Legislature, approved September 22, 1915, the Governor of Alabama has issued the following proclamation and notice of the election, together with the proposed amendment, to-wit:

Whereas, by section 2 of an act entitled an act to propose and submit to the qualified electors of the State of Alabama at an election to be held on the first Monday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the present session of the Legislature at which this amendment is proposed, an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama whereby the city of Birmingham may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein not exceeding in the total in any one year one and one-half percentum of the value of such property assessed as provided by the Constitution and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution, but provided that the total rate of taxation levied by said city shall not in any one year exceed one per centum, unless the rate in excess thereof shall have been submitted to and authorized by ballot by the qualified electors of said city at elections to be held from time to time for such purpose, and to provide for such elections.

Said act being approved September 22nd, 1915. It was made my duty as Governor by section 2 of said act to give notice by proclamation to be published in one newspaper in each county in the State at least eight successive weeks next preceding the said election on the amendment proposed by this act to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State for their consideration, together with the proposed amendment, but before making such proclamation that I, as Governor, should ascertain the cost of publishing the notice as herein required, and should certify the amount of such costs so ascertained by me to the governing body of the city of Birmingham, and thereupon the governing body of the city of Birmingham should pay or cause to be paid into the State treasury the sum of money so certified to them by me, as Governor, for the purpose of paying the cost of publication of the notice required by this act, and

Whereas, I, as Governor, have ascertained the amount of the costs as required by said act, and the same has been paid into the State treasury as therein required, and

Whereas, by section 1 of the said act an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama is herein set out as proposed to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State of Alabama for their consideration at an election to be held on the first Monday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the Legislature of Alabama.

Now, therefore, I, Charles Henderson, Governor of the State of Alabama, in compliance with the statutes of the State of Alabama, do hereby declare and order that an election be held in the various voting precincts in the State of Alabama on Monday, December 27th, 1915, at which time the qualified electors of this State shall vote for or against the adoption of the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, to-wit:

"The city of Birmingham may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total in any one year, one and one-half per centum of the value of such property, assessed as provided by the Contsitution, and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution. But provided that the total rate of taxation levied by the city of Birmingham shall not, in any one year, exceed one percentum per annum unless the rate in excess of one per centum for such year, shall have been submitted by the governing body of said city to the qualified voters of said city, at an election held within such year, or within three years prior to the beginning of such year, and shall have been authorized for such year by the majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of said city voting upon such proposition. And an increase in the rate of taxation, in excess of one per centum per annum, may be authorized at one election for one year, or for two or three successive years, and if, for more than one year, at the same or different excess rates for the respective years. In the event an excess rate submitted for any year or years shall not be so authorized at any election, a new lower excess rate for such year or years may be submitted by the governing body of said city to the qualified voters of said city for like authorization at a subsequent election or elections held at any time or times thereafter. Each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed, and contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by law, applicable to said city, for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. Ballots used at such election shall contain the words 'For_____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____: and 'Against _____excess rate of taxation for the year (or years)_____' The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one percentum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor; and, in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years, the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different excess rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown, by placing a cross-mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in anywise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said city heretofore issued."

That at said election on the amendment proposed the qualified electors of the State shall vote upon said amendment and on the official ballots printed for said election there shall be printed the following, i. e.: "Shall the following be adopted as an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama?" (Here set out the amendment as above written). Following the proposed amendment as set out upon the ballot shall be printed the word "Yes" and immediately under that shall be printed the word "No." The choice of the electors shall be indicated by a cross-mark made by him or under his direction opposite the word expressing his desire.

It is further ordered and proclaimed that the officers to hold such election shall be the same and shall be appointed in the same manner and by the same officials as provided by the election laws of the State for officers to hold general elections in this State, and that the election shall be held in all things in accordance with the general law governing elections and with the constitutional provisions concerning amendments to that instrument.

It is further ordered and proclaimed that the votes cast at such election shall be counted, canvassed and tabulated and returned to the Secretary of State in the manner as in elections for Representatives to the Legislature; and if it shall there upon appear that a majority of the qualified electors who voted at such election upon the proposed amendment voted in favor of the same, such amendment shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution of Alabama. The result of such election shall be made known by proclamation of the Governor.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol in the city of Montgomery, on this the 25th day of October, 1915.

ITEMS ABOUT THE BIG COUNTY FAIR

Harry Toksvig, of New York, whose parents live at Thorsby, has a number of paintings of especial interest, showing masterful ideas.

That part of the ladies work which pertains to cooking, and good things to eat, is full represented. Splendid specimens in this line are on exhibit by a number of individuals.

All sorts of canned fruits, dried and otherwise are to be seen in profusion.

A special booth is allotted to the work of the girls tomato club of the county, under direction of Mrs. Nellie D. Shaw.

And last but not least, we come to the woman suffrage booth. Here special accommodations have been provided for visitors, such as seats to rest the weary, telephone service free to the busy, and literature pertaining to the suffrage movement for the—whoever wants to read. The booth is prepared and under the direction of the Clanton Suffrage Club, and is a credit to their interest and enterprise in their cause.

In a separate hall, the civic clubs have prepared a rest room for the ladies. This is a new feature of the Fair, but it may truly be said that it is the most valuable asset on the grounds. Many of the conveniences so much needed at such a place, and which are more often sadly evidenced by their absence, are provided for the comfort of women and children.

If there is any department in the Fair which does not do full credit to Chilton county, it is in the exhibit of hogs. There are a number to be seen, and some mighty good ones too, but this part of the collection does not do our farmers full justice. There are some much finer hogs in this county than those on exhibit.

All Babies Destined to Great Achievement

To be born is to be great. For there are possibilities in every tiny human infant. And for this reason every one should remember that whatever is done to aid the mother, to relieve her of distresses during her trying months, will surely be of marked benefit to the child.

Among the sterling aids is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend." It is what is called an embrocation. It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in by your own hand guided by your own mind. It makes the muscles pliant, they expand quite naturally and the effect upon the nerves is such that they adjust themselves to the process of expansion so that pain from this source is almost eliminated. Women who use "Mother's Friend" refer to the absence of morning sickness, they are relieved of a great many minor distresses, all apprehension disappears and those peculiar nervous "fidgets" no longer disturb the nights. It is well named "Mother's Friend." Get a bottle today of any druggist. Then at once write for a most entertaining and instructive book for all prospective mothers. Address Bradfield Regulator Co., 705 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

This book explains the physical action of "Mother's Friend," tells why it enforces strength to the muscles and relieves undue strain. It also contains letters of experience from many happy mothers. It is just such a handy little book as every woman will at once recognize as just what she had always wished to read—plain facts about herself. The book is mailed free to any address. Write for it today.

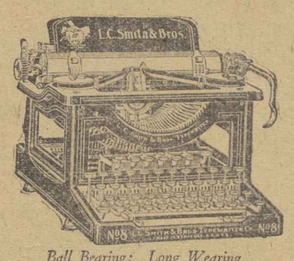
The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.



Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

Cleanse The Blood Banish Rheumatism

Rheumatism Due to Bad Blood. S. S. S. Your Remedy

Thousands have been made well. People in the poorest health, suffering from Rheumatism, with whom pain was constant. Who believed that their vitality was sapped beyond repair. It was proven to them that the cause of their trouble was the blood; that Uric Acid, the most faithful ally of Rheumatism, had gripped them. The poison in the blood had sapped its strength. The weakened blood had allowed poison and impurities to accumulate, and all energy was gone. They felt "poorly," were listless, pain was ever present, with poor digestion and dyspepsia. They tried S. S. S.,—nature's blood tonic. They gave up drugs. This compound of nature's remedies of roots and herbs did what drugs failed to do. It literally washed the blood free from poison, and with the flow of pure blood came back health, strength, vigor and happiness. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. Insist upon S. S. S. If yours is a long standing case, write for special advice to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga., but begin taking S. S. S. at once.

CHIEF ENGINEER GAINS 40 POUNDS

Almosv lost Hope of Getting Well---Takes Tanlac And Feels Fine Now

"Tanlac to my mind is the greatest and grandest medicine in the world", said O. H. Mahaffy, Chief Engineer of the Life and Casualty Bldg., Nashville, a few days ago.

"I have taken eight bottles" he continued, "and have actually gained forty pounds in weight, and feel stronger and better than I haye in tweniy five years.

"For two years I have suffered with the worst kind of stomach trouble and indigestion, and felloff in weight from 210 pounds to 162. I am now back at 202, which is almost as much as I weighed before I was taken sick. About six months ago I got awful bad off, and called in the doctor and he told me I had an ulcer of the stomach, and if I was not careful it might turn into cancer. He gave me some medicine. I didn't seem to get any better, and was afraid to eat anything except a little oat-meal and sweet milk, but in spite of everything I could do, I just kept going down hill, and got weaker and weaker every day. I got so disheartened one day I told my employer it looked like I would have to throw up my job. I was trying to hold on tho' as long as I could, for I had a family to support, and I had made up my mind that just as long as I could drag myself around I would stick it out.

"One day my wife told me what she had read in the papers, and what the neighbors were saying about Tanlac, and begged me to try it. She had read about a man who had taken it, who described my case exactly, and he was getting lots better, but I had tried all kinds of medicines, so I didn't have much hope of it doing me much good. Besides, my doctor had already me I would have to be operated on in order to get 'relief. Something just told me tho' it might help me, and I decided to try it.

"After I had taken it a day or two I got so hungry I just simply had to eat, and did eat, and you can believe me or not, nothing seemed to hurt me a particle. My wife said to me 'Tanlac must be helping you' and I said I guess it is from the way I am eating.

"It wasn't long before those awful pains in my stomach and the small of my back began to leave me. Then I noticed I began to sleep better, and I would get up in the mornings full of life and ready to work. This medicine seemed to take hold quicker than anything I ever saw, and braced me right up. I am telling all my friends about Tanlac, and hope everybody will hear about it."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton, exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. adv.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your letter, and will ship the Blue Stem Wheat at once.

We wish to write in regard to the Blue Stem Wheat, and will say that we have handled this wheat for a number of years, and there is no wheat grown that we can recall, which is as profitable to the producer as this particular wheat. It has a very strong stalk, stands well, has large head and small plump grain, which is very desirable for milling purposes, from the fact that the wheat weighs very heavy, when carried to mill, and millers claim better results from this wheat than any other. We cannot recommend it too highly. In most every case where people have tried this wheat and given it some little attention they find it very desirable, and in most every case they resowed.

Yours truly,

No Wonder This Model Has Outsold Any Car of Its Size Ever Been Designed

EVERY single feature which one would expect to find in a thoroughly high-grade car is embodied in this Overland.

No comfort is lacking—no convenience is unprovided.

It has even that ultra-convenience of the very high-priced cars—electrical switches located on the steering column.

Warning signal, magneto switch, dash-light, tail-light, head-light and dimming switches are all right at your hand—arranged so that you cannot miss or confuse them.

It also has that certainty of ignition provided only by high tension magneto.

It has the comfortable, easy riding qualities provided by wide, roomy seats with sott yielding upholstery built over long spiral springs.

It has long underslung rear springs and large four-inch tires to add further to its easy riding qualities.

It has the same easy acting clutch and the same thirty-five horsepower motor which made previous Overlands famous.

But as this is a lighter car there is even more reserve power.

There is roomy comfort for its full quota of five adult passengers.

The lines of its streamline body are pleasing from every angle.

It has a beautiful, lustrous finish.

In its performance—its convenience—its comfort—its roominess—its beauty, you will take justifiable pride.

And the price is only $750.

This is the car which has outsold anything of its size ever designed.

Fifty thousand sold to date.

THE INDUCEMENT WE OFFER

We do not give something for nothing. No merchant can do that and continue in business. We do not sell goods below cost. You would not do that yourself if you were a merchant. We do not advertise to do either of these things. For we advertise to do only that which we faithfully accomplish.

But we do advertise to give you the best and biggest dollar's worth of goods for a dollar of any house in this town. And we give what we advertise. We do advertise to give you the best service of any house in this town, and we give what we advertise. We do advertise that we will treat you exactly as we like to be treated when we go elsewhere to buy goods we do not handle. And we do exactly as we advertise.

That is all we can promise you. But we give what we promise.

BOTTLING WORKS IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Between ten and eleven o'clock Saturday, night the town was shaken by a terriffic explosion, and instantly thereafter it was observed that the plant of the Clanton Bottling Works, occupying the Fox building on 6th street, was a mass of flames. The plant and building were totally destroyed before the water works could be put into action, but valuable service was rendered by the local fire company in preventing a spread of the flames.

This is the second time that the plant of the Bottling company has been destroyed by fire within a year. It was owned and operated by Mr. J. P. Morrow.

DEATH AND BURIAL OF MRS. WILLIE ANNA HAPGOOD

On Sunday morning Mrs. Willie Anna Hapgood aged 73 years, wife of Veteran R. Hapgood, died in her cottage at the Alabama Old Soldiers Home, and was buried in the Soldiers Home cemetery on Sunday afternoon. Capt. J. M. Simpson conducted the funeral service, assisted by Mr. S. J. Andress and Mrs. Roberta Mitchell, of Montgomery, who led the singing.

The hymns, "Nearer my God to Thee," and "Asleep in Jesus," were rendered in such an impressive manner that tears came trickling down the cheeks of some of the old veterans present. The singing was participated in by a large number of the veterans and visitors who had been attending a religious service in the auditorium where the Rev. J. D. Rudd delivered a forcible historical sermon, after which the congregation went to the cemetery.

Mrs. Hapgood is the second old lady to have been buried in the Home cemetery.

The attendance at the burial was large and the ceremony as rendered by Capt. Simpson very impressive.

Mrs. Hapgood was a good religious old lady and was an adherent to the Catholic faith.

UNION SPRINGS

Corn, cane and potato crops are being harvested in this part, the yield is good, still times are dull. A merchant said the other day "cotton is a good price," but times are dull.". Had it not been for the war where would we have been today with the high cost of living ever present?

The singing here Sunday p.m. was good.

Mr. Herr, of the I. B. S. Association, lectured in this part the night of the 2nd inst, to a good audience. Subject was the transformation of the christian as he with unveiled face beholds, as in a mirrow, the glory of the Lord. He was quite lucid in showing the veil to be the human or fleshey will, and while thus veiled with preconceived opinions. human creeds etc. man could not be transformed, but would be in his own light doing no good. Otherwise with his face unveiled he could get God's thoughts and like the eagle as he soars beyond human sight into the ethereal blue he could beat the upper air that portrayed God's holy ones as they like the eagle going alone were going up, up, up, far above the storms of this life. He further said the war in the East came in 1914 at the close of Gentile times, and since then it hac been continual fighting and would result in those nations final overthrow, and following the war would be the great earthquake of Revelation. Not the shaking of this planet, but the shaking of organized society, his thought was that our own America would be kept under wings for awhile yet. He alluded to the true church now, as pictured in the life Elijah and Elisha just before their seperation, that those holy ones gathered home would share in giving blessings to the distressed and fallen obedient people. He is a man of fine intelligence and a good speaker. He came here from Sylacauga, was going to Selma and other points South.

Mr. Weeks the Randolph photographer was here last week.

THORSBY POST OFFICE BURNED MONDAY NIGHT

A fire which for a time threatened to wipe out the business section of Thorsby east of the railroad, was discovered in the post office building, owned by the postmaster, Mr. Walter M. Parnell, about one o'clock Tuesday morning, supposed to have started from an oven in the Bakery of J. P. Busenlehner, who occupied a part of the building.

The entire stock and equipment of the post office, the bakery, and a barber shop together with the building were a total loss. Insurance was carried but the amount has not been ascertained.

Only strenous efforts on the part of citizens, who formed a bucket brigade, saved Thorsby Inn, Norton's candy factory, Diefenderfer's restaurant and Bice's residence, all of which were within 100 feet of the burning building. The post office will be located, at least temporarily in Parnell's store west of the railroad.

The State Conference of the Congregational Churches of Alabama will be held at Thorsby Nov. 11-14. Many prominent workers in this denomination within and outside the State are expected to be present and take part in the deliberations.

MANAGER GILBERT RECEIVES PROMOTION

While it is with much regret that Clanton gives up Mr. H. J. Gilbert, who for over two years has been manager of the Western Union Telegraph office here, it is with gratification that his friends learn of his promotion at the hands of his company,

The two years that Mr. Gilbert has been in Clanton has shown his remarkable business ability, and made him friends of all with whom he has had dealings.

He has conducted the affairs of his office in a straightforward and corteous manner, and it is with both pride and regret that we see him outgrow the job here and step up to a higher one.

He goes to Demopolis to take charge of the Western Union office there, and will leave Clanton as soon as his successor reaches this city.

EDDIE DUKE DEVISES PEA DROPPER

Last week Mr. Eddie Duke, a young farmer living about five miles east of Clanton, called around to our office and exhibited a pea dropping machine, which is his own invention. It is a clever trick, which will drop peas in hills of from six to eight in number. It is accurate in its work, and is a great advantage over the old method of guessing at the number of peas you put in a hill. Mr. Duke deserves credit for perfecting this useful little machine, He is making efforts to secure a United States patent for his invention.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The streets of Clanton resounded with merriment and joy last Saturday morning, when a string of high school pupils, about a hundred yards long, marched through from the County High school building to the Fair grounds. As this merry making party passed by the houses on the streets waving their flags and bearing their colors, the front porches were covered with anxious spectators, sharing with the pupils in their glee and cheer. When the crowd reached the Fair grounds, they were met at the gate by the band, from whence they marched, with large crowds following, to the Educational booth, in the front of which a large circle was formed. In this position all the pupils joined in singing "America." After cheers were yelled for the C. C. H. S. the flags were pinned in the front of the tent, and the crowd dispersed, some going in one direction and some in another.

The Websterian Society held its regular meeting Monday evening, when a nice program was rendered consisting of readings, jokes, etc. Mr. Wood was present and gave an interesting talk.

The number of campus packers has increased to six. Wallace Jones is among those who attend regularly every Friday evening.

Miss Bibb's art class won the first prize for the best collection of drawing at the county fair.

The junior class organized last Thursday evening, electing the following officers: President, Joe Kanjutzky; Vice President, Kathleen Mullins; Secretary, Dewey Rockett; Treasurer, Henry Lee Payne. The president then appointed committees for selecting motto, colors, and flowers.

Reuben Lowe was riding his girl on the ferris wheel at the fair last week, when the girl's father came and took her out. Rube told the man that if he didn't let him ride with the girl, he had to have his dime back.

There was no school after Tuesday this week on account of the Chilton County Teachers' Institute occupying the building for those days.

Izora Callen found the area of a triangle to be one gallon, the other day.

The student body of the High School will increase as soon as the L. & N. replaces the local accommodations. Several students from neighboring towns have made arrangements to enter then.

The athletic boys are beginning their basket ball practice.

We are mailing out notices this week to all our delinquent subscribers. If you happen to be the recipent of one of these, we want you to be sure and remember us when you come to town, and come around and pay up. Please don't expect us to send you the paper always without your paying some on it at least occasionly. It takes money to run this business, and it isn't a bit fair for a fellow to take this paper for two or three years, and make us wait all that time for our money. If some of those whom we have been crediting for a year would come around and see us, pay up their past dues, and then step out ahead for a year, then we would be able to give everybody a bigger and better paper, and it would be more worth your time and money. Now do not pass this idly by. Rake up a dollar and come around to see us. You can afford to pay it, and we need it.

And now comes Scott Chestnut, a candidate for City Commissioner of Birmingham. We, together with his many friends in Clanton, hope he gets elected.

Since the elections last week in the east, it is thought that less will be heard of the boom of Senator Root of New York for President, and more be said of Weeks of Massachusetts and Burton of Ohio.

In New Jersey the recent elections show that the Progressives have gone back to the Republican party, with the intention to control it and make it progressive. The result gave a great increase in republican strength in state legislature.

The following facts look good to us: The increase of the 1915 grain crops in Alabama over the crops of 1914 is as follows: Corn, 1,300,000 bushels; wheat 600,000; oats, 1,300,000; and sweet potatoes, 1,000,000. And there are no "bill bugs" to pesticate us in the production of these things.

The result of recent elections in the eastern states all taken together shows that in 1916 the presidental election will be settled by the Progressive party. If that party maintains a separate existence, names its candidate and makes a vigorous campaign, the democrats will profit by it; if they do what they did in New Jersey and Massachusettes the standpat Republicans will profit by it. It is up to the Progressives of the country to choose between the parties in the coming presidental election.

The growing of grain in Chilton connty is no longer an experiment. The many splendid exhibits of wheat at the county fair last week showed conclusively that home-raised Chilton biscuit is no longer a vague and uncertain probability. Any farmer who wants it can get it for a bit of effort. and the value of the proposition greatly exceeds what it takes to secure it. Now while this favorable weather is on, you should be putting your grain into the ground. Then when the bad, wet days of late winter come on, and it looks as if spring will never get here, you may rest contented and smoke your old cob pipe in peace, knowing that your bread for next year is all the time growing as the cold rain falls.

LEGAL NOTICE.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 1, 1915.

Hon. H. A. Harris, Sheriff of Chilton County, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

No U. S. Internal Revenue License has been issued to your County in October, 1915.

Yours very truly,

Sam P. Jones.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of Nov. 1915.

Alabama Owes $3,172,607.

Alabama had outstanding and unpaid obligations November 1 of $3,162,607.49 and had only $91,364 in the treasury and in state depositories. The financial condition of the state was shown in these figures compiled by W. L. Lancaster, state treasurer, and M. C. Allgood, state auditor, and released Saturday night. Not since Alabama began to suffer the annual deficits several years ago has the total deficit gone to three million dollars, but it has done so this time with $71,243.79 to spare.

The outstanding warrants November 1 amounted to $5,423,246.49. A New York Bank holds Governor Hendeson's note for $300,000, the amount which the governor is authorized by the constitution to borrow. The third obligation which constitutes the state's unpaid obligations is $440,361 which is due to the public school teachers and which cannot be paid until about December 1 because of the depleated condition of the treasury.

At the beginning of November, 1914, the state had outstanding obligations amounting to $2,016,848.16 and had $70,573.23 in the treasury and in depositories of the state. Thus the actual deficet of the state at at the beginning of November, 1914, was $1,946,269.93 or $1,124,973.56 less than the deficet now.

Only a bond issue can put the state within the bonds of financial reason, according to state officials. However, little is being said about the proposed constitutional amendment which will be voted upon January 18. Each side seems to be waiting for the other to act. Developments during the past few days indicate that there will be no organized opposition to the bond issue by those who were leaders of the opposition to Governor Henderson in the last democratic primaries.

For several days it has been said that a state-wide campaign committee would be organized for the purpose of submitting the issue to the people and telling them the necessity for the bond issue. The reports have gone so far as to say that John Gamble of Troy, close personal and political friend of Governor Henderson, would be chairman of the committee, but nothing seems to have been done. Governor Henderson believes the bond issue is absolutely necessary. Even if the voters should authorize the issuance of $1,500,000 worth of short term bonds, the amount proposed, Governor Henderson would have outstanding obligations amounting to more than $1,500,000, which he would have to protect in some other way during his administration. Of course it should not be figured that the year-around deficit of the state is above the three million dollar mark. The state is just entering the tax year and collections during the next few months will be far greater than the expenditures. However the deficit is greater by long odds than the amount which Governor Henderson would protect by an insuance of bonds.—Montgomery Journal.

Robinson's Famous Shows

Out of the ordinary are many of the things to be seen with Robinson's Famous Shows, which will exhibit at Montgomery, Ala.

To mention a few, there is "White Cloud," the famous $25,000 Arabian stallion, known as the best educated horse in the world. Major Littlefinger and wife, smallest pair of human adults living. The Aztec Marimba Band, from Central America. The "jinx," a strange and yet unclassified animal from Natal. Great herd of gigantic performing elephants are truly wonderful. Famous Crton Family of bareback riders.

In every department of the great show you will see striking evidence that the whole world has been gleaned for real pictures.

Letters to The Editor.

Clanton, Ala., Nov. 8, 1915.

Editor Union-Banner:—I want to say a few words about the elections that were held on the 2nd inst. in the northern and north-eastern states. The results of the elections up there show that the republicans will elect the president next year by the largest majority ever.

The people are tired of the high cost of liying and many other things that have happened to them under the present democracy. Let every republican begin to unite now so that we can redeem our state from under its present control.

L. O. Vickers.

Verbena, Ala., Nov. 8, 1915

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to reply to Mr. G. C. Weldon on woman suffrage in last week's Press. We do not get the Press so will reply through our dear old county paper. Mr. Weldon your letter was good, but I think you should have spoken more politely of our sisters, whom you choose to call "Old Maids." I have always felt we owe the highest regards to those who are willing to fight lifes battles alone, rather than be unequally yoked.

A few words to our correspondents. Lets discuss all subjects in a common sense, brotherly way, for we are all brothers and sisters in the cause for better government.

Mrs. N. J. Jones.

Why People Read The Advertisements.

Suddenly ask twenty people why they read the advertisements in this paper every week, and fifteen out of the twenty will probally hesitate and stammer, and become more or less embarassed before they can call to mind the real reason why they read the ads.

People buy this paper and read it for two very simple reasons—they want to know the news of their home community, and they want to know of the commercial advantages that are placed before them each week in its advertising columns.

This paper goes out each week to an enlightened people—to a people who are accustomed to think and act for themselves - to a people who know exactly what they want, and want to know where they can get it.

Hence, the natural course for them to pursue in their search for information is to turn to the advertising columns of the paper.

The live merchant knows this—recognizes the fact that he is catering to a people of high mental attainments, and shapes his business policy to meet their commercial desires.

Such merchants live and prosper, and grow with the community. Their advertisements are constantly placing the desirability of their goods before the buyer, and the merchant is thus brought into contact with the buyer through the medium of his advertisement.

The information contained in the advertisement saves the buyer in time of chasing from place in search of some article which he stands in need of. It thus becomes a time saver to the buyer, and an impulse which spurs him on to a constant perusing of the advertising pages of the paper.

This habit of reading the ads. is growing upon the people day by day, for the public realizes that it is the one and only sure means of reducing the "killing of time" to a minimum.

These are streneous days, and time is money, and the well written advertisement becomes a thing of great value to the consumer as well as to the seller.

And of late years the consumer has become educated up to the standard of expecting the merchant who wants his trade to talk to him through the medium of his advertisement in the local paper. And the merchant who talks thusly does the business.

Don't forget that dollar you owe the Union-Banner when you come over to court We are needin of it.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE OF ALABAMA SECURES LEGISLATION

The New Law a Boon to All.

In September Governor Henderson signed many bills which had passed the Legislature, but none of more immediate value to all the people than House Bill No. 880, which provides for a State Tuberculosis Commission, whose business it will be to lead the people of the several counties to establish County Hospitals for treatment of consumptives. The Commissioners will serve without pay.

These hospitals are not to be poor houses. They are to be sustained as far as possible by the payments of patients themselves, or of their friends. Only in the case of indigent persons service will be free. The people of the county must themselves demand such an institution before it can be established. But the general dread of the disease is so great that no difficulty is anticipated in securing such a demand.

To meet the expense of promoting such movements through the Commission, the Anti-Tuberculosis League proposes to sell two and a half million Red Cross Seals. This will take care of local institutions through large sales in the chief centers of population and give the League funds to aid the Commission in a State-wide movement for County Hospitals.

Money spent on Red Cross Seals this year is therefore a direct aid to local sufferers.

Sewing Circle With Much Whispering

Before the stork arrives there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic. And there is sure to be someone who has used or knows of that splendid external help, "Mother's Friend." It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in and has a most pronounced effect as a lubricant. It soothes the network of nerves, enables the muscles to expand naturally, relieves strain on the ligaments and thus sets at ease any undue strain on the organs involved. And it does this with perfect safety. Expectant mothers thus go through the ordeal with comparative ease and comfort. Knowing mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" speak in glowing terms of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and a freedom from many other distresses.

One of the most important symptoms to be relieved by "Mother's Friend" is the imagination that so often disturbs repose. Pains, even though natural, may so distort the mind that undue apprehension will sometimes follow. The gentle, soothing influence of "Mother's Friend" gives the mind substantial aid to become conscious of strength and there is a real, physical sensibility of muscular vigor as evidenced by freedom from undue strain.

You can get "Mother's Friend" at any drug store or they will gladly get it for you. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 701 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book of great value to all expectant mothers. It contains a valuable expectancy chart, rules on diet and is brimful of suggestions that all women will appreciate.

REMARKABLE PROGRESS AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

A remarkable reduction in the death rate from Consumption is noticed in the reports of the Health Departments of our larger cities. Dr. R. M. Cunningham, Health Officer of Birmingham, shows that the past six years have witnessed a reduction even among the negroes of about forty per cent, while a large reduction has been effected also among the white people. Dr. Cunningham connects the decrease of fatal tuberculosis in large measure to the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association of Jefferson County, which carries on a Sanatorium on Red Mountain, extensive educational work, and above all, an effective dispensary and visiting nurse system. A similar showing is made by the Montgomery League.

The income of these organizations has been greatly increased by the annual sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals in their respective counties. It is hoped that every County will soon have its own organization working towards the employment of a visiting nurse, a free clinic, and a County Hospital.

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND MAKES YOU SICK

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you lose a day's work

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it does not make you sick and can not salivate.

Childred and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is verfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liuer Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you. adv

PROPERTY

Property is the evidence of a sacred thing. It is therefore entitled to every protection consistent with fairness.

Property is the tangible result of the work, the patience, the self denial, the love and determination of men to protect their families against want.

Property represents the strivings of men to create, to develop, to utilize their talents and to leave the world richer and better because of their strivings.

Civilization has taken note of these things and ideals born centuries ago and carefully developed have engendered a contempt in the minds of honest men for the man who obtains property through dishonest means.

Civilization recognizes property rights and the obligation to protect those rights.

The L. & N. talks of these things because the L. & N. is a great property, representing the savings, the sacrifices, the self-denial, the protection of families of thousands of men.

These men, who worked and earned and saved in other lines of business were willing to invest their savings in building and developing the L. & N. because they had an abiding faith in the protection of property rights by the civilized community served by the L. & N.

The L. & N. is secure in the belief that this great property which seeks only to pay a fair return on the investment will at all times receive the protection of a majority of the people.

In order to earn a fair return on the investment the L. & N. must continue to render prompt and entirely satisfactory service at reasonable rates, at the same time co-operating with the people for the development of the rich natural resources of the territory.

This the L. & N. will do, and on that basis solicits the patronage of traveler and shipper.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

Great Old Remedy For Skin Diseases

S. S. S. Clears Skin of Eruptions Drives Poison From the System.

Get it fixed in your mind that skin eruptions, Scrofula, Eczema, burning itching skin, and all skin diseases are due entirely to impure and infected blood. If the trouble was on the outside of the skin, by simply washing and keeping it clean you could obtain relief — not even ointments, lotions, and salves, would be necessary. Agree with us in this belief, and your trouble can be relieved—you can be entirely restored to health. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable treatment that you can secure from your own druggist—it is a blood tonic that will purify your blood and cause a most decided abatement of your trouble, and finally make you entirely well. Fifty years ago S. S. S. was discovered and given to suffering mankind. During this period it has proven its remarkable curative properties as a blood purifier and tonic, and has relieved thousands of cases of disease caused by poor or impure blood, and chronic or inherited blood diseases. You can be relieved, but you must take S. S. S. Take it if only pimples appear, for they denote bad blood, and may be followed by the sufferings from torturing skin eruptions. Therefore be sure. Don't take chances, don't use lotions. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. If yours is a special case, write for expert medical advice to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

EDUCATIONAL WORK OF ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE OF ALABAMA

An extensive Educational Work has been done this year by the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Alabama, especially through the newspapers. Very fine articles, prepared by the most expert minds, and dealing with the causes, signs, and cure of tuberculosis, have been widely distributed through the newspapers of the State. In this the National Association has generously helped.

Lectures have been given at many points by the Secretary. An exhibit has been loaned to the several State and County Fairs, showing the extent of the disease in graphic manner.

The chief work of the year, however, has been the passing of the new Law, providing an effective manner of grappling with this chief cause of sickness and death among the people of Alabama. This law has already been described in these columns.

Red Cross Christmas Seals provide the only source of income for the Alabama Anti-Tuberculosis League.

DECEMBER THE 8TH EXAMINATION DAY

December the 8th has been designated as Examination Day by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Remembering that Tuberculosis is the most common of all deadly diseases, there is evident reason to suppose that very many persons are suffering from it in complete ignorance of what it is that ails them. Hence it is hoped by the National Association and by the State League that doctors everywhere will be willing to make such examinations, either gratis or at special rates, in connection with the observance this year of Tuberculosis Week, December 6th to 12th, particularly on Wednesday, December 8th. It is also hoped that multitudes will go to their doctors and ask for an examination.

There are indeed few people who would not be definitely aided to prolong life by a frank interview with a good physician once a year. It 's this that the National Association 's promoting this year in connection with the Nation-wide Sale of the Red Cross Christmas Seals.

The State Health Department gives a hearty approval of the plan.

MARKET DAY IN CHINESE VILLAGES

Ceaseless Stream of Humanity Presents Unparalelled Opportunities to Christian Evangelists.

One of the greatest places for propagating the gospel is preaching "on the Market" in China says Rev. C. E. Scott. The five day market of the Chinese villages was a venerable institution when our ancestors in the west were still reeking in barbarism.

To this market, held in each of a cycle of villages on every fifth day, come all the peasants and small traders to buy and sell everything conceivable, from unnamable things of questionable age, taken out of the sea, to soiled cotton wadding taken out of worn out clothes, and scraps of leather from cast off shoes. A ceaseless stream of humanity surges through the streets each seeking for gains, and the attempt in general to "do the other fellow." Nowhere else on earth may one so often hear the word "money" and on so many lips.

Though a place of pandemonium, the market offers endless opportunity for the preacher. Here usually outside the wall of a city, as well as inside, it spreads itself along the moat long run dry, struggles across the shallow river-bed outside the wall, and distributes itself all around the temple without the gate.

In all these places, on some kind of an elevation, the preacher takes his stand: sings, expounds, sells tracts and Scripture portions and exhorts until his voice is worn to a "frazzle" or he himself is exhausted, or until the crowd begins to stream over the fields to get home before dark—the time of the appearance of thieves and robbers.

One unforgetable episode of such market preaching is that after the preacher has expounded the Gospel, some old gray-haired, long-bearded man in the crowd will step forward—a veritable Jacob, leaning on his staff, and often halting—to interrupt the preacher with his question: "Shepherd, if all this glad tidings about foreign Jesus Doctrine is true, why did you not come a long time ago and tell us about it?"

Can you answer that?

THE CIRCULATION OF THE BIBLE

A statistician tells us that the Bible is now published in over six hundred languages and that every year from eight to ten new languages are added to the list. During the year which ended May 1 the British and Foreign Bible Society distributed 8,958,233 copies of the Bible entire or in part. During the same period the American Bible Society circulated no less than 5,251,176 copies of the entire scriptures or bound portions of the Bible. A grand total by all Bible societies of more than 18,000,000 copies is the best answer we can offer to the critics. During the past year in China alone 2,183,000 Bibles were distributed in the various Chinese dialects.

The Watchman Examiner says: "The wide range of activities carried on in modern mission fields may be judged from a pamphlet sent out by the Candidate Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, Rev. J. C. Robbins, 25 Madison Avenue, New York. Among posts on mission fields and under all boards not waiting to be filled are positions for ordained preachers to evangelize and train native workers and man English-speaking churches; for teachers in English, French, German, music, mathematics agriculture, chemistry, manual training, biology, in fact, nearly every department of teaching; for physicians and surgeons; for civil, mechanical, electrical, sanitary, and mining engineers; for physical directors; for architects and supervising builders; for stenographers, printers, kindergarteners, nurses and Bible women."

HOSPITALS FOR CARE OF TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS ARE A DIRE NECESSITY

From figures published by the Jefferson County Anti-Tuberculosis Association, it is evident that at least three out of every four known cases of consumption are in an advanced condition. The disease is curable only in its early stages. When far advanced it is almost invariably fatal, 80 per cent of this class of case dying within 18 months. In cases of this sort the only course of safety is for the patient to be placed in a hospital ,that other members of the familly may escape constant exposure to the infection.

The figures above referred to also prove that persons in the early stages of the disease are often unwilling to face the facts or to enter a sanatorium, but that whenever such patients seriously undertake the cure they may be reasonably confident of good results in permanent restoration.

It is, however, for the three out of every four known consumptives that the system of County Hospitals is designed. They need the restraints and the comforts of a well equipped hospital, for they are in a condition dangerous alike to themselves and the whole community.

Fern Was Peeved.

According to an eminent botanist, plants are so sensitive that they resent neglect and are susceptible to kind treatment, showing their gratitude in charming ways. We are therefore the more ready to believe a story told us a day or two ago by a lover of nature. He was watering a fern on a cold morning. He forgot to temper the water. The fern, incensed by the shock, leaped from the pot and bit him savagely in the leg.—Philip Hale, in Boston Herald.

Narrow Teaching.

Those who teach morality, limiting its obligations to duties toward family or country, teach you a more or less narrow egoism and lead you to what is evil for others and for themselves. Country and family are like two circles drawn within a greater circle which contains them both; like two steps of a ladder without which you could not climb any higher, but upon which it is forbidden you to stay your feet.—Mazzini.

French Remedy Aids Stomach Sufferers

France has been called the nation without stomach troubles. The French have for generations used a simple mixture of vegetable oils that relieve stomach and intestinal ailments and keep the bowels free from foul, poisonous matter. The stomach is left to perform its functions normally. Indigestion and gastritis vanish.

Mr. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading druggist of Chicago, cured himself with this remedy in a short time. The demand is so great that he imports these oils from France and compounds them under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. People everywhere write and testify to the marvelous relief they have received using this remedy—one dose will rid the body of poisonous accretions that have accumulated for years and convince the most chronic sufferer from stomach, liver or intestinal troubles.

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction

MISS AKERS HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE

Despairing of Ever Seeing Well Day Again and Had to Go To Hospital

"When they took me to the hospital I gave up all hope of eyseeing a well dav again," said Miss Lillie Akers, 116 1-2 twenty eight ave., south, Nashville, a few days ago, in telling of her remarkable restoration to health.

"For a long time I suffered with stomach trouble and indigestion" she continued, "and fell off from 125 pounds until I only weighed 100. I was so weak I could'nt dress myself, let alone do anything about the house. I just ached all over. My stomach was so weak and digestion ss poor I had to live on the lightest food. I had sick headache dizzy spells, and felt so run down I didn't care whether I lived or died—even my eyes prined me, and the pains would extend to my head and ears. My blood was thin, my color was bad and I didn't seem to have strength or energy, I had a choking sensation in my throat and frequently suffered with smothering spells. I couldn't sleep to do any good, and even the noise of the street cars nearly ran me crazy. In this condition I went to the hospital, and after a long rest was barely able to get home. One day one of my neighbors called and begged me to try Tanlac. I felt my life was slowly ebbing away, and as every kind of medicine I took failed to do me any good, I was getting worse again. I began taking Tanlac.

"I came down on the car this afternoon for my third bottle, and I want to tell you I never dreamed any any medicine could bring me back to the health of my girlhood days, but Tanlac did, and Oh, I am so grateful. Why sir, I have gained ten pounds, and just feel so good I hardly know myself. Yesterday one of my neighbors called and didn't know me at first, so great was the change. I am able now to look after my household duties and have no aches or pains. My color is much better and I can eat anything I want, and Oh, how good exerything tastes. Those nerveous spells have left me, I sleep like a baby and get up in the mornings feeling rested and refreshed. I just feel like I have taken a new lease on life. I am a new woman now, with new hopes and new life and energy,"

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drur Co. adv

Another silk and velvet quilt, made and donated to the grammar school by Mrs. C. R. Mullins, was placed on exhibition at the fair and elicited a great deal of admiration. This quilt will be raffled after Thanksgiving. Chances are already selling at 10 cents each and 3 for 25 cents.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your letter, and will ship the Blue Stem Wheat at once.

We wish to write in regard to the Blue Stem Wheat, and will say that we have handled this wheat for a number of years, and there is no wheat grown that we can recall, which is as profitable to the producer as this particular wheat. It has a very strong stalk, stands well, has large head and small plump grain, which is very desirable for milling purposes, from the fact that the wheat weighs very heavy, when carried to mill, and millers claim better results from this wheat than any other. We cannot recommend it too highly. In most every case where people have tried this wheat and given it some little attention they find it very desirable, and in most every case they resowed.

Yours truly,
McKAY, REECE & CO.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The Chilton County Teachers Institute was held at the High School building last Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The institute was declared the most instructive and inspiring that the teachers of this county have ever had the privilege of attending.

For the sake of the great number of teachers, and also any other friends who might wish to attend, the High School gave a very delightful and charming social last Thursday night. The refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, tea, etc., were served by the members of the senior class

One of our senior girls has informed us that this is a free country in which we live. Right bright idea.

The reason that some of the girls decline to join the Literary Society is that they can't all be president.

TheManual Training and Domestic Science departments are being equipped. Work in these classes will begin shortly.

Several of the school children saw "Pilgrim's Progress" screened at the "Dixie" Sunday afternoon. This was quite a treat to some of the pupils, as they had just read this masterpiece of literature in their English work.

The Girl's Literary Society was organized last Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: President, Annie Gragg; Vice-President, Henry Lee Payne; Secretary, Madge Cooper; Editor, Bessie Davis; Critic, Ara Mullins; Pianist, Beverly Hester; Treasurer, Gertiewyl McDonald; Flunkey, Izora Callen, Vice-Flunkey, Kathleen Mullins. Much good is expected to be attained from this Society.

The Freshmen organized their class last Friday evening. The following officers were elected: President, Seymour Hayes; Vice-president, Walter Vinson; Secretary, Kate McNeill; Treasurer, Eunice Hutchison; Historian, John Plier. The flower selected was, white rose; colors, white and green. Their motto, "Esse, Non Videri."

Feltz Mullins says that the reason he keeps his chemistry book open during a recitation is because everything worth knowing is on the inside.

The Zoology boys are planning a trip out to the river on Thanksgiving, where they intend to study birds, and other natural things.

Beverly—"What is a panther, Bess?"

Bessie—"Why, it's a fellow that makes pants."

The athletic boys have received their new basket ball. The goals will arrive in a short time. Mr. Wood is giving the boys every opportunity needed to develop a first class basket ball team, as he is thoroughly acquainted with the game, and and other great interest in giving any aid he can.

The Sophomores have elected their class officers as follows: President, John Burnett; Vice-President, Miss Sallie Driver; and Secretary-Treasurer, Clyde Williams.

The Websterian Society has changed its meeting time from Monday evening to Friday evening. As soon as the building is equipped with electric ligh's, which is now underway, the boys will hold their meetings every Friday night.

BRYAN SPEECH BRINGS JOY TO REPUBLICIANS

Believe Attack on President Means Split in Party

Washington, Nov. 6.—Republican optimism for the future of their party has been given another strong impetus by William Jennings Bryan's attack on President Wilson's New York speech in support of a great national legislative policy of military and naval preparedness. Already somewhat heartened as a result of the elections in Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey last Tuesday, Republician leaders naturall are overjoyed at Mr. Bryan's egotistical dissent from the president's generally approved declaration in favor of preparedness as a safeguard against the misfortune of war. They see in Mr. Bryan's criticism of the president a split in the Democratic party which may cost it the next national election, for the division of the Republican party which cost it the presidential election in 1912 is virtually healed.

In his attack on President Wilson Mr. Bryan has fulfilled prophecy on schedule time. It was predicted when he summarily quit the cabinet at a critical stage in the foreign relations of his country, and at a time when President Wilson's administration was under its greatest strain, that Mr. Bryan would in less than six months assume an attitude of hostility to the president and his administration. That attitude has been assumed, and Mr. Bryan's next overt act will be to carry the issue he has made with the president to the people, and then will occur the split in the Democratic party which the Republicans now feel and predict freely as inevitable. Then also will be created a situation in which Mr. Bryan will revel and expand his soul in ecstacy—a controversy with Woodrow Wilson, where all may hear and see.

Although the sincerity of Mr. Bryan's peace proclivities is not disputed by those who accord him honesty of motive in his new preachment, there are others who are incline to the notion that he has placed himself in the category with the old French poet, Montenelle, who once said that he "hated war because it interupted conversation."

Now it is known to all men that any abridgement of Mr. Bryan's conversational prerogatives would be costly to him at any price.

CLEAN UP AND SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT DAY

Time is set by state Superintendent, W. F. Feagin

Regarding this worthy move, nothing can be more fittingly said than the words of Supt. Feagin, in making the official announcement to the teachers of Alabama, as follows:

"If the public could be persuaded that the spirit of loyalty to one's school should always find expression in pride in the school grounds, in a readiness to beautify them and in assistance in caring for them, it goes without saying that instead of the six thousand deserted looking spots that dot the State there would be substituted six thousand attractive parks, and instead of the plain, cheerless and insanitary boxes called schoolhouses, there would be subitituted as many comfortable, cheerful and artistic little cottages.

Very many of our country schools are sadly in need of some simple and inexpensive repairs, which should be provided in the interest of comfort, convenience health and good taste. The time has come when the school must embody, in concrete form, the lessons in sanitation and health that it would impress upon the community, for it can never hope to promote any virtue which it does not itself exemplify.

The second of the four special days this year—Clean Up and School Improvement Day—is for the purpose of having the school set its own house in order that it may preach the gospel of cleanliness and beauty which our rural communities need to hear. I am therefore, designating Friday, December 10th, as "Clean Up and School Improvement Day" in the hope that teachers, children, patrons and friends will assemble at their several school buildings and observe the day in such a way as to stimulate the pride of the entire people in making the most important agency in their midst a more positive factor in its influence and possibilities because of what shall be done.

Wm. F. Feagin
Supt. of Education."

Bulletin No. 45 issued by the department of education, sets forth most forcibly the needs of school improvement in Alabama, and should be secured and studied by every teacher.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

All reports are to the effect that the teachers institute here last week was the most successful one ever held in the county.

A number of men and women prominent in the state department of education were in attendance and lent valuable assistance in making the work of value to the teachers, of the county, a large number of whom were present.

We were promised a detailed account of the meeting, but somehow it failed to get to us.

IN MEMORY, R. C. SKIPPER.

Jemison, Ala., Jemison Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 411, October 26, 1915.

Whereas, it hath pleased the Grand Master of the universe to call from our midst Brother R. C. Skipper; and, whereas, Brother Skipper was a just and upright Mason, an honest, conscientious and true man, a friend at all times and more especially to those in need. A man who reverenced God and loved his neighbor as himself. As a husband he was true and loving. As a father no one was more kind and indulgent; and

Whereas, we feel sadly bereaved at the loss of Brother Skipper, yet we hope that he is enjoying the fruits of a well spent life in the realms of bliss, and that he would not return to this vale of tears even if it were in his power to do so; therefore be it

Resolved, 1st. That while, with sad hearts and contemplative minds, we humbly bow to the Supreme mandate of an all wise God;

That while the will of God has been accomplished by the calling of Brother Skipper from labor to refreshments, that we will strive so to live that we may be fitted for a place in that house not made with hands, whose architect and builder is God.

Resolved, 2nd. That we tender to the family of our deceased Brother the sympathy of our fraternal order, and for their solace direct them to put their faith in the same supreme Ruler of the universe, knowing that an all wise God cannot err.

Resolved, 3rd. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the county papers for publication and that a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that a seperate page be set aside in the minutes of this lodge for these resolutions.

Respectfully submitted,

Committee.

We are mailing out notices this week to all our delinquent subscribers. If you happen to be the recipent of one of these, we want you to be sure and remember us when you come to town, and come around and pay up. Please don't expect us to send you the paper always without your paying some on it at least occasionly. It takes money to run this business, and it isn't a bit fair for a fellow to take this paper for two or three years, and make us wait all that time for our money. If some of those whom we have been crediting for a year would come around and see us, pay up their past dues, and then step out ahead for a year, then we would be able to give everybody a bigger and better paper, and it would be more worth your time and money. Now do not pass this idly by. Rake up a dollar and come around to see us. You can afford to pay it, and we need it.

Booker T. Washington, the famous negro educator died in Tuskeegee Sunday. His death marks the passing of the greatest man his race has ever produced. It was a distinction won by a life worth while, and borne in a manner wholly becoming to dignity and honor.

We wish to commend the efforts that have been forwarded in the matter of establishing a hospital for Chilton county. The work has been placed in the hands of a live and progressive committee of citizens, and with their push and energy we are sure something will soon be brouget to pass. Chilton has all the medical skill that isnecessary, and she has the other resources which are needed to stand behind the project.

There is an ad in this issue of the paper which to our mind should appeal mighty forcibly to some—to several some ones—and in your own interest we suggest that you go through the paper until you find that ad—and then act!

Read every ad carefully, ane then you will know the one when you find it, and it will be compelling in its common sense appeal to you.

Is the World Sore?

The chair in the Syracuse court-room in which Theodore Roosevelt sat while testifying in the Barnes-Roosevelt libel suit is reported to have become an object of special interest to State Fair visitors, half of whom want to sit in it. Must the uses of this shrine of Progressives be restricted to an up-State city? It might be moved about the country as occasion arises, like the Liberty Bell. —New York World.

Rapping Our Sincerity

Mr. Taft, who has probably the most unfortunate manner of expressing himself that ever afflicted any man in American public life, advises the progressives that they are welcome back to the Republican party, provided they "leave their platform behind them."

Mr. Taft's implication seems to be that principle doesn't count with a Bull Mooser, and that a chance to get back into the party of Penrose and Barnes and Smoot is more precious than the voter's honest convictions.

It was this Tory incapacity to understand the devotion of the average American to his belief in principles that buried Mr. Taft and his fellows under the debris of a wrecked party in 1912. But the Tory mind seldom learns.—Peoria Journal

FANCY PACKS OF LATE FALL CANNING

Uniformity, Garnish and Containers Are Important.

By Nellie Tappan, Extension Service and Alabama Girls' Industrial Institute, Montevallo, Alabama.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Vegetables found in the fall garden are lima beans, tomatoes, bell peppers, egg plant, okra, string beans, roasting ears, and posibly squash, pumpkin, English peas, Green field peas and young beets. The early frosts will injure most of these if not protected or canned.

The thrifty housekeeper will turn to her recipes for pickles, relishes, catsup, soup mixtures, and to her time table for canning.

She will wish also to exhibit these products at the fall fairs, hence she will spend some time in planning fancy packs in all the glass containers.

The secret of beauty in fancy packs is found in the terms Uniformity and Garnish—uniformity in size, shape, arrangement and general appearance; appropriateness and delicacy of garnish. The shape and height of jar for any particular pack has much to do with the beauty of the pack. Whether it be square or round, let it always be of clear glass, and if possible, without the trade mark. Jelly glasses, catsup bottles and jars for preserves, relishes, or pickle should be tapering and slender, of clear glass and without ornamentation. The sealing of these containers must be very neatly done. No labels should be used except on the bottom of the jars.

Use litle garnish. Take care for appropriateness of flavor, contrasts in color and uniformity in position of garnish. Favorite garnish materials are cross sections of cucumber, onion, sweet pepper, lemon, lime, orange; a one-third-inch wide strip of orange peel, or of cinnamon, or pimento; whole spices, ginger root, spray of dill herb, flower head, green seed head, or head of parsley; tiny red or orange cayenne pepper pods; a one-third inch wide strip of fat bacon for canned baked beans, or for canned greens; a long, flat, yellow bean for mixed pickles; a bay leaf for soup mixtures; small green crab apples for large cored half pears; red or green cherries, and crystalized violets.

The same artistic feeling which makes a salad combination successful will govern the final touch to the fancy pack.

Shows Trend Of Public Sentiment.

Optimistic leaders of the Democratic party are trying to satisfy themselves that the election of a Republican to the Governorship of Massaehusetts was not a slap at the Wilson administration, but they are face to face with the fact that the Democrat who was defeated pleaded for votes upon the ground that he was heart and soul in sympathy with the Wilson policies, and the further fact that the victor went before the people on the Tariff issue.

Massachusetts is a great manufacturing State. During the years that a Protective Tariff was in force its people prospered. Just as soon as President Wilson and the Democratic Congress began tinkering the Tariff schecules, there was distress among the wage earners of the Bay State. Factories were obliged to curtail their output, and as a result their employes were thrown out of emyloyment or given half-time occupation.

The condition was improved by the European war, which put a stop to a large extent, to the importation of foreign-made goods and opened a market abroad for articles used in warfare, many of which are manufac.ured in New England.

The election of a Republican to the Governorship of Massachusetts will have no effect upon the Tariff or upon the industrial conditions in that State, but it shows the trend of public sentiment in manufacturing sections, which is in the direction of the Republican party and the principles and policies for which it stands.

No matter how the Democrats may view it, the results of the elections in Massachusetts points the way in which the voters have set their feet on the journey in 1916.—Trenton (N. J.) State Gazette.

Speak A Good Word

When the stranger enters your gate, speak a good word for your town, for your neighbors, for the community.

It is but little for you to do, but it is rich in the fruits of after years.

A community is judged by the words and the acts of its people, and we of this community are judged by others in like manner.

If the hearts of our people are warmed by the fires of comradeship and brotherly love our acts will be in accord with our feelings, and the world will know us as a community of honor and integrity, as a people with a soul, as a place worthy of a future.

But if we loose the floodgates of criticism and abuse and belittle the community and its people, then in time we will descend to a level which we create for ourselves, and the world will know us as a people whom it is well to let alone.

Every day we are adding new rungs to the community ladder, but are they going up—OR DOWN?

Speak a good word, brother—speak a good word!

SAYS TANLAC SAVED HIM FROM THE GRAVE

Father of Sixteen Thought End Near—Told Wife to Put Children in Odd Fellows Home

What is probably the most remarkable indorsement ever given a proprietary medicine was the statement made last week by H. J. Williams, a coal miner at the Tennessee Coal and Iron company mine, No. 8, near Fairfield, Ala., in the Birmingham district.

The story of his wonderful restoration to health was told in his own words, and is profoundly interesting. His statement follows:

"I am 54 years of age, and am the father of 16 children, eight living and eight dead.

About two years ago I took sick. The doctors at first thought I had tapeworm, then hookworm, and finally decided it was pellagra. I took treatment from a well know Alabama pellagra 'cure', but got no benefit. The doctors finally told me they couldn't do me any good and I quit going to see them.

"I suffered from a sort of numb feeling in my back and was dizzy headed. I couldn't stoop over or stand on my feet for any length of time, and couldn't hardly eat anything and nothing taeted good. In fact, I was slowly starving to death.

"I lost all my strength and fell off 45 pounds in weight. I used to weigh 115 when I was well and got down to where I only weighed 90 pounds, and was almost a walking skeleton.

"I fiually decided that there was no hope for me in this life and I gave my ring to my wife and told her to put the children in the Odd Fellows' home when I died.

This is just the shape I was in, when one day my little daughter said, 'Papa, why don't you try that new medicine everybody is talking about? It has helped so many people, it might help you.' Of course I had no faith in anything, but to please the family I made one more trial and got this Tanlac. May the good Lord bless the day I got this medicine, for it was my salvation.

"I got relief from the first bottle, and I began to eat and pick up right from the start. I am now on my fifth bottle and have actually gained back 25 pounds, and now weigh 115. It just looked like the more I took the better I got, and I keep on picking up every day.

"I went over to the mines yesterday, and made arrangements to go back to work. I am now strong enough to walk around wherever I want to go, something I haven't been able to do for over a year, and that is a fact. Tanlad 'mighty nigh' raised me from the dead—that's what it done for me. If you don't believe what I have told you, just ask any of the men around mine No. 8 and they will all tell you the fix I was in, and how much better off I am now.

"Thank God I will soon be able to earn a living for my family, and I owe it all to this medicine, Tanlac. I have just written to a daughter of mine in LaFollette, Tenn., who needs a medicine like this, and I want her to take it and get well.

"I don't believe now that I ever had pellagra, because I never did have any breaking out of any kind. I don't believe I had hookworm either, but whatever it was, this Tanlac has certainly fixed me. I don't reckon there was ever a medicine on earth like Tanlac. I will always bless the day I bought this medicine.

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. —Adv.

SALE OF TWO AND ONE HALF MILLION RED CROSS SEALS IS GOAL

The Alabama Anti-Tuberculosis League announces that the Seals Campaign this year must reach two and one half million to average one penny each from every person in the State and thus enable the work to go forward. It is pointed out that those who can buy must make up for the many who cannot or who will not buy. Only intelligent citizens will recognize the value of these little stamps. They are the hope of the situation. But it takes 100 of them to make a dollar, and many dollars are needed.

In many counties the School children are leading the way, every pupil selling a few of the Seals. In Birmingham last year the foundation of an open air school fund, for the service of children predisposed to consumption, was laid by the sale of Seals by all the public schools. Six hundred dollars net were thus available for local work. This not only greatly helped in making the average purchase of Seals in Birmingham more than three per capita of the population, but began a much needed movement toward an open air room for every school in the city.

On the other hand many counties are doing nothing, though many of their people are dying of this preventable and curable disease.

Sewing Circle With Much Whispering

Before the stork arrives there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic. And there is sure to be someone who has used or knows of that splendid external help, "Mother's Friend." It is applied to the abdominal muscles, gently rubbed in and has a most pronounced effect as a lubricant. It soothes the network of nerves, enables the muscles to expand naturally, relieves strain on the ligaments and thus sets at ease any undue strain on the organs involved. And it does this with perfect safety. Expectant mothers thus go through the ordeal with comparative ease and comfort. Knowing mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" speak in glowing terms of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and a freedom from many other distresses.

One of the most important symptoms to be relieved by "Mother's Friend" is the imagination that so often disturbs repose. Pains, even though natural, may so distort the mind that undue apprehension will sometimes follow. The gentle, soothing influence of "Mother's Friend" gives the mind substantial aid to become conscious of strength and there is a real, physical sensibility of muscular vigor as evidenced by freedom from undue strain.

You can get "Mother's Friend" at any drug store or they will gladly get it for you. Write today to Bradfield Regulator Co., 701 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a highly instructive book of great value to all expectant mothers. It contains a valuable expectancy chart, rules on diet and is brimful of suggestions that all women will appreciate.

4. A County Pennant will be given the winner, and will be in charge of the person who individually sells the largest number of Seals in that County.
5. Accurate reports of all sales must be made to the League office not later than January 15th.

Prizes for Schools.

Schools desiring to enter the competition for the best essay on the Prevention of Tuberculosis may obtain information concerning conditions and prizes by writing the Secretary of the Alabama Anti-Tuberculosis League, Birmingham.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

Malaria a Blood Trouble S. S. S. Conquers It!

S. S. S. Has Been the Standard Malaria Remedy for 50 Years. Relieves Malaria by Cleansing the Blood

Malaria does impoverish the blood, thereby weakening the entire system. Once the Malarial germ gets into the blood it multiplies, saturating the blood with Malarial poison and impurities. You immediately lose energy. You are a constant prey to headaches, worn-out, tired feeling. The complexion becomes sallow, the tongue coated. In order to get relief you must administer an antidote directly to the poison, and a tonic—blood nourishing food, to build up the wasted system. S. S. S. is the one thoroughly reliable blood tonic that will destroy the Malarial germs, and enrich the blood. This building up and blood cleansing process go hand in hand. You feel the effect immediately. S. S. S. begins right at the root of the trouble. It destroys the germs and poison, revitalizes and restores the red blood corpuscles. In a short time you feel the delightful sensation of relief from ague, headache, chills and fever. You soon feel the full sense of vigor that goes with perfect health. There is nothing as good. Get S. S. S. from your druggist.

THE COMMUNITY EGG CIRCLE

Co-operation Is By All Means Essential to Success.

By D. J. Burleson, Agriculturist for Extension, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The common method of marketing eggs in Alabama is such that no premium is placed on quality, and the farmer producing clean eggs and delivering them to the dealer in a good, fresh condition receives the same price for them as does the careless farmer whose eggs may be of unknown quality. The dealer usually puts the good and the bad together, consequently, before reaching the consumer the eggs must be subjected to a grading process to cull out the bad ones. This, of course, makes necessary a reduction in the price which can be paid to the producer.

To avoid this injustice and to encourage care in handling eggs, a system of buying is necessary which places a premium on quality.

Such a system cannot be inaugurated as long as eggs of unknown quality are shipped along with the good ones, and in order to put into operation the required system of grading it is necessary to have cooperation. The community egg circle can be made effective as a means of putting eggs on the market in good condition and at a premium for quality.

Following are some of the requirements which should be contained in the by-laws of a Community Egg Circle:

1. Eggs must be delivered once a week during the fall and winter; twice during summer. No eggs delivered in winter shall exceed seven days in age, and in summer shall not exceed four days.

2. After the hatching season, infertile eggs must be produced.

3. Eggs must be collected from the nests at least once per day. Eggs of unknown age shall not be delivered for shipment.

4. Dirty ,very small, or abnormal eggs must not be delivered for shipment. Eggs must not be washed, as this removes the mucilagenous covering and hastens decay.

5. Eggs must be graded and those in each package must be uniform in color and size. It is best for the members to have the same breed of chickens.

6. Each member must have a number and it must be stamped on every egg delivered for shipment.

7. The eggs must be packed in attractive one-dozen cartons on which the name of the circle is printed. The 30-dozen egg case is the standard size for shipment.

French Remedy Aids Stomach Sufferers

France has been called the nation without stomach troubles. The French have for generations used a simple mixture of vegetable oils that relieve stomach and intestinal ailments and keep the bowels free from foul, poisonous matter. The stomach is left to perform its functions normally. Indigestion and gastritis vanish.

Mr. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading druggist of Chicago, cured himself with this remedy in a short time. The demand is so great that he imports these oils from France and compounds them under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. People everywhere write and testify to the marvelous relief they have received using this remedy—one dose will rid the body of poisonous accretions that have accumulated for years and convince the most chronic sufferer from stomach, liver or intestinal troubles.

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or cavil if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfactio

BIBLE SAVES A SOLDIER'S LIFE

Book Stops a Fragment of German Shell and Life of Man Carrying it is Saved—Asks for Another Copy--News From Afar.

A Bible stopped a fragment of German shell, and thus saved the life of the man who was carrying the book—which he obtained from the Hibernian Society.

The owner of this Bible is a sapper in the Royal Engineers, and after his narrow escape he wrote to a friend as follows: "Do I want anything special? Yes, please! I want another Bible. The other one which you gave me was absolutely ruined by a piece of shell which pierced almost half-way through it! Without a doubt it saved my life.

"How glorious it has been, through all the turmoil of war, for me to know that I am on the right side. It is simply grand to trust Jesus simply thru it all—to have no fear of the termination of this earthly life."

Arrangements are being made to print in Germany 30,000 more Russian New Testaments; 160,000 Russian Gospels, and 40,000 German Gospels. The Russian New Testaments and Gospels are being paid for by contributions from American Sunday schools, and these books are intended for distribution among Russian prisoners of war. From the Bible House in Berlin Mr.

Hartkopf writes that 200 Ewe Bibles are being sent via Holland to London whence they will be despatched to a branch of the North German Mission in Lome, Togoland.

The emigrant problem in Japan is assuming increased proportions. It is pathetic to know that young women leave Japan knowing less than nothing of even the modern life in Japan itself, to say nothing of progressive life in America. Many of those who are sometimes spoken of as "picture" or "photograph brides" come from the country, and they are fascinated by the prospects of going to America to marry some one who is reported to be earning a fabulous salary. Girls of good education agree to these offers of marriage, and negotiations are made by correspondence; the ceremony is performed, wedding them to the picture of the man who is himself in America. The marriage is registered in Japan, and when they reach the United States they may find themselves brides of common workmen with no education at all. It sometimes turns out that they have not even seen the proper photograph of the man to whom they have married. The Y. W. C. A. secretary in Yokohama has been able recently to make the acquaintance of a few girls who are coming to America as picture brides and she is helping to prepare them for the new life which is awaiting them in America. The study of this problem from both sides of the Pacific will help in its solution.

A banker in Peking some seventy years old recently confessed that he had been under conviction of sin since the Boxer uprising, and that his increasing years and the advancing crisis in China led him to turn to Christ as the only hope for himself and the nation. He found such peace that he set aside money sufficient to support a preacher from now until the close of human history.

Over a thousand Chinese, the flower of their people, are now studying in American schools and colleges. They are distributed among forty different institutions, and are likely to be joined by many more in the future. In the English universities and higher schools, twelve hundred young Hindus are at present matriculated.

Two-thirds of the human race, or a billion people, can neither read nor write. In India only one man in ten can read, while in China only one man in twenty can read. In India less than one woman in a hundred can read, while in China woman's ignorance is perhaps greater even than that. In Africa there are eight hundred and forty-three languages and dialects, of which six hundred have not been reduced to written form; and on the Dark Continent alone there are eighty million people that have not even an alphabet.

The China Inland Mission found 1913 to be a record year for baptisms (4,492, an increase of 1,906 over the previous year) and notes that 1914 was far in advance of 1913. Bishop Bashford gives figures which show a general increase of nearly twenty-five per cent in the communicant membership of the Methodist Episcopal church.—Exchange.

NOW HER FRIENDS HARDLY KNOW HER

But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

Houston, Texas.—In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks, I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui to-day. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

DECEMBER THE 8TH EXAMINATION DAY

December the 8th has been designated as Examination Day by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Remembering that Tuberculosis is the most common of all deadly diseases, there is evident reason to suppose that very many persons are suffering from it in complete ignorance of what it is that ails them. Hence it is hoped by the National Association and by the State League that doctors everywhere will be willing to make such examinations, either gratis or at special rates, in connection with the observance this year of Tuberculosis Week, December 6th to 12th, particularly on Wednesday, December 8th. It is also hoped that multitudes will go to their doctors and ask for an examination.

There are indeed few people who would not be definitely aided to prolong life by a frank interview with a good physician once a year. It is this that the National Association is promoting this year in connection with the Nation-wide Sale of the Red Cross Christmas Seals.

The State Health Department gives a hearty approval of the plan.

Crashes into sour bile' making you sick and you lose a day's work

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your letter, and will ship the Blue Stem Wheat at once.
We wish to write in regard to the Blue Stem Wheat, and will say that we have handled this wheat for a number of years, and there is no wheat grown that we can recall, which is as profitable to the producer as this particular wheat. It has a very strong stalk, stands well, has large head and small plump grain, which is very desirable for milling purposes, from the fact that the wheat weighs very heavy, when carried to mill. and millers claim better results from this wheat than any other. We cannot recommend it too highly. In most every case where people have tried this wheat and given it some little attention they find it very desirable, and in most every case they resowed.
Yours truly,

No comfort is lacking—no convenience is unprovided.

It has even that ultra-convenience of the very high-priced cars—electrical switches located on the steering column.

Warning signal, magneto switch, dash-light, tail-light, head-light and dimming switches are all right at your hand—arranged so that you cannot miss or confuse them.

It also has that certainty of ignition provided only by high tension magneto.

It has the comfortable, easy riding qualities provided by wide, roomy seats with soft yielding upholstery built over long spiral springs.

It has long underslung rear springs and large four-inch tires to add further to its easy riding qualities.

It has the same easy acting clutch and the same thirty-five horsepower motor which made previous Overlands famous.

But as this is a lighter car there is even more reserve power.

There is roomy comfort for its full quota of five adult passengers.

The lines of its streamline body are pleasing from every angle.

It has a beautiful, lustrous finish.

In its performance—its convenience—its comfort—its roominess—its beauty, you will take justifiable pride.

GOVERNOR HENDERSON EXPLAINS NECESSITY FOR THE STATE BOND ISSUE

To the People of Alabama:

In presenting to you the question as to whether you will adopt an amendment to the Constitution, authorizing the issuance of $1,500,000 of short-time bonds for the purpose of arranging and properly handling the present floating indebtedness of the State, I feel it my duty to put you in possession of the facts connected with the present financial condition of your State, so that you may act intelligently as well as patriotically on the question submitted to you.

In the first place, I wish to impress upon you that the issuance of these bonds will not be the creation of a new debt or obligation of the State. If it were so, I would oppose it myself. But it is for the purpose of arranging a present indebtedness, already contracted before the beginning of this administration, in such way and manner as to relieve the State from embarrassment in paying the expenses of the public schools, the feeding of prisoners and the maintenance of the eleemosynary and other institutions dependent upon the State Treasury for their support.

This is in no sense a partisan question nor should the personal element of any man in public life enter into it; it matters not to us by whom this debt was contracted. It is a debt which the State owes, and our good name, as well as our financial standing, requires us to meet it in the most business-like way.

During my campaign for Governor, I told you of this deficit in the State's finances and promised you that insofar as I could, I would furnish a plan to relieve the State and to pay this debt without an increase of the tax rate and without reducing the efficiency of the various branches of the government, and in my various messages to the Legislature during its recent sessions, I furnished detailed statements of the financial conditions of the State and set forth my views as to the best methods of handling them, but of necessity, some of these were estimates based upon figures which could not, at that time, be verified.

These estimates forecast a somewhat larger deficit than is shown by the actual figures. These estimates, however, would have proven practically correct, if certain amounts we then contemplated would be paid, had been presented to the Auditor and warrants issued therefor. These sums, amounting to approximately $150,000, included the repayment of certain license taxes that had been paid under an Act of the Legislature of 1907, which Act had been declared unconstitutional by the higher courts, of which amount the Auditor has, up to this time, issued his warrants for only $8,000 or $10,000.

In addition to this, there were Bills passed by the last Legislature authorizing the payment of debts against the State, made prior to the present administration, amounting to $25,000, for which no warrant had been issued before the beginning of the present year. These aggregate amounts would have increased the present deficit to approximately the estimates made during the sessions of the present sessions of the Legislature.

FINANCIAL CONDITION, SEPTEMBER 30, 1915.

The financial condition of the State, as shown by the Auditor's and Treasurer's statements on September 30th, shows a deficit of $2,236,887.34.

This is materially larger than the amount shown by the Auditor's report for the fiscal year ending September 30th, 1914, but is accounted for in the fact that during the last fiscal year, there is included large amounts of Contingent Appropriations, released during the year and prior to the beginning of this administration, together with the extraordinary expenses of holding the Legislature, and quite a considerable amount contained in appropriations to cover amounts due by the State for which no appropriations had been made, no fund having been provided for the payment of interest on the existing deficit of the State Treasury, and while the Auditor's report for 1914 did not show the deficit, because no warrants had been issued by him, still the indebtedness was there for which the Legislature authorized the issuance of warrants.

Only one month has passed since the beginning of the new fiscal year of 1915-1916, and a comparison of the State's obligations maturing that month with the warrants issued by the Auditor for the corresponding month of 1914 may be of interest. Warrants issued in October, 1914, and those which matured but were not issued, amounted to $1,358,245.95. The expenses of the State for October, 1915, including all obligations maturing, amounted to $1,187,749.77, leaving a difference in favor of October of the present fiscal year of $170,496.18. This amount, however, does not show the true decrease in the current expenses of the government, because there are several of the Contingent Appropriations referred to as released, and the Auditor's warrants were issued during October, 1914, but by deducting the amount of the Contingent Appropriations for which the Auditor's warrants were issued in 1914 and deducting furthermore from the total expenses of October for both years, the amount of the appriations to the common schools and Pension Fund, which vary at times, (but with certain total amounts for the year fixed), it gives a balance in reduction of expenses for October, 1915, of $44,317.38. In this statement I am figuring on the expenses, because that is what is needing attention.

The revenues of the State for October, 1915, from taxes were smaller than for October, 1914, because fewer taxpayers anticipated their taxes, but of course these taxes will be fortncoming in future months, while expenses, if a waste, are never recovered, except from the lessons to be drawn by profligate habits.

Should the above figures be maintained throughout the year, it would equal a reduction of expenses of more than $500,000 per annum. We could hardly hope to maintain this ratio throughout the year, however, on account of the fixed appropriations, but the fact that it has been done for the past month lends encouragement for the future. Every expenditure will be scrutinized and will, where possible, be held below the appropriation. If, however, this ratio could be maintained and the expenses were reduced $500,000 per annum, assuming that the revenues would remain the same as for the fiscal year 1914, the revenues would then exceed the expenses approximately $150,000 a year, because, prior to this fiscal year, the expenditures have exceeded the revenues from $300,000 to $400,000 a year.

At this ratio it would require fifteen years to liquidate the deficit, and this was the result contemplated when I recommended the issuance of $1,500,000 of short-term bonds for this purpose.

After a careful and close scrutiny of the appropriations made by the last Legislature, together with the sources of revenue as provided by law from taxation and licenses and other incomes, it appears a difficult task to be able to make the incomes equal the disbursements, but by careful and economical administration of the affairs of the Convict Department, which is a source of revenue for the State, I hope to be able to so manage the State's affairs as that the income will at least equal the outgo, not considering the natural and usual increase in revenue. This, notwithstanding the fact that it appears that the incomes of the State have been reduced in some particulars.

And while it is not to be absolutely depended up, the experience of the State as estimated for four years under normal conditions, shows that the natural increase in the income of the State is approximately $300,000 a year, which would be more than sufficient to take care of and pay off the deficit together with the bonds authorized by this act before they mature.

If the issuance of $1,500,000 of bonds shall be authorized, it would leave a floating indebtedness of between $700,000 and $800,000 to be absorbed or liquidated from the current revenues of the State, and if the ratio of increase should be maintained after this year, this floating debt would be absorbed or liquidated by the maturity of the first bond, which would be in about five years; consequently, after the issuance of the bonds, the present administration would be left a large floating indebtedness with which to grapple, continually emphasizing the necessity of economy in so far as the administration was at liberty to interfere. A continuation of this policy through the succeeding administrations of the State would retire the entire amount of the short-time bonds, without the necessity of raising the taxes and without impairing the efficiency of any of the Departments of the State or preventing the State from continuing in the advancement of the public school interests, the taking care of the worthy Confederate soldiers and the development of its great institutions.

For the first time in many years, during the month of October of this year, the expenses of the State Government have been reduced as compared with the corresponding months of former years. The indebtedness of the State had been provided for up to the close of the fiscal year, when there were outstanding obligations unpaid amounting to $2,250,000. With the new year beginning October 1st, large payments become due, the payments for October, November and December, being the largest of any quarter of the fiscal year. The receipts during these months are very small, it being the beginning of the new tax year and the collection of taxes not being enforcible until January 1st, the Treasury, therefore, is not in position to meet the heavy demands made upon it at this time.

After the first of January, when the taxes begin to come in, the payment of warrants that have been carried by financial institutions are maturing and all of the surplus cash, above the actual running expenses of the State, is required to meet these obligations, hence the excess expenses over the revenues during the first three months of the fiscal year must be carried to a period beyond the payment of the obligations heretofore incurred, because these warrants must be taken care of by the Treasury when the obligations to the institutions which have been taking them mature.

The procuring of someone to take up and carry the warrants of the State and having authority to borrow on the promise of the State to pay are quite different propositions. In the latter case, if the State did not have the money with which to pay, it might secure another loan and take up its obligations as evidenced by a note or extend the payment of the note already given. In the former, however, where warrants are used, they must be paid out of the revenues of the fiscal year for which they were issued, and hence, you cannot change them from one hand to another and thereby extend liquidation indefinitely. The collection of the revenues of the State is scattered over a period of twelve months and there is no time, under the present condition of its indebtedness, that such indebtedness can be reduced to to less than $1,500,000. You can therefore readily see how difficult it is, under the present arrangement, for your officers to meet these obligations of the State, especially during the first three months of the fiscal year.

Every well-informed citizen of this State is more or less familiar with the conditions under which this indebtedness was created. When I came into the Governor's office, I found this condition here. I knew I would find it before I assumed the duties of Governor, and as your servant, transacting your business to the best of my ability, I am presenting to the people of the State, what, in my opinion, is the best way of handling this difficult proposition, without embarrassment to the State, without additional burdens to the individual taxpayer and at the same time, to provide for the different institutions relying upon the State for support, in such manner as not to reduce their efficiency and in a way that may permit the State to go forward in the development of all its great ideas and institutions.

It is evident to every thinking man that with conditions as they are, either the revenues must be materially increased, which can only be done by the collection of more taxes from the people, or the expenses of government must be largely reduced so that the State may be placed upon a sound financial basis.

I do not think that this is the proper time for a large increase in the revenues to be taken in taxes from the people, because, as a State, we are upon the threshold of a new epoch. The depression that began a year ago has not been obliterated nor have the burdens of the high cost of living been lifted from the shoulders of our people. While the price of our principal money crop has materially advanced over that of a year ago, there is another cause of depression in the arrival of the boll weevil, covering as it now does seven-eights of the counties of the State and probably before another twelve months, will be in every cotton-growing county in Alabama.

From the experience of sections where this pest has heretofore made its appearance, it will be necessary for our farmers and agriculturists to adopt new methods on account of the extra expense and trouble placed upon the cultivation of cotton and the necessity of a reduction in the amount of cotton to be planted by them

A year ago, the propaganda of diversification was carried on throughout the State and was productive of great good. But we cannot say that success has come along this line with one year's efforts, or that the people have adapted themselves to the changes made necessary by the changed conditions.

The time is entirely too short to judge of the future, and comparatively few counties of the State have even approximately met the depression caused by the advent of the boll weevil. During this transitional period, the changing of our methods on the farm and the uncertainties attendant thereon, we cannot hope for a material increase in the valuation of the property of the State, and it would be inexcusable to undertake to provide for a deficit that had been created during years of prosperity by forced an unnatural and unjust increase of valuation of property for taxes, even for the payment of our obligations, during a period of depression until our other resources had been exhausted.

These are the simple reasons that impelled me, as your Governor, to ask the people of the State to permit the issuance of $1,500,000 of the short-term bonds of the State for the purpose of arranging an indebtedness already created, in such a way as to relieve you and your servants from embarrassment which naturally confronts us when we are unable to meet our obligations.

It does not increase the permanent indebtedness of the State. Under the Act authorizing these bonds, they are payable one-tenth of the principal and interest each year for ten years, beginning with the year 1920, and 1930, the entire deficit will be completely wiped out without any increased burdens upon the taxpayers.

All of the safeguards possible have been thrown around the issuance of these bonds, the sale and disposition being under the supervision of the Governor, the Auditor and the State Treasurer, and the proceeds of the bonds must be used for this purpose and this purpose alone.

I therefore urge upon the voters of this State, without reference to party affiliation or factional differences, that they will consider this question from a business standpoint—honestly, frankly and patriotically, and that they will express their wish at the polls, giving their consent to this measure.

Issued at the Capitol, Montgomery, Alabama, this 20th day of November, 1915.

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the Legislature of Alabama, at its regular session begun on the second Tuesday in January, 1915, has proposed an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, as hereinafter set out, and has ordered an election to be held on January 18th, 1916, at which the qualified voters of the State shall vote to determine whether such proposed amendment shall be adopted.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama, as follows:

Section 1. That there shall be and there is hereby proposed an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama to provide for the issuance of one million five hundred thousand dollars of State bonds in addition to the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the State for the purpose of retiring and providing for the present floating debt of the State of Alabama, which amendment shall be in words and figures as follows, to-wit, 'In addition to the present outstanding bonds of the State of Alabama the Governor of the State is hereby authorized to issue one million five hundred thousand dollars of five per cent coupon bonds in denomination of five hundred dollars each, which shall not be sold for less than par, the interest payable semi-annually and the principal of which to be due and payable as follows:

Ten per cent of said bond issue shall be due and payable January 1, 1920, and ten per cent each first of January following until the entire issue shall be retired. The proceeds from the sale of said bonds shall be used for the purpose of paying the present outstanding obligations of the State and any surplus shall be paid into the general fund.'

Section 2. (As amended by an act approved September 17, 1915) That there shall be and there is hereby ordered to be held an election by the qualified voters of the State of Alabama on the 18th day of January, 1916, to vote on the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State, which election shall be held under the laws and regulations prescribed for the holding of general elections in this State, and the Governor of the State shall by proclamation give notice of such election with a copy of the proposed amendment in similar manner as notices and proclamations are required to be given for general elections and shall cause the same to be published once a week for eight consecutive weeks next preceding the election in a newspaper published in each county of the State in which a newspaper is published, and in counties where no newspaper is published the same shall be posted at the court house door in said county not less than eight weeks before said elections."

Approved September 17, 1915.

THIS LITTLE WOMAN GAINS 35 POUNDS

Another Frail, Thin Sick Women Is Restored to Health

Mrs. Nettie McGarr, who lives at 1806 Eighteenth avenue North Nashville, has gained thirty-five pounds in weight after being an invalid for years and practically unable to attend the smallest duties. Even moving about the house, she says, made her weak and dizzy. Three bottles of Tanlac produced this almost unbelieveable result. The patient, who is well known in Nashville, tells this interesting story of her own free will and accord, and many of her friends and neighbors are also in possession of these facts.

"Yes," smiled Mrs. McGarr, when questioned "I weighed only 105 pounds when I began taking the medicine, and I now weigh 140—five pounds more than I ever weighed in my life—and if you don't believe it I will go right to the scales and let you see for yourself. Honestly, I am getting so fat I am really ashamed. I have had to have every dress I wore last winter let out. They're too little now.

"For years," continued the grateful woman, "I have suffered from indigestion, having to avoig all sweeto and live on very light diet. I would have burning sensations in my stomach and those awful pains in the back and side. I just felt like I was no good, to myself or anybody else—I was always tired, could not sleep good, and was restless, nervous and dizzy headed. I could not walk any distance without being swimmy-headed and painting for breath. I could hardly eat anything at all and I was mightily out of heart when my weight began to go down and down and down, and I could see that my husband was uneasy about me.

"My sister, Mrs. Minnie Hall, came to see me about this time, and I couldn't help from saying something about how well she was looking. She said, yes, she was feeling mighty good, for she had found a good medicine that had helped her a lot, and that she felt better than she ever had in her life. I asked her what it was, and she said it was Tanlac. She wanted me to get a bottle right away, and I did.

"I have taken three bottles now," she said with great satisfactiyn, "and I don't have to envy Minnie her health any more. The yellow color has gone out of my face and everything I eat tastes good. I don't have that nasty bad taste in my mouth any more. I feel like I am just beginning to enjoy life. You have to be sick for a long time like I was to know what a great blessing health is.

"I was so happy about Tanlac that I told my neighbors and several of them are taking it. My father-in-law, who has been sick for a long time, is taking it, and I will certainly remember this good medicine the longest day I live."

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonsful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonsful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonsful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador of "Money Back" if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Schiffmann, Proprietor, Saint Paul, Minn. The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The athletic boys expect to have a very exciting basket ball game on their court next Friday evening at 2:00, p.m. Their antagonists are to be the team from the Macon County High School at Notasulga. Everybody is especially and urgently invited to come. The admission is the meager amount of 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. All school pupils will be admitted at children's rate.

Anyone can afford to pay this small sum, and it is certainly a fact that the school needs it; so let everybody show their interest it the school by coming out.

Last Monday evening the Juniors selected their class colors,—lavender and white; flower, white carnation; motto, "ceteris pralstare."

The subject for debate in the Websterian Society Friday evening was:—"The United States should have gone to war with Mexico." The speakers on the affirmative were Omar Reynolds and Edgar Teel, negative Jean Wyatt and Oscar Jones. The judges turned in their decision as a tie. So the question was submitted to Secretary Joe Kanjutzky for untying, he being the highest officer not concerned in the debate. He decided in favor of the affirmative.

Rev. Chalker was present at the chapel exercises Monday, and made a very entertaining as well as enlightening lecture.

The girls have selected as the name for their literary society, "Hypatia."

SAND MOUNTAIN

The farmers in this district are making good use of this pretty weather planting wheat and oats

We had a box supper here at this place last Friday night for the purpose of getting the girls a basket ball, and was enjoyed by all.

Our school is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. Clifton McGee, principal and Miss Lena Walker.

Judge L. H. Reynolds of Clanton visited our Sunday school the 14th of November and delivered an excellent talk on Temperence which was enjoyed by everyone, we hope Mr. Reynolds will visit us again.

Health is generally good in this section with the exception of Granny Mize who is very feeble.

Mr. T. Frith, wife and children made a flying trip to Riderville Sunday in Mr. Guss Wallace's car.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE NEXT SUNDAY

There will be a Union Thanksgiving service at the Clanton Baptist church on next Sunday night at seven o'clock, at which Rev. Chalker, pastor of the methodist church, will preach.

A thanksgiving offering for the poor will be given, and appropriated by the two churches.

Everybody invited to attend and parliicipate in the services.

Best Treatment for Catarrh S. S. S. Removes the Cause

Specialists in Catarrh troubles have agreed that it is an infection of the blood. The laboratories of the S. S. S. Co., at Atlanta, have proven it. Once you get your blood free from impurities—cleansed of the Catarrhal poisons, which it is now a prey to because of its unhealthy state—then you will be relieved of Catarrh—the dripping in the throat, hawking and spitting, raw sores in the nostrils, and the disagreeable bad breath. It was caused, in the first place, because your impoverished blood was easily infected. Possibly a slight cold or contact with someone who had a cold. But the point is—don't suffer with Catarrh—it is not necessary. The remedy S. S. S., discovered over fifty years ago, tested, true and tried, is always obtainable at any drug store. It has proven its value in thousands of cases. It will do so in your case. Get S. S. S. at once and begin treatment. If yours is a long standing case, be sure to write the S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga., for free expert medical advice. They will tell you how this purely vegetable blood tonic cleanses the impurities from the blood by literally washing it clean. They will prove to you that thousands of sufferers from Catarrh, after consistent treatment with S. S. S., have been freed from the trouble and all its disagreeable features and restored to perfect health and vigor. Don't delay the treatment. Take S. S. S. at once.

TRY IT! SUBSTITUTE FOR NASTY CALOMEL

Starts your liver without making you sick and can not salivate

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great failing off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodsou's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like riolent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

OATS AND WHEAT IN THE ROTATION

By J. F. Duggar, Director of Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Among the few Alabama farmers who practice a regular rotation that includes the small grains, cotton, corn, and cowpeas, the usual order in which these are planted is as follows:

First year: Corn, with cowpeas between the rows.

Second year: Oats, followed by cowpeas, or other summer legume.

Third year: Cotton.

This makes oats or wheat follow corn, and is done because corn, unlike cotton as heretofore handled, is removed in time for the sowing of fall oats or for wheat. However, in that part of the State where the boll weevil is present in numbers it may sometimes be wise to change this order so as to let oats or other winter grain come immediately after cotton.

This is now possible, because in the weevil regions there is no top crop, which, with the reduced acreage in cotton, makes it possible to finish picking in October, or in time for fall sown grain.

This latter order should be encouraged, since it offers a great incentive to plow under the cotton stalks early, and thus to accomplish the most economical method of boll weevil control.

By letting the oats or wheat follow cotton there is the further advantage of permitting velvet beans to be grown among the corn. This has always been important in South Alabama, and will hereafter be important in Central Alabama, now that we have early varieties of velvet beans.

By growing these crops in this order, that is, corn, with velvet beans between the rows; then cotton; then oats, followed the same season by cowpeas or soybeans or peanuts, the vines of the velvet beans are available for winter pasturage. This would not be the case if fall sown oats immediately followed corn, as in the old rotation first mentioned.

Please announce through your paper that there will be an oyster supper at Free Springs on Sat. night, Dec. 4th.

Home Celebration of Wonder Interest

The arrival of a baby in the household completely changes the entire aspect of the future. But in the meantime, during the anxious period of expectancy, there is a splendid remedy known as "Mother's Friend" that does wonders. It is for external use, relieves the pains of muscle expansion, soothes and quiets the nerves, extends its influence to the internal organs and removes to a great extent the tendency to worry and apprehension. It is a natural treatment, safe for the mother, has no drug effect whatsoever and for this reason must exert a most beneficial influence upon those functions directly connected with motherhood. In a very interesting book the subject is freely discussed and a copy will be mailed free to all expectant mothers by Bradfield Regulator Co., 706 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today of any druggist. Use as directed and you will then know why mothers for nearly half a century have used and recommended this splendid aid to motherhood. Their letters are messages of cheer, that breathe comfort in every word.

It is worth while to know that "Mother's Friend" has been in continuous use more than half a century. Letters are frequently received to say that a young mother learned of this splendid remedy from her mother and from her grandmother both of whom used it with happiest results.

Because of this fact you may rely implicitly upon its safety, its effectiveness and its directness of purpose.

OBITUARY

Died recently in the Pleasant Grove community west of Thorsby, Cathareen, little child of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Honeycutt. The corpse was laid away in the nearby cemetery. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved parents. Their loss and loneliness on account of this sad visitation cannot be described. Those who have had a similar experience know what it means, others do not.

While the bereavement is a sore trial, yet through the gloom shines the beautiful light of hope; hope that although little Cathareen is now sweetly sleeping in the grave she will live again, and learn of the plan of redemption and being obedient to heaven's laws will live forever on the beautiful new earth. Sad thought that she is gone, yet she has escaped the apparently approaching greatest trial of earth's history. Her resurrection from the grave is assured, and he who notes the sparrow's fall sympathizes with the sorrowing parents and in the consumation of His great plan His love and pity will abundently satisfy.

CONCORD

Concord is moving along nicely we are very glad to say.

We have a full school now, about sixty on roll and 50 attending regularly, and we are expecting a number of new ones this week. We are going to see about getting an assistant teacher at once.

We had a little Thanksgiving service at our schoolhouse Thursday. A very good crowd came and we all gave many thanks to God. We were all so thankful that He spared our lives and let us meet again in our schoolhouse for another Thanksgtving day. Just think how happy and thankful we should be that we are in peace, not in war fighting as the people of Europe are today. And we should be so thankful that we have such a big-hearted, broad-minded, christian President that has kept our country out of war

Our teacher, Prof. F. B. Williams, made a very interesting talk on the subject of Thanksgiving, in which he tried to show us all the real value of observing the day, after which all the patrons and pupils present responded promptly, naming a few of the many things that they were thankful for, then we gave a number of quotations from the Bible and elsewhere, sang a few songs and repeated the Lords prayer together. We all carried our teacher little presents, such as flowers, peanuts, cake, stationary, sugar cane, apples, pictures, syrup, canned fruit popcorn and many other things and some gave him money as they never brought any thing from home. Many of the pupils exchanged gifts, and after our teacher treated us to candy, crackers, cornflakes etc., he shared many of his gifts with his pupils, patrons and friends and we all just had a real good time together for an hour or more. We were then dismissed with a sweet prayer by Mrs. Charley Campbell, one of the patrons, then we played with our new basket ball awhile, we will soon have our ground in good shape to play ball.

We had a box supper Saturday night to get money to buy our basket ball outfit and other necessities, and we have our ball already and $11.65 left in the treasure, I think that did well for a few of us school girls.

After playing we all returned to our homes with thankful hearts, feeling that we were bettered by having spent part of the day in this way and I am thankful that we did.

ALABAMA RURAL CREDIT ASSOCIATION

Will have Branch Organized in Chilton County

Mr. R. W. Dilday has been in Chilton county this week in the interest of the Alabama Rural Credit Association, a branch of which organization he will soon establish in our midst.

Its purpose is widespread and calculated to benefit the conditions of farmers.

It is backed by farmers, and those of Chilton may do well to investigate the proposition and lend their support in the matter.

We will have more to say about it later on.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY CHILTON COUNTY.

In the Circuit Court. Fall Term. 1915.

State of Alabama, Chilton Co.
To the Honorable W. W. Pearson, Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit:

We, the Grand Jury, duly empanneled, and sworn for the Fall Term, 1915, of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, beg leave to submit this our final report.

We have investigated 40 alleged violations of the law and have returned into your Honor's Court 23 true bills.

We have examined the County officer's books to the best of our ability in the limited time in which we had and find them correctly and neatly kept. We have examined the bonds of all the County officers and consider them sufficient.

COUNTY POOR

There are 17 inmates in the County Poor House, 12 males and 7 females—all white. Their quarters are comfortable and they appear on the whole contented and well cared for. There is need of repairs on the house belonging to poor farm, which is nearest to Clanton. It has a metal roof and is in need of repair and we recommend that the Court of County Commissioners have this repair made at once.

COUNTY PROPERTY

We find the Jail and Court House in good condition and cleanly and hygienically kept and we wish to congratulate our Sheriff upon the manner in which the jail and Court house are kept.

We have investigated the County's finances and beg leave to make the following report as shown from the County Treasurers books (Exhibit A"

COUNTY ROADS

We find the roads in the county in good condition; in fact in excellent condition when the means at hand for building roads is considered.

The general sentiment of the county seems to be in favor of road building.

Thanking your Honor for your able charge covering duties as Grand Jurors. and also our Honorable Solicitor, F. Lloyd Tate, for his aid and assistance in our work, and the Sheriff and his deputies for the prompt manner in which they have executed the summonses of this body, and the Bailiff for his services. we respectfully ask that we finally be discharged.

W. C. DYER,
Foreman.

Clanton, Ala., November 22, 1915
To the Honorable Solicitor and Gentlemen of the Grand Jury of the Fall Term 1915 of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama:

Gentlemen: I beg to report to your honorable body that I have cash on hand to the credit of the following funds: Nov. 22, 1915, to Cash on hand,

General Fund	$3,581.17
Road Fund	2,340.76
Fine and Forfeiture Fund	12.20
Redemption of Land	74.25
State Aid Road Fund	6.78
Total	$6,015.16

I, J. W. Littlejohn, Treasurer of Chilton County, Alabama, do hereby certify that the above is a true and correct statement of the finance of Chilton County, as appears from my books.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. LITTLEJOHN,
Treasurer of Chilton County.

SUMMARY OF BOLL WEEVIL SUGGESTIONS

From Farmers' Bulletin Prepared by W. E. Hinds of Auburn.

1. Plan to raise all food supplies, forage, etc., needed at home
2. Prepare ground thoroughly before planting. Practice deep plowing in fall.
3. Plant cotton when soil and air conditions insure rapid, continuous growth.
4. Provide for rotation of crops and have something to sell each month.
5. Practice frequent, shallow cultivation only, continuing until cotton opens.
6. Pick weevils, when abundant, from tops of young plants at time squares begin to form. Later, if ground is moist or temperatures average below 90 degrees, pick and destroy infested squares, beginning ten days after first bloom appears and repeating every fifth day for six weeks.
7. Quicken plant growth by proper drainage, fertilization and frequent cultivation; especially increase humus in soil.
8. Quit using "gin run" seed. Select seed in field for next planting. Pick crop out as early as possible.
9. Quit allowing stalks to stand until spring. Destroy all green cotton as early in fall as possible by (a) chopping and plowing under 4 inches or more of dirt; or by (b) uprooting and burning stalks 3 weeks before frost where impossible to burn them. Use cover crops, clovers and grains especially.
10. Quit depending on advances; get out of debt. Quit moving around; buy a home. Build up the soil. "Use more brain and less brawn."

TEDDY AND HIRAM BULL MOOSE CRY OF MISSOURI

Progressives, Accusing Old-Line Parties of Graft, Launch Campaign For Next Year.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 20.—The leaders of the Progressive party in Missouri favor entering the 1916 campaign with full national, state and county tickets, headed by Theodore Roosevelt and Hiram W. Johnson.

That attitude was expressed in a resolution adopted by the party leaders after a conference here today.

The action at the conference followed the announcement of George W. Perkins. of New York, chairman of the national executive committee of the party that he had called a meeting of the committee in New York, November 29, to arrange for a meeting of the national committee at which a date and place for a national convention will be fixed.

Resolutions adopted today by the Missouri Progressives include the following:

"We see nothing in the present attitude of either of the old parties that holds out any promise for the future. As in the 1912 campaign, the powers of graft and special privilege are in control of the old party organization and are openly preparing to write platforms and nominate candidates in harmony with their interests.

"We therefore stand squarely on our national platform of 1912 and favor the nomination of national, state and county tickets on that platform."

M. W. OF A. POPULAR ORDER OF CALERA

Modern Woodmen of America campaign under management of C. H. Gibson, a great success here. Mr. Gibson showed his ability by coming to Calera for the purpose of reviving the old camp; this called for a reorganization, election of new officers. He is being congratulated in the manner in which he secured the co operation of the leading business and professional men of Calera, both young and old.

His strong point is the fact that every man must be a better man that affiliates with fraternal societies, "No man liveth for himself alone."

Calera Camp No. 16223 had the pleasure of entertaining some of the head officers of Birmingham Monday night. These prominent men of Woodcraft came over for the purpose of demonstrating the impressive degree work, both in reality and silent moving picture, which was not only instructive, but very instructive, and was convincing that the Modern Woodmen of America stands for morality as well as cheap safe insurance.

State Organizer B. W. Wyning made an interesting lecture on Woodcraft from a Fraternal standpoint, commented briefly on the great work being done at Sanitorium at Colorado Springs, for the free treatment of Tuberlosis to members, thus exemplifying the spirit of this society to its members by prolonging their lives.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The "Orange and Blue" basket ball team suffered a defeat last Saturday by the team of the Macon county high school. This was the first game on the C. C. H. S.'s schedule for 1915-16, and the score was 35 to 6.

The first half was played very slowly, Macon scoring 15 and Chilton 6. During the second half the Macon boys made 25, while C. C. H. S. attained nothing.

The features of the game were the goal pitching of Ruff and Bridge for the visitors. The home boys gained distinction by the teriffic guarding of Burnett and Allen, and the goal pitching of Wyatt.

While in Montgomery the other day Mr. Tinsley received the news that his sister was married.

The school was greatly delighted to hear Miss Roberta Curry sing in chapel the other morning.

The athletic boys are planning a basket ball game with Marbury for next Saturday. The game will be on the Marbury court.

Messrs. Dorcas Maddox and Ephriam Smith were visitors at the high school Monday.

The junior boys did not get to go out on the river on Thanksgiving, as they had planned, on account of the basket ball game. They practice regularly, and are displaying much skill in the game.

Mr. McDonald announced in chapel the other day that the best looking senior had a chance of failing to get a diploma this year.

Feltz Mullins (a senior) said that there was no chance of him passing, if that were the case; so he would just stop school.

Our style maker has lately introduced a new style on shoes for evening; wearing artificial flowers in the tops of "old ladies' comforts." Interested parties will see Miss Willie B. Jones.

The following is a result of the collaboration of two junior boys, who live at Coopers and come to Clanton every day on the train:

On to the depot we go,
Where we wait for No. 12 to blow.
We arrive in Clanton at eight,
For it is best never to be late.
Marching with anything but glee,
For by eight-thirty school we must be.
An through the hall we pass,
Meet Mrs. Wood at the English class.
When the bell sounds once more,
She tells us to come back at four;
When that English we must know,
Or to the campus we shall go.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner, please allow me space in your paper to express my sincere thanks to my neighbors and friends for their many favors shown during the illness and death of my husband.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

We are mailing out notices this week to all our delinquent subscribers. If you happen to be the recipient of one of these, we want you to be sure and remember us when you come to town, and come around and pay up. Please don't expect us to send you the paper always without your paying some on it at least occasionly. It takes money to run this business, and it isn't a bit fair for a fellow to take this paper for two or three years, and make us wait all that time for our money. If some of those whom we have been crediting for a year would come around and see us, pay up their past dues, and then step out ahead for a year, then we would be able to give everybody a bigger and better paper, and it would be more worth your time and money. Now do not pass this idly by. Rake up a dollar and come around to see us. You can afford to pay it, and we need it.

Another Chestnut: "Do your Christmas shopping early."

There's a lot of energy corked up in this town. Jerk the cork!

Are you a home town booster? Or is it the other fellow?

January 1 is noted for two things. It ushers in a new year and a grist of bills.

Many a wise man is considered a fool by his neighbors.

Eat, drink and be merry, if you can. But be merry, anyway.

A lot of people talk, a few think, and some are too darned lazy to do either.

A gift with a string tied to it is usually of less value than the string.

One of the wisest men we ever knew frankly admitted he was a fool.

"Kill the goose that lays the golden egg," if you like. But save the egg.

No man is ever as wise as his neighbor— in the estimation of the neighbor.

Get there on time and leave on time, and perhaps you will be invited to call again.

No person is ever poor who has a normal body, good health, a clear eye and a clean mind.

If a man and wife are one, why in heck is "he, she or it" always scrapping?

If all defectives were allowed to die at birth what a slump we would have in our census returns!

Wouldn't be president, you say? Neither would we, and for the same reason—we couldn't be elected.

We are perfectly willing to have the whole world formed into one great republic, provided Uncle Sam is the big squeeze in the push.

First thing we know the neutral countries will be scrapping with each other to see which one can cop off the honors of neutrality.

We cant all be rich, and we won't all be paupers, but we can have a deal of fun trotting along in the middle of the road.

When you step on the other fellow's toe "he ought to have sense enough to keep out of the way." But if he steps on yours he's a clumsy brute.

"Women of the world are showing a strong tendency toward returning to the garb of Mother Eve," says a feminine lecturer of note. Bully! We always did believe in pushing a good thing along.

If only the good and pure in mind go to heaven, what is to become of the doctors, and the lawyers, and merchants, and editors, and bankers, and farmers, and the rest of the common herd? And where, oh where, will the politicians go?

If every one of our delinquent subscribers would pay up between now and Christmas this town would have a record equaled by no other town in the United States. And who wouldn't cough up a dollar or two for a rep. like that?

The time is coming when nearly every church will have moving pictures as a feature of the service, and it wouldn't be a bad stunt at that. "Illustrated sermons" would look good, sound better, be best, and get the people.

We wish to thank those who have responded to our call and paid up their back subscriptions recently. It is a favor much appreciated. There are many more whom we would be pleased to have drop around and square up. We are looking for you to come every day.

The Hospital movement is assuming tangible form, there is already an active commiteee at work soliciting subscriptions and completing all necessary arrangements, and it is expected that Clanton will have a modern up- to-date Hospital in operation within the next sixty or ninety days. It is hoped that everyone will take an interest in this much needed enterprise, and that Clanton may soon have an institution of which all will feel proud.

Our County Debt

It recently occurred to us that it might be a matter of general interest to publish a statement of what the county of Chilton owes. And to this end we ieterviewed county Treasurer, J. Wiley Littlejohn, who furnished us the following figures:

There were outstanding against the county, registered unpaid warrants on the general fund to the amount of $25,026.61, as near as could be determined at the time the statement was given us.

There were regular county road warrants, registered and unpaid, as near as could be determined, $6,335.45.

There were in outstanding interest-bearing road warrants, running at 6 per cent, obligations to the amount of $100,500.00.

All these figures taken together give the present debt of Chilton county as approximately $131,800.00.

Look over the above facts and study them. They are authentic, and it appears to us, big enough to speak for themselves.

Rural Credits

Much has been said in the past few years on the subject of rural credits. It has been universally conceded that our farmers have been seriously handicapped by a dire inability to secure loans of money with which to operate and improve their property. The remedy for this smperative need is now being worked oct in the organization of Rural Credit Associations. A head office for Alabama is located in Birmingham, and branches will be worked up in the different counties.

Members of the association—farmers—will have the privilege of borrowing money from the association at six per cent. The number of members for Chilton county is iimited to one hundred.

The privilege which is handed out through the organization is a priceless one, and the farmers who avail themselves of it will be indeed fortunate.

The special representative of the head office, Mr. Dilday, will be at Thorsby with the Fruit Growers Association next Saturday, and at the County Farmers Union there next Thursday and Friday. He will give full explanations of the work and purpose of the of the plans under way. If you are a farmer and are in need of some easy money at liviug terms, you may do well to investigate the matter and talk tc Mr. Dilday.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words to the people in regard to diseased or enlarged tonsils and adenoids in children. At the better baby contest held here during the recent County Fair, there were twenty-eight babies examined, eleven of this number had either adenoids or enlarged tonsils and some of them had both adenoids and diseased tonsils. When we take into consideration that no child over two years of age was entered in this contest and that these conditions are more prevalent in childhood than in infancy. We cannot help believing that at least fifty per cent of our children are afflicted with adenoids or diseased tonsils, which if allowed to go untreated will ultimately impair the child's hearing, weaken the eyes, disfigure the face, and also it will be more susceptable to such diseases as diptheria, scarlet fever, rheumatism and tuberculosis, besides retards both physical and mental development.

I would like to urge that parents have their children examined and if found to have adenoids or diseased tonsils, have them removed before some of the above complications arise and permanent injury be the result. These children can be treated here at home—it is not necessary to carry them away for treatment. I hope that parents who have children with these conditions prevailing will have them treated and thus give them an equal chance to grow and develop that all healthy children should have.

Respectfully,
T. J. MARCUS, M. D.

BANK PRESIDENT GIVES TESTIMONY

Says He Can Now Jump On His Horse And Ride Away As Good As Anybody

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 2 1915.

H. W. Hill, president of one of the leading banking institutions of South Pittsburg, Tenn., was among the visitors to Chattanooga last week. Mr. Hill is not only one of the most successful bankers and business men of Tennessee, but is one of the state's most popular citizens. He numbers his friends by his acquaintances.

Weile in Chattanooga, Mr. Hill paid a visit to the Tanlac representative at the Live and Let Live Drug Companp, to express his gratitude for the wonderful good he had obtained by the use of the medicine. Among other things, Mr. Hill said:

"I suffered from rheumatism and other ailments for many rears, but this Tanlac went right after my trouble, and I tell you it did me a world of good. The pains which were with me so long have dissapeared, and I tell you I can jump on my horse now and ride away as good as any body. This Tanlac has done me more good than anything I ever tried.

"I now wake up in the mornings feeling fine, and to tell you the truth, since I began taking this medicine, I feel well all the time.

"I am telling all my friends about Tanlac, and am recommending it to them regardless of their age or trouble, for I tell you it has put me in old-time form again."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. —Adv.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
Cures Colds: Prevents Pneumonia

PREVENTION AND TREATMENT OF SOREHEAD IN CHICKENS

Carelessness Causes Spread of Disease—Be Careful.

By C. A. Cary, Dean Veterinary College, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

This disease is caused by an ultra-microscopic or filterable virus. It may be transmitted by inoculation, possibly by mosquitoes, gnats, by actual contact or by one chicken picking another. One attack gives immunity. The disease occurs most frequently in late sumer and fall in young chickens and sometimes in older ones, especially those that have not had a previous attack. Sorehead, Roup and Chicken Diphtheria are considered by many good authorities one and the same disease, manifesting itself in different parts

To prevent the disease keep the chickens in good health, give them good roosting places away from gnats, mosquitoes and other insects, such as mites and lice. If a chicken develops the disease remove it at once from the flock and treat it by itself. Preventive inoculation is now practiced a great deal in some parts of the United States. The virus for inoculation is made by taking the scabs or scales from a sorehead chicken and mixing it with glycerine or some bland oil and using it to vaccinate non-infected chickens. Usually one inoculation gives immunity. Keeping the chicken yards clean and disinfected and in sanitary condition helps to prevent this disease. Some advise giving occasional doses of salts during the summer and fall. See also that the feed is pure and in good condition.

TREATMENT: Diseased chickens may be treated more or less sucessfully when the manifestations of the disease are on the outer surface, on the skin of the head, the wattles or comb, or in the eye. But when the disease appears in the mouth, the pharynx, the larynx or the nasal pasages or cavity it is more difficult to treat and sometimes incurable. The scale or crust can be scraped off with a dull knife and then apply iodoform. A mixture of equal parts of iodoform, boric acid and tannic acid makes a very good disinfecting and astringent powder Iodoform can also be applied by mixing one part of iodoform with six parts of ether. Other disinfectants can also be used but none of them are as effective as iodoform. Iodoform is objectionable because of its odor. If the eye is affected remove the pus and thick material from over and under the eyelids and then apply the iodoform directly in the eye. Within four or five hours after applying the above, apply lard or vaseline all over the head and in the eyes. It may not be necessary to repeat this treatment for skin affection, but if the eyes are involved, it will be necessary to repeat the iodoform once a day for three or four days. It would be well to repeat the application of vaseline or lard once every two or three days.

If the chickens are blind it will be necessary to feed them by hand. There is no other way for successful active treatment than by careful handling of each animal.

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonsful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonsful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonsful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador of "Money Back" if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Schiffmann, Proprietor, Saint Paul, Minn. OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Hon. Elihu Root
On Woman's Sphere

The question of Woman Suffrage is an issue before the American people. Twelve states have adopted it, four more states vote upon it this fall and it is strongly urged that it become a platform demand of the national political parties. It is therefore the privilege and the duty of every voter to study carefully this subject. Hon. Elihu Root, in discussing this question before the constitutional convention of New York, recently said in part:

"I am opposed to the granting of suffrage to women, because I believe that it would be a loss to women, to all women and to every woman; and because I believe it would be an injury to the state, and to every man and every woman in the state. It would be useless to argue this if the right of suffrage were a natural right. If it were a natural right, then women should have it though the heavens fall. But if there be any one thing settled in the long discussion of this subject, it is that suffrage is not a natural right, but is simply a means of government, and the sole question to be discussed is whether government by the suffrage of men and women will be better government than by the suffrage of men alone.

"Into my judgment, sir, there enters no element of the inferiority of woman. It is not that woman is inferior to man, but it is that woman is different from man; that in the distribution of powers, of capacities, of qualities, our Maker has created man adapted to the performance of certain functions in the economy of nature and society, and woman adapted to the performance of other functions.

"Woman rules today by the sweet and noble influences of her character. Put woman into the arena of conflict, and she abandons these great weapons which control the world, and she takes into her hands, feeble and nerveless for strife, weapons with which she is unfamiliar and which she is unable to wield. Woman in strife becomes hard, harsh, unlovable, repulsive; as far removed from that gentle creature to whom we all owe allegiance and to whom we confess submission, as the heaven is removed from the earth.

"The whole science of government is the science of protecting life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In the divine distribution of powers, the duty and the right of protection rests with the male. It is so throughout nature. It is so with men, and I, for one, will never consent to part with the divine right of protecting my wife, my daughter, the women whom I love, and the women whom I respect, exercising the birthright of man, and place that high duty in the weak and nerveless hands of those designed by God to be protected rather than to engage in the stern warfare of government. In my judgment, this whole movement arises from a false conception of the duty and of the right of both men and women.

"The time will never come when the line of demarcation between the functions of the two sexes will be broken down. I believe it to be false philosophy; I believe that it is an attempt to turn backward upon the line of social development, and that if the step ever be taken, we go centuries backward on the march towards a higher, nobler and purer civilization, which must be found not in the confusion, but in the higher differentiation of the sexes."

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Whereas, I, H. A. Harris, as Sheriff of Chilton County, Alabama, am in receipt of a writ of election issued by the Governor of the State of Alabama, it is hereby ordered that a Special Election be held in every Precinct in the County of Chilton, State of Alabama, on Monday, the 27th day of December, 1915, at which time there will be submitted to the qualified electors of the County of Chilton, the following amendment to the Constitution, to-wit:

"The city of Birmingham may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total in any one year, one and one-half per centum of the value of such property, assessed as provided by the Constitution, and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution. But provided that the total rate of taxation levied by the city of Birmingham shall not, in any one year, exceed one per centum per annum unless the rate in excess of one per centum for such year, shall have been submitted by the governing body of said city to the qualified voters of said city at an election held within such year or within three years prior to the beginning of such year, and shall have been authorized for such year by the majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of said city voting upon such proposition. And an increase in the rate of taxation, in excess of one per centum per annum, may be authorized at one election for one year, or for two or three successive years, and if, for more than one year, at the same or different excess rates for the respective years. In the event an excess rate submitted for any year or years shall not be so authorized at any election, a new lower excess rate for such year or years may be submitted by the governing body of said city to the qualified voters of said city for like authorization at a subsequent election or elections held at any time or times thereafter. Each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed, and contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by law, applicable to said city, for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. Ballots used at such elections shall contain the words "For..... excess rate of taxation for the year (or years).....; and "Against .....excess rate of taxation for the year (or years)....." The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one per centum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor; and, in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years, the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different excess rates proposed to be applied to the respective years, and the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates, shown, by placing a cross-mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said city heretofore issued."

EVER SALIVATED BY CANOMEL! HORRIBLE!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

Sharks.

The shark (the "man-eating" shark is no exception to the other kinds) is oviparous—producing eggs that mature and are hatched outside the body.

STRAYED—One brown mare mule about ten years old on last Thursday. Last seen two miles east of Clanton. Notify D. Y. Johnson and receive reward.

FOR RENT—Nice new five room bungalow in the Gowan Addition, near the county high school. Equipped with lights, waterworks, sewerage, baths and all modern conveniences. For particulars see W. M. Wyatt, at the Union-Banner office. adv.

GROUND LIMESTONE: WHY USE IT AND AMOUNT TO USE PER ACRE

By M. J. Funchess, Associate Agriculturist, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Ground limestone as recommended for use in soil and crop improvement is the natural limestone rock crushed to a fine powder by means of a mill of some kind. For agricultural purposes, it should be crushed so fine that the greater part of a sample will pass through a screen having twenty meshes per inch; and the entire sample should pass a screen with eight or ten meshes per inch.

For the following reasons, ground limestone should be given preference over quick, or caustic, or builders' lime: (1) It is not at all disagreeable to handle, as is the quick lime. (2) It can be bought cheaper than the quick lime. (3) Burned or quick lime, when added to the soil, soon changes to the same form as the natural crushed lime rock. (4) Crushed limestone has no injurious effect on the soil organic matter, or humus, while quick lime has.

The amount of limestone to use per acre depends upon several conditions: (1) Very sour soil needs more than soils less sour. (2) The sandier the soil, the more readily the lime leaches away and is lost. Hence ,sandy soils will usually need more frequent applications of lime or larger applications than heavier types of land. Usually one or two tons of lime will be sufficient to overcome the acidity on the plowed soil of an acre of land. After the soil is once neutralized, a ton of lime should be sufficient to last from two to five years, depending upon the type of soil. There are a few cases recorded tending to show that the beneficial effects of small applications of lime could be noted for six or even eight years after the initial application.

For a fuller discussion of lime and liming, see Alabama Experiment Station Bulletin No. 161, which may be had free from the Director of the Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

Maternity! The Word of Words

It is written into life's expectations that motherhood is the one sublime accomplishment. And if there is anything, no matter how simple, how apparently trivial it may seem, if it can aid, help, assist or in any way comfort the expectant mother, it is a blessing. And such is a remedy called "Mother's Friend." You apply it over the stomach muscles. It is gently rubbed on the surface, and makes the muscles pliant; this relieves the strain on ligaments, natural expansion takes place without undue effect upon the nerves. And as the time approaches, the mind has gone through a period of repose, of gentle expectancy, and this has an unquestioned influence upon the future child. That this is true is evidenced by the fact that three generations of mothers have used and recommended "Mother's Friend." Ask your nearest druggist for a bottle of this splendid remedy. He will get it for you. And then write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 707 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a most interesting book of information to prospective mothers. It is mailed free. Write today. It is a book you will enjoy.

It is replete with important and timely topics such as a description of the nerves, muscles and parts involved, the strange mystery of a new baby, the law of contiguity, first pulsations, prefatory uneasiness, a maternity chart, diet list and many other subjects briefly told but of value to all women and particularly so to one who is to become a mother. It is mailed free to all who write for it.

IN THE INTEREST OF THE JACKSON HIGHWAY

In order to insure the early beginning and completion of work along the Central Alabama Route for the proposed Jackson Highway, a mass meeting of all citizens interested in the Alabama Route, is hereby called to be held in Birmingham, at the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce at ten o'clock a.m., on Thursday, December 16th, 1915.

It is particularly urged that the Probate Judges, and members of the Boards of County Commissioners from each County along the proposed route should be in attendance at the meeting.

If we shall bestir ourselves, and accomplish what we can easily accomplish before the next inspection trip in October 1916, there would seem to be no reasonable doubt as to the selection of the Alabama Route.

Respectfully,
L. C. Irvine,
W. T. Sanders,
Executive Committee from Alabama, for the Jackson Highway.

Mrs. PINCKARD APPOINTED

Mrs. Bibb Graves has appointed me one of the Committee for the Soldiers Home at Mountain Creek. And as we all have many things to be thankful for, I make an appeal to all who can contribute to these dear old men. While sorrow has come into many homes, we have one common cause for thankfulness—that our beloved country is at peace. With the true spirit of thankfulness let us make every effort to the Xmas of our dear old soldiers at the Home—the remnant of a war almost as terrible as this of which we read of daily. If we fail them, Xmas will be gloomy and sad.

Anything you care to give will be greatly appreciated—money, clothes, eatables. Arrange in a package with the name of donor on package and send to them just before Xmas.

"I expect to pass through this world but once, if therefore there be any kindness I can show, or any good that I can do, let me do it now, for I shall not pass this way again."

Mrs. E. M. Pinckard.

UNION SPRINGS

The District Sunday school convention met here last Saturday, and it was a real success. The chief speakers were Rev. Winkler and Prof. Roper. Their addresses were just fine. Mr. Winkler emphasized the spiritual and political dangers now trying to get possession of our fair land, that we should awake to those facts. Mr. Roper's theme was the sufficiency of Holy-writ to meet every need of man. Their talks were stiring and soul cheering; the great underlying thought being the grand uplift in the future for all the willing ones of the race, which work will doubtless be a part of the employment of the glorified church as Kings and Priests aiding the fallen and erring ones to life. The Prince of darkness as He sees His Kingdom tottering, is making strenuous efforts against the forces of light, but the light of the beautiful day is guilding the hill tops and darkness after an awful struggle must flee away.

Rev. Smitherman, of Bibb, passed through here Saturday enroute to his appointment.

Miss Lucile Smitherman of Randolph was here Saturday enroute to the box supper at Free Springs.

Great crops of ribbon cane syrup have been recently manufactured in this part.

We agree with the editor that colossal debt Chilton county owes looks big enough. Somebody is responsible for us being in debt. While our Commissioners are spending our money why cant they remember what was recommended by the Grand Jury of some years ago, that is to build a comfortable room for grand jury witnesses, where they could be kept comfortable and not have to hang around in that hall in the cold wind. Yes, just as well add a little more to that big debt and furnish a comfortable room for those people called before the grand jury.

Singing and Sunday school both rained out here Sunday.

Married on the 21st ult., Mr. Walter Allen of Jackson, Tenn., and Miss Hattie Merchant.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

The athletic boys redeemed their place of honor in basket ball playing last Saturday, when they overwhelmingly defeated the Marbury High school team on the latter's ground. The final score was 27 to 12. The first half ended with C. H. S. scoring 9, and M. H. S. 4. The Marbury boys were outclassed by Clanton on account of the superior goal-pitching and fast playing of C. H. S. The features of the game were the goal-pitching and guarding of Smith and Williams for Clanton. Time of halves was 20 minutes. Umpires were Wood a. p. i., and Rudder, a. p. i.

This marked the second game for the C. H. S. on the 1915 catalogue.

The senior class met on last Thursday evening and made the initial arrangements for publishing an annual for this year. The following were elected the staff: Editor in Chief, Jean Wyatt; Business Manager, Oscar Jones; Poet, Miss Ara Mullins; Historian, Miss Bessie Davis; Prophet, Edgar Teel; Artists, Misses Annie Gragg and Izora Callen; Musician, Miss Beverly Hester; and Will Writer, Feltz Mullins.

The officers of all the classes met and discussed the question with the seniors Monday evening

The Girls' Literary Society convened Tuesday evening and carried out a very good program consisting of readings and a debate.

Another lively debate was had at the Websterian Society last Friday evening—"Resolved that the study of Latin is a needless waste of time." The speakers for the affirmative were Clyde Williams and Willis Lowe; negative, Joe Kanjutzky and Tom Sessions. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

Miss Mary Morrow, a very sturdy freshman, says that for all these years in which she has been living, she just found her real talent last Friday evening after school—Walking the campus.

Edgar Teel had to attend court the first part of the week.

An operetta will be given at the high school auditorium on Wednesday evening, December 22, at 8:30 o'clock. The name of the operetta is "The Feast of the Little Lanterns," by Paul Bliss. Admission is to be 25 and 35 cents. Proceeds to be used toward furnishing the high school stage.

The junior girls served the Third year boys with doughnuts the other day.

The athletic boys are going to entertain the teachers, who are to be here next Saturday at the Teachers Association, by having a basket ball game. They are to play against the Marbury High school at 2:30 o'clock. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

B. F. REYNOLDS SPEAKS AT CLIO

A well attended meeting of the farmers of the Clio section was held in the auditorium of the High School building at Clio on Saturday morning. Besides those from the nearby territory, there were several from Eufaula, among the number being Messrs. H. Lampley, L. J. Clayton, T. Pruden, T. G. Wilkinson and Ira T. Lampley. These gentlemen went down in Mr. Lampley's car. They were accompanied by Mr. B. F. Reynolds of Rutherford, brother of the well known L. H. Reynolds, Ex-Probate Judge of Chilton county. He is one of the most successful farmers and cattle raisers of Barbour county. After listening to a short talk from District Demonstrator Whitehead, Mr. Reynolds was introduced and delivered to those present, a plain practical talk on cattle raising. His talk which was principally with reference to the raising and caring for cows and hogs, and how to obtain the best results from the sale of them, was listened to with a great deal of interest. He was asked a number of questions by those present, showing their interest in the subjects discussed.

Such meetings as these will do much towards informing the farmer as to how he can best get results from his various pursuits and enterprises. It is very much to be hoped that Mr. Reynolds will see his way clear to attend all these meetings and give to the farmers the benefit of his valuable advice. The next meeting will be held in Louisville in December.—Eufaula Citizen.

An unusually disagreeable form of the "grippe" is making the rounds this winter, and has kept many pupils from school the past weeks. Mr. D. L. McKay is the latest victim.

The meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society last Saturday night was well attended.

The debate was on the question, "Resolved that capital punishment should be abolished in Alabama," and was won by Messrs. Edger Williamson and J. C. Garthright, for the Affirmative, against Messrs. Oscar Mann and George Boone for the negative. Other numbers on the program were two vocal duets, and readings by Misses Birtie Smith and Etta Crowson. The final score for the evening was Crescents, 4 points, Stars, 3 points. All interest is now centered in the Public Contest Dec. 21st.

THE MODERN WOODMEN OF AMERICA.

Local Camp Here Putting on Special Booster Campaign.

With the assistance of District Deputies Gibson and McElwain, the local camp of the Modern Woodmen of America here is launching a special campaign to boost its membership and set out more forcibly in this community the many great features and wonderful protective advantages of the Order.

On Tuesday night "The Man Who Came Back," a motion picture story at the Dixie Theatre, showed the experience of a member of the order who was taken a victim of tuberculosis, and by means of the special arrangements of the M. W. A. membership, was taken to the great sanitorium of the order in Colorado, was treated, and returned to his family a sound man. This treatment is given free to members of the society who unfortunately contract the great white plague, the most dreadful malady to human existence.

The local camp here has a member who is being treated in the sanatorium, and furnishes a tangible example of what the proposition will do for its members.

The unequaled insurance features of the Modern Woodmen, the high fraternal relations which it emphasizes among its members, and its valuable health precautions, make the society worthy of the attention of all sound thinking men, and we hope this booster campaign will result in the addition of a good number of loyal members to the ranks of the already foremost fraternal insurance order in America.

BEAT FOUR TO HAVE TWO VOTING PLACES

The court of county commissioners at a session this week, divided Precinct No. 4, in which the town of Clanton is located into two sections, and established an order for two polling places. Division one constitutes that part of Beat 4 lying on the east side of the railroad, and the voting place is to be at the court house. Division two constitutes that part of the Beat lying on the west side of the railroad, and the voting place is to be at the Masonic Hall in Clanton. The division was made necessary by the fact that under the law, when a precinct contains over three hundred voters, there must be two places in such beat for voting.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS

The next State Examination for Teachers will be held at the Court House, beginning at ten o'clock on the third Monday in December, 1915. All applicants should be present by 9 o'clock for registration except those who intend to file a second grade and take for a first grade, and they must be present by two o'clock p.m. Tuesday.

SHE WANTS A FEDERAL LAW.

Child labor laws will not be enforced until there is a federal law which the government will enforce. So Mrs. Florence Kelley told the Eleventh Annual Conference on Child Labor at its recent San Francisco meeting. During her wide and varied experience Mrs. Kelley has accumulated many examples of why a state child labor law can never be properly enforced and why the federal government must take a hand in it.

"After a state child labor law is on the statute books the difficulties of the inspectors are only a part of the obstacles that confront the state in getting that law enforced. If an inspector works very hard he is commonly removed—that is, if he works hard and honestly and ably. I have watched inspectors working hard, honestly and ably being removed for thirty-three years. One who does not work hard and ably and honestly will probably be removed anyhow when the politics of the state changes.

"While the inspector is working hard, ably and honestly it is exceedingly difficult to get a law enforced, if prosecution is required, because local magistrates are usually reluctant to enforce it and local juries to uphold it. Some years ago we were prosecuting in Chicago a certain sweater who had employed sixteen girls illegally. A dozen witnesses were subpoenaed, and they all swore cheerfully that the law had been kept, although they knew that they had been working illegally that day.

"The justice thought it a merry jest that we could not get warrants against those perjured witnesses. He said, 'If I were going to choke my office up with perjury suits against witnesses in minor cases we would not get any business done,' so those perjured witnesses went scot free."

As a further illustration Mrs. Kelley spoke of the difficulty the New York State Department of Labor has experienced in the past two years in prosecuting canners. The trouble was not with perjured witnesses there, but with local juries. The local juries would not convict because most of them were farmers who sell their goods to the canneries and had no idea of participating in the punishment of their customers. "That condition is so widespread throughout New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware," said Mrs. Kelley, "that there is no present hope of enforcing the child labor law in the canneries of those states with local jurors in local courts.

"I do not share the millennial belief that we shall in any near future have our laws obeyed by the agreement of employers and employees in industries in which the employees are unorganized. Laws are obeyed only where there are powerful organizations of workers to compel obedience. But where there is a body of helpless aliens, as in most sweated industries, or in remote villages far from the searchlight it will take a great deal of evidence to convince me that all employers will voluntarily obey the child labor law. Our immediate need is the passage of a federal child labor law to enable the federal government to enforce the law."

A federal law would not only protect people outside of North Carolina from receiving goods manufactured by children in North Carolina, but it would protect people in that state from having to buy tenement goods from New York.—Owen R. Lovejoy.

If you want to see white children in many southern communities you must go before sunrise and catch them on their way to the cotton mills. Only colored children are to be seen going to and from school.

EX-COUNCILMAN NOW TESTIFIES

Declares He Now Feels Better In Every Way Since Taking Tanlac

Business men, professional men, working men, farmers, artisans, ministers of the Gospel, and in fact people in all walks of life, including innumerable women, are now taking Tanlac, and are testifying daily to the preparation's remarkable merits. This incontrovertible evidence was further strengthened recently by the statements of a large number who had recently realized the powers of the medicine. Among the large number who have testified during the past few days was S. S. Shepard, a well known plumbing and steam fitting contractor, whose place of business is located at No. 37 East Alabama street, Atlanta.

Mr. Shepard has been prominently identified with Atlanta's public affairs for a number of years, and formerly represented the Third ward in the city council. He also served as deputy under Sheriff Mangum. Mr. Shepard had to retire from public service, however, on account of his growing business, and resigned his seat in council in order to devote all of his time to his business.

About three weeks ago he began taking Tanlac. The first bottle helped him so much that he called a few days ago for his second bottle, and made the following interesting statement.

"I have suffered for the past year or more from a bad form of stomach trouble, something like nervous indigestion, which gradually developed into a general debilitated condition. I had dyspepsia most all of the time, and my food did not taste just right. When I got up in the morning I had a very disagreeable taste in my mouth My appetite was very poor, and I had no appetite whatsoever for breakfast.

"I had that tired-all-the-time feeling, and really had to pull myself through the day. I do not know how to describe it other than to say that it was a dull, heally feeling. I simply had no life or energy for anything and dreaded my work.

"I heard people talking abont the way Tanlac was helping them, and also read about it in the paper and decided to give it a trial. I had little faith in the medicine helping me, though, as I had already tried nearly everything in the way of medicine recommended for stomach trouble without having any relief, but it is different with this medicine. I began to notice a great improvement in my condition before I had finished my first bottle, and am confident that this medicine has almost entirely relieveed me of my nervous indigestion. I sleep better, have a much better appetite, and my general condition is greatly improved. That tited feeling has left me, and I have more energy and feel like a new man. It is certainly the best thing I ever tried, as it goes right to the spot.

AN INEXPENSIVE HOT-BED

At Small Cost Vegetables May Be Had Much Earlier.

By Ernest Walker, Horticulturist, Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

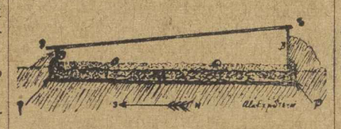
Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The accompanying diagram shows the end view of a hot-bed covered by a single sash three by six feet. It is used for starting warmth-loving plants, like tomatoes, peppers, egg plants and muskmelons, also onions for transplanting, so as to have strong plants to set out when settled spring weather arrives.

This plan secures earliness and lengthens the producing season. Enough plants may be started in this bed for the average home garden, with room for one transplanting before placing the plants out doors.

The hot-bed is located preferably on the south side of a building, fence or hedge, on high or well drained ground.

Dispensing with the heating material the bed becomes a cold frame. The protection a cold frame affords answers for lettuce, radish, etc., or for hardening off hot-bed grown plants late in the Spring.



In the diagram (Fig. 1) is shown a shallow pit (P.) filled with fermenting manure, (M) mixed with about one-third its bulk of straw or litter, and placed upon a thin layer of straw, litter or leaves. The sash (S) covers the top of the box (B). Over the manure is a four or five-inch layer of mellow soil (O). Before covering the seeds close the bed for about three days. Ventilate somewhat. When the soil has cooled to 75 degrees F it is ready for the seeds.

Such a bed costs aproximately $3.25 in all. Consult garden manuals: or circulars and bulletins of the Experiment Stations.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF TILE DRAINS OVER DITCHES

Several Points in Which Tile Drains Are Superior.

By R. U. Blasingame, Professor of Rural Engineering, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

DRAINAGE—Natural or artificial is the first requirement to soil fertility. While Alabama, in the main, is not in need of artificial drainage, there are sections which do, namely, parts of the Tennessee Valley, the Black Belt and some of the southern counties.

There are two general methods of draining land. (1) Open ditches, (2) under drainage. To every advantage of under or tile drainage there might be mentioned a disadvantage of open drainage.

Tile drains are efficient, when properly installed, because they do not offer the resistance to flowing water that the open ditch does with its rough bottom and sides.

The first tile drains were laid in the United States in 1835 by a man named Johnson in the State of New York. Recent investigations show that the system is doing as good work as when installed. Not a dollar has been spent on up-keep. Open drains, to make them efficient, need yearly repair, which makes their maintenance high.

On either side of many open ditches may be found a six-fot hedge of weeds, briers, etc. This is a waste of land, and, too, the crops are sapped for several feet away. The tile drain system wastes no land and harbors no such crop of weeds.

Not only does the open ditch system of drainage waste land, but it interferes with cultural methods. Improved machinery does not last long when it is constantly dropping into small ditches. Nor can such machinery be used to advantage where large open ditches necessitate a series of short rows.

Last ,but not least, comes the matter of erosion. The open ditch method of drainage invites the rain to continue its work of digging gullies on the slopes and building deltas in the valley. Gullied hill-sides are worthless. Storm water may be directed to catch-basins which lead to underdrains and erosion considerably reduced.

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonsful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonsful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonsful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador of "Money Back" if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Schiffmann, Proprietor, Saint Paul, Minn. FORESTALLING CHILD LABOR.

By FELIX ADLER.

The question is sometimes asked: "Why have a National Child Labor Committee? Why not have state committees and let these co-operate?" One sufficient answer to this is that the appearance of child labor in those states in which there is as yet little or no manufacturing must be forestalled, and a national committee is needed to this end. Anti-child labor laws must pre-empt the ground before a greedy industrialism can stretch forth its hands to grasp the child. The law of periodicity, the law of recurrence, that has hitherto obtained in the matter of child labor must be defeated. England began. Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York followed suit. The same inconceivable outrages on human feelings repeat themselves again and again. Whenever a predominantly agricultural community develops into an industrial stage the horrors exposed by Lord Shaftesbury tend to recur. Mankind does not readily learn by experience. The warning lessons of the past are often writ in water. Thus the industrial states of the north simply stepped into the foul footsteps of early English capitalism, and the south, as soon as it became industrial, hastened to repeat the same doleful story. The great states of the Pacific and the west must thwart that horrible law and make it impossible that the same conditions should there grow up. That is the one main object of a national committee.

THE CHILDREN'S CRY.

I said: "I am poor this year, and the war is hard.
I cannot give to the things I love to aid.
So this must go, and this, in the great discard,
And the children must suffer, too, I am much afraid."

But I didn't know how they cry in the night
And pluck at your skirts and mourn,
How they cry with the voice of your heart's delight
And the faces your dead have worn.

There are boys that work all night in the crystal dust,
There are girls who spin all day at the whirring wheels,
And how shall I face my dead with my broken trust
When the "Inasmuch as ye did it not" reveals?

I couldn't hear their cry in the night.
The clutch of their little hands,
I must do my best with the widow's mite
To loosen the iron bands.

A Fine Aid For Mother-to-be

We are all greatly indebted to those who tell their experiences. And among the many things which we read about and are of immediate importance to the expectant mother, is a splendid external remedy called "Mother's Friend." This is applied over the muscles of the stomach. It is deeply penetrating in its influence. Mothers everywhere tell of its soothing effect, how it allays pains incident to stretching of cords, ligaments and muscles. They tell of restful comfort, of calm, peaceful nights, an absence of those distresses peculiar to the period of expectancy, relief from morning sickness, no more of that apprehension with which so many young women's minds become burdened. It is a splendid help. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" from your nearest druggist. Ask your husband to get it for you. Then write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 708 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a very handsome and instructive book. It is filled with suggestive ideas of great help to all women interested in the subject of maternity. And best of all are some letters from mothers that are real inspirations. Write today.

We can go back half a century for letters from women who used "Mother's Friend." And it was this sort of recommendation that extended its use until today it is sold in almost every drug store in the United States. It is considered a standard remedy and one of the most efficient helps known. Directions for using are very easily complied with and it may be used at any time whenever needed.

SHADOW OF ROOSEVELT HANGS OVER G. O. P.

Believed Former President Will Be Candidate for Presidential Nomination

Washington, Dec. 13.—The shadow of Col. Theodore Roosevelt hung heavy over the gathering of the republican clans here today. With a majority of the members of the national committee here for tomorrow's meeting at which the time and place of the national convention will be decided and with hundreds of members of republicans on hand to talk things over the chief topic was the colonel.

It seemed to be the concusus that if the former president desires to come back his return to the party would be smoothed as much as possible. Anyhow. the committeemen and party leaders agree that nothing would be said or done if it can be avoided which would cause his anger.

Although there are many more presidential booms running loose in the hotel where the meetings will be held than have seen the light of day in republican circles in many days, the preponderance of the talk is for Justice Hughes, of New York, who insists that he is not a candidate; Senator Burton, of Ohio, and former Senator Root of New York. The Weeks, Eastbrook, Fairbanks and Borah booms are merely incidents to the big show at present, although the word is being quietly passed "keep your eye on Fairbanks."

Reports that William Barnes, Jr., republican national committeeman from New York, had proposed that the New York delegation to the national republican national convention should be headed by former President Theodore Roosevelt. were denied by Mr. Barnes today.

COTTON REPORT.

Synopsis:—The ancestral estate of Chan is held in trust until the night of the Feast of the Little Lanterns, when it shall be given over to any two surviving children. Princess Chan, having lost her brother and sister when they were children, while at the mountain summer home of the Prince is in great sorrow at the thought of having lost her home (however it is saved for her.)

The first act opens with the celebration of the Feast of the Little Lanters. The governess, who would regulate affairs of children in Japan, and her little maid, cause some amusement. The surprise of the princess is introduced in the person of the little Japanese juggle girl, who arouses great pleasure among the feasters. The curtains fall with the sorrowing princess alone in the garden.

In the second act the princess is still alone and lamenting. The chorus comes back with Wee Ling caught in mischief. The little juggler girl rushes in with the announcement from the Imperor that the sister of the Princess is alive and near, and orders every place to be searched. In searching the garden the little maid finds a locket, in which is found a half of a coin. This half is found to exactly match with the one which the princess has. They recognize each other and are overjoyed by the fact that the home shall continue to be theirs. The feast is progressing with great gaiety as the curtain falls.

THORSBY NOTES.

The marriage of Mr. D. L. McKay and Miss Ethel Tapscott, former students of Thorsby Institute, will be solemnized Wednesday at the bride's home in Joppa, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. McKay will be at home in Thorsby after December 18.

Thorsby Institute Library has received a gift of five boxes of books from Piedmont College. These will add materially to the opportunity for research work in the Library.

Mr. Oscar Mann who has been attending T. I. has returned to his home.

The basket ball game between T. I. and Wilsonville was postponed on account of rain.

Mrs. W. L. Leary gave a dinner last Saturday to the teachers of Thorsby Institute.

Thorsby Postoffice has moved into new quarters in the Masonic building.

The Ladies' Guild of Thorsby held its annual Christmas sale last Friday and Saturday. The sale was an unusually profitable one.

An interesting occasion last week during the County meeting of the Farmers Union was the lecture given by Principal McDonald of the County High School, which all the school children of Thorsby attended in a body. His subject was "Education and Efficiency." He emphasized the fact that in this day of hurry and bustle a man must be efficient if he is to get anywhere. "We," he said, "no longer ask of a man, 'Who was your father?' but 'What can you do?'". The lecture will be long remembered by all who heard it.

FARMERS UNION MEETING AT THORSBY

A very interesting session of the County Union was held at Thorsby last week. A part of the first day was devoted to discussions and questions regarding the much desired rural credits.

Quite a lot of time was consumed on the fertilizer question and it appeared to be the opinion of those in attendance that a cotton crop under the boll weevil conditions without a complete ferterlizer, which it is impossible to obtain, would be very risky and that the land should be devoted to livestock and grain.

Prof. McDonald of the County High School was invited to address the convention and all three of the Thorsby schools dismissed for the occasion and assembled at Bates Hall where he was given a great ovation by the schools.

The following officers were elected:

W. H. Conway, Pres; W. S. Cox, Vice Pres; J. M. Smith, Sec. and Treasurer; S. H. Herbert, Chaplain; W. P. Lowery, Lecturer; J. H. Duncan, Business agent; J. Wiley Foshee, Doorkeeper; R. M. Thomas, Conductor; W. L. Leary, J. M. Thomas, H. L. Traywick, Ex-Com.

Prof. F. E. Boyd of Auburn spoke on legumes to the farmers and the agricultural class of Thorsby Institute and he showed that peanuts can be made a profitable money crop if properly managed.

The convention received a cordial welcome and was royally entertained by the teachers and farmers of Thorsby.

The next session will be held with Mt. Pleasant Local near Lomax, Feb. 24-25 1916.

Turkey! Yum, yum!

A Merry Christmas to you!

Important Query: Why is a snore?

Many more Merry Christmases, too!

Many a little nose makes a big noise.

And may they be even more than merry!

Wonder what the new year will have in store for this town?

Yes, congress is on the job again. Poor old job.

No, Henry Ford didn't take "a press agent" with him. He took fifty reporters instead.

We can make it a prosperous year if we get together and pull together. Let's get and let's pull.

Peace in America and good will to ourselves. The rest of the world is raising too much hell to be included.

What a glorious thing it would be if 1916 could find this town without a knocker, and with everyone a booster. And it could, if you would.

Yes, girlie, your dear old grandmother may have smoked a clay pipe in secret, but she didn't powder her nose or show a yard of her leg in public.

If congress starts the eagle to screaming our poor old national bird will have a mighty sore throat before that bunch gets through with it.

And now the dear constituent will receive sundry cosies of fervid and oratorical speeches which Congressman So and So never delivered.

President Wilson insists that congress must trim every ounce of "pork" from its bills this session. Lord, what a bat between the eyes!

We've said it so many times it confronts us in our dreams, but we are hurling it at you again. "Do your Christmas shopping now, and do it in this town."

Young women in England today are handing white feathers to the young men who refuse to enlist. And such an extravagant waste of perfectly good feathers!

Peruvians and Bolivians boast of their ability to make boats out of straw. Pooh! We have oodles of men in this country who have made fortunes out of wind and water.

If His Big Fordship and Their Little Fordships enter German territory and all get pinched by the fire eating kaiser won't they set up a mighty howl for Uncle Sammy to get them out of the hole!

Men are mighty queer creatures, or whatever else you choose to call 'em. Some of 'em will raise merry hades if the baby lets out a chirp and then they will turn right around and pile into bed and snore all night like a buzz saw in operation. And if you don't believe it just ask your long suffering wife.

Now that Ford is beyond earshot it is time for some other millionaire American to pull off a stunt and render his country even more rediculous in the eyes of the rest of the world. Come right along, Rocks. Barnum once said that "a fool was born every minute," and we believe it.

Yes, we are feeling right smart today, thank you. The boys are coming right in with those subscription dollars they are owing us, and we have strong hopes of tasting real turkey for Christmas. There are still a few more to hear from, though, but we feel confident they will show up with the needful before the eventful day arrives. We have a generous hearted bunch of fellows on our list, after all.

Narrow Teaching.

Those who teach morality, limiting its obligations to duties toward family or country, teach you a more or less narrow egoism and lead you to what is evil for others and for themselves. Country and family are like two circles drawn within a greater circle which contains them both; like two steps of a ladder without which you could not climb any higher, but upon which it is forbidden you to stay your feet.—Mazzini.

BIRMINGHAM ASKS VOTERS OF STATE FOR ASSISTANCE

ELECTION WILL BE HELD ON DECEMBER 27 TO GIVE CITY RIGHT TO RAISE ITS OWN TAXES.

THE CITY IS CRIPPLED

Tax Increase Needed for Adequate Municipal Service to Citizens of Magic City.

Brmingham appeals to every voter in Alabama to go to the polls on December 27 and cast a ballot for the great principle of "home rule." Birmingham wants to rule itself in so far as it desires the right to raise its own tax rate within its own borders and by its own votes, to pay for the things a great city needs.

Birmingham cannot do this without permission from the state, because the constitution, passed when Birmingham had but 30,000 population, has no provisions for a city rapidly appreaching the 200,000 mark.

Birmingham is in great distress. It is suffering for the things needful to the life of a city. The people of Alabama alone can furnish the relief needed.

And to furnish this relief, the Legislature has authorized, and the Governor has called, a special election for December 27. This election is for a constitutional amendment. The amendment is to give Birmingham people, at their pleasure, the right to vote for an increase of five mills in its tax rate.

The election does not affect a single locality or person outside of Birmingham. It does not even affect Jefferson county. No one will be affected but the City of Birmingham.

City Affected Vitally.

But the City of Birmingham will be affected vitally. Its progress is dependent upon the passage of this amendment.

Birmingham, already, has paid out $10,000 as a preliminary to the costs of the election. This is mentioned merely to show how vital the people of Birmingham regard this coming election.

Birmingham is the giant of Alabama; the center of its industrial and financial operations. Jefferson county pays one-fifth of the taxes of the State. The city pay sixty per cent of all the taxes the county collects.

Birmingham taxes are the fountain head of the revenues of the State of Alabama.

Now Birmingham does not begrudge this money paid to the State. On the contrary, it is proud to be the main support of the State. But, on the other hand, it has led to a rather strange condition.

Birmingham is taxed for school purposes by the State and County. The County spends only a part of the school taxes collected in Birmingham upon Birminghatm schools. As a result, Birmingham schools are suffering. The children of Birmingham haven't schools enough or teachers enough.

And while the schools of the city are suffering, the money Birmingham pays for school purposes is going to support the schools of the County outside of the city; is going to the support of the schools scattered over the length and breadth of the state.

Schools Are Needed.

Birmingham wants to support the schools of the State and County. But at the same itme, it desires to give adequate school facilities to its own children.

To protect the children of Birmingham, the City does not ask the State to refund its money; it does not ask the County to give back a larger portion of the money collected for school purposes within the City limits.

But Birmingham does ask for the right to raise its own taxes by its own votes to give its school children proper education; to furnish free text books and supplies; to furnish playgrounds and libraries.

Birmingham stands today a crippled city.

It hasn't income to pay for the things the people of Birmingham need. Its police force and fire force is cut to one-third; it has no money for charitable purposes; its Welfare Department, which cared for the women prisoners of the city, has been cut away almost entirely; its appropriation to the Humane Society has been withdrawn; free text books in schools have been discontinued; there is money enough left for but seven months of schooling instead of nine. The whole city is crippled.

The fault is not Birmingham's. Birmingham wants to pay for the things it needs. But with its hand in its pocket, ready to pay for all it desires, the old State constitution holds the city in a vise-like grip.

Constitutional Limitations.

The constitution says Birmingham cannot tax itself, even if the people of the city so vote. The people of Birmingham want this changed. They want to be able to tax themselves if they so desire.

Birmingham wants to throw away its crutches and stand upon its own feet, facing the world to say that here is a great city, the greatest in the South; a city that owes no man, but which gives to its people all the things a great city should furnish its men and women; its boys and girls.

Birmingham became crippled last August when its finances reached a crisis. In the old aldermanic days it was the custom to borrow each year for the things needed. The debt continued to pile up, and finally, each year found Birmingham owing all that it took in from taxes.

There was no chance to go ahead. The tax income was ridiculously low as compared with other cities of Birmingham's size and class. The city was held back, and its natural growth stunted for lack of nourishment.

Then one hundred and fifty of the most prominent citizens of Birmingham met in conference. Among this 150 were lawyers, merchants, newspaper men; bankers, representatives of labor organizations, doctors, preachers, in fact, representatives from every class of activity in the Greater City.

Farmer Williams Takes Four Bottles Tanlac Gains 25 Pounds

It may sound unreasonable, and you may believe me or not, but after taking four bottles of this Tanlac medicine, I have actually gained 25 pounds," said J. B. Williams, a well-known and prosperous farmer who resides at Greenbrier, Tenn., near Nashville.

"I had a bad case of stomach trouble last summer, and it came pretty near knocking me out," continued Mr. Williams. 'It was something like nervous indigestion. I began to go down hill. It looked like the more medicine I took and the harder I tried to get well, the worse I would get. We had pretty near everything to eat, but nothing tasted right, and I got so weak and nervous I couldn't do anything, in fact, I was just completely knocked out.

"Before I had this spell I 160 pounds, and kept falling off until I got down to where I only weighed 135 pounds.

"I am now back to my regular weight again, and feel strong and well. My apoetite is simply fine now, and I don't mind my work. This medicine just took right hold of me, and put me on my feet.

"Well, sir, the second day after I began taking it, I got hungry and oh, how good that old ham did taste! I sleep fine now too, and am not nervous like I was. Even the barking of the doge at night does not wake me up.

"I never believed a medicine could be made that would do anybody as much good as Tanlac has done me, and I want to recommend it to anybody who has suffered with the same trouble I have."

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND MAKES YOU SICK

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you lose a day's work

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, bue it does not make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work.

Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don;t find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonsful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonsful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonsful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador of "Money Back", if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained —ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

PORTABLE HOG HOUSES

Such Houses Are Much Needed in Hog Pastures.

By J. C. Ford, Field Agent for Pig Clubs, Alabama Extension Service and U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Auburn, Ala.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The farmers of Alabama are becoming intensely interested in hog raising. Because of the mild climate, it is possible to raise hogs with little or no protection from rain and cold weather. However, great losses frequently occur when hogs, especialy sows and very young pigs, are forced to go without shelter in winter or sufficient shade in summer.

In the North, expensive houses are provided for hogs, and many of them are heated artificially. In Alabma only shelter and a wind-break are necessary. The cheapest and most satisfactory way to secure this protection is by means of the portable hog house. A house of this type can be constructed at little expense and can be moved readily to any place desired.

The accompanying diagram and instructions for building, taken from Farmers' Bulletin No. 566, will give useful information to those who are interested.

A portable A-shaped hog house, with chain and singletree for moving.

"In the above is shown a hog house which can be built very easily and cheaply. It is a portable "A" house built by 1 by 12 inch plank with the cracks covered with batten. It is open in front and should be placed facing the south. The floor is 8 feet wide and 6 feet from front to back, and is nailed to three runners or skids.

"A large hole can be bored through the front end of the outer skids so that a chain can be fastened to them to facilitate moving the house by the use of a team. A piece of 2 by 4 inch material is nailed on the outer edges of the top of floor to prevent the house from spreading at the bottom.

"Each side of the house is made of 1 pieces of 1 by 12 inch plank 8 feet long, nailed to a piece of 2 by 4 lying flat about 9 inches from the top of the plank, another about 3 1-2 feet from the top, and a piece of 2 by 8 nailed edgewise about 11 inches from the bottom. This should be braced at each end of the underside by a right-angle block of 2 by 8 inch material nailed to the rail and to the side of the house. The long piece of 2 by 8 will act as a guard under which the young pigs may take shelter when the sow lies down. This will save many pigs from being crushed to death.

"The back of the house fits between the two sides in a groove made by nailing two pieces of 1 by 1 1-2 inch material lengthwise on the inner side of each side of the house. The house is then "set up" on the floor and the sides held together by nailing a short piece of 1 by 6 inch plank across the front and back of the house about 1 1-2 feet below the top. This will prevent it from being blown down. A saddle board made by nailing two pieces of 1 by 6 inch plank together can then be put over the ridge of the house to keep out rain.

"A house built thus can be moved on the skids or can be taken down by removing the 1 by 6 inch brace from the front and back of the house.

"For use on sandy land, a floor is not necessary. One skid may be omitted and the other two turned crosswise to give support and prevent the house from spreading at the bottom."

Detailed information regarding many types of hog houses may be had by writing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

—BY—

JEAN WYATT, Editor.

THE HOLIDAYS

We've studied hard for four months long
And answered promptly to the gong,
But now we're free to "live" once more
And greet the cheerful Hellebore:
To face the world as it does us—
With mirth and joy vivacious.

Old School, we like to be with thee,
But it is heayen to be free
From all the things we had to do,
Which were in numbers not a few,—
"Read this, solve that, work this write that,
Parse this 'fore noon or get your hat."

The Christmas days aren't far away,
When we shall dress in flor'l array
And go to Christmas tress and plays,
Such as they have on Christmas days;
And see our friends of days gone by
And help Christ's birth to glorify.

The trees are barren, bleak and bare:
Not one leaf does Aurora spare,—
The cold north wind that haunts the bear;
But something else us does console—
The hory snow on dale and knoll
With all the children doth condole.

Tomorrow we'll go strolling with a crowd,
And when we reach the woods we'll all be proud
To see the charming dress old Sylvan wears,
How vain he is and how he puts on airs.
His garb is white, etiolate and pale;
He owns the wooded hill and timbered vale.

T. E. W.

Note:—I would like to explain to the readers of the "High school news" that the jokes that are published through this department are not at all intended as a reflection upon the pupils, about whom they are writen. The sole purpose of such passages is to maintain interest and merriment of the readers and the pupils of the school.

The Girl's Litarary society met Wednesday, Dec. 15. The new officers for next month were elected as follows: President, Sallie Driver; Vice-President, Ara Mullins; Secretary, Bessie Davis Musician, Beverly Hester; Editor Kate McFee; Treasurer, Libbie McKee; Critic, Eunice Huchens; Program Committee, Ola Durbin, Nan Robinson, Myrtle Roberts.

Misses Agnes Allen, Vergie Davis, Elizabeth Herring and Eunice Hutchens will leave the latter part of the week for their respective homes to spend the holidays.

The Freshmen and Sophomores have been engaged in writing poetry the greatest part of this week. The Juniors have also been doing this kind of work

The school building is now splendidly equipped with electric lights.

Misses Conradine Lowe and Kate McNeill who have been sick for the past few days have returned to school with many welcomes.

There will be no school news next week nor the week following, on account of school dismising for the holidays.

Several of the girls are making some Christmas preasents to give their friends on Christmas.

Bernie Martin and Carlton Golden, who were the speakers on the affirmative of the subject; "Resolved that the price of cotton should be fixed," won over the negatiyes, Tom Jones and Arden Allen, at the Websterian Society Friday evening. The society decided to have its next meeting on Friday night, January 7, in the auditorium, at 7:30.

The operetta given by Prof. Tinsley's music class Wednesday night was a decided success. The girls are to be complimented for their splendid manner of performing their parts.

The school is rejoicing with Ocie Baker because he has finished working the road. Ocie says that that's not exactly like working arithmetic.

Horace Popwell was asked to read a Latin sentence last week, when it was found out that Horace had gone home and gone rabbit hunting.

Miss Nan Robinson in the Latin class the other day said that a certain verb was in the accusative tense.

The campus was soft and muddy last Friday evening on account of the rain having fallen all day, but after "Fatty" and several others had gotten throu' with it the mud was changed into hard, solid dirt.

Miss Minnie Roper has already gone home for the holidays.

DeBARDELEBEN—STEBBENS.

The DeBardeleben - Stebbens wedding which occurred on last Friday was one of the loveliest events of the season. The marriage took place in the First Methodist Episcopal Church South which was made unusually beautiful with a wreathe of palms, ferns and Southern Smilax. The bridal tones of green were used throughout the decoration, only the arches and gates were white, and these were massed most effectively with magnificant white lillies. The bride's attendants were exquisitely gowned in every color of the rainbow, and looked indeed picturesque as they formed the crescent facing the bride. Sallie Johnson and Minnie Merle Pinckard gowned in white lace and forget-me-nots opened the gates to the alter. Miss Bessie VanDerveer as first bridesmaid, was beautifully gowned in nile green taffeta, she entered with Mr. Alexander Richards. Miss Willie Reynolds gowned in pale blue taffeta entered with Mr. T. J. Littlejohn. Miss Winnie Reynolds in pretty taffeta entered with Mr. Hance Alred. Miss Maude Mullins in pale lavender entered with Mr. J. D. Martin. Miss Emmette Matthew in lovely shade of yellow entered with Mr. Clark Harper. All wore shoulder length veils to match gowns. The Matron of honor, Mrs. A. E. Garner, of Dothan, Ala., a sister of the bride, was very lovely in a charming gown of white chiffon over pink, caught up with pink roses. A large pink picture hat enhanced the beauty of her costume. Little Miss Majorie Pinckard, niece of the bride, looked girlishly sweet in a pretty gown of cream lace. The bride entered with her Brother, Mr. E. M. Pinckard, and was a vision of loyliness in her bridal robe of white Duchess Satin and old lace caught up with orange blossoms. Her pretty brunette type was most beautiful with her veil entrain and caught to her lovely dark tresses with sprays of orange blossoms. The little pages dressed in white velvet, acting as train bearers, were Master Emmette Wimberly and Burton Mullins. Master William Pinckard was the pillow bearer and little Mary Elizabeth Powe in lace carried the ring in a white lily, and placed it on the Satin pillow. Little Catherine Hayes and Myra Johnson daintly dressed in white lace scattered rose petals for the bride.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. W. Chalker, pastor of the church. After the wedding a very brilliant reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. M. Pinckard.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stebbens, Mrs. Stowell Stebbens and Mrs. Stark from Lansing, Mich., and Mrs. A. E. Garner of Dothan, Ala.

MAPLESVILLE

Tom Crumpton and Leighton Parnell, students of Marion Military Institute at Marion, Ala., are spending the Xmas. days in Maplesville.

Miss Maybell Williams, a student of the Judson Institute at Marion, Ala., is at home for a few days.

Miss Grace Brock, the primary teacher here, is at her home in Cuba, Ala., for the remainder of the year.

Miss Pearl Durbin of Clanton, Ala., the first assistant teacher in the Maplesville school, expects to be home during the holidays.

The teachers of this district had quite an interesting meeting in Maplesville last Saturday.

We had a pleasant profitable time discussing the chaptrs in "Every Day Pedagogy," by Lincoln. Each teacher present agreed to do to his very best to get every teacher in the district present at the next meeting, which is to be held Saturday, Jan. 29th, 1916.

Everyone in this part of the county seems to be getting ready for the Christmas days. However, from present indications temperance will prevail this time more than it has in recent years

AMENDMENT NOT NEEDED IF TAXES ARE EQUALIZED

AMENDMENT TO BE VOTED UPON DECEMBER 27 IS MERELY SAFETY VALVE TO PROTECT THE CITY.

HOME RULE IS ASKED FOR

Birmingham Asks State to Relieve Its Embarrassment from Crippled Finances.

It has been urged by some as an objection to the proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the people of Birmingham to increase their own tax rate by a sum not exceeding five mills that it would not be necessary because the equalization of taxes will give all the relief that was needed.

The equalization of taxes involves a principle which no just man can oppose. The people of Birmingham are as insistent for an equalization of taxes as the people of any portion of the State. It is possible that they have been more insistent—certainly than many.

But the proposed constitutional amendment for Birmingham does not interfere with that principle in any manner whatsoever. That there have been instances, and that there are many instances, where property is unequally assessed, both in this city and in this county, and in every county in the State, we think is not open to doubt. The only question that is open to doubt is the extent of relief which can be obtained under the new laws which have been passed by the recent legislature.

An effort was made by the legislature and is now in process of being tried out to provide a better system for the equalization of taxes than any we have heretofore known. That improvements have been made in the law, we believe, cannot be doubted. The assessments are now being made under our new law and by the first of May we will know to what extent the new legislation has succeeded in increasing the valuation of property for taxing purposes. If adequate relief can be obtained from this source, the tax rate of Birmingham will never be increased. But the new law provides that a valuation once placed shall remain for four years, and if equalization does not give Birmingham the relief which it sorely needs, we would be helpless until 1920. The growth and progress of Alabama's greatest city would be fearfully impeded. Her school system, which is now handicapped beyond expression, would become a by-word.

Are the people of Alabama going to deny to Birmingham the right to get relief which is certain and adequate merely upon the hypothesis, not proven or yet capable of proof, that they may obtain sufficient relief through a different method? We simply want an alternative method of relief if the plan of equalization fails to provide adequate revenue for our needs. We take nothing whatever from the rest of the State or from the remainder of Jefferson County. We do not reduce, nor propose to reduce, our contribution to the State or to the County one iota. We simply ask to be allowed to increase our own taxes, for our own purposes, if we think it necessary. Nothing can be fairer, nothing can more truly accord with the spirit and purpose of democracy.

Will not the people of Alabama give us a helping hand at this time by voting in favor of this amendment?

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you will be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

PROCLAMATION

By the Governor

NOTICE OF ELECTION ON AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION.

Notice is hereby given that under and by authority of an Act of the Legislature, approved September 22, 1915, the Governor of Alabama has issued the following proclamation and notice of the election, together with the proposed amendment, to-wit:

Whereas, by section 2 of an act entitled an act to propose and submit to the qualified electors of the State of Alabama at an election to be held on the first Monday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the present session of the Legislature at which this amendment is proposed, an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama whereby the city of Birmingham may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein not exceeding in the total in any one year one and one-half percentum of the value of such property assessed as provided by the Constitution and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution, but provided that the total rate of taxation levied by said city shall not in any one year exceed one per centum, unless the rate in excess thereof shall have been submitted to and authorized by ballot by the qualified electors of said city at elections to be held from time to time for such purpose, and to provide for such elections.

Said act being approved September 22nd, 1915. It was made my duty as Governor by section 2 of said act to give notice by proclamation to be published in one newspaper in each county in the State at least eight successive weeks next preceding the said election on the amendment proposed by this act to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State for their consideration, together with the proposed amendment, but before making such proclamation that I, as Governor, should ascertain the cost of publishing the notice as herein required, and should certify the amount of such costs so ascertained by me to the governing body of the city of Birmingham, and thereupon the governing body of the city of Birmingham should pay or cause to be paid into the State treasury the sum of money so certified to them by me, as Governor, for the purpose of paying the cost of publication of the notice required by this act, and

Whereas, I, as Governor, have ascertained the amount of the costs as required by said act, and the same has been paid into the State treasury as therein required, and

Whereas, by section 1 of the said act an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama is herein set out as proposed to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State of Alabama for their consideration at an election to be held on the first Monday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the Legislature of Alabama.

Now, therefore, I, Charles Henderson, Governor of the State of Alabama, in compliance with the statutes of the State of Alabama, do hereby declare and order that an election be held in the various voting precincts in the State of Alabama on Monday, December 27th, 1915, at which time the qualified electors of this State shall vote for or against the adoption of the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, to-wit:

"The city of Birmingham may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total in any one year, one and one-half per centum of the value of such property, assessed as provided by the Contsitution, and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution. But provided that the total rate of taxation levied by the city of Birmingham shall not, in any one year, exceed one percentum per annum unless the rate in excess of one per centum for such year, shall have been submitted by the governing body of said city to the qualified voters of said city, at an election held within such year, or within three years prior to the beginning of such year, and shall have been authorized for such year by the majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of said city voting upon such proposition. And an increase in the rate of taxation, in excess of one per centum per annum, may be authorized at one election for one year, or for two or three successive years, and if, for more than one year, at the same or different excess rates for the respective years. In the event an excess rate submitted for any year or years shall not be so authorized at any election, a new lower excess rate for such year or years may be submitted by the governing body of said city to the qualified voters of said city for like authorization at a subsequent election or elections held at any time or times thereafter. Each election held under the provisions hereof shall be ordered, held, canvassed, and contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by law, applicable to said city, for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. Ballots used at such election shall contain the words 'For_____ excess rate of taxation for the year (or years) _____: and 'Against _____excess rate of taxation for the year (or years)_____.' The rate of taxation proposed in excess of the rate of one percentum to be shown in the blank space provided therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply to be shown in the blank space provided therefor; and in the event different excess rates are proposed for different years, the words mentioned shall be repeated as often as may be necessary to show separately the different excess rates proposed to be applied to the respective years. And the voter shall record his choice, whether for or against the excess rate or rates shown, by placing a cross-mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in anywise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said city heretofore issued."

That at said election on the amendment proposed the qualified electors of the State shall vote upon said amendment and on the official ballots printed for said election there shall be printed the following, i. e.: "Shall the following be adopted as an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama?" (Here set out the amendment as above written). Following the proposed amendment as set out upon the ballot shall be printed the word "Yes" and immediately under that shall be printed the word "No." The choice of the electors shall be indicated by a cross mark made by him or under his direction opposite the word expressing his desire.

It is further ordered and proclaimed that the officers to hold such election shall be the same and shall be appointed in the same manner and by the same officials as provided by the election laws of the State for officers to hold general elections in this State and that the election shall be held in all things in accordance with the general law governing elections and with the constitutional provisions concerning amendments to that instrument.

It is further ordered and proclaimed that the votes cast at such election shall be counted, canvassed and tabulated and returned to the Secretary of State in the manner as in elections for Representatives to the Legislature; and if it shall there upon appear that a majority of the qualified electors who voted at such election upon the proposed amendment voted in favor of the same, such amendment shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution of Alabama. The result of such election shall be made known by proclamation of the Governor.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol in the city of Montgomery, on this the 25th day of October, 1915.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY REMEDY
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonsful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonsful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonsful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador of "Money Back" if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Schiffmann, Proprietor, Saint Paul, Minn. Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

THIS MAN GAINS TWENTY TWO LBS.

enry Oland Now Believes In Taniac And Wants Everyone To Know It.

"Yes sir, I have taken two bottles of Tanlac and have actually gained 22 3-4 pounds in about three weeks time," said Henry Oland, who lives at 824 South Twenty-second street, Birmingham, Ala., a few days ago in telling about his remarkable restoration to health.

"I only weighed 181 pounds when I began taking Tanlac. Now I weigh 203 3-4 pounds. I just told Mr. Patton at the Patton-Pope Drug Co!, that if I kept on taking this medicine I would have to get myself some larger clothes, as I can hardly get into my old ones now, I have fleshened up so.

"I began taking Tanlac because I had suffered for years with indigestion. Occasionally I ead spells ot acute indigestion, which were mighty rough on me. My weight went way down and I lost a lot of my strength. I frequently became nauseated and was worried a good bit with painful headaches. I would tire easily and often felt a shortness of breath. I couldn't eat or sleep to amount to anything, and the little I ate did more harm than good.

"To tell you the truth, I never was such a believer in pattent medicines, but I was hearing so much good about Tanlac I decided to give it a trial anyway.

"I have taken two bottles and the change the medicine has brought about is nothing short of marvelous. Just as soon as I started taking it my appetite began to pick up, and now I eat like a farmer after a hard day's work, and I tell you I enjoy what I eat, and nothing I eat disagrees with me. Everything tastes good. I slee6 fine. I am much stronger and am full of life and energy now.

"I want everybody to know I believe in Tanlac. I have just written my son in Montgomery to have his wife try it. She is a frail little woman, and needs something to build her up, and I believe this Tanlac will do the work, and that very quickly. I have also been telling a good many of my friends about this wonderful medicine. There are numbers and numbers of people here in Birmingham who need Tanlac, and I hope they will all give it a trial and be convinced like I was."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton exclusively by Upchurch Drug Co. —Adv.

Safety matches did not come into use until 1852, when a Swede by the name of J. E. Lundstrom started to make these matches at Jonkoping although his process had been patented eight years previously by another Swede, G. E. Pasch, who, however, never put into practical use his invention.

PLESANT GROVE

Dear Editor:—I will try and say a few words in regard to what we are doing in this neck of the woods.

Our school is progressing fine under the supervision of Prof. Harris, Principal, and Miss Rena Childress, Assistant. They seem to be trying to build up the social side of life. They have a basket ball game on foot and say they are going to put in a game croquet. There is some talk of them playing tennis when the season comes. I think this is a splendid step toward encouraging our boys and girls to stay in the country. Friday was clean-up day, and much profitable work was done. A rock wall was built in front of the house and flowers and shrubbery was planted in the yards.

We have been kindly on the background, but by the help of the supreme we are coming to the front. The farmers are all working for their own living. Almost everything that the people use is produced right here at home. All the thing now that we need is a public highway from Jemison to Randolph. The people up here feel like we ought to have it, as we have helped to build three highways for other parts of the county. Now we are looking for this to be the next step on highway making for the county.

Yours for progress,
H. Honeycutt.

WELLBORN FAVORS STATE BOND ISSUE

PROMINENT BANKER GIVES REASONS WHY HE WILL VOTE FOR ISSUANCE OF BONDS.

COULD THEN PAY ALL DEBTS

Would Put State in Proper Financial Condition, Thereby Saving Its Fair Name.

This is to acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 4, and in reply would say that I do not think the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta can handle the warrants of the State of Alabama for the reason that they have no fixed maturity within six months, nor are they issued in anticipation of assured revenues.

As I understand the situation in connection with the financial affairs of Alabama, its outstnding floating indebtedness has been accumulating over a period of eight or nine years, or since the year 1907, and these warrants have been pledged to eastern banks to enable the State to obtain the necessary funds to meet the appropriations made by the Legislature of Alabma, since about the beginning of the year 1907.

Governor Henderson has had some correspondence with me, with a view of getting the assistance of the Federal Reedve Bank of Atlanta to help finan e Alabama, but I was compelled to write the Governor that I did not believe that Alabama was in proper shape to offer our bank warrants which were eligible under the law and that were certain of being paid at maturity.

For your information, I wish to say that the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta has now under discount from the State of Georgia warrants amounting to $325,000, which is our limit under the law. These warrants will be due January 30, 1916, and the taxes are now being collected to pay off the same.

Inasmuch as the State of Alabama has such a tremendous floating indebtedness and I can see no way to pay this without a bond issue, in my opinion, as a citizen of Alabama and a taxpayer of Alabama, I shall vote for the band issue as I believe it is to the best interest of Alabama to issue the bonds as early as possible while money is plentiful and easy and the bonds can be sold at advantageous prices.

Judging the future by the past it is quite likely that interest rates will advance within a few years and the State should act promptly now by issuing short-term bonds, paying the debts created by our Legislatures and thereby putting itself in proper financial condition and saving the fair name and credit of the State.

The Question of Who Made Them Has Nothing to Do With Present Situation.

I am a citizen of Alabama—a native—and study the best interests of the State.

Debts trouble honest men. They give their best thoughts to the question of paying them.

Patriotic citizens are called upon to consider the debts of the State of Alabama. The question of who made the debts has nothing to do with the present situation.

It is a fact that we have a serious debt.

It is a fact that the legislature, composed of as good and wise men as usually meet together, gave months to serious consideration and came to the conclusion that the best thing to do was to issue bonds.

It is a fact, our Governor says: "That the issuance of these bonds will not be the creation of a new debt or obligation of the State."

It is a fact, the Governor says: "This is no partisan question," and I agree heartily with him. Shame on the man who would make it so!

It is a fact, the Governor says, if these bonds are issued "the entire deficit will be completely wiped out without any increased burdens upon the tax payers by 1930."

It is a fact, the Governor says: "The proceeds of the sale of these bonds must be used for this purpose and this purpose alone"—that is, to pay the debts.

It is a fact, that the interest on these bonds will be much less than the interest on State warrants, which are now being used.

I have confidence in the Legislators who for months studied the question and in the Governor, with his wise advisers, and believe the issuing of bonds is the quickest and most satisfactory way out of our financial troubles.

Don't forget that now is the time to pay your poll tax.

NOT NECESSARY TO RE-REGISTER WHEN LEAVING PRECINCT

As Long as a Man Stays in a County He Need not Re-register—Mr. Martin Changes Ruling

In a recent ruling by Attorney General William L. Martin it was held that a man who moved from one precinct to another would have to register or inder to qualify as a voter. On reconsidering the matter the attorney general finds the ruling to be an error, as the supreme court of the state had passed on the question prior to the above ruling and held that it was only necessary to re-register when a voter moves from one county to another, but when a voter moves from one precinct to another he should notify the probate judge of his change of residence in order to put on the qualified list of voters of each precinct.

Ben F. Ray, registrar of Jefferson County, stated that if the first ruling had become effective it would have caused much confusion, as a great number of voters move from one precinct to another, and as the registration books are only open every two years, many voters would lose their franchise if they should change the residence from one neighborhood to another. He stated he had had a large number of inquiries as to the ruling of the attorney general from those who have changed their residence, but he assured them that it would not be necessary to re-register unless the change was made from one county to another.

Mr. Ray also state he would sit at the courthouse from January 1 to 5 for the purpose of registering those who are qualified. He states young men under the age of 21 and those moving into the state can register provided they come of age or meet the resident qualifications on or before the date of the general election in November, 1916. Mr. Ray said:

"I hope that those who have not registered and are otherwise qualified will avail themselves of the opportunity to do so on the first five days of new year. Many of our young men seemingly do not realize that they register before they are 21 years of age. All that is necessary as to the age is that a young man will become 21 before the date of the general election in 1916. The same rule applies to a man, who has moved into the state. I am sorry to say that men are not registering as they should. As I go to each precinct I take both the qualified and the disqualified lists and sometimes the latter is the largest. I heard a man tell his son, who had not registered 'If I had a chance to be a man I would be one.' It does not cost a cent to register, but if every man in the county and state would register and pay up his poll taxes it would go a mighty long way toward relieving the strained financial condition of our schools.

GENTRY-PERRY

A marriage of interest to many friends is that of Mr. Killie Gentry and miss Annie Perry, which was solemnized Sunday morning at ten o'clock at the home of her parents at East Second Street, Highland Park. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Williams of the Second Baptist Church.

The bride wore a handsome suit of brown cloth and a becoming brown velvet hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Gentry are at home to their friends at 401 Monroe Street.

Mr. Gentry holds a position with the L. & N. railroad, and both he and his bride have scores of friends who wish them every happiness.--Montgomery Journal

INCREASED TAXES OR BONDS, WHICH?

DEFEAT OF BOND ISSUE MEANS TAX VALUES WILL HAVE TO BE RAISED.

PROTECT STATE'S CREDIT

Governor Can Enforce the Assessment of Property At Its Market Value.

The vote on the bond issue the 18th of January will be an instruction to the Governor and the equalization board as to whit they will do with reference to raises of tax values. If the bond issue is defeated, it will be an instruction to the Governor and the board that the people prefer a raise in tax values to take care of the indebtedness of the State, rather than a bond issue.

The credit of the State is going to be protected and its debts paid if it takes increased taxaion to do it. The Governor is under oath to discharge his full duty and the highest duty he can perform is to protect the credit of the State and pay its debts. He has the law and the machinery to do it. No further legislation is necessary. The 60 per cent assessed market value of property is advisory only. If the necessities of the State require it, property can be assessed as its market value and the supreme court will uphold the assessment. Taxation is the only means the State has for raising revenue to meet its obligations. The bond issue is intended to extend the debt of the State for a time to enable the State to raise sufficient revenue to meet its obligations.

Every voter must stand for a bond issue or increased tax values or repudiation. If the bond issue is defeated, the Governor will instruct the equalization board to raise tax values sufficient to take care of enough of the floating debt to enable him to make satisfactory terms with the creditors of the State. Iit would take several hundred millions of dollars in raises of tax values to bring in enough revenue to pay $1,500,000. Nearly one-half of the raise would go to the public schools and would not be available to pay the floating debt.

Let us see where these raises in tax values would come from. The railroads and large corporations have attorneys that would go before the board and by juggling with figures would show that their clients are already taxed to the full value of their property and that they are txed more than any other class of property. So we could not expect much raise from that source. We could not get any increase from licenses. We could not expect but little increase from personal property. So the increased raise of tax values would fall on real estate—houses and lots in the towns and cities, and land. The whole burden of increased taxation would fall on this class of property. Strange so say, the farmers are the most opposed to the bond issue and if it is defeated, the greatest burden of increased tax valuations will fall upon them. Furthermore, the greatest opposition to the bond issue is from counties that are drawing more money out of the State treasury for public schools and pensions than they pay into it. They are pensioners upon the other counties. Again, this deficit we are trying to take care of is the result of votes of members of the Legislature from these counties that have been the greatest beneficiaries of the deficit. This deficit is the result of appropriations of the Legislature in making appropriations for the public schools, high schools, school houses ,and the University and Auburn.

The constitutional limit of the rate of taxation is six and one-half mills. Of this amount the public schools get three mills, which only leaves three and one-half mills for the State. Out of this three and one-half mills the old soldiers get their appropriations. Yet the Legislature at every session supplemented the three mills of the public schools by appropriations from the general fund. The people of Alabama have only to thank the Alabama State Teachers' Association for the State's financial condition. This association has been powerful enough to exert an influence over the Legislature to bring the State to the verge of bankruptcy. It is folly to attempt to put the blame of the deficit on Comer or O'Neal; the Legislature is to blame, and the power behind the Legislature was the Alabama State School Teachers' Association.

I did not vote for Governor Henderson in the primary and have not trained with the faction of the party to which he belongs, but I know that he is no more responsible for the deficit than I am, and I know that he inherited it, and it is his duty to take care of it with the least burden to the people. There are but two ways to do it, one a bond issue and the other increased tax values. This is the whole proposition and it is not a factional fight in the party. For several years State warrants have been hawked about from bank to bank and the Governor has had to borrow money wherever he could get it to protect the credit of the State, and it has become a public disgrace and the time has come for this condition to cease. We have an opportunity to settle this matter with a bond issue without burdening the people with increased taxation.

IN MEMORY OF S. E. NEELEY

Bro. S. E. Neeley was born in Coosa county, Alabama, in July, 1869. He moved to Chilton county, and joined the Baptist church about 20 years ago, and has been a constant member ever since. In 1912 he allied himself with Mayflower Lodge 417, I. O. O. F.

About a year ago Bro. Neeley was attacked with cancer and went to the infirmary and had one of his lower limbs amputated with the hope that his health would be restored, but alas, the surgeon's knife failed to stop that grim monster death. He gradually grew worse until the end came at 2 o'clock a. m. on Nov. 16th, 1915. His remains were laid to rest at Shiloh cemetery the 17th inst., with I. O. O. F. and Masonic honors.

Therefore be it Resolved by Mayflower lodge 417, I. O. O. F., that in the death of Bro. Neeley, this lodge has lost a devoted and true member, the country a good citizen. Bro. Neeley was a devoted husband, a kind father, and a true friend. He leaves a wife and six children and a number of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. We can only say to the bereaved ones, and especially his little boys to reserve for themselves the good traits of their father and be prepared to meet their maker in peace, for death is the one event that comes to every human being from real or imaginary evils. We may in the providence of God escape in this conflict, however there is no retreat; there is no departure from this world of sin, sorrow and suffering to the higher and devine life but throu' the gates of death. No tears nor anguish nor breaking of heart strings can avail anything when the fatal summons comes, they are utterly powerless to ward off the grim messenger. All we can do is to bow before the great affliction and revently say the Lord gave and the Lord has taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord for some wise man has said, life is real and ernest, and the grave is not its goal. Dust thou art to dust, returnest was not spoken of the soul.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY, BOYS, GIRLS.

Editor Union-Banner:—Allow us a line in your valuable paper to say a word to poor boys and girls who are anxious for an education, for we know you are interested in such, and in the means that make it possible for such to get an education.

At a recent meeting of our Board with some of our citizens it was agreed that we would board all pupils who come after Christmas at eight dollars a month. With our school expenses at two dollars and sixty cents a month, this arrangement makes it cheaper to go to school tha to stay at home.

Our people do not expect to give fine board at that price but good substantial board such as they themselves live on. Nor do they expect to make any money but to give the boys and girls of this section who cannot go away an opportunity at home, and at the same time have a good school for our own boys and girls without the expense of sending them away. Hence our offer. Will you have it? Next term opens Jan. 3, 1916.

Pres. Board U. C. B. H. S.

Make It A Pay Up Week

Why not make the first week in January "Pay Up Week" for this town and this community?

Why can't we all make the rounds and pay up all of our bills, or pay at least as much as possible on each one of them?

Why can't we make this a town where credits are a pleasure, and where bad debts and slow pay and indifference are unknown?

We would all feel better, and the people we pay would feel even still better, and they would then be able to pay what they owe.

Bills have to be paid some time or other, and the beginning of a new year is an opportune time to wipe them out and start with a clean slate. But if allowed to run they will drag along from month to month and in the end everybody will be wishing everybody else wouldn't be so everlasting slow about paying what they owe.

The man who pays his bills promptly and starts the new year free from debt can always get credit when he wants it, and he won't have to go hunting around for an endorser. His face and his word will be good enough for any business house.

But the fellow who allows his bills to run indefinitely and is indifferent to the needs of his creditors is an unsafe risk at best, and his reputation for honesty and reliability does not improve with age.

This is a pretty good town and our people are generally good on the pay, but we can make it better if we want to.

Let's all pay up.

Too many of us are strangers to each other in this community, where we should all be brothers and dwell together in unity for the common good of all.

And that is because there are entirely too many hard and fast cliques and sets, with each immersed in its own shell and never a peep at the light of outer day.

We need a common ground for meeting, where neighbor greets neighbor and the stranger finds himself at home and among friends.

If cooperation is good in a commercial affairs it would be of equal benefit in private and social life. It would afford us a more intimite knowledge of humanity and a broader prospective of life, and the resultant spirit of good fellowship would be felt in a thousand ways.

A year of "getting together" would stamp a wonderful imprint upon the heart, the soul and the conscience of this community.

ONE WAY OF DEVELOPING THE CATTLE INDUSTRY

Co-operation Is the Keynote to Success.

By Riley G. Arnold, Fayette County Demonstration Agent.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In my county I know of several unsucessful attempts to improve cattle by bringing in a good bull. These failures were due to two causes. First, the farmers were not sufficiently interested to patronize the bull. Second, almost every bull bought in a tick free territory and brought into our tick infested county dies soon after ticks get on him.

A co-operative scheme has been worked out by which a community takes shares in a good bull and a dipping vat. Say 10 to 20 farmers pay $15 each towards the purchase of a registered bull of the breed of choice. One member of the club cares for the animal, the expense to be paid by the stock company, the profits resulting from fees of services of the bull to be prorated among the individual stockholders at the end of the year. When a cow is brought for service, she is run through the vat in order that no tick will be likely to get on the bull.

In my county I have organized eight of these clubs. We have purchased nothing but the best Shorthorns. There are about 100 farmers owning shares in these bulls, and already since February of this year, when we ordered these animals, there have been 120 cows turned to these bulls. By the end of the year we look for double this number. This we have done by co-operation. One man who takes a $15 share in a $200 bull gets just as much good of the bull as if he owned him exclusively, and the expense of upkeep is practically negligible to one man. Every stockholder has as much influence to get patronage for the bull as if he were the exclusive owner, and when you get 20 farmers in one community talking the merits of a bull, you are going to see results. Within a year we intend to have a couple of cars of calves to put on the market. This we could never have done by individual ownership of these males.

But we can without detriment or inconvenience, or expense at least remember that we are all neighbors and friends and brothers, and so to act one to the other to the end that peace, harmony and happiness may be our lot for the coming year.

Fostering Industry

The construction of a railroad is the creation of wealth in the territory traversed by the railroad. Property values increase rapidly and enormously.

Property owners are fully alive to the advantages of railroad transportation, and in almost every instance are glad to encourage in every possible way the construction of a railroad.

When a railroad is in its infancy, higher rates are permitted to it than to an old established, successful railroad. All of which is right and proper, because infant industry needs financial encouragement.

On the same principles, railroads are anxious to have new industries locate along their lines, and offer every possible inducement to farmer and manufacturer in the way of low rates and prompt service, frequently going so far as securing desirable sites for manufacturing plants. Such industries create traffic and traffic creates passenger and freight earnings.

As a railroad develops and becomes successful, its table of rates is taken in hand and revised downward by the duly constituted authorities, until the railroad is required to charge not more than a certain percentage on specified commodities.

But not so the manufacturing plant, which, in its infant days, received a rate low enough to permit growth and development.

The railroad may have rendered service at less than cost for years in the hope of some day creating a successful and profitable business. But let the business prosper and become successful, it immediately interposes strenuous objections when plans to increase freight rates are proposed.

The successful railroad is compelled, by law, to submit to a downward revision of rates.

It is most difficult to induce a manufacturing enterprise or a mercantile enterprise to submit to an upward revision of a freight rate which has always been too low.

The L. & N. submits these matters to the people as information to illustrate the strict supervision maintained by the government over freight and passenger rates.

Every mile of track operated by the L. & N. is subject to this supervision, and every manufacturing enterprise along the lines of the L. & N. enjoys the privilege of the lowest freight rates possible.

Mutual consideration and cordial co-operation will contribute to the territorial success, and aid the L. & N. in its effort to maintain the highest degree of efficiency in freight and passenger service.

L. & N. CONDUCTOR GAINS 18 POUNDS

Declares that He now Eats Salt Pork and Cabbage Like Section Hand

"I have got to hand it to that Tanlac, for there is no doubt about it being the finest thing ever sold in a drug store for people that have any sort of stomach trouble or indigestion," said Capt Eugene Parker, a popular L. & N. conductor runnin between Birmingham and Atlanta and who lin at 417 Sixth Ave., Inglenook, a suburb of Birmingham.

"Why, the way it straightened me out in such a short time is a mystery, and it has done for me what nothing else I ever tried would do. I had mighty near got to where I didn't need to go to the table any more so for as eating was concerned, for I could not eat anything after I got there. If I did I had to pay dear for it in a little while for my stomach had just about played out altogether.

"There was a continual soreness in my stomach and I thought some times that it might be an abscess. My liver never was right and there was never a day but what I had to get something for headache and to settle my stomach. I never had much life in me and had fallen off a great deal. I was in a badly run down shape generally and hardly fit to do my work.

"About three weeks ago a friend of mine asked me why I did not try this Tanlac as he had used it and found it to be the very thing he needed, so I took him up on his suggestion and stopped at the drug store and bought two bottles of it, but must say I never looked for it to do me any good, for so many things had been recommended to me and I tried them all without any benefit.

"Well, I am afraid some people won't believe it but it is a fact and I can prove it. After I used those two bottles I weighed and found I had actually gained eighteen pounds. It just straightened me ou in no time and since I took the first dose I haven't had a headache.

"I have the finest kind of an appetite now and can eat anything. The other day out on the road our supply had run low and I had some salt pork and cabbage cooked up on the caboose and I ate it like a section hand and enjoyed every mouth full of it. That is going some for a man who had stomach trouble but it didn't hurt me one bit.

"I notibe I sleep a good deal better now and am just about 100 per cent in better shape in every way. I really believe Tanlac is the best remedy in the world, and there are a lot of other people out our way that think the same way."

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonsful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonsful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonsful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador of "Money Back" if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Schiffmann, Proprietor, Saint Paul, Minn. Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

TRY IT! SUBSTITUTE FOR NASTY CALOMEL

Starts yout liver without making you sick and can not salivate

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local drggist. Dodson's Livir Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no billiousness, sick headache, acid stumach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, and nauseated. Don't loose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feil fine, full of vigor and ambition.

Oval Water Pipes Best.

Oval water pipes are less liable to burst when they freeze than round ones. The reason is that repeated freezings and thawings cause a round lead water pipe to stretch at the weakest points and form bulges, which finally split; but a pipe that starts life as oval may be frozen a number of times without cracking, because each time it gets a little rounder, and not until the strain can no longer be relieved in that way does it form bulges and burst.

Fern Was Peeved.

According to an eminent botanist, plants are so sensitive that they resent neglect and are susceptible to kind treatment, showing their gratitude in charming ways. We are therefore the more ready to believe a story told us a day or two ago by a lover of nature. He was watering a fern on a cold morning. He forgot to temper the water. The fern, incensed by the shock, leaped from the pot and bit him savagely in the leg.—Philip Hale, in Boston Herald.

The Leading Nation.

In every age of the world there has been a leading nation, one of a more generous sentiment, whose citizens were willing to stand for the interests of general justice and humanity at the risk of being called by the men of the moment chimerical and fantastic. Which should be that nation but these states?—Emerson.

STATE TREASURER FOR BOND ISSUE

IS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY FOR BEST INTERESTS OF STATE, SAYS LANCASTER.

ONLY SOLUTION OF DIFFICULTY

Appeals to Voters to Lay Aside Prejudice and Partisan Bias and Vote for Bond Issue.

As a State-wide prohibitionist, possibly of the extreme class, a personal and political friend of Governor B. B Comer, and in no wise influenced by the present Governor, I feel it my duty to the citizens of this state who have honored me by electing me State Treasurer, to give them the benefit of my views on the State bond issue to be voted on January 18th.

From the experience gained by me as State Treasurer for the past eleven months, and my experience as a banker and business man for the past twenty-five years, I unqualifiedly endorse the bond issue as being absolutely necessary for the best interest of the State. I say this after mature deliberation and an earnest desire to follow some other plan if it were feasible.

I have considered the subject from every angle, trying to see some other feasible and honorable way for the State, but I am forced to the conclusion after careful investigation that this bond issue must be had, or taxation in some form burdensomely increased. (For repudiation of anything that smacks of it is not to be considered by honest citizens.)

I agree with Governor Henderson that this is no time for a tax increase. The State owes the debt, no matter how or by whom made. A short time serial bond issue is the only business solution of the difficulty and the only difference between Governor Henderson and myself on this issue, is the amount. I think the amount asked for, $1,500,000.00, too small to take care of a $2,500,000.00 deficit, but this is Governor Henderson's administration and he says he can take care of the situation if given the bond issue of $1,500,000.00. It will take some good financering to do this.

My experience with Governor Henderson for the past eleven months leads me to believe that he is honest and sincere, and above all things, an excellent business Governor. I was not his supporter for Governor and am under no obligations for favors done or expected. I appeal to the voters of this my native State, to whom alone I owe allegiance, to cast aside prejudice and partisan bias and vote for the honor and best interests of your State, and I desire to assure you that no matter what your decision may be in this matter, your interest will be protected and cared for by your Governor and Treasurer and other officers on whom the burden of financing the State will fall.

One thing you can be assured of, that this entire issue, if favorably voted, will be sold to the best advantage of the State under the supervision of the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer, without one cent of fees or perquisites to anyone, and that the entire amount sold for cannot by law and will not be used for any other purpose except to refund or pay the outstanding indebtedness or deficit of the State.

I feel certain that if the bond issue is not carried favorably, much disappointment and regret will be the result caused by action that State officers will be compelled to take to uphold the honor and integrity of Alabama before the world.

W. L. LANCASTER,
State Treasurer.

Unconquerable.

The habit of never being whipped, of always keeping up the fight—that is the quality of the great leader. The man who never admits defeat is the man the world has to take into account. Time and again the foes he is fighting may think they have him down. But before they know it he is on his feet sounding the advance. Such a man molds events. He helps create the new heavens and the new earth of the prophet's vision. A mighty force of the universe is the unconquerable soul!

TESTS OF VARIETIES OF CORN IN 1915

Press Bulletin No. 81, Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

In 1915 the Alabama Experiment Station tested at Auburn seventeen varieties of corn in plots. The soil is an upland sandy loam. Corn was planted April 7th in checks 4 2-3 by 3 feet and later thinned to one plant to a hill. The fertilizer applied at time of planting consisted of 240 pounds acid phosphate, 100 pounds kainit and 160 pounds of cotton seed meal per acre. On June 9th a side dressing of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre was applied. Frequent shallow cultivation was given the corn until it bunched to tassel.

The yields on the basis of a uniform stand were as follows:

Variety—	Bushels of shelled corn per acre.	No. ears and nubbins per 100 plants.
Weekley	55.4	212
Hastings Prolific	55.3	157
Marlboro	55.0	207
Davis' Poor Land	54.3	178
Mosby	52.6	203
Henry Grady No. 902	52.2	125
Expt. Sta. Yellow No. 816	52.2	177
Whatley	52.0	218
Renfro	52.0	116
Expt. Sta. Yellow No. 811	51.8	180
Vardaman's Stooling	51.3	181
Henry Grady No. 904	48.5	142
Greenwood	48.1	180
Jackson Red Cob	45.7	129
Watson	42.9	112
Humbree	40.8	111
Cocke Prolific	30.9	126

The five leading varieties have medium to small ears with white cob, and may be classed as prolific. No variety normally bearing a single large ear to the plant stands near the top in yield.

During the past eleven years, among the four most productive varieties each year, Mosby was included seven times; Sanders & Hastings, each six times; Experiment Station Yellow and Marlboro each four times; and Henry Grady and Alexander Prolific each three times.

This Station cannot supply seed; but it will furnish, upon application, a list of the parties from whom the varieties of seed were obtained.
